Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, bishop of the San Diego Diocese of the Catholic Church, is welcomed to the convent of the Sacred Heart by Martha Van Peenen, 5, a kindergarten at the convent.

Bishop Is Honored By Convent Girls

By BOB WEAVER

EL CAJON — Seventy years ago, a "big girl" asked a six-year-old student if he could be a good boy on his birthday.

Yesterday, the boy—now a leader in the Catholic Church—was honored by 325 "school-mates."

The Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, bishop of the San Diego Diocese, was presented with a chalice, a bouquet and a written copy of a speech in his behalf.

The students at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in El Cajon gathered on the lawn for a reception honoring the bishop.

Lucile Schuster, a senior at the convent high school and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Schuster of La Mesa, read an address enumerating the bishop's accomplishments.

The bishop was then presented with a jewel-encrusted chalice by Kathleen Jeffers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jeffers of La Mesa and a senior at the school.

Another senior, Susanne Rucio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Robert J. Rucio of El Cajon, presented him with a bouquet.

The bishop looked back over the years and recalled a time "when one of the upper classmen—we called them 'big girls'—said to me, 'Why don't you be a good boy today, it's your sixth birthday.'"

"I'll always be grateful for the thoughts and inspiration behind your expression here."

"And this (address) will serve as a comfort in the quiet evening time ahead."

The bishop, who is celebrating his 50th year as a priest, was met by a group of pre-school and kindergarten youngsters as he stepped from his auto.

Martha Van Peenen, 5, a kindergarten student at the convent, stepped forward and presented him with a bouquet of roses.

The Rev. Mother Mardell, superior of the Order of the Sacred Heart nuns who operate the school, said yesterday's reception was a special tribute to the bishop.

BIGGER ENROLLMENT EXPECTED

USD Has More Courses, New Members Of Faculty

By CHARLES DAVIS
The San Diego Union's
Education Writer

New courses, new faculty members and more students are expected in the 1964-65 term at the University of San Diego, two of whose components will begin a landmark year.

If projections materialize, USD's separately organized College for Women, College for Men and School of Law could have about 200 more students than the 1,065 last fall.

10TH ANNIVERSARIES

The men's college and law school begin their 10th full academic years of operation, and, for the men's college, it marks the 15th year since its charter was issued, in 1949.

Registration will be Sept. 15 at the women's college with classes beginning the next day. About 650 students are expected, the same as a year ago.

The college—the first academic institution on the Alcala Park campus when it opened Feb. 11, 1952—will have 10 new members on its religious and lay faculty of 63 this year.

LIBRARY SCIENCE

Starting this fall will be a new library science program under Roy Holleman, formerly on the University of Southern California faculty. The first course will be in bibliography and reference sources.

Also new this year will be a special education series starting in September with a course for elementary teachers on curriculum development for mentally retarded pupils.

Spanish and philosophy department majors will be developed. A political science course, "Public Opinion and Propaganda," will be offered for the first time.

Creativity will be stressed in three new workshops—one in playwriting, one in acting and one in theater. The college's string ensemble will be expanded into a 50-piece orchestra.

At the College for Men, registration will be Sept. 9 and 10. Classes will begin Sept. 11. Enrollment is expected to be 350, up 100 from a year ago.

The Very Rev. John P. Cadden, president, said the curriculum will be expanded from two academic divisions to four. They are humanities, social sciences, natural science and mathematics, and business administration.

TELESCOPE SHED

Ready for use for the first time will be a 9-by-8-foot "cold room" for conduct of biochemistry experiments. The room, with below-freezing temperatures, was financed in part by the National Science Foundation.

Planned for completion in about six weeks is a shed with a sliding roof to house a 10-inch reflector telescope which will be added this year will be a behavioral laboratory and two faculty members in the psychology department. There will be a new biology laboratory, a seminar room and increased classroom space.

The college will have 12 new faculty members, including doctors of psychology, physics and chemistry.

USD's law school expects unprecedented growth. There will be 90 returning upperclassmen. In addition, 100 freshman applications have arrived for the school's day program and 70 for the evening program.

Registration will be tomorrow and classes will start Sept. 8.

Superior Court Judge Robert O. Stanforth will take over the school's moot court program, handled in the past by U.S. District Court Judge James M. Carter.

18 Per Cent Gain Recorded In USD College Enrollments

Southern Cross 10-1-64

START OF NEW YEAR—Students of the College for Women and College for Men gathered in a patio of the College for Women to make final checks on their courses for the new college year. Father I. B. Eagen of the College for Men

657 Students Top Mark at Women's College

Increases in the number of students, faculties and facilities featured the opening of the University of San Diego for the academic year 1964-65.

The enrollment is 1,257 compared with 1,065 a year ago. This represents a gain of 18 per cent.

The largest enrollment is reported by the College for Women, the first school to be opened on the Alcala Park campus. Mother Anne Farragher, RSCJ, president of the college, said 657 students registered in September.

The major increase, however, is reported by the College for Men where 301 students have registered, a gain of 23 per cent. Father John P. Cadden, president, announced.

Two Units List Totals

The School of Law, the third unit of the University, has enrolled 219 students, according to Joseph A. Sinclitto, dean. The School of Theology has registered 80 students, Father John P. Quinn, rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary, said.

Ten new members have joined the faculty of the College for Women. Mother Farragher stated. The students, who are mostly local but include some from Hong Kong, Tokyo, Saudi Arabia, Ireland, Mexico, Latin America, Canada and various parts of the United States, will be taught this year by a religious and lay faculty of 63.

Started this fall at the women's college is a new library science program under Rev. Hollenman, formerly of the University of Southern California faculty. The first course has to do with bibliography and reference sources. Mother Farragher said. Also new this year is a special education series with a course for elementary teachers on curriculum development for mentally retarded pupils.

Political Science Course Offered

Spanish and philosophy department majors are to be developed. A political science course, "Public Opinion and Propaganda," is being offered for the first time. Creativity will be stressed in three new workshops—one in playwriting, one in acting and one in theater. The college's string ensemble will be expanded to a 50-piece orchestra.

Ready for use for the first time is a nine by eight foot "cold room" for the conduct of biochemistry experiments. The room, with below-freezing temperatures, was financed in part by the National Science Foundation.

Twelve new members have been added to the faculty of the men's college. Included among them are Ph.D.'s in psychology, physics and chemistry and a graduate of the School of Law, who is lecturing in business administration.

The curriculum has been expanded to encompass four academic divisions where there were formerly only two, Father Cadden said. The four divisions are humanities, social sciences, natural science and mathematics and business administration.

In the humanities division (English, philosophy, foreign languages, speech and theater), new courses in fine arts are being offered for the first time.

The addition of a new behavioral laboratory and two new faculty members reflects a strengthening of the psychology

Frosh Elect First Officers

Classes clubs and various activities are organizing and preparing for the fall semester at the San Diego College for Women.

The Freshman class has elected the first Fortnightly officers. President is Constance Salovitch, a graduate of Our Lady of Peace, and the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy M. Dotson; vice president is Martina Graham from Cathedral High school, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weidon C. Graham; secretary-treasurer is Mary Burke from Central High school in Sioux City, Iowa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Burke.

The Alcala Park Players have selected "The Burnt Flower Bed," by Ugo Betti, for their Fall production to be presented November 6, 7, and 8. Marsha Zandi will portray Luisa in the evening performances and Marlena Aguilar will portray this character in the matinee. Acting as Rosa will be Catherine Marino.

A scene from "The Importance of Being Earnest" will be presented by the Alcala Players at the 11:25 period on October 6. This will be directed by Ann Gray, and played by Denise Belson and Catherine Marino.

Cheerleaders from the College for Women for the year will be Patricia Potter, Marjorie Massiello, Cheryl Norris and Kathleen Schweitzer. They were elected by the students from both the College for Women and the College for Men, and announced at the ADG kickoff dance.

The Junior class will put on the Junior Fair October 7. General chairman is Patricia Potter.

Club Aids Student Fund At College

A check for $500 recently was presented to Rev. John Paul Cadden, president of the College for Men, by Dan Hale, president of the Advertising and Sales Club of San Diego, to establish a new loan fund for students at the university.

The loan fund was originated, and the finances made available to support it, by George A. Scott, president of the Walker Scott Company, through the Scott Foundation. Known as the Paul Howard Loan Fund, it has the dual purpose of aiding students who have a need for additional funds to complete their education, and to honor the outstanding efforts of Paul Howard, past president of the Advertising and Sales Club of San Diego and Walker Scott's promotion and advertising director.

The fund basically makes available non-interest bearing loans to upper-division or graduate students at the University of San Diego who are in marketing, journalism, art, business administration, economics, advertising and radio-television. No repayments are expected from the students until their education has been completed and they have received a degree or credential, and no longer attend the university.

These funds are to be administered directly by the Office of Financial Aids and application for these loans now can be made by contacting this office on campus.

Superior Court Judge Robert O. Stanforth will take over the school's moot court program, handled in the past by U.S. District Court Judge James M. Carter.

NEIL MORGAN

CROSSTOWN: Our political parable for today involves Mayor Frank Curran, who would like to please everybody. At the Community Concourse he saw a little girl sucking her thumb. "Here," he said, leaning over and extending a thumb, "would you like to try mine?" She did, and bit it so savagely that His Honor gasped with pain.

NOTEPAD: At Chula Vista, campaign offices for Jim Bear, Henry Boney and Dick Wilson are all within the same block. But a big crowd turned out the other night for open houses, drawn by a Klieg light and a jazz combo. The three candidates had crossed party lines to share in the cost. . . . At Navy Electronics Laboratory, a thrift-minded call went out for employees to bring in hands from abandoned alarm clocks. They'll be used as liquid level indicators in experiments by Dr. Waldo Lyon's Battery Whistler, the Arctic research project. . . . Photographer Charlie Schneider is the man behind the new hickory-smoked barbecued chicken ovens appearing around the city in liquor stores and beer bars.

One decision of the Ecumenical Council has been that priests may now say their breviary (daily prayers) in English instead of Latin. Only requirement is that they get approval of their bishop, in writing. Not to be outdone by these new departures, Rev. J. Vincent Sullivan wrote his two-page request in Latin. Of course, it comes naturally, since he is chairman of the foreign language department at the University of San Diego College for Men, and author of "Flying Through Latin."

A three-foot statue of St. Joseph the Worker has been given to the University of San Diego library by the Knights of Columbus, university officials said.

It was presented to the library as a memorial to Lambert Ninteman, 2824 Chatsworth Blvd., the immediate past state deputy of the Knights of Columbus.

Ninteman also was the contractor on construction of the University of San Diego, officials said. Artist Roger Williams did the statue in cast plaster with a bronze patina. It shows St. Joseph as a day laborer of the Roman period in the Holy Land, wearing a short worker's tunic and carrying a primitive hammer.

LOAN FUND—Father John P. Cadden, University of San Diego president, accepts a check for $500 from Dan Hale, president of the Advertising and Sales Club of San Diego to establish a new loan fund for students at the university. The loan fund was originated by George A. Scott, president of Walker Scott Company. It has the dual purpose of aiding students who need additional funds to finish their education and to honor Paul Howard, past president of the club and Walker Scott's promotion director.

J. R. Dempsey, president, Astronautics division, General Dynamics Corp., outlines technically-oriented business to Eugene A. Bambic, left, an instructor at University of San Diego, and Robert J. Ahern, a sophomore student. Dempsey is one of several local executives lecturing at USD in unique business management curriculum.

Executives Assisting USD Business Class

University of San Diego business students are learning from some of the area's leading executives.

Lectures by seasoned officers are part of a "Principles of Management" course that includes studies of planning, organizing, actuating and controlling management functions in today's increasingly complex business world. Eugene A. Bambic is instructor.

One of the criticisms of business courses in colleges, Bambic says, is the relative gap between classroom theory and actual practice.

Bambic believes community business leaders are an important supplemental source of information for students. In addition, they are serving their community by helping develop a pool of potential managers.

MANAGER POOL

His initial list of guest lecturers represents a cross-section of San Diego business and industry. It includes:

John Banks, executive vice president, National Steel & Shipbuilding Co.; J. R. Dempsey, president, Astronautics division, General Dynamics Corp.; Kim Fletcher, president, Home Federal Savings & Loan Association; Thomas W. Fletcher, city manager; James F. Mulvaney, vice president-assistant to the president, United States National Bank; Lambert J. Ninteman, L. J. Ninteman Construction Co., Inc.; Louis M. Peelyon, executive director, Scripps Memorial Hospital; and George A. Scott, president, Walker Scott Corp.

SUBJECTS VARIOUS

Their subjects range from labor relations through employee motivation to the fast-changing aspects of retailing.

As a follow-up, students will do outside research to supplement the discussions and will submit papers for evaluation. The best will earn its writer special privileges as a day at the speaker's company, meetings with top executives, briefings on corporate structure and participating in executive decision-making.

Colleges Receive Churlis Bequests

The University of San Diego was presented with a check representing the first part of a $35,000 estate which was left to the institution by Matthew Churlis, a native of Lithuania who had lived in San Diego 15 years.

The funds, allocated specifically for tuition scholarships for financially needy students, will be divided equally between USD's College for Men and College for Women.

Churlis, who was 70 when he died last year, lived at 236 Kaimia Street. He came to the United States from Lithuania in the 1920s and became a citizen in 1930. A retired durggist, he contributed scholarship funds to San Diego High School during his lifetime. His estate totaling nearly $65,000, was left to charity.

First National Bank, executor of Mr. Churlis' will, said the estate is being contested by Russia on behalf of Churlis' Lithuanian relatives, who became Soviet citizens at the time of Lithuania's incorporation into the U.S.S.R. after World War II.

However, since there is no reciprocal treaty between the United States and Russia regarding the inheritance of estates, California law prohibits Soviet citizens from receiving legacies from California estates. A partial distribution of $20,000 to USD was recently authorized by District Court. The balance of the estate will be distributed shortly after the first of the year.

CHECK PRESENTED—Accepting a check for $10,000 on behalf of the University of San Diego College for Men, is Rev. John P. Cadden, left, president. Grant Taylor, chairman of the Scholarship Committee of the college, and Charles Conway, administrator of the Matthew Churlis estate for the First National Bank, look on. A check in the same amount was presented to Rev. Mother Ethel Teagarden and Mother De Leon of USD's College of Women.

SAUDI ARABIAN

Student Prince Enrolls At USD

By JERRY MARCUS

A student prince with a clipped British accent enrolled yesterday at the University of San Diego.

He expressed a desire to become the first person from Saudi Arabia to receive a degree from a U.S. institution.

Prince Sattam Al-Saud is majoring in business administration. His brother, King Saud, nominally rules an estimated 20,000,000 persons in the oil-rich desert kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Al-Saud, 23, married and the father of three children, learned his English at Cambridge. He has 32 brothers and an undetermined number of sisters.

RICH OIL FIELD

His father, Ibn Saud, brought together the kingdom of Saudi Arabia and ruled with a sword until the black gold was discovered, consisting of an estimated one-sixth of the world's oil reserves.

But according to Al-Saud, the fabled day of the Arabian Nights are coming to an end in his country.

"We now have free education in our country and free medical care," he said. "A few years ago we had a small number of high schools but today we have about 350."

The dapper, mustachioed prince said his nation will send top students to universities in many parts of the world and pay for their entire education.

RELIGIOUS BACKGROUND

Why did the prince come to a nation that is such a contrast to his own, and why did he choose a Catholic school in San Diego?

"I wanted to go to a school that had a religious affiliation," he said. "I am religious myself even though of a different faith."

The prince, who is a Moslem, said 95 per cent of the population of his country does not drink. Nearly all the women still wear veils when in public and the dress consists of the usual white robes (Continued on a-16, Col. 5)

Prince Sattam Al-Saud, of Saudi Arabia, left, meets Bruce Dunlap, student president of the University of San Diego. Prince arrived yesterday to finish senior year at the local school.

