When Hermle was young, the family moved to Oakland, California to open a leather goods business. Hermle graduated from the University of California at Berkeley with a Bachelor of Arts in 1915, and a Doctor of Jurisprudence in 1917. On August 15, 1917, he reported for active duty with the United States Marine Corps at the Mare Island Naval Base. Shortly thereafter, he married Venepha Apoline Plass in San Francisco, California.

Hermle returned to the United States in July 1919 and began serving as Intelligence Officer and Legal Aid to the Commandant. In November 1921, he was assigned to the Office of the Judge Advocate General of the Navy, Washington, D.C. and was admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court. In 1924, he was assigned to Commanding Officer of the Marine Detachment aboard the U.S.S. Seattle. In May 1930, he began duty in the Republic of Haiti where he served for four years. In 1939, he transferred to the Sixth Marine Regiment in San Diego, CA. During World War II, Hermle joined the Fifth Marine Division at Camp Pendleton, CA and sailed for the Central Pacific in August 1944. Hermle later received a Navy Cross for his service as Brigadier General in action against Japanese forces in Iwo Jima between February 19 and March 26, 1945.

Hermle retired from the military in September 1949, later advanced to the rank of Lieutenant General. He became an Adjunct Professor in the School of Law at the University of San Diego in 1960 where he taught until 1972.