Prince Enrolls As USD Student

A prince from a far-off land enrolled at the University of San Diego's College for Men this week.

He is Prince Sattam Al-Saudi Arabia. His brother, King Saud, nominally rules eight million persons in the oil-rich desert kingdom.

The prince is 23, married, and the father of three children. He has 32 brothers and an undetermined number of sisters.

He speaks with a clipped British accent, having learned English at Cambridge.

The prince hopes to be the first person from his country to receive a degree from a U.S. school. He said he heard about the University of San Diego from American oil executives working in Riyadh, the Saudi Arabia capital.

"I wanted to go to a school that had a religious affiliation," he said. "I am religious myself even though of a different faith."

The prince is a Moslem. He said 95 per cent of the Saudi Arabians does not drink. Nearly all the women still wear veils when in public and the dress consists of the usual white robes which offer relief from the searing desert heat.

"We now have free education in our country and free medical care," he said. "A few years ago we had a small number of high schools but today we have about 350."

He said his country will send outstanding students to universities in many parts of the world and pay for their education.

The prince said his wish is to be a regular member of the University of San Diego. He has mapped a heavy schedule — principles of management, business statistics, economic theories, college algebra, and moral ethics.

He said he will try his best so he "can return to my country and help in any way possible."

The traditional event sponsored by the Alcala Guild of the University of San Diego College for Men will be presented at 11:30 a.m. this Saturday, October 17. Approximately 800 women will join Guild members at the Convention Hall for the fashion luncheon.

"Concourse Promenade" to be presented with the assistance of the San Diego Downtown Association promises to set new standards in fashion show presentations and is the first such show to be scheduled for the Convention Hall.

Special guests invited to attend are Prince Sattam Al-Saud of Saudi Arabia, a student at the college; Chancellor and Mrs. Herbert F. York, and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Scott.

Guests as they arrive will be Misses Daniel K. Kerr, founder-president of the Guild, John P. O'Donnell, '64 Woman of Valor and current president, and co-chairmen Frank J. O'Connor and Paul A. Vesco.

The October meeting of the Guild, scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, October 19, in the faculty dining room on campus will feature committee members of the "Concourse Promenade."

Forget Protocol, Use 'Mister' As Title, Prince Tells USD

Saudi Arabian Hopes Schooling
In U.S. Will Aid His Country

By KAREN GUSTAFSON
EVENING TRIBUNE Staff Writer

A prince from the oil-rich deserts of Saudi Arabia who prefers to be addressed as "mister" started classes at 8 a.m. today at the University of San Diego College for Men.

Sattam Al Saud, 23, will become the first of the Mid-Eastern country's royal family to receive a degree in the United States. He's studying business administration and plans to receive his bachelor's degree in June.

He has 33 brothers and an uncounted number of sisters.

Protocol requires that Saud be addressed as "your highness," but the prince asked - Irving W. Parker, the college's dean of admissions and records, that he be addressed as "Mr." Saud.

First Moslem at School

"His highness will be welcomed as a regular student at the university," Parker said.

Parker added that Saud is the first Moslem and the first Saudi Arabian to study at the university.

Saud, in an interview yesterday at the Hotel del Coronado, said he is majoring in business administration "because I'm interested in the subject and my country needs it."

He just completed three years at Cambridge University in England.

Arrives with Family

He arrived in San Diego Sunday with his wife, Najla, his son and two daughters and a retinue of servants to begin looking for a house he hopes to lease while here.

He explained that he has only one wife because polygamy is on the way out in his country and because "it's too expensive" to support more than one wife.

Why did Saud choose to attend the University of San Diego?

"I wanted to attend a school with religious affiliations because I am religious myself," he said.

SATTAM AL SAUD
Transfers from England

Hopes to Help Nation

He said he heard of the university from friends connected with the Aramco Oil Co. in his country.

"When I return next year I will try to help my country," he said.

"It's too early yet to say in what way, but I have ideas. The main thing is progress and better living for our people."

Progress already shown in his country is in education.

2 Universities Now

"About 10 years ago we had only three high schools. Now we have many more and two universities," he said.

However, 1,500 Saudi Arabians are receiving higher education abroad, 500 of them in the United States. Saud explained that the government subsidizes foreign study for all students who do well in high school.

Saud is son of the late King Saud ibn Abdul Aziz, who founded the nation, and brother of present King Saud and Crown Prince Faisal.

Toreros Face Waves In Opener Tuesday

Coach Phil Woolpert's University of San Diego basketball team draws a rugged assignment Tuesday when it lifts the lid on the 1964-65 campaign against Pepperdine College at USD gym.

The Waves have been one of the southland's powers and is a contender for the West Coast Athletic Conference crown this year.

Pepperdine will start veteran forwards Dwight Jones (6-2) and Roland Betts (6-6), both in their third season with the Los Angeles team. Bill Wardrop, 6-6 sophomore and letterman, Mark Yavorsky (5-11) are set to pivot duties while sophomore Nate Bender (6-8) will share pivot duties while sophomore Dave Pinomotti (6-1) and transfer Bill Satterfield (6-0) will be at guards for the tough Waves.

The Toreros will field a team composed of returnees, headed by Cliff Ashford (6-3), who led 1963-64 club last year with 17.1 points per game. Two-year veteran Mark Teismann (6-4) is expected to get the starting nod at the other front court post but junior Matt Malerick (6-3), sophomore transfer Bernie Bickelstaff (6-2) from Rio Grande and sophomore Alan Fay (6-5) give Woolpert plenty of depth.

It is still a tossup among Phil Price (6-6), Ken Kullberg (6-7) and Larry Moyer (6-6) for the center spot while veterans Lyndon Williams (5-9) and Mark Yavorsky (5-11) are set at guards.

The Toreros and Waves last played in 1962 with the northern team taking an 82-66 decision. San Diego has never beaten the Waves. Other defeats composed of returnees, headed by Cliff Ashford (6-3), who led 1963-64 club last year with 17.1 points per game.

USD Stages Old Comedy

A 2,000-year-old comedy, "The Twin Menachmi," by Plautus, got new life in a production by University of San Diego students this week in More Hall on the USD campus.

The play, which delighted Roman audiences a hundred years before the birth of Christ, is a comedy of errors, in which one twin is mistaken for his brother under a variety of circumstances. It was used as a model by Shakespeare for his play, "A Comedy of Errors."

It was directed by Rev. John H. Cloonan, chairman of the department of speech and dramatic arts at the College for Men.

The twin roles were played by Michael Chahk and Richard Gray. Wife and mistress were enacted by Mary Williams and Virginia Conway, respectively, from the College for Women. Other featured players in the cast of 13 were Philip Bolles and John Megow.

The translation used for this production converts Plautus' Latin to colloquial slapstick American fitting the style of the original. Father Cloonan said. It is particularly interesting for high school and college students of literature and theater, he added.

The charge will be less than a dollar. I hope this doesn't discourage you." . . . # Saud's Brother Takes Reins

Faisal, 58, Third King Of Country

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Saudi Arabia's King Saud was deposed today and his brother, Crown Prince and Prime Minister Faisal, was proclaimed king of the oil-rich desert state, Mecca Radio announced.

Information Minister Jamil Al Hujailan read a statement over Mecca Radio saying cabinet ministers and the Religious Consultative Council, in joint session this morning, approved the deposition of Saud, 62, and the proclamation of Faisal, 58, as the third monarch of Saudi Arabia.

The broadcast said nothing about Saud's plans, but reports circulating in the Arab world the past few days said the ailing ex-monarch, who had been king since his father's death in 1953, may live somewhere in Europe.

Saud has been treated in Switzerland and the United States in recent years for eye trouble, a stomach ulcer, high blood pressure and general debility.

Brother Here
A brother of former King Saud and Faisal, Prince Sattam Al-Saud, is a student at the University of San Diego College for Men.

Al-Saud, 23, is the first Moslem to study at the Catholic school. He is studying business administration and plans to receive his bachelor's degree in June. He has completed three years at Cambridge University in England.

University officials said Al-Saud has been instructed not to discuss the change in kings.

Status Bars Comment
"He is here on a diplomatic passport, not a student visa," said Irving W. Parker, dean of admissions and records at the university.

"With that type passport, any public statement becomes an official view of the government. Any discussion by the prince of political or military matters is strictly off limits," Parker said.

He said the prince is attending his normal schedule of classes at the university today.

Big Spender
The deposed king reportedly is one of the richest men in the world—mainly from oil royalties paid to him by American oil companies.

Saud was a generous spender during his reign and Faisal objected to it. Saud had fleets of American limousines, rented out entire hotels on his trips abroad and often bestowed gold watches on airline hostesses.

Faisal, a reformer, claimed that Saud was too lavish with Saudi Arabia's oil income and that the money should be poured into projects to improve the lot of the nation's six million people.

Wins Power Struggle
Faisal became the real ruler last February after he defeated Saud in a power struggle. Immediately, Faisal imposed an austerity program. Gone were Saud's fleets of cars—he was permitted to keep one—and the Saud palace household of 5,000 slaves, pensioners, princes, courtiers and guards.

Sources close to Faisal say he had expressed fear that if Saud remained in power two more years the socialist tide in the Arab world would have swept Saudi Arabia.

Faisal's toughest problem at home is to liberalize a nation bound by traditions and to bring it into the modern world. He has earmarked the equivalent of $180 million for health, education and communications. His goal is to build 100 new schools every year.

Teaching Course Advanced

Graduate men students at University of San Diego will begin a program next summer which will allow them to get an early start on the teaching profession.

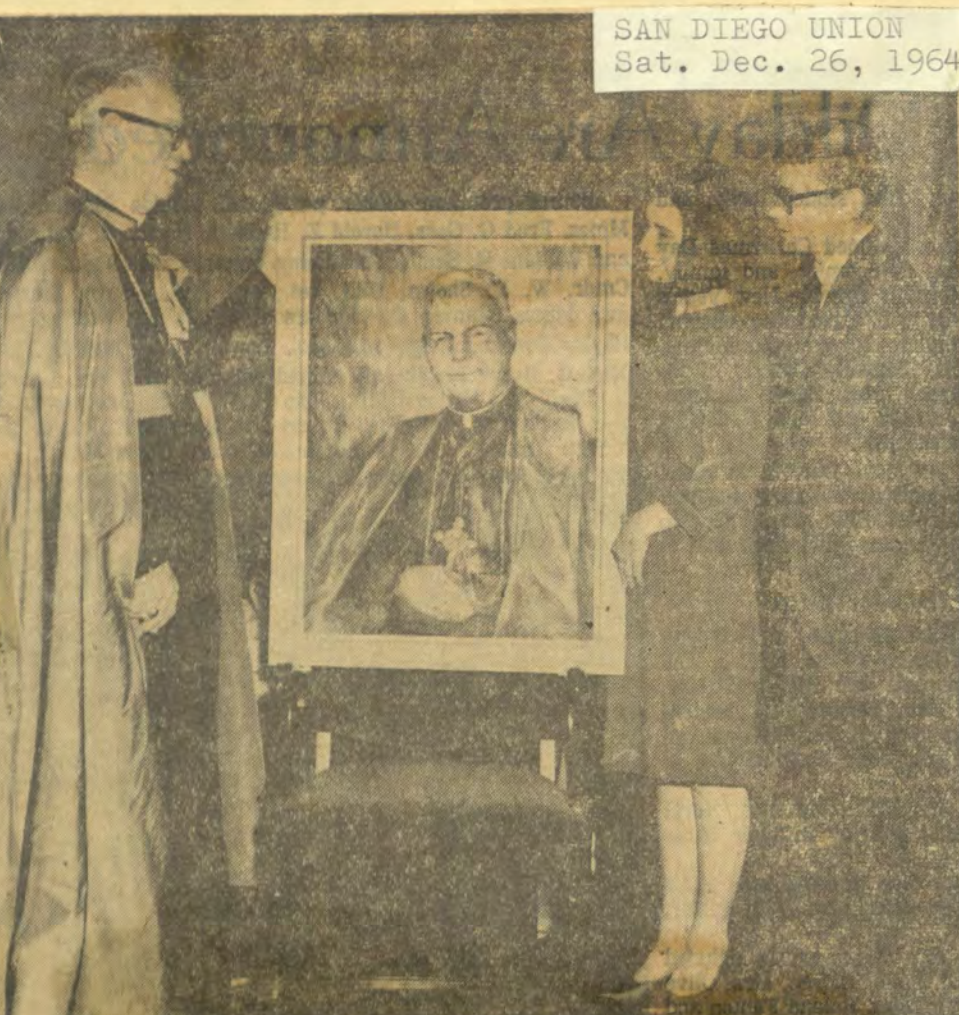

Under the program, education students will begin teaching in a local school district next fall. They will earn state teaching certificates and masters degrees while teaching.

William E. Saleses, chairman of the education department of USD's College for Men, said the school district in which the students will teach has not yet been picked.

He said the student-teachers will attend full time seminars during the summers, and part-time seminars during the school year. The first of the full time seminars starts next summer.

Saleses said state teaching certificates will be awarded successful students at the end of the second summer semester, and the M. A. Degree, at the end of the third.

Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, is presented a surprise gift, a portrait of himself, given by University of San Diego student bodies in recognition of the 28th anniversary of his consecration as a bishop. Sarah Doyle and Bruce Dunlap, student body president of USD's colleges for women and men, make the presentation. The artist is Mrs. Roger Hanafin, College for Women art teacher.

College Sets New Program

A new program at the University of San Diego which will allow a college graduate to get his teaching credential and an M.A. degree while he's actually teaching will be inaugurated this summer, according to William E. Saleses, chairman of the Education Department at USD's College for Men.

By attending afternoon classes during the academic year and full-time courses in the summer, a teaching candidate can participate in a salaried Internship Program and, at the same time, fulfill his academic requirements, Saleses said.

The program leads to a California Standard Teaching Credential and a Master of Arts in Teaching over a three-year period. The credential is awarded at the end of the second summer semester and the M.A. at the end of the third.

First candidates in the program will begin teaching in a local school district next summer. They will be required to attend seminars during the academic year as well as two more summer sessions.

Further details on the teacher education program may be obtained by contacting Saleses at the College for Men, Alcala Park.

Toreros Decision PhibPac, 68-53, To Win Cage Crown

By CHUCK SAWYER

University of San Diego won the championship of the fifth annual Holiday Basketball Tournament at its first attempt last night by defeating PhibPac, 68-53, at the Cal Western gymnasium.

The Toreros grabbed a 16-15 lead midway in the first half and never trailed again, leading by as much as 10 points in the first half with their winning margin proving to be their greatest edge in the game.

In the consolation championship, Southern Utah defeated MCRD, 63-57. In the game for third place, Cal Western won over Point Mugu, 63-50, while Hamilton AFB whipped Colorado College, 75-69, for seventh place.

All-tournament teams were picked in both the collegiate and service divisions. Named to the college squad were Cliff Ashford and Lyndon Williams, both of USD; Rod Oliver, Southern Utah; Chris Grant, Colorado College; and Lem Lemons, Cal Western.

The service all-tourney team included Jim Fields, Hamilton AFB; Floyd Seabron and Todd Kard, Point Mugu; and Denny Groves and Marion Bozman, PhibPac.

Ashford scored 17 points to lead USD in the championship battle while Groves paced PhibPac with 19.

The Toreros built a 10-point lead at 30-20 with 5:39 left in the first half, moving from a 24-19 edge on two baskets by Bernie Bickerstaff and one by Dick Verlasky. However, the Invaders came back with nine quick points on two baskets by Groves, a bucket and a free throw by Ron Batson and two gift shots by Bozman.

This cut the USD edge to 30-29 with 3:34 left in the half. The comeback by the Invaders was featured by some rough play by both teams and also produced a technical foul against the Toreros' bench.

Larry Moyer and Ashford connected from the field for USD before the half ended while Bozman got another basket and free throw for PhibPac to give the Toreros their 34-32 halftime margin.

USD again built a 10-point lead midway in the second half at 53-43 and then rolled to the championship without serious difficulty.

MCRD had a 57-56 lead with 3:38 left in its game with Southern Utah but Johnny Johnson's two free throws seconds later put the Utah club in front, 58-57, and it continued to run up five more points as the Marines went scoreless the remainder of the game.

The Marines led by 15-8 in the early going as Stacey Higgins ran off nine points in the first 10 minutes. However, Southern Utah outscored the Devildogs, 24-12, in the second 10 minutes of the first half for a 32-27 intermission margin.

MCRD fought back for a 47-47 standoff on a basket by Lou Lake with 9:41 left in the game and took a two-point lead at 49-47 on a bucket by Tom Delaney. Southern Utah then got five straight points for a 52-49 lead before the Marines again rallied for the 56-56 tie. Delaney made the tying basket and also put down a free throw after being fouled on the play for a 57-56 Marine lead. But it only set the stage for the final Southern Utah outburst.

Southern Utah actually won the game with eight seconds to play while nursing a two-point lead. Earl Severance was fouled at the eight-second mark and made both free throws. Rod Oliver added two charity shots after the gun for the final margin.

SCHOOL RECORD

Tim Cunningham had a fantastic record of 15 baskets in 21 attempts in establishing a new school record for the Westerners. His 35 points were evenly distributed over the entire game, 17 in the first half and 18 in the second. The old mark was 31 set by Lem Lemons last year.

The Westerners never trailed in the contest as they won their seventh game against four defeats for the year. Cunningham poured in eight points in the first 10 minutes with four buckets in as many shots, all from medium to long range. CW had a 17-8 edge in the early going but the Sailors cut it to four, 31-27, at the intermission.

Dick Williams of Mugu collected 10 of his 11 points in the first half to keep his club in contention. However, three straight baskets by Cunningham hiked the Westerners' advantage to 43-30 early in the second half and they were seldom in serious trouble thereafter.

STAVE OFF THREAT

Mugu did cut the deficit to four points at 44-40 with 10:49 left but two more buckets by Cunningham and one by Lemons shot the Westerners into a 10-point margin at 50-40 to stave off the final threat.

Colorado College had a 15-13 edge over Hamilton midway through the first half in the seventh-place game but the Airman's Jimmy Fields soon took charge with 18 points in the final 10 minutes to put Hamilton ahead to stay. Fields ended with 30 points and 74 for his three tourney games.

TOREROS FALL, 88-83

Whittier Whips USD In Overtime

Special to The San Diego Union
WHITTIER—Cliff Ashford hit a torrid 37 points for University of San Diego here last night but they weren't enough to prevent the Toreros from dropping an 88-83 overtime contest to Whittier College's Poets.

USD led through three-fourths of the game, at one time enjoying a margin of 15 points. However, the Poets came back with five players hitting double figures and it took two free throws by Ashford with 16 seconds left to produce the overtime via a 75-75 deadlock.

Whittier then grabbed a quick lead and held it the entire extra session in outscoring USD, 13-8. Larry Moyer and Lyndon Williams scored 17 and 14 points, respectively, for the Torero cause but Bob Jarvella and Joe Barnes each canned 20 for the Poets to pace their high-scoring fivesome.

The loss was the fourth for USD against two victories.

USD Quintet Plays Whittier

Special to The San Diego Union
WHITTIER — The injury-riddled University of San Diego basketball team will tangle with Whittier College tonight on the Poets' floor.

Tipoff is set for 8 o'clock.

Coach Phil Woolpert's Toreros will be playing minus the services of forward Mark Teismann, out for five weeks because of torn knee ligaments, and may not be able to use guard Mark Yavorsky and reserve forward Alan Fay. Both have bad ankle sprains.

Woolpert said he will start Bernie Bickerstaff, the Rio Grande transfer at Teismann's spot along with leading scorer Cliff Ashford.

Larry Moyer, who tallied 18 points and his best season effort against Long Beach State, will go at center while Lyndon Williams and Dick Verlasky will start at the guards. Verlasky will replace ailing Yavorsky.

USD Frosh Win

The University of San Diego freshman basketball team defeated CALEWO, 76-67, last night in the USD gym. Ted Fields, with 15 points, paced USD which trailed, 36-33, at halftime.

USD's Lymond Williams (3) is clobbered by Southern Utah's Doug Peterson in scramble for rebound in second period of yesterday's action at the California Western Holiday Tournament.

Torero Cagers Travel To Long Beach State

LONG BEACH — Long Beach State, considered a contender for the California Collegiate Athletic Association title, will entertain Coach Phil Woolpert's University of San Diego Toreros tonight in the 49er gym.

Tipoff is set for 8 o'clock. This will be the first of back-to-back meetings with the Long Beach five for the Toreros. The 49ers will come to the USD gym Tuesday night.

John Barnicoat, who has averaged 19.5 points in four contests, and Olympic high jumper John Rambo, who has pumped in 17.1 per game, will lead Long Beach's offensive. Rambo, whose best high jump was 7-1 1/4, tallied 41 points against the Toreros last year.

Rounding out the 49er club State, considered a contender for the California Collegiate Athletic Association title, will entertain Coach Phil Woolpert's University of San Diego Toreros tonight in the 49er gym.

The Toreros will be headed by forward Cliff Ashford and guard Lymond Williams, who have averaged 17 and 16.7 points per game, respectively. Forward Mark Teismann (9.7 average), guard Mark Yavorsky (9.7) and center Larry Moyer (4.0) are the other starters.

Long Beach has a 1-3 mark compared with USD's 1-2. Long Beach defeats were to Creighton, 88-80, Wichita, 114-78, and New Mexico University, 72-53.

PHIBPAC FACES PT. MUGU

Cal Western, USD Advance In Holiday Tournament

By CHUCK SAWYER

Defending champion Cal Western and crosstown rival University of San Diego will meet for the collegiate division title while PhibPac and Pt. Mugu will tangle for the service crown in today's semi-final action of the fifth annual Holiday Basketball Tournament at the Western's Golden Gym.

All four won opening round victories yesterday in the eight team field. Cal Western ripped Colorado College, 69-36; USD stopped Southern Utah, 69-58; PhibPac won over Hamilton Air Force Base, 77-53, and Pt. Mugu defeated MCRD, 77-64.

In today's consolation bracket Hamilton and MCRD will battle at 2 p.m. with Southern Utah and Colorado meeting at 4. In the winner's bracket Mugu and PhibPac are paired in a 7 o'clock game with USD and Cal Western trading baskets at 9.

Four more games wind up the tourney tomorrow beginning at 1 p.m., with the title contest set for 9 p.m.

The Westerners had little trouble in subduing the Colorado quintet to win their sixth game against three defeats, five of the triumphs coming on their home floor. A green Colorado team lost its fourth game in five starts. Cal Western jumped off to a quick 20-7 margin with forward Dick Woodson setting the pace. The 6-4 sophomore from Crawford High scored 12 points in the first half and shared game honors with teammate Lemmons with 16 for the night. CW was in front at the half, 22-18.

Colorado was even colder in the second half as the Westerners outscored the visitors, 15-4, at the 10-minute mark for a 47-22 edge and then won going away.

USD BREAKS TIE

USD broke a 31-31 tie on a free throw by Bernie Bickerstaff shortly before the halftime gun to put the Toreros into the lead to stay against Southern Utah.

The Toreros took the one-point edge to the dressing room but quickly built a 10-point lead at 46-36 early in the second half.

Utah used free throws to stay in contention, putting down 28 of 38 for the game. Cliff Ashford hit for 24 points to lead three USD players in double figures as the Toreros won their third game against four defeats. Doug Petersen led the losers with 17.

START SLOWLY

PhibPac's Invaders, now 12-5 for the season, started slowly against Hamilton and trailed, 8-0, in the early going. They fell further behind at 16-5 before coming back with a 15-point spurt against three for the Airmen to go ahead, 20-19, late in the first half.

The score was tie, 21, 23 and 25 before PhibPac ran off 11 straight points for a 36-25 edge, and never trailed again. The Invaders were led by Denny Grove with 12 points and Fred Nims and Marion Bazman, both with 11. Jimmie Fields had 19 for Hamilton with Ray Garcia adding 17.

MCRD got a 22-point effort from Stacey Higgins, 14 from Lou Lake and 12 by Tom Delaney but they weren't enough to stop the Point Mugu quintet.

The winners had only a 39-32 edge at halftime and led by only one point, 45-44, early in the second half.

It was 69-63 for Mugu with about three minutes remaining

USD Seeks Second Win Against 49ers

University of San Diego will try to make it two in a row over Long Beach State when it plays host to the 49ers tonight at USD gymnasium.

Tipoff is set for 8 o'clock. The USD Frosh will entertain Naval Training Center in the 6 o'clock preliminary.

The Toreros, who surprised the tough and tall 49ers Saturday night, 72-68, will bank on their high-flying pair—forward Cliff Ashford and guard Lymond Williams, who have averaged 17 points in four games.

Williams' connected on 12 of his 17 in the last meeting to help his club rally in a penalty-plagued match in Long Beach. Ashford collected 17.

Rounding out the starting five will be Mark Teismann at the other forward, Larry Moyer at center and Mark Yavorsky at the other backcourt position.

Long Beach, considered a contender with Los Angeles State and Fresno State for the California Collegiate Athletic Association will have a height advantage with such men as 6-7 John Rambo, 6-5 John Barnicoat at forwards and 6-6 Johnny Johnson at center.

Johnson hit 25 points—17 of them from the free throw line—in Saturday's contest but the others slipped below their season average. Rambo, an Olympic Games bronze medalist, 33-57 winner over Point Mugu in the high jump, was the other semifinal last night, in held to 14 points, two below his tonight's title game at 9 standard and Barnicoat was clock.

Cal Western will face Point Mugu at 3 p.m. in the fight for third place.

OTHER SCORES

In consolation games yesterday, MCRD won over Hamilton Air Force Base, 79-67, and Southern Utah defeated Colorado College, 73-60. Hamilton and Colorado will meet at 1 p.m. today in the seventh place game, while MCRD and Southern Utah tangle at 7 o'clock for the consolation championship.

USD's dramatic victory over the Westerners was a real comeback for the Toreros who went behind, 14-12, with five minutes left in the first half and regained the lead for the first time on Larry Moyer's basket with 25 seconds left in the game.

Dick Woodson, who led the Westerners with 14 points, quickly put CW back in front at 42-41, but the Toreros then moved down court and set up Pay's winning basket.

BUCKET NO GOOD

Cal Western called time out with the eight seconds remaining in possession of the ball under its own basket. CW moved the ball to the front court, guard Jim Michaels hit a long jump shot from the right side with one second left, but was called for charging before getting off the shot.

The victory was the fourth in eight games for the Toreros, while Cal Western dropped its fourth game against six victories.

GROVES SPARKS PHIBPAC PhibPac's victory over Mugu was a fiery scoring duel between the Invaders' Denny Groves, who scored 31 points, high thus far for the tournament, and Todd Ikard of Point Mugu, who collected 28.

PhibPac had a real struggle before stopping a stubborn Point Mugu quintet as the Invaders won their 13th game.

His performance nullified the finest night of the season for USD center Moyer, who scored 18 points and pulled down 12 rebounds—high for both teams—in a losing cause.

Moyer collected 16 of his points before intermission, combining with guard Mark Yavorsky to escort the Toreros to their halftime lead.

USD Tourney Begins Tomorrow

The third annual University of San Diego Invitational basketball tournament will open a two-day stand tomorrow night at the USD gym with three area squads battling to unseat defending champion Fullerton State for the title.

Action starts at 7 o'clock with Cal Western facing the San Diego Marines. Fullerton will battle with the host Toreros at 9. Winners will play for the tourney title Saturday night at 9, preceded by a consolation game at 7.

This will be the Westerners' first attempt in the invitational. MCRD was runner-up in 1963 while Fullerton dropped USD, 71-64, in last year's title contest.

Should the Westerners get by the Devils and USD defeat Fullerton, the state will be set for a return match between the two area colleges. Two weeks ago, in the Cal Western Holiday Classic, the local rivals met in the finals of the college division with USD gaining a narrow 43-42 decision.

USD went on the defeat Phil Pac for the overall crown.

Bobcats Snap Toreros' Win Streak, 68-63

Special to The San Diego Union
BOZEMAN, Mont.,—Montana State College rallied from a five-point deficit in the final minutes to defeat the University of San Diego, 68-63, here last night and snap a five-game Torero winning streak.

The visiting Toreros had built a 58-53 edge with four minutes to play when Montana State went on a scoring rampage that saw it outscore USD 15-2 to take a 68-60 lead in the final seconds.

Kermit Young contributed five points and Bill Gillespie six in the winning rally. Young wound up with 23 points for the evening while Gillespie added 13.

Cliff Ashford scored 25 points for USD, hitting on 11 field goals and three free throws. Teammates Larry Moyer and Lyndon Williams each had 12.

The loss was the first on a three-game road trip for USD and makes its overall record 7-5 for the season. The Toreros return home tonight and will resume action as hosts for the USD Invitational tomorrow night.

USD outscored Montana State in field goals, 27-25, but the home club had twice as many successful free throws, 18-9.

WIN OWN TOURNEY

Toreros Roll On Despite Injuries

By JOHNNY McDONALD

The University of San Diego's basketball forces may have been depleted this season by injuries to three key men but the Toreros show no signs of wilting.

As evidence, coach Phil Woolpert's cagers collected their second tournament title Saturday night with a convincing 68-52 victory over Cal Western in the USD Invitational finale before a standing-room crowd of 1,200 in the Toreros' gym.

The red-hot Toreros, who have won seven of their last eight contests, will have a few days off before traveling to the Cal Poly tourney in Pomona this weekend. They'll open against usually-rough Chapman College Friday night.

RECORD RECALLED
The two USD tourney triumphs put Woolpert's college career record at 201. Of course, a majority of these wins were acquired with the great Bill Russell-led University of San Francisco squad which ran off a string of 60 in a row en route to two National Collegiate Athletic Association championships.

Two USD players—Larry Moyer and Cliff Ashford—made the all-tourney team along with Cal Western's Lem Lemons and Tim Cunningham and San Diego

Marine Dave Sampsell. However, 5-9 senior guard Lyndon Williams was 6-foot-8 inches tall as far as the Toreros were concerned in the windup when he scored 23 points.

Williams, who must have springs in his legs, has been the USD floor leader, rebounder, and generally feeds off to his teammates. But, the Westerners' Lemons did such a fine defensive job on high-scoring Ashford, that Woolpert needed someone to pick up the slack. And, Williams was his man Saturday night.

GOT FAST START

The Toreros got off first and were never headed, leaving at intermission with a 31-20 lead. The Westerners suffered a big blow after three minutes of play, however, when high-scoring Dick Woodson (14.4 points this season) sprained his right ankle and never returned.

The Westerners, who were nipped by USD, 43-42, in the Holiday Tournament last month, cut their foes' lead to 41-37 with 9:14 to go and appeared ready to make a chase of it to the wire.

But Dick Verlasky, hitting well from the outside in the second half, gave the Toreros a boost with a hook shot and a free throw. Then Ashford added a cushion with four free throws and a drive within a two-minute span and USD was comfortably ahead, 53-41.

HIT 58 PER CENT

USD dunked 58 per cent of its field goals—Williams hitting eight of 11, incidentally—while the Westerners connected on 44 per cent.

In the consolation game, the San Diego Marines won their seventh of eight games by rapping Fullerton State, 87-67, as Pat Ford and Sampsell led the way with 22 and 16 points, respectively. Frank Polito and Ernie Clayton were high for the losers with 17 and 14 points.

The Marines will play Nevada Southern in Las Vegas tomorrow night, return for a game with Naval Training Center Thursday and also compete in the Cal Poly tourney.

The Westerners will travel to Fullerton State and Los Angeles State Friday and Saturday nights.

USD, Westerners Clip Tourney Foes

By JOHNNY McDONALD

University of San Diego, utilizing a diversified attack, and board-controlling Cal Western blitzed opening-round foes last night in the USD Invitational Basketball Tournament before some 1,000 fans in the Toreros' gym.

The Toreros, who have failed on two previous occasions to win their own tournament, struck down defending champion Fullerton State, 78-54, in the second contest after the Westerners ended the San Diego Marines' six-game winning streak, 64-57.

USD VS. WESTERNERS
USD will be rematched against the Westerners in tonight's title game, set for 8 o'clock. Fullerton and MCRD battle for consolation honors at 6.

In an earlier meeting, USD nipped the Westerners, 43-42, in the Holiday tourney. However, the Westerners forged to Cliff Ashford, who has a 20-60-46 lead with five minutes point average for USD, paced the victors with 17 points, 13 of these coming in the break-away second half. However, three teammates also hit in double figures. Alan Fay, Lyndon Williams and Dick Verlasky collected 14, 13 and 12 points, respectively.

Fullerton, much weaker than last year, dropped its 12th of 13 contests. Jim Mount, a six-foot center, led the losers with 17.

TWO HIT 16

The Westerners were led by Lem Lemons and Dick Woodson, who had 16 points each.

In the opener, the Westerners jumped out front, then relinquished the lead at 9-8 and 13-12 before going in at intermission with a 37-28 advantage.

The Marines, getting more floor strength from newcomer Dave Sampsell and Pat Ford, nipped the Westerners, 43-42, in pulled to within four points in the second half. ## RIP CAL WESTERN

Toreros Capture Own Meet, 68-52

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Scrappy Lyndon Williams didn't win an all-tourney award but the University of San Diego could thank the little senior guard for paving the way to its first USD Invitational crown last night before a standing room crowd of 1,200 at the Toreros' gym.

Williams, a 5-9 160-pounder who's hometown is Washington, D.C., scored 23 points as USD, 68-52, in the finale of a two-night tourney. The San Diego Marines beat Fullerton State, 86-67.

The Toreros had to fire from the outside for most of their shots as both clubs tightened their zones. And, USD, 8-5 for the season, sank 58 per cent of its shots while the Westerners dropped in 44 per cent.

With USD's leading scorer, Cliff Ashford, bottled up through out the first half and much of the second stanza, it was up to Williams to come through with the big points.

Larry Moyer, playing a fine floor game, added 14 and Ashford finally finished with 12—nine below his average.

It was a satisfying tournament victory for Torero coach Phil Woolpert, considering the fact he had three of his athletes out of action. Unable to play were Mark Teismann, Mark Yavorski and Ken Kullberg.

Woolpert received a plaque from the student body in recognition of his 200th basketball victory as a college coach. Actually, No. 200 was registered against Fullerton State Friday night.

This marks USD's second straight triumph over the Westerners. The Toreros edged the Point Lomans, 43-42, en route to the Holiday tourney championship last month.

Guard Tim Cunningham and Lem Lemons led the losers with 15 and 13 points respectively. Lemons was the Cal Western player who did a fine defensive job on Ashford.

Moyer and Ashford of USD, Lemons and Cunningham from Cal Western and Dave Sampsell of the Marines were named to the all-tourney squad. Ashford was a repeater.

The Toreros got the first bucket, were halved at 2-2, and then raced ahead to stay in the first half. They pulled out to a 16-6 advantage and led 31-20, at halftime.

In the second half, The Toreros battled the challenging Westerners on even terms but had their lead shaved to 44-37 with 9:14 to go.

USD received a big boost with Dick Verlasky's hook and free throw. Ashford probably added the cushion with four free throws and a drive during

REASON FOR WORRY

Aztec Victories Chill Toreros

University of San Diego's basketball team must be shivering today but not because of its cold night against Cal Poly of Pomona Saturday.

The Toreros got the chills looking at San Diego State's impressive weekend wins over Fresno and Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo. The cross-town rivals meet in the Aztec's Peterson Gym Friday night.

USD lost its shooting eye in the 75-47 loss to Cal Poly of Pomona in the Cal Poly tourney. Lymond Williams was the only player to resemble any offensive threat for the Toreros with 15 points.

MCRD dropped an 89-71 game to Chapman College in the consolation contest.

Cal Western held powerful Los Angeles State to its second lowest point total of the season in another Saturday night game, but still suffered a 78-64 loss to the Diablos.

The Westerners host Pasadena College Friday night.

Amigos Tour City, Visit Courtroom

By JIM BOX

An audience with a church administrator, lunch at an historic monument and a burglary trial filled the day of students in Operation Amigo yesterday.

The trial in the San Diego County Court House captured the imagination of 29 Argentinians who are visiting Hilltop High School.

Operation Amigo is sponsored jointly by the Sweetwater Union High School District and The San Diego Union and Evening Tribune.

The Amigos sat in on the trial in an afternoon session of Superior Court. Judge Verne O. Warner presided.

PROCEDURES EXPLAINED

The defendant was on trial for attempted burglary. Before the trial resumed, Jesse Osuna, supervising deputy county clerk, explained court procedures in Spanish. Their interests stimulated, the visitors asked Osuna many questions about the U.S. judicial system.

What legal training is required of jurors, how are people selected to be jurors and do they have to serve, were some of their questions.

After Osuna's introduction, Warner welcomed the Amigos to the courtroom in Spanish.

The examination and cross-examination of witnesses fascinated most of the students and they talked about the trial during a brief recess.

TOUR CANCELED

So much interest in the trial was shown that a scheduled tour of the Community Concourse was cancelled to allow the students to see the trial until court adjourned at 4:30 p.m.

The trial ended an all-day tour. An audience with the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, apostolic administrator of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, was the first stop.

He talked to the Amigos in Italian, a language which most of the students could understand because of its similarity to Spanish.

He gave each a card with a picture and information about San Diego de Alcalá, the patron saint of the city, and religious medallions.

Mother Farragher, president of the University of San Diego's College for Women, lead a tour of the college which she supervises.

Next the Amigos went to Cabrillo National Monument. They enjoyed a box lunch there and romped over the hills surrounding the lighthouse.

TAKE BUS RIDE

Lionel J. Bienville, chief historian at the monument, talked to the Amigos about whales and answered questions.

Although whale watching is a popular pastime during this time of the year here, no whales were observed while the Amigos were visiting.

After leaving the monument on Point Loma, the Argentinians were taken on a bus ride to Mission Bay and along Shelter Island on their way to the afternoon court session.

Aztecs, USD Battle Friday

Meek, Ashford To Lead Teams in Quest of Title

The battle for the local college basketball title comes up for grabs tomorrow night at San Diego State's Peterson Gym where the Aztecs will meet upcoming University of San Diego at 8 p.m.

There is quite a bit of similarity between the two clubs.

Both have winning seasons thus far. The Aztecs will bring an 8-4 record into the match and the Toreros are 10-6 for the year.

Each squad has a high scoring forward and an outstanding playmaker in the backcourt.

The Toreros have the area's leading college scorer in 6-3 junior Cliff Ashford who is averaging 19.5 points a game while the Aztecs will offer the remarkable Larry Meek, a 6-5 senior, who is having his best season. Meek is currently averaging 16.3 points a game.

In the backcourt, State will be led by one of the finest guards on the Coast in Jack Shawcroft. The 5-10 ace, along with Meek, led the Aztecs to conference wins over Cal Poly (SLO), 77-76, and seventh ranked Fresno, 69-67, last week. The Toreros' senior guard Lymond Williams is another outstanding playmaking specialist and can hit equally well from outside.

Rounding out the starting five for both squads are guard Bernie Bickerstaff, 6-2, center Larry Moyer, 6-6, and forward Alan Fay, 6-5, for the Toreros and guard Jim Bowers, 6-0, center Bob Mackey, 6-7, and forward Al Catlin, 6-1½, for the Aztecs.

The similarity doesn't stop with the players. Both teams are piloted by two of the nation's top coaches in George Ziegenfuss of State and Phil Woolpert of USD.

Both clubs have defeated Cal Western this season. The Aztecs trimmed the Westerners, 51-47, while the Toreros topped Coach Bob Kloppenburg's squad twice by 43-42 and 68-52 counts.

The Argentinians will put on a tango exhibition while Hilltop students will demonstrate the American bunny-hop.

500 Students Expected

About 500 students are expected. The dance will be held from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m.

The Argentinians got a look at various university campuses through motion pictures and slides last night.

Members of the Erudites, the school's international club, put on a program to show the Argentinians what some of the state university campuses look like.

Mrs. Margaret Vierhus, faculty adviser to the club, said films on California Western University, San Diego State College and several campuses of the University of California were shown.

Slides of the University of San Diego also were flashed on the screen.

A few of the Argentinians have expressed a desire to attend universities in the state.

Aztecs, USD Vie Tonight For City 'Title'

By HOWARD HAGEN

San Diego State and University of San Diego will clash for the city basketball title at Peterson Gym on State's campus tonight at 8.

Tipoff for the intra-city contest will follow the game between Aztec and USD freshman teams, which will start at 6. The Aztec yearlings (8-1) and USD freshmen (11-2) are probably the strongest Frosh outfits ever turned out by the two schools.

The varsity scrap could be on the order of their first hoop meeting last season, when State won, 70-69, on the Torero wood.

In tonight's match, expected to draw more than 2,500 fans, the Aztecs will go with the same five that went all the way for an upset, 69-67 victory over Fresno State here last Saturday night.

MEEK DOUBLE LEADER

They are rugged 6-5 forward Larry Meek, leading rebounder and scorer; quick forward Al Catlin, 6-2; center Bob Mackey, 6-7; playmaking guard Jack Shawcroft, (5-10), and guard Jim Bowers, 6-0.

Leading Aztec replacements have been center Larry Willis and guards Graig Nettles and Gary McCoy.

The Aztecs have won eight games, lost four and lead the CCAA with a 3-0 record. USD best team in the school's history, is 10-6.

The Toreros will bank heavily on the shooting of Cliff Ashford, who has averaged 19.5 points and also is the team's leading rebounder despite his 6-3 height.

Other Torero openers will be forward Larry Moyer, 6-5; center Phil Price, 6-6, and guards Eymond Williams, 5-9, and Bernie Bickerstaff, 6-2.

INDIVIDUAL BATTLES

Two individual contests are assured: Meek vs. Ashford in scoring and rebounding, Shawcroft vs. Williams in playmaking.

Other USD players expected to see action are forward Alan Fay, guards Dick Verlasky and Mark Yavorsky, and center Ken Kolberg.

Their records against common opponents:

USD split with Long Beach State, beat Cal Western twice, lost to Whittier in overtime and defeated Fullerton State.

The Aztecs defeated those four teams, all except Fullerton (96-71) by two to seven points.

Typical of the heated action in last night's game between San Diego State and University of San Diego was this play on which USD's Lymond Williams (3) knocked a shot by Aztec Jim Bowers out of bounds. USD won in double overtime, 89-85.

WINS 89-85 THRILLER

USD Tips Aztecs In 2 Overtimes

By HOWARD HAGEN

University of San Diego outscored San Diego State, 10-6, in the second overtime of a long, wild basketball game at Peterson Gym last night and edged the Aztecs, 89-85, before 2,900 fans.

It was the Toreros' first hoop victory over the Aztecs in three meetings and ran their season record to 11-6. The Aztecs will carry an 8-5 mark into tonight's contest here with Cal Poly of Pomona. The Toreros play at Pepperdine tonight.

Paced by rugged forward Larry Meek, the Aztecs had an 11-point lead early in the second half last night at 48-37. Then Toreros Bernie Bickerstaff, Cliff Ashford, Ken Kullberg, Mark Yavorsky and Lymond Williams solved State's zone defense in a rally that put them ahead, 70-66, with a minute of regulation time left.

Aztecs Larry Meek and Jack Shawcroft put their side in front, 71-70, but Williams dropped a free throw to tie it at 71-all and set up the two overtime periods.

In the first one, USD twice moved ahead but Shawcroft's corner shot with 12 seconds left of this five-minute stanza knotted it at 79-79. Graig Nettles, fouled by Ashford, had a one-and-one free throw situation with four seconds remaining but he missed the first one and after a brief respite they went at it again.

Jim Bowers, first-string Aztec guard, went out with personals in the first overtime and Meek, leading scorer and rebounder, retired for the same reason in the second one.

For whatever reason, the Toreros dominated the second overtime though they trailed briefly at 81-80 when clutch shooter Shawcroft drove for a basket.

That was State's last time on top. Points by Ashford and Bickerstaff made it 85-81 for USD. Late baskets by Torero Alan Fay offset a 15-footer by Shawcroft and two free ones by Nettles and that was it.

Each side had four men in double figures. Meek's 29 points and Shawcroft's 17 led State. Bickerstaff tallied 25, Williams 19 and Ashford 17 for USD.

State fired 47 per cent on field goals against 44 for its opponent. The Aztecs, with Meek and Al Catlin tough on the boards, had a 27-19 rebound advantage the first half but USD made a board fight of it after recess and State finished ahead in this department 53-50.

USD built an early 13-8 lead as Bickerstaff and Williams hit 20-footers over the Aztec zone defense.

Two Bowers baskets and a Catlin drive put State in front, 14-13. Bickerstaff's fine outside shooting regained the lead for USD at 20-17 before Meek's steady scoring regained command for State at 31-26.

It was 39-33 for State at the break as Bowers sank a long shot just as the halftime buzzer sounded.

Ziggy Fearful, Woolpert, Too; Stage Set for Aztec-USD Tiff

By RICK SMITH

San Diego State College's basketball team jumps out of the California Collegiate Athletic Association frying pan into a nonconference fire this weekend.

EVENING TRIBUNE
SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA
Friday, Jan. 22, 1965 C-8

The Aztecs entertain University of San Diego tonight and Cal Poly of Pomona tomorrow. Varsity games start at 8, with freshmen teams from each school competing in preliminaries at 6 each evening.

Coach George Ziegenfuss' Aztecs have an 8-4 record, winning their last five, and lead the CCAA with a 3-0 mark.

However, they could be 8-6 come Sunday morning. USD is 10-6 and considerably improved over last season, when it dropped a 70-69 decision to State.

Cal Poly is 7-3, but has won its last five after playing its first five without seven men who were scholastically ineligible. State split with the Broncos last year, winning, 36-75, and losing, 96-68.

"It's hard to get up for your conference games and then face teams just as strong outside your conference," said Ziegenfuss.

"USD will be up for us. They're not in a conference, so this will be a big game for them. We've seen them play a couple times, and I'm very impressed. He (coach Phil Woolpert) has a good team."

Woolpert returned the compliment, saying, "They've come on real strong the last few weeks. (Larry) Meek is a much better ball player than he's been. He's stronger and moving with a lot more authority. And so is (Al) Catlin."

Cal Poly was 23-6 last season, defeating Fresno State for the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division regional championship.

BEAT CAL WESTERN

Toreros Rally For 53-49 Win

By CHUCK SAWYER

Trailing by nine points with eight minutes to play, University of San Diego roared back to claim its third straight victory of the season over Cal Western University, 53-49, before a near-capacity crowd of 1,000 fans in the USD gym last night.

Prior to the Westerners taking their 9-point bulge, the leadership of the contest looked like a seismograph in a violent earthquake. It changed hands 13 times into the early minutes of the second half and was tied on seven occasions during that time.

Alan Fay hit a pusher from the left corner to bring the Toreros within two points and Lymond Williams connected to knot it at 45-43 with 4:55 remaining.

Tim Cunningham's two free throws gave the Westerners another brief lead at 47-45 but Fay got down another two-point shot for USD for another tie at 47-47. Fay was fouled on the shot, missed his charity toss, but Cliff Ashford rebounded the shot into the basket for USD to put his club in front to stay at 49-47.

The Toreros then got two free throws each from Fay and Ashford for a 53-47 edge which was more than enough to overcome two late gift shots by Cunningham.

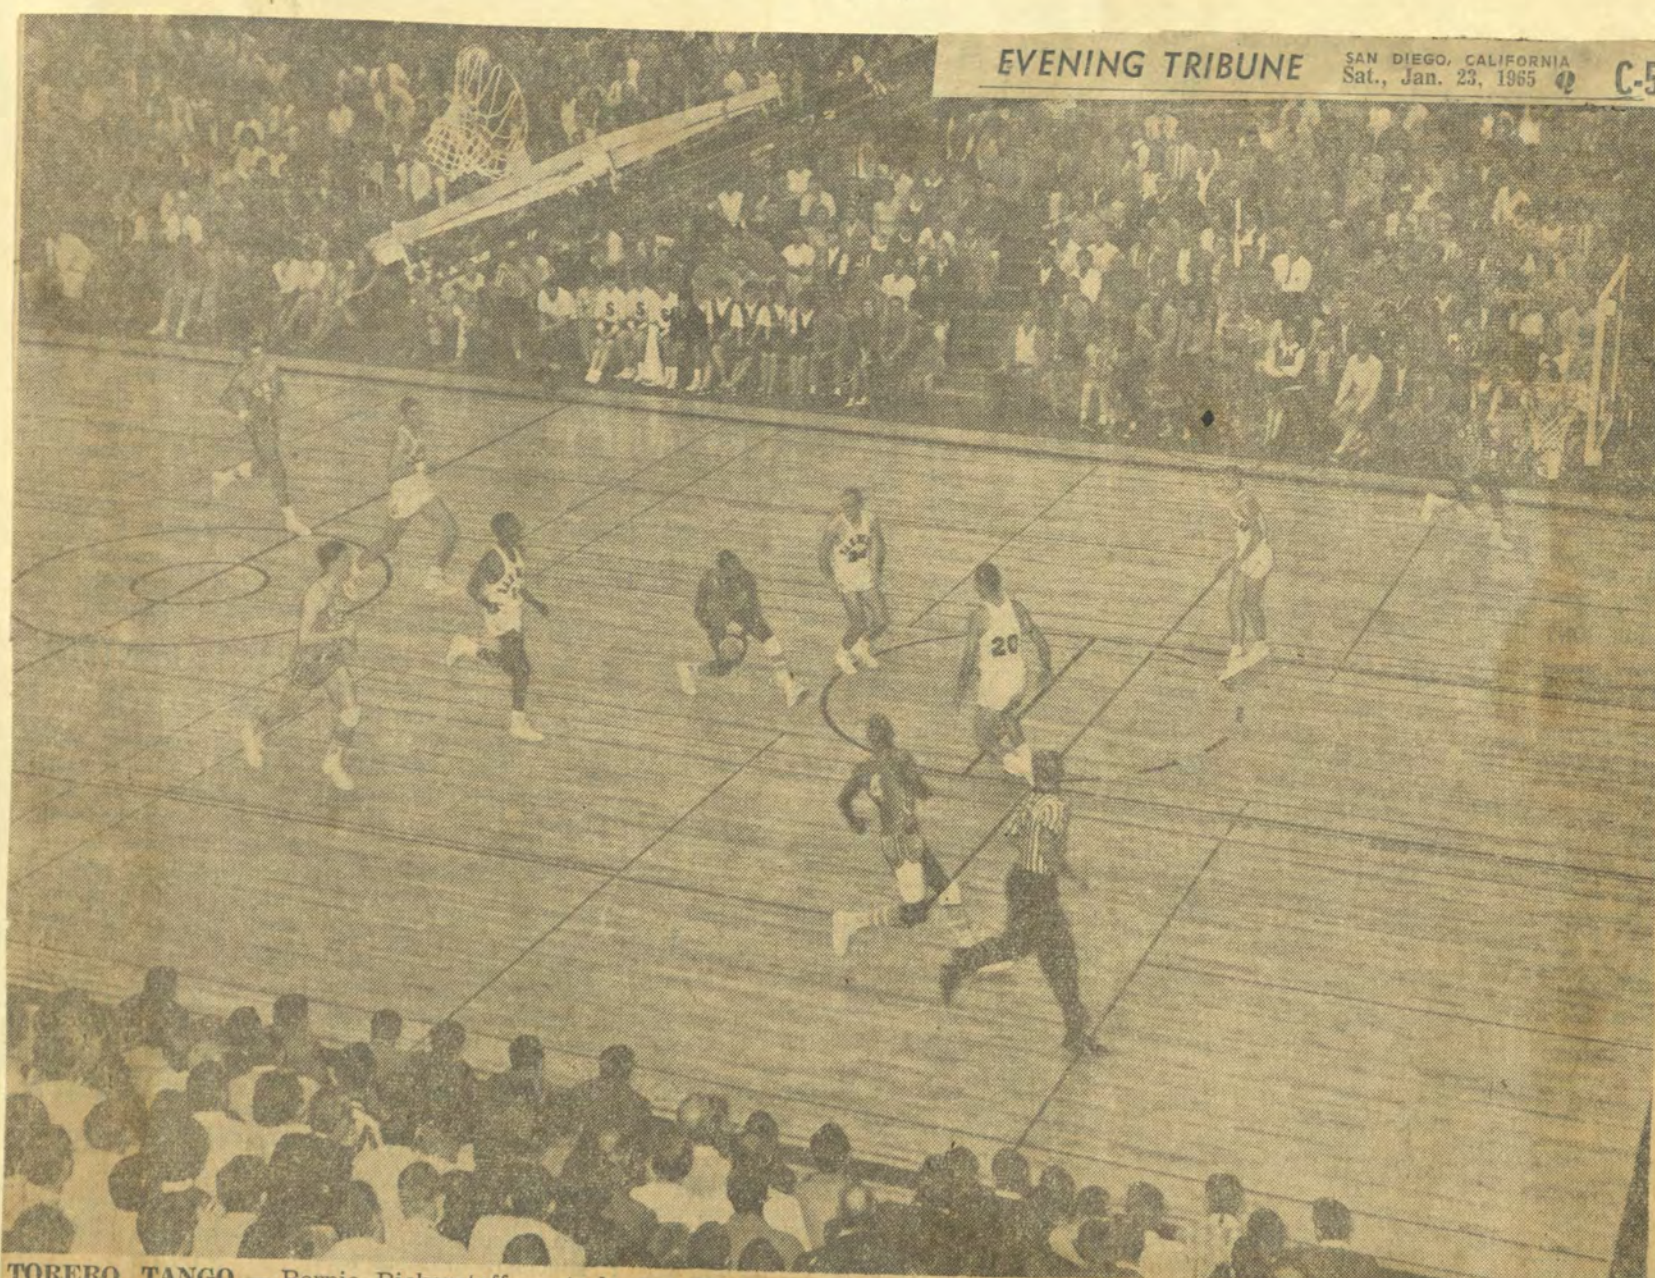

Fay, a surprise starter, shared the game's scoring lead with 14 points. Ashford added 12 and Bernie Bickerstaff 11 for USD. Center Steve Crowell contributed both a fine offensive and defensive game for the Westerners, matching Fay's 14 points and knocking down numerous would-be USD buckets.

The win sends the Toreros' season record to 12-7 while Cal Western fell to 12-9. The Westerners play next at Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo Saturday night while USD's next outing is a home game with UC of Santa Barbara Monday night.

Rich Wasser dribbled the length of the court with two seconds left last night to lay up the winning bucket as Cal Western won the Freshman game between the two schools, 49-47.

TORERO TANGO — Bernie Bickerstaff, center, brings ball downcourt for University of San Diego last night, but Larry Meek of San Diego State is blocking path to basket. Toreros won in two overtimes, 89-85, in Peterson Gym before 2,953 fans. Toreros, from left, are Larry Moyer, Ken Kullberg, Bickerstaff, Cliff Ashford and Lymond Williams. Aztecs, from left, are Bob Mackey, Al Catlin, Jack Shawcroft, Meek and Jim Bowers. USD now is 11-6 for season. State is 8-5.

Toreros Try on Hoop Crown—It Fits

By RICK SMITH
EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer

For one of the few times since the game was invented, the city basketball champion will not be the team from San Diego State College. University of San Diego made sure of that last night.

The Toreros scored a double-overtime, 89-85 victory over the Aztecs before 2,953 persons in Peterson Gym, and, although there aren't any material awards involved, USD can claim the city crown. It also holds two victories over Cal Western.

Tonight, San Diego will try to regroup against Cal Poly of Pomona, which beat Los Angeles State last night, 84-79. USD visits Pepperdine.

"Any win is good," said Torero coach Phil Woolpert. "Under the circumstances, with it as tough and tight as it was, it was especially gratifying."

"That's the kind of ball game it was. An inch either way and you lose. I never thought we had lost it, but I thought we had it won a couple times. We weren't penetrating their middle all the time. We weren't looking for the hoop."

USD squandered several leads during regulation play and in the first extra session. However, the Toreros jumped off to an 85-81 advantage in the second overtime and held off an Aztec charge which cut their lead to 87-85 with 52 seconds left.

State missed several opportunities also. The Montezumans led, 48-37, at one point midway in the second half, and, after trailing, 70-66, with 1:08 left, they took a 71-70 lead into the final 40 seconds.

A free throw with :37 remaining by Lymond Williams etched a deadlock at 71 and regulation play ended at that score after Aztec Craig Nettles missed a free throw with :04 left.

The first overtime ended in a 79-79 stalemate. Aztec Jack Shawcroft's basket with 13 seconds to go tying it. Two free throws each by Clifford Ashford and Bernie Bickerstaff and a basket by Ashford put USD in front again in the second overtime, and State couldn't catch up.

"There's the ball game," said State coach George Ziegenfuss, pointing to the list of floor errors by his club. "We turned the ball over 25 times. We outshot them and we out-bounded them. The performance wasn't that bad, but it was the turnovers.

"Well, some games are like that. You have to forget that one. You make that free throw and you win. You don't, you lose."

Aztec Larry Meek, who fouled out with 3:51 remaining in the second extra period, topped all scorers with 29 points. He also had 12 rebounds.

Bickerstaff, who had 17 in the first half, led his team with 25 points, most of them coming on 25-foot jump shots. Williams had 19, Ashford 17 and Alan Fay 15. Shawcroft was second for the Aztecs with 17 points, and Catlin had the most rebounds, 14.

The win left Woolpert's team with an 11-6 record, while State is 8-5.

Lecture Scheduled By Fr. McNamara

A lecture will be given by Father William McNamara, OCD, founder and director of the Spiritual Life Institute of America, at 8 p.m. Saturday, February 13, in More Hall on the University of San Diego campus.

Refreshments will be served after a discussion of the talk on "Love and Freedom."

Author of "The Art of Being Human" and "Manual for Retreat Masters," along with countless articles for popular magazines and theological journals, Father McNamara founded the Spiritual Life Institute of America three years ago as an instrument of spiritual renewal. Headquarters are in Sedona, Ariz.

Plans are being prepared for a school of theological humanism. It will be built in conjunction with the famed Chapel of the Holy Cross and will include library, officers' meeting rooms, and all facilities essential to scholarly research and study.

Ecumenical in character, the institute's programs and publications are directed to the development of a more meaningful prayer life and a richer humanity, a worldly proved communication of grounded theology, and improved communication of spiritual ideas and learning. The institute has conducted a number of seminar and parish and college renewal programs throughout the country, including conferences on communication and the performing arts in Southern California.

Father McNamara is a native of Providence, R.I., but has lectured extensively in the West. He is the founding editor of Spiritual Life magazine. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Oliver and Dr. and Mrs. William Doyle are sponsoring the lecture. Included on the guest list are Mrs. Bob Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farrell, Mrs. Frank Scully, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Sussman, of Palm Spring; Laura Huxley and Gerry Day of Hollywood. In charge of the reception are Mmes. John Brazil, Manuel Gama, John Lauriano, Charles Marcel, Ernest Silva, Manuel Onselmo Silva, and Joe Alliot.

FIGHT 'EM! — Bernie Bickerstaff (hidden by ball) and Cliff Ashford of USD — are two-timing high-kicking Larry Meek, but Larry Willis, right, is coming to aid of San Diego State teammate. It didn't do any good as battling Toreros turned back Aztecs in double-overtime basketball thriller.

STANFORD LATEST VICTIM

'Flying' Gauchos Foe For Toreros

By JOHNNY McDONALD

The University of San Diego basketball team has a difficult assignment tonight. The Toreros will try to bring the prancing University of California at Santa Barbara Gauchos down to earth. The Gauchos, probably on cloud nine after upsetting Stanford University Saturday night, 83-84, will engage the Toreros on the USD court, starting at 8 p.m.

A Greater San Diego League contest between CALEWO and Trevelyan Olds will precede the varsity clash at 6 p.m.

Santa Barbara, led by former Hilltop High player Tommy Lee and Russ Banko, topped the Stanford team in overtime after losing 83-84, will engage the Toreros on the USD court, starting at 8 p.m.

The 6-3 Lee has been a stand-out performer for the Gauchos. He was high scorer last year with a 12.5 average.

The impressive carrot-top set a single game school scoring mark last December when he conned 36 points against Central Missouri State. The old standard was 32.

Coach Phil Woolpert's cagers, who have won 10 of their last 13 games, will have to be letter perfect against the high-scoring invaders who have averaged 72.4 points despite a 5-9 overall record. The Gauchos downed 55 per cent of their shots against Stanford.

In West Coast Athletic Conference competition, Santa Barbara has failed to win in three outings.

This will mark the third WCAC foe for the Toreros. They split a pair with Pepperdine College and dropped one to Loyola of Los Angeles.

The Gauchos, coached by Art Gallion, defeated USD last season, 69-53.

The Toreros will be paced by forward Cliff Ashford, who has averaged 18.8 points in 13 college games, and Lymond Williams, a 5-9 playmaking guard, who has pumped in 13.9 points per game. Other Toreros who should see plenty of service will be Alan Fay, Bernie Bickerstaff, Larry Moyer and Mark Yavorsky.

This will be the start of a busy week for the Toreros, who entertain San Fernando Valley State Wednesday and travel to San Luis Obispo Saturday to oppose Cal Poly.

Naturally, with a 12-7 record to date, the Toreros are in an excellent position to better their season record of 14-11 set during the 1957-58 campaign.

TOREROS WIN, 65-64

USD Tops Troy In Frosh Contest

Special To The San Diego Union

LOS ANGELES — Guard Ted Fields' 15-foot jump shot with 12 seconds to play carried the University of San Diego freshmen to a 65-64 comeback victory over the University of Southern California frosh here last night.

Fields' basket climaxed an uphill struggle for the Torero yearlings, who trailed 42-28 at halftime and never led until the final two minutes of play.

With Fields and forward Rick Cabrera doing the scoring, USD rallied behind a second half zone press, finally pulling even, 61-61, with two minutes left. The teams then traded baskets until Fields' jumper decided the game.

Cabrera finished with 23 points and Fields had 15 for the USD frosh, who were winning their 12th game in 17 starts. The loss was only the third in 14 tries for junior Trojans.

USD was led by pivotman Ron Pence with 17 points and guard Jerry Sharman with 12. Sharman is the son of former USC and Boston Celtic great Bill Sharman.

WITH CLOSING RALLY

Toreros Shade Gauchos, 59-51

By JOHNNY McDONALD

University of San Diego, wasting away a 14-point advantage because of the enemy's pressing tactics, finally threaded an enemy press in the last seven minutes last night to down the University of California at Santa Barbara, 59-51, before some 1,000 fans in the Toreros' gym.

Clutch shooting by Cliff Ashford, fine floor work by Bernie Bickerstaff and Lymond Williams, throttled the inspired Gauchos, who appeared on the verge of a belated victory. Ashford closed the night with 22 markers while teammates Williams and Larry Moyer contributed with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

The scrambling victory was the Toreros' 11th in their last 14 contests. It gave them a 13-7 season mark, only one shy of the school's high mark of 14-11 set in the 1957-58 campaign.

The Gauchos were headed by Russ Banko, who canned 22. However, a fine defense work by Ashford kept ex-Hilltop cager Tom Lee at a below-par eight points.

The Toreros, who led 25-11 late in the first half, pumped in 48 per cent of their shots from the floor to battle back the surging Santa Barbara cagers, who own an 85-64 verdict over Stanford. The Gauchos, far below their season average of 72.4 points a game, downed 36 per cent of their shots.

Coach Phil Woolpert's San Diego crew took advantage of Santa Barbara's dry spell at the start and forged a 13-3 lead. The visitors tallied the first bucket but didn't connect again until Banko sank a free throw six minutes later.

This, plus the loss of 6-7 center Dick Hallett in the first half because of a slipped kneecap, forced the Gauchos to struggle for their shots.

Santa Barbara's chance came when USD made several mistakes because of a press. The Gauchos got down 11 straight points during the final stages of the first half and only Mark Yavorsky's jump shot with 32 seconds left broke the USD drought.

Within five minutes, the Gauchos trailed by only 30-29 and then their one-man gang (Banko) dropped in two free throws to even the score for the first time, 35-35. It was knotted again at 37, 39 and 40 before Banko put his side out front with a free throw, 41-40, with 8:51 to go.

Lee's lay-up sent the Gauchos out front by three but Ashford's liner-shot and a pair of fielders by Moyer got USD ahead again to stay, 46-43.

USD picked up the pace with Williams getting a clear drive, Bickerstaff downing two free throws and Ashford getting a three-pointer.

Ashford, bothered by a thigh injury most of the season, was helped from the court with 10 seconds left after a tumble.

Santa Barbara had the rebound edge, 42-33.

Alcala Park, San Bernardino Programs Set

More than 1,800 lay teachers of religion, Sisters, priests and seminarians are expected to attend the Liturgical Institute sponsored by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine in the diocese this weekend.

The first of its kind to be held in the diocese, the institute will take place this Saturday, February 6, on the University of San Diego's Alcala Park campus, where some 1,200 are expected to attend from San Diego and Imperial counties.

The institute will be repeated this Sunday, February 7, at Aquinas High School, San Bernardino, to accommodate the more than 600 registered in the counties of Riverside and San Bernardino.

Attendance by Invitation Only

Attendance at either session is by invitation only. There will be a Community Mass at 11:30 a.m. each day celebrated by Very Rev. John R. Quinn, rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Apostolic Administrator, will deliver the closing address at the University of San Diego, and Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, Bishop of San Diego, will deliver the closing address in San Bernardino.

The final exercise of the day will be a Bible Vigil service and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

Figures recently made public indicate that 2,200 trained and certified CCD teachers are engaged in the task of giving religious instruction to 75,000 Catholic students enrolled in public schools throughout the Diocese of San Diego. The obligation of understanding and taking active part in the Liturgy of the Church is especially important to these dedicated lay people.

Understanding Constitution Theme

The theme, therefore, for the Liturgical Institute is "Understanding the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy."

The keynote speaker at the opening general session will be Very Rev. Msgr. John Scanlon, assistant director of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine in the Archdiocese of San Francisco. Active in CCD work since 1951, Msgr. Scanlon has achieved national prominence. He is a member of the Advisory Committee which helped publish the "On Our Way" series of religious texts currently used on an elementary level in this diocese and throughout the United States.

After the general session each day, there will be a number of lectures on various topics related to the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy. Each lecture will be repeated three times during the course of the day, thus making it possible for every participant to attend at least three different talks.

Speakers, Subjects Listed

Speakers and their subjects are:

Rev. Francis Marcolongo, professor of theology at the University of San Diego, "Old Testament Preparation for Christ;" Rev. Patrick O'Connor, OFM, professor of theology at San Luis Rey College, "Liturgy: The Work of the People of God;" Rev. Bernardine Shine, OSB, of St. Charles Priory, Oceanside, "The Sacraments: Sharing in the Paschal Mystery;" Rev. Arthur Beach, assistant pastor at St. George parish, Ontario, "The Mass: Sharing in the Paschal Mystery;" Rev. Ambrose Frey, OSB, of St. Charles Priory, "The Paschal Mystery of Christ;" Rev. Charles Sheslo, professor of religion at University High School, "The Church: The People of God;" Rev. Marcel Matley, assistant librarian at the USD College for Men, "The Year of Grace: The Liturgical Year;" and Rev. Gregory Manning, assistant pastor of St. Mary's parish, Escondido, "Worship: Through Signs."

Commenting on the enthusiastic reaction to this first institute, Father James Ferrigan, diocesan director of the CCD, noted that there will be a continuing series of institutes, seminars, and workshops offered in the future.

"By means of these," he said, "we hope to make it possible for the ever-expanding number of trained, certified CCD teachers to enrich their knowledge in the fields of theology, liturgy, scripture, catechetics, and adolescent and child psychology."

USD'S ASHFORD AILING

Toreros Entertain Matadors Tonight

By JOHNNY McDONALD

University of San Diego will be pointing for its third straight victory tonight when it battles San Fernando Valley State, but the Toreros' chances may weigh heavily on the physical condition of star forward Cliff Ashford.

The two clubs will meet at 8 o'clock in the USD gym, following a contest between freshmen quintets which is set to start at 6 p.m.

Ashford, who leads the Toreros with 18.8 points a game, has been bothered by a thigh injury all season and hurt his right knee in a hard fall late in Monday night's victory over University of California, Santa Barbara.

"Cliff told me the knee was sore but he believed he could play," Woolpert said yesterday. "If he can't I'll use Mark Teismann at that forward spot."

Teismann just recently returned to action after suffering ligament damage in a knee. Another Torero who is still hobbling is Mark Yavorsky. He sprained an ankle several weeks ago.

Should Ashford start he will be joined by Alan Fay (6-5) at the other forward; Larry Moyer (6-6) at center, and Lymond Williams (5-9) and Bernie Bickerstaff (6-2) at guards.

San Fernando topped San Diego State, 68-59, and Long Beach State, 92-86, in California College Athletic Association games over the weekend.

The Matadors, behind quick playmaker Ollie Carter, a 6-2 guard, have an 11-6 overall record compared to USD's 13-7. Carter, a Valley JC transfer, has a 20.3 point average.

Other Matador starters include forwards Bill Archer (6-4) and Stan Swinger (6-3), center Frank Nordyke (6-5) and guard Bob Allen (6-1). Archer has a 15.9 average, Swinger is 11.1, Nordy, 12.1 and Allen, 6.0.

Toreros Seek Victory Mark

Special To The San Diego Union

SAN LUIS OBISPO — The University of San Diego's basketball team will be pointing for a record number of victories in a season here tonight when it engages Cal Poly in the Mustangs' gym.

The contest will start at 8 o'clock.

If the Toreros win they will hit the 15-victory mark, exceeding the previous high of 14, set during the 1957-58 season. USD has lost seven games this season.

FOREIGN NAVAL OFFICERS ATTEND MASS

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, apostolic administrator of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, talks with group of visiting foreign naval officers before celebrating special Sunday Mass at St. Joseph's

Cal Western Quint In Revenge Match

By BOB KING
Sports Editor

Revenge will be the keynote Saturday at Cal Western University's Golden Gym where the host Westerners will attempt to snap a four-game losing streak to crosstown rival University of San Diego and pick up a few prestige points of their own.

Tipoff time is 8:15 p.m. preceded by a 6:15 p.m. preliminary between frosh teams from the two local schools.

USD defeated the Westerners, 62-59, last season and followed that with three straight wins this term: 43-43 in the Cal Western tourney, 68-52 in the USD Invitational and 53-42 in a regularly scheduled game two weeks ago.

The Toreros also hold an 89-85 double overtime win over San Diego State and can lay claim to the city title.

USD Coach Phil Woolpert will be priming his courtmen to even the series between the two schools. Cal Western holds a 7-6 edge.

The Westerners are 14-10 for the season, their latest win coming last week, 58-43, over Colorado College.

The Toreros have posted a 14-9 record. They lost a 50-47 decision to Cal Poly Pomona Tuesday in their last outing. A victory for the Toreros would set a new season win record. The present mark of 14 wins was set in 1953.

Cliff Ashford, who scored 177 points against Cal Poly, will lead the Torero attack. He is averaging 13.3 points a game while 5-9 guard Lyndon Williams has a 14.1 average.

Other Torero starters include guard Bernie Bickerstaff, 6-2; forward Alan Fay, 6-5; and center Larry Moyer, 6-6.

Coach Bob Kloppenburg will go with guards Tim Cunningham, 5-10, and Jim Michaels, 6-3; center Steve Crowell, 6-9; and forwards Lem Lemons, 6-0, and Dick Woodson, 6-4.

Cunningham is the team scoring leader with a 12.5 average followed by Woodson, 11.5; Lemons 12.4; and Crowell, 11.4.

Mrs. Holloway, wife of Capt. Charles K. Holloway, chief of surgery at the U.S. Naval Hospital in San Diego, is a Phi Beta Kappa from University of Texas where she majored in bacteriology and minored in chemistry.

An optional luncheon in the Lark Cafeteria for members and guests will precede the regular meeting. Mmes. John F. O'Donnell, president, and John L. Wilper, hospitality chairman, are in charge of the program.

WESTERNER ON THE LOOSE

Cal Western's Tim Cunningham (22) lets fly a shot after outmaneuvering USD defenders Mark Yavorsky (14) and Bernie Bickerstaff (32) during last night's battle between the two local cage rivals at Golden Gym.

TOREROS HIT 18 PER CENT

Western Defense Stops USD, 55-36

By JOHN McDONALD

Cal Western threw up a stout defense and took full advantage of University of San Diego's cold shooting performance last night to upset the Toreros, 55-36, before some 1,500 fans at Golden Gym.

The red-hot Westerners, who have won four of their last five games, downed 56 per cent from the floor and had a 38-31 rebound advantage as they topped the Toreros for the first time in four meetings this season.

Meanwhile, the slumping city champs dropped in only 12 of 64 shots for a dismal 18 per cent as they suffered their third straight loss.

ASHFORD 0-FOR-14

More significant was the fact that Western forward Lem Lemons thoroughly bottled up Torero high scorer Cliff Ashford, who had only two free throws for the evening. The 6-3 Torero forward had 14 chances but couldn't buy a bucket. He entered the contest with a 19-point average.

This was the deciding factor in the first half as the Westerners got off first and kept the pressure on the visitors. After trailing, 8-0, the Toreros did manage to knot the count at 8-all at the midway point of a poken first half.

The Westerners, ranked fourth nationally in defense among NAIA clubs, set the pattern early by blocking several USD shots and keeping their foes off balance. Meanwhile, Steve Crowell, Dick Woodson and John Williamson applied their height to good advantage.

CROWELL HITS 15

Crowell paced the scorers with 15 points, while Mark Yavorsky had 10 for the losers.

Cal Western, winning its 16th of 26 contests this season, pulled away in the second half behind the shooting of Crowell and Lemons. Crowell dropped in two jumps, Lemons followed on a blocked shot and added two free throws to push the Point Lomans ahead, 31-20.

USD was thoroughly beaten in the second portion. Alan Fay drove for a USD basket within the first minute of the second half, but USD didn't get another fielder until Larry Moyer sank a jump shot with six minutes to go. USD couldn't take advantage of free throws either. It hit only 12 of 26 from the charity stripe.

In the preliminary, the USD freshmen defeated the Westerner frosh, 61-51.

Four Torero Cagers Await Final Games

Four members of the University of San Diego basketball team will end their college playing days this weekend when the Toreros finish the campaign against Santa Clara University tomorrow night and Chapman College Saturday night at USD gymnasium.

The four Torero seniors are 5-9 guard and team captain Lyndon Williams, 6-4 forward Mark Teismann, 6-6 center Larry Moyer and 6-7 center Ken Kullberg. Both Williams and Kullberg are starters while Teismann was a regular until he suffered a knee injury earlier this season.

The Toreros will take a 14-10 season mark into tomorrow's contest with the Broncos. Coach Phil Woolpert's squad is assured of a winning season but would like to capture at least one more victory to set a season record for most wins. The 1957-58 team compiled a 14-11 record.

Junior forward Cliff Ashford, held to two free throws in USD's 55-36 loss to Cal Western last week, continues to pace the club with 446 points and an 18.6 average. The 6-3 jump shot artist also leads in field goals with 163, free throws with 120, rebounds with 170 and free throw percentage with 75 per cent.

Williams, who in three seasons has compiled 981 points in 75 games, follows in the scoring with 319 points and a 13.3 average. He is currently hitting 50 per cent of his shots from the field. His 981 points ranks the senior playmaker fourth in the all-time USD scoring parade.

Broncos Shade USD In Overtime

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Santa Clara University downed 56 per cent of its shots last night but had to turn to the free throw line to beat back University of San Diego, 83-78, in a thrilling overtime basketball game before some 1,000 fans at USD gym.

The Northern Californians, who saw an 11-point advantage disappear through the heroics of junior Torero forward Cliff Ashford in the closing minutes of regulation play, struck for nine of 11 points from the charity circle to destroy the home towners' upset bid.

It was a big disappointment for the Torero crew who nearly matched the taller foes on the boards. Instead of picking up its school-record 15th triumph, USD was saddled with its fourth straight loss.

CHAPMAN TONIGHT

Now, the Toreros have one more chance to close the season on a winning note when they tackle Chapman College tonight in the same gym. Tipoff is scheduled for 8.

Ashford, who leads the Toreros with an 18-point average, collected 35 to lead all scorers. He hit 21 of 29 from the foul line but, unfortunately, he missed a pair of crucials early in the overtime session.

Santa Clara, a member of the West Coast Athletic Conference and victors over high-ranked University of San Francisco this season, was paced by 6-7 John Turner and 6-foot Eric Paulson, who dished 23 and 21 points, respectively.

BRONCOS LEAD

The Broncos broke on top and except for a 11-11 deadlock, led throughout the first half. At intermission the visitors were out front, 40-34.

The Toreros started poorly and failed to get a field goal during a seven-minute span in the initial half.

Ashford, hitting on seven of 21 attempts from the floor during the evening rally, led his club in the second half after the Broncos had maintained seven and 11-point advantages. With 11 minutes to go, Ashford collected nine straight points and Alan Fay came through with a follow

2,200 Attend Institute in Two Cities

Inclement weather failed to dampen the spirits of the 2,200 priests, sisters, lay principals and teachers of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine who attended the Liturgical Institute in San Diego and San Bernardino February 6 and 7. Many guests from other dioceses attended the sessions.

Very Rev. Msgr. John J. Scanlon, assistant director of the CCD, Archdiocese of San Francisco, was the guest speaker for the opening session. Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Apostolic Administrator, gave the closing address, conveying his appreciation to all present for their dedicated service in the apostolate for souls in the diocese.

The day was brought to a close with a Bible Vigil conducted by Msgr. Scanlon. This was followed by the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, the celebrant being Rev. Patrick Gullen. The closing address in San Bernardino was given by Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, Bishop of San Diego. His Excellency expressed his appreciation to Rt. Rev. Msgr. Franklin F. Hurd, who labored the past few years in laying the foundation for the Confraternity program in the diocese.

As in San Diego, the day terminated with the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, the celebrant being Right Rev. Msgr. John P. Bland, VF, pastor of Holy Rosary parish, San Bernardino.

SANTA CLARA HERE

Toreros Face Toughest Foe

By JOHNNY McDONALD

University of San Diego, trying to shake off a minor slump, will have to be at its best tonight when it battles Santa Clara University in USD's gymnasium. Tipoff for USD's next to last basketball contest of the campaign is set for 8 o'clock. The Torero Frosh will oppose the University of Southern California yearlings in the 6 o'clock opener.

While USD coach Phil Woolpert would like to finish with two more wins this weekend, his boys will have to turn the trick against probably the toughest team on their 1964-65 slate in Santa Clara. And, USD has dropped its last three contests.

The Broncos take a so-so 9-11 season record into the night's contest but they list wins over such outstanding major calibre teams as University of San Francisco, 73-71; University of Pacific, 75-71; San Jose State, 83-65; Memphis State, 92-79; St. Mary's, 80-62; and Loyola of Los Angeles, 85-76.

They have also lost close contests to USC, 69-66; Utah, 87-63, and Stanford, 69-60. The Broncos are currently in third place in the WCC with a 5-4 record.

The Broncos, too, will be seeking revenge. The Toreros upset them last year, 66-65.

Mike Gervasoni, a 5-9 guard, leads the Broncos in scoring with a 16.6 average, followed by 6-4 forward Bob Stuckey, 13.3; 6-0 guard Eric Paulson, 12.3; and 6-7 center John Turner, 9.3. Bruce Asch (6-4) rounds out the starting five at forward.

The Toreros will open with Lyndon Williams (5-9) and Bernie Bickerstaff (6-2) at guards, Larry Moyer (6-6) at center, and high scoring Cliff Ashford (6-3) and Alan Fay (6-5) at forwards.

USD, currently with a 14-10 record, will close its season here tomorrow night against Chapman. That will be the college finale for seniors Williams, Moyer, forward Mark Teismann and reserve center Ken Kullberg.

AZTECS AWAIT FINALES

Toreros Achieve Record Victory

San Diego State closes its season with a busy slate of three games this week while University of San Diego dropped its basketball campaign on a record-winning note Saturday night.

The Aztecs, beaten at Fresno State Saturday night, 90-72, will oppose Chapman College here tomorrow. They will be hosts to California Collegiate Athletic Conference foes, San Fernando Valley State and Los Angeles State, next Friday and Saturday nights.

Chapman's Panthers were 65-51 victims at USD Saturday night as the Toreros picked up their 15th victory. This was a school record, topping the 14-11 mark set in the 1957-58 campaign.

TALBOT COLLECTS 30

Coach George Ziegenfuss' Aztecs had their conference record evened at 4-4 as Fresno's Maurice Talbot and Lonnie Hughey paced the scoring parade with 30 and 22 points, respectively.

The Montezumas trailed, 43-24, at the half and managed to tie it on the shooting of Larry Meek, who tallied 19 points, and Jim Bowers, with 15. However, Fresno, hitting 47.7 per cent of its shots, pulled away from that point.

San Diego State downed 28 of 31 attempts for a 45 per cent shooting performance.

USD CHECKS SKID

Senior Lymond Williams tallied 15 points in his USD finale to pace the Toreros, who ended a four-game losing streak. Williams was aided by Alan Fay's 14 points, Cliff Ashford's 13 and Matt Malerich's 10.

Ashford, a 6-3 junior forward, moved ahead of Jim Fleming on the all-time USD scoring list and will have an excellent chance of taking the lead next season. Ashford has scored 955 in two seasons and trails Russ Cravens and Ken Leslie, who hold the 1-2 spots with 1,234 and 1,174 points, respectively.

CHAPMAN COLLEGE FALLS

USD Wins, 65-61, For Victory Mark

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Senior Lymond Williams paced a quartet of players who hit in double figures last night as the University of San Diego outscored Chapman College, 65-61, for a new school victory record.

As a USD gym crowd of some 1,000 cheered, the Toreros took the lead with five minutes left in the first half and held on from that point to gain their 15th triumph against 11 losses.

The 15 wins topped the old school mark of 14 established during the 1957-58 campaign.

Williams, one of four players closing out careers at USD, made his shots count as he bagged 15 points. The 5-9 playmaker guard connected on six of seven shots from the floor and three of four from the free throw line.

The team captain was aided in the scoring department by sophomore Alan Fay with 14 points, junior Cliff Ashford with 13 and sophomore Matt Malerich with 10.

SNAP LOSS STREAK

Ashford's points moved him into third spot among USD's all-time scorers. The 6-3 forward has tallied 955 points with a season yet to play. Russ Cravens and Ken Leslie rank one-two in the USD point parade with 1,234 and 1,174 points respectively.

Other seniors playing their final game for the Toreros were centers Larry Moyer, Ken Kullberg and forward Mark Teismann.

This was the fifth and final attempt for coach Phil Woolpert's cagers in their bid to reach No. 15. This triumph ended a losing streak of four games.

Chapman was led in scoring by Steve Simmons and Joe Cucinella with 15 and 14 points, respectively. High-scoring Larry Mitchell, who has averaged 15.9 points for the Panthers, was held to nine markers while 6-6 center Joe Knox picked up only three free throws.

USD LEADS AT HALF

The score see-sawed during the first 15 minutes before the Toreros forged ahead, 18-17. With Malerich adding new life to the attack with three straight buckets, the Toreros managed to lead at a halftime with a seemingly comfortable 33-21 advantage.

However, Chapman moved quickly into contention in the second half behind the shooting of Simmons and soon trailed by only six points, 36-30. From that point until the conclusion, USD's margin was none too comfortable.

Although USD managed 41-32 and 49-41 bulges, Chapman managed to retaliate. Cucinella, a boy from Escondido, hit one from the side and connected on two free throws.

A follow shot by the same 6-2 junior forward brought the visitors to within two points, 58-56, with 1:31 to go.

However, Chapman was forced to foul as USD played a control game and free throws gave the home towners their cushion.

Ashford connected on four, Fay hit two and Williams closed with the USD victory to assure the USD charity toss.

assembly and bring into relief his place as the minister of Sacrifice."

Very Rev. John E. Baer, rector of St. Francis Minor Seminary, El Cajon, said all of the Sacraments, with the exception of Holy Orders, are to be administered in English.

Discussing sacred music, Father Baer outlined the instructions of The Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy. He said the implementation of these instructions depends for the most part on the approval of the Bishop. The speaker also explained in detail the place of English in the Sacraments, in the sacramentals and in Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament as well as new rubrics or ceremonies to be observed in their administration.

In regard to the construction of new churches, Father Baer stressed the points contained in "The Instruction for the Proper Implementation of the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy." As to changes contemplated in existing churches "care should be exercised that the present architectural harmony is not destroyed," he said.

Mrs. Donald L. Doxle, Bishop's secretary and vice chancellor, conducted a conference on the "Rubrics of the Mass."

Mrs. Doxle cited the rules for the positions, standing, sitting or kneeling, to be used at Low Masses in which the vernacular is used. He also discussed general norms to be observed in recitation of prayers by priest and people.

Here are the more important changes stressed at the seminars:

1—The prayers at the foot of the altar have been shortened. The psalm which begins Judica me, Deus has been eliminated.

2—The last gospel no longer will be said. Mass thus ends with the final blessing which takes place just after the priest says to the people: Go, the Mass is ended.

3—The celebrant of the Mass ordinarily will preside over the service from his seat or bench in the sanctuary and will not be at the altar until the Offertory when the liturgy of the Eucharist begins.

4—Three of the public prayers hitherto said quietly will be sung or said aloud. They include the prayer called the Secret Prayer at the Offertory, the Eucharistic Prayer and the prayer for deliverance from evil and for peace which now will be added to the Lord's Prayer.

5—The missal will remain in one place on the altar from the Offertory until the end of Mass. It will no longer be moved from right to left or left to right as heretofore.

A final session devoted to questions and answers threw further light on the liturgical changes, clarified the new ideas and set them in clearer context and proper dimension.

Bishop Furey, in closing remarks, called attention to the reform envisioned by the ecumenical council. He said that it involves far more than new rites or rubrics and that these must be regarded as means to an end—the spiritual renewal of the people of God.

Patience, Charity Is Called for By Bishop Furey

A major step toward development of the new liturgical celebration of the Mass was taken last week in the Diocese of San Diego.

In two seminars, each of several sessions, the changes in liturgical procedure were explained, discussed, and analyzed for more than 450 priests in the jurisdiction.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Apostolic Administrator, presided and spoke at both seminars. Priests of Riverside and San Bernardino counties attended the first on Thursday, February 18. The second was conducted for the priests of Imperial and San Diego counties. Both were held in Alcala Park.

Outlining the major purpose of the seminars, Bishop Furey said they were called to aid implementation of the directives of The Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy. The Bishop explained that the real purpose of the Constitution was to bring the whole Christian people into full, active and intelligent participation in divine worship.

To Be Introduced March 7

Discussing the liturgical changes to be introduced in celebration of the Holy Sacrifice the first Sunday of Lent, March 7, the Bishop again called for patience and charity in the effort to substitute the unfamiliar for the familiar.

Very Rev. John R. Quinn, rector of Immaculate Heart Major Seminary, stressed "the importance of understanding the spirit behind the changes." He noted the emphasis placed on this fact by both papal and conciliar documents.

Calling attention to the elimination of features in the liturgy "which have become outmoded," Father Quinn quoted the ecumenical council's decree: "The rites should be distinguished by a noble simplicity; they should be short, clear, and unencumbered by useless repetitions; they should be within the people's power of comprehension, and normally should not require much explanation."

Last Gospel to Be Eliminated

It is for this reason, Father Quinn said, that the last Gospel, for example, is to be eliminated. Previously this Gospel was said after the celebrant had announced that the Mass was ended and yet continued to read it and the Leonine prayers, he added.

The speaker also stated that the celebrant no longer is required "to do everything at Mass." A lector reads the lessons; the celebrant listens. The lector or the people may read or sing the Proper parts of the Mass and the celebrant listens.

Citing the reasons for these directives, Father Quinn stated that they are designed to show that each member of the Mystical Body of Christ "fulfills his own peculiar function" for the benefit of all. At the same time, he added, they underline "the role of the celebrant as the president of the liturgical

Ashford Falls 12 Points Shy Of USD Mark

Cliff Ashford, a 6-3 forward from Detroit, led the final University of San Diego basketball statistics in six departments and missed equalling a season record by only 12 points.

Ashford led the Toreros to a 15-11 record with 494 points. He had a 19-point average, 174 field goals, 146 free throws, a .753 free throw percentage and 197 rebounds.

Ashford, however, failed to match the season mark of 506 points set in 1961 by Jim Fleming. Senior guard and team captain Lyndon Williams scored 114 of 226 field goal attempts for a 50.4 per cent accuracy, best in nine years of Torero basketball.

As a team, the Toreros set a school record in number of wins (15) and field goal percentage (41.5).

Toreros Split With Whittier

Mark Herrenbruck's pinch single in the last of the seventh inning gave the University of San Diego a 4-3 second game victory and a split with Whittier yesterday in a doubleheader at Mesa College.

The visiting Poets took the opening game, 8-6, on the strength of a five-run uprising in the top of the ninth.

The single by Herrenbruck, only a freshman, followed a leadoff triple by Ron Cady and a pair of intentional walks with none out in the seventh.

It made a winning pitcher out of USD's Bob Ahern, who turned in his second straight two-hit effort for the Toreros. Ahern struck out six but was victimized by some shoddy support.

Whittier put together two walks and four straight hits in the final inning of the first game to battle from two runs behind.

Mike Pecarovich, Ex-USD Coach, Succumbs At 67

Mike Pecarovich, former football coach at the University of San Diego, was found dead yesterday at his Rolling Hills, Calif., home.

The 67-year-old coaching veteran died in his sleep of an apparent heart attack, according to a family spokesman.

Pecarovich coached at USD in 1960 and 1961, the final two years of the Torero football program. His teams won six games, lost 13 and tied one.

He had a 4-5-1 record in 1960 after replacing Paul Platz, including a 21-20 upset victory over MCRD that ended a 21-game winning streak for the Marines. The 1961 Torero team won two games and lost eight.

Pecarovich, who also coached at Loyola of Los Angeles and Gonzaga University of Spokane, Wash., had a 28-year coaching career — 19 years as a head coach.

He coached Loyola in 1927-28 and again in 1939-40. He was head man at his alma mater, Gonzaga, from 1931 through 1938.

His overall collegiate coaching record was 51 victories, 66 losses and eight ties.

Professionally, Pecarovich coached the San Francisco Clippers (1944) and the San Diego Bombers (1946) in the old Pacific Coast Football League and assisted Ray Flaherty with the New York Yankees of the All-America Conference from 1946 to 1950. He also served as a scout for the Detroit Lions and the Washington Redskins.

Pecarovich was a standout in both football and baseball at Santa Clara and Gonzaga, graduating from the latter school in 1922. He performed as a quarterback for coach Gus Dorais at Gonzaga.

His varied career also included jobs as an author, actor, TV script writer and rancher. Pecarovich was active in dramatics at Gonzaga, where he was instrumental in steering roommate Bing Crosby into the drama group.

Following his graduation, Pecarovich played two seasons in stock productions and appeared in several movies, as well as having radio programs in Spokane and Los Angeles.

He was long regarded as one of the outstanding after dinner speakers in Southern California and was much in demand in that capacity.

Requiem Mass is scheduled for Thursday in St. John Fisher Catholic Church in Palos Verdes. Rosary will be recited tonight in McNeerney Chapel in San Pedro.

Pecarovich is survived by his wife, Marjorie, and six daughters.

IN REHEARSAL—Sally Sorensen and Robert Holzmueller rehearse their duet of "Tonight" and "Maria," to be performed at "Opening Night," a review of the American Broadway musical theater. It will be presented by the University of San Diego at 8:15 p.m. April 1 in the theater of the College for Women.

Musical Review Slated at College

The University of San Diego will present "Opening Night," a review of the American Broadway musical theater, at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, April 1, in the College for Women theater.

Centering around a general theme of "Love," the production will feature a new and somewhat different theatrical approach. A continuous progression of both chorus and solo presentations of songs will produce the effect of a "film technique," where the blending of melodies and scenic devices replace dialogue or narration. The story of "Opening Night" will be told by the songs themselves, as both the mood and the drama of the Broadway theater progress from the light and satirical love tunes of the 1920s and '30s to those of the postwar period.

The cast is composed of students from the College for Women and the College for Men. The production is under the musical direction of Clayton Fox, staged by Kathleen Brophy, and produced by Lynn Horobetz.

Featured numbers include "If I Loved You," sung by Carla Castagneto and Ken Schetter, "They Call The Wind Maria," sung by Miss Horobetz, "People," performed by Judy Banks, and a duet by Sally Sorensen and Robert Holzmueller of "Tonight" and "Maria."

Others include Carole Catalane singing "Little Girl Blue," Sharon O'Neill in "Ribbons Down My Back," Nelda Nelson doing "I Loves You Porgy," and Catherine

Ivers and John Few in a duet version of "Sweethearts."

The cast is completed by Marnie Norrington, Kathy Gonzales, John Meggo, Maureen O'Brien, Nancy Cain, Diana deMers, Cathy Marino, and Diane Alkire. The choruses are composed of members of the College for Men and the College for Women.

Choreography for "Opening Night" is under the direction of Jody Berke and Terri Wilson, who also perform with the Starlight Opera. They will be featured as a dance team.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Children under 12 are invited at no cost.

John E. Baer.

Statement Issued

Seminary Rectors Voice State Goal

"The seminary grows with, not apart from, the Church and is guided in its work by the Church's understanding of the priesthood in our time . . ."

Thus wrote the rectors of the major and minor seminaries of California in a statement issued at the close of their three-day meeting here last week.

Attending the meeting and signing the statement were: Very Rev. John E. Baer, rector of St. Francis Minor Seminary, El Cajon; Very Rev. William P. Corvi, SJ, rector of Ryan Preparatory College, Fresno; Very Rev. Albert C. Giacinto, SS, rector of St. Joseph's College, Mountain View; Very Rev. William J. Kenneally, CM, rector of St. John's Seminary, Camarillo; Very Rev. Paul P. Purta, SS, rector of St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park; Very Rev. John R. Quinn, rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary, San Diego; and Very Rev. George Schuster, SDS, rector of St. Pius X Seminary, Galt, in the Sacramento diocese.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Apostolic Administrator of the San Diego diocese, also attended.

The statement said that the decrees of the Second Vatican Council on the liturgy, on the Church, and on the training of priests.

It is also guided by the teachings of the modern Popes on priestly formation as well as by the decrees of the Congregation of Seminaries and the instructions of the local Ordinary. It is in this authoritative voice of the Church that the seminary finds its principal stability and adaptability.

But the seminary is not a platonic ideal existing apart from the concrete reality of time and place. Its program must measure up to the test of facts both past and present.

On the one hand, a seminary system which has produced a clergy second to none, as our American system has, must have within it valid principles of priestly formation. On the other hand, as our Holy Father, Pope Paul VI, indicates in his encyclical letter "Ecclesiam Suam," we live in an age different from the past, we deal with a different mentality, background and temperament and we face problems and confront issues unknown to the past.

It is therefore paramount to distinguish between truth and false, between facts and assumptions in the matter of training future priests. We have to isolate the valid, perennial principles of priestly formation from their accidental, no longer relevant trappings so that they may be employed with maximum advantage in the seminaries of our time.

It is only through the judicious blend of historical continuity with contemporary relevance that our seminaries can fulfill their mission in the Church.

Start Of Law Week Marked By Red Mass

Liberty that is separated from spiritual duty is an immoral pretense. The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, apostolic administrator of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, said yesterday.

Bishop Furey spoke to San Diego County judges, attorneys and law students at a Red Mass marking the beginning of Law Week. The Mass, celebrated in St. Joseph's Cathedral, is an annual event.

ROLE OF COURTS

The bishop presided at the Mass, which was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. James T. Booth, diocese chancellor. The priests wore the traditional red vestments.

"Some lawmakers and some courts . . . now tell us that virtue is no concern of civil authority, nor of the civil courts," Bishop Furey said. "They pretend that liberty and freedom must be understood, interpreted and promoted without reference to goodness and virtue."

"Some of them even seem to say that it is the duty of the law and the civil courts to be 'morally neutral,' to be tolerant of everything except interference with liberty."

LEGAL AIDES CHARGED

The bishop said these persons no longer acknowledge any connection between our freedom and our obligations to God. "They deny that our civil rights are in any way bound up with our spiritual duty, and they take the position that liberty for its own sake is so supreme that it must be given free reign no matter what happened to goodness."

He told the members of the (Continued on a-21, Col. 1)

legal profession: "You gentlemen can never accept this monstrous, immoral and impossible pretense."

Bishop Furey quoted from the first epistle of St. Peter: "For such is the will of God that by doing good you should put to silence the ignorance of foolish men who live as free men, yet not using your freedom as a cloak for malice, but as a servant of God."

The bishop said there can be no real freedom without goodness, nor without law and order. He noted that the word judge is found 400 times in the Bible, the word judgment 500 times and the word justice about 350 times.

"The legal profession is one of the oldest and most honorable of the pursuits of man," he said. "It is also one of the most difficult and hazardous. Briefs must be prepared, opinions declared and decisions given which have a lasting effect on the individual, and perhaps on his family for generations yet unborn."

The Mass, a traditional beginning of Law Week in several American cities, was celebrated in English.

It is called the Red Mass because of its origin in England, where judges attended the Mass in their red robes, and the celebrant and ministers of the Mass wore red vestments.

Its purpose is to invoke the blessing and help of God upon the legal profession. In Washington, the President and members of the Supreme Court and Congress generally attend the Mass in St. Matthew's Cathedral.

The Mass in San Diego was sponsored by the School of Law at the University of San Diego in cooperation with the San Diego County Bar Association.

USD ACE TO GRADUATE

Pat Deserves Nice Pat on the Back

By EARL KELLER

EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer
University of San Diego would like to find more young men like Pat Barry to award scholarships.

Officials of the college have only one regret—that he will wind up his four years of studies Friday when he is graduated. USD gave Pat, who will be 23 June 15, baseball and basketball scholarships when he finished St. Augustine High.

Pat has become recognized as one of the top athletes in the Toreros' history. He didn't participate in basketball because he worked 32 hours a week while carrying a full college load of studies, but he pitched USD to 25 victories in four seasons. Pat was 7-7 this year, totalling in 160 innings.

USD's baseball team never has had a harder worker than Barry. This season he worked in both ends of two double-headers. He yielded only two earned runs in 15 innings in losing to Fullerton State, 2-1 and 4-3, but against University of San Francisco he had better luck, winning twice in one afternoon.

On another occasion, Pat pitched a full game against Long Beach State one afternoon, then came back the next day in relief and threw 8½ innings. His top effort, helping him win the most valuable player award, came when he shut out Utah, 16-0, on two hits.

Pat was a "wildman" in his first two years with the Toreros, hitting 11 homers in his first season and eight as a sophomore. This year he struck only two batters.

At St. Augustine, Pat was 9-11 in his senior year, but posted an earned run average of 0.98, landing him a position on the All-Eastern League team. The handsome young man was voted MVP in basketball and baseball while playing for the Saints.

"No, I'm not going to go into pro ball," Pat said yesterday. "I don't weigh enough (6-2 and 166 pounds) and furthermore I want to continue my studies and get a master's degree."

Barry will be back hard at his duties after he takes a trip to Washington in early June. He was one of 55 graduating seniors in the country selected by a national insurance company for a possible position in the future.

This summer Pat plans to continue pitching for the La Mesa Collegians of the Southern California Intercollegiate Conference. He was their top hurler last year with a 5-1 record, leading them to the title.

"I owe a lot to USD and baseball," Pat said, "because both gave me the opportunity to go to college. I doubt if I would have been able to go to college without the scholarships I received. I'm very thankful."

Barry has been a top student, too, as well as an outstanding athlete at USD. He was a low-B student. In addition to his heavy studies and outside jobs, Pat found time to engage in school activities. Among other things, he was president of the junior class. At St. Augustine, Pat was senior class president.

Next year Pat will be assistant baseball coach under John Cunningham while continuing his studies for a Master's degree. If he doesn't get the right business offer, Pat plans to teach or coach.

"Pat's a fine young man and I'm sure he will be successful at anything he does," Cunningham said in paying Barry a compliment.

Anderson Hails Police Role At Memorial Rites

San Diego County law enforcement officers ended National Police Week yesterday with a memorial service in honor of officers who died in service.

Present were officers from San Diego Police Department, the county Sheriff's Department, California Highway Patrol and policemen from cities within the county.

Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson gave the memorial address during the ceremony at the organ pavilion in Balboa Park. Officers and families witnessed the event.

"Local law enforcement is the bulwark of our form of government," Anderson said. "It is in good measure responsible for the social and economic progress this nation has experienced."

"Any system of self-government in which law is supreme must be safeguarded by an adequate program of enforcement and adjudication."

Anderson stressed the importance of the idea of service rather than force in a peace officer's role.

Anderson said police officers themselves, after a recent study, concluded that a police agency should do what it can for, rather than to, the people its members are employed to serve.

Rabbi Melvin Weinman of Temple Beth Israel delivered the invocation and the Rev. I. Brent Eagen of the University of San Diego gave the benediction. Marine Corps Recruit Depot band provided the music.

Catholic College's 1969 Plans Hailed

By CHARLES DAVIS
The San Diego Union's Education Writer

The surprising thing is that, creasingly reluctant to make it hasn't happened earlier in America. It's such a logical move."

Sister Mary William, I.H.M., used these words yesterday in discussing the affiliation in 1969 of Immaculate Heart College with the Claremont College group. The group comprises six colleges in eastern Los Angeles suburbs.

When the affiliation occurs, students in the Catholic institution will be able to attend Claremont College classes and receive credit at Immaculate Heart.

RECIPROCAL SETUP

The same reciprocal arrangement will exist for students in the Claremont Colleges, at least one of them with Protestant origins.

Sister Mary William commented in an interview after delivering the commencement address to graduating seniors at the University of San Diego College for Men.

Although the 1969 move is believed to be the first of its kind in the United States, similar arrangements exist at the Montreal.

Sister Mary William said Immaculate Heart, now in Hollywood Hills, had purchased land for expansion in the San Fernando Valley but became in-

Pope John XXIII, Barry Goldwater, astronauts, Minute Men, Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, Teilhard de Chardin, Gov. George Wallace, Eleanor Roosevelt, Madame Nhu — all have shown "courage which can only be admired" in making decisions, she said.

"If I read their lives correctly, however," she added, "some set their hope in the future and others in the past. These latter closed their minds to the idea of a world better than the one they knew and to some extent controlled."

Sister Mary William offered three exhortations:

1. "Don't let anyone persuade you that things are or recently were as good as they can become. We are still on the pesky side of paradise and there is a great deal more to be done."

2. "Let go. . . . Let yourself feel and be shaped by those contending forces against which alone you can gain and regain a position for yourself of unity and initiative."

3. "Choose life. . . . To let life leak out, to let it wear away by the mere passage of time, to Thirty-seven seniors, a nun, a general and a newspaper executive yesterday received degrees in eighth annual commencement exercises of the University of San Diego College for Men.

More than 300 in the campus' Alcala Theater watched the ceremonies, which included honors for six bachelors degree recipients.

Honorary doctor of law degrees were conferred on Sister Mary William, I.H.M., president of Immaculate Heart College, Los Angeles; Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Hochmuth, Marine Corps Recruit Depot commander, and E. Robert Anderson, administrative assistant to James S. Copley, chairman of the corporation publishing Copley Newspapers.

ACHIEVEMENTS TOLD

Sister Mary William and her order were cited for inculcating values necessary for Christian maturity and for establishing foundations of specialized knowledge for students.

Hochmuth was honored as a trainer of men dedicated to preservation of the nation.

Anderson was cited for contributions to the San Diego community, to national organizations and to humanitarian causes, including USD "in the days of its infancy."

Prince Among USD Science Graduates

The University of San Diego graduated its first prince yesterday.

A bachelor of science degree was conferred on Prince Sattam Bin Abdul Aziz Al-Saud of Saudi Arabia, the first Moslem to study at the Catholic institution.

The prince smiled and tipped his head slightly when his diploma was awarded by the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, chancellor and president of the university.

Referred to on campus at his request as "Mr. Al-Saud" rather than "your highness," as dictated by protocol, the prince, since September has been completing a business administration curriculum.

He is the 27-year-old son of Saudi Arabia's founder, the late King Saud Ibn Abdul Aziz. His brothers include the country's ruler, King Saud, and Crown Prince Faisal.

Al-Saud was the first of 17 bachelors of science candidates to receive a degree at the College for Men ceremonies because of the alphabetical listing of his name.

He attended Cambridge University for three years before enrolling at USD. He said he chose USD because "I am religious myself" and wanted to attend a school with a religious orientation.

The prince and his wife, Najla, leave for New York City by automobile today, going from there to England and France before returning to Saudi Arabia.

The couple has resided in Point Loma with their son and two daughters, who returned to the oil-producing kingdom this week by plane.

USD Graduates Urged to Use Skills to Bring About Changes

A college education is only useful if the graduate utilizes the skills it provides to help bring about needed changes in the country, the graduates of the College for Men at the University of San Diego were told yesterday.

Sister Mary William, president of Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles, said in her commencement address at the graduation ceremony that graduates will never grow as people "if they look for a life with a maximum of comfort and a minimum of disturbance."

300 Attend Ceremony

About 300 persons attended the ceremony in the Alcala Theater.

"Don't let anyone tell you that things are as good now as they can be," she said. "There are a lot of things which need to be done and doing them may not be comfortable."

She said the country needs its college graduates to tackle problems with whatever creative power they possess.

Get Honorary Degrees

Sister Mary William received one of three honorary doctor of law degrees.

Others were given to Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Hochmuth, commander of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, and E. Robert Anderson, administrative assistant to James S. Copley, chairman of the corporation publishing the Copley Newspapers.

Seventeen seniors who will complete their studies this summer also took part in the program.

CATHOLIC COLLEGE SET TO ENTER CLAREMONT

Sister Mary William, I.H.M., who was one of three to receive honorary degrees from the College for Men of the University of San Diego yesterday, will move her college into the Claremont College community in the fall of 1969.

With the move, Immaculate Heart College will become the first Catholic women's college in this country to be established in a Protestant college complex.

Immaculate Heart College is now located in Hollywood and has 1,500 students.

The college will be located on a 20-acre site next to Claremont College.

In announcing the move earlier this year, Sister Mary William said:

"We think it represents a landmark not only in the history of Catholic education but of American education as a whole. We welcome the opportunity to draw from and contribute to the essential wisdom of independent colleges of varying origins, working side by side in the search for truth."

Dr. Charles S. Benson, president of Claremont, said of the move:

"We feel that the American education process can be enriched by more exchanges between Catholic and Protestant traditions. We have had good relations with Immaculate Heart College for many years in other connections."

Ex-S.D. Coed Now Majors in Problems

'I Always Was a Good Listener,' Says Kansas U. Campus Adviser

LaDelle Willett, 22, a petite brunette, feels she's a born listener.

That's why she signed up to work with the Extension Lay Volunteers, a national Catholic service organization, after she was graduated from the University of San Diego in 1964.

She was promptly assigned as a campus adviser at the University of Kansas.

"Another girl and I became the contact between two priests at the campus and the Catholic students there," she said here in an interview after returning home for the summer.

There are 1,500 Catholic students at the university.

"Much of the time I listened their problems," she said.

'Looking for Identity'

"Many students are looking for their own identity. They haven't quite found themselves in life. I tried to help them. I always was a good listener."

Another problem is lack of love.

"Many of the college students feel they aren't loved by their parents," she said. "The parents don't spend enough time with them."

Parents Criticized

"Also they feel their parents don't treat them as individuals with a separate intellect. A few were close to suicide."

She tries to interpret the meaning of the Catholic faith in modern terms.

"Some are confused about what the religion means to them," she said.

She has traveled around the Midwest addressing Newman clubs in various universities. They are Catholic campus clubs.

Works For Ad Firm

"There is a lot of interest in religion and its relevancy to present-day life," she said.

Miss Willett, who lives at 3318 Crown Point Drive, Pacific Beach, plans to return this fall for a second year.

She is working for a San Diego advertising firm as a secretary during the summer.

She said that three other USD graduates will join the Extension Lay Volunteers this fall.

They are Brenda Bartek, Arlene Nye and Kathleen Mills.

"Some of the volunteers work on college campuses," she said. "Others work in hospitals, in nursing schools and in depressed areas."

"It's a kind of Peace Corps."

The volunteers will have 400 members this fall.

Two USD Colleges Award Degrees To 196 Students

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Apostolic Administrator, traced the source and secret of the "outstanding qualities of mind and heart peculiar to graduates of schools of the Religious of the Sacred Heart to the 'blueprint for learning' provided long ago by the society's founders.

Views on Education Enlightened
Addressing the graduates of the College for Women, University of San Diego, at commencement exercises on May 30, the Bishop said Mother Barat's views on education were "enlightened, profound and supernatural." And, he added, "you young ladies are the beneficiaries of these views today."

His Excellency presided at the exercises and conferred bachelor's and master's degrees in arts and science on 144 graduates. Thirty-four young women were awarded teaching credential certificates.

Across Marian Way in Alcalá Bowl, the Bishop awarded diplomas for bachelor's degrees in arts and science to 52 graduates of the College for Men at exercises on May 28. Ten received teaching credential certificates.

Saudi Arabia Prince Graduated
Among the graduates was Saudi Arabia's Prince Sattam Al Saud, 23, who received a bachelor of science degree. The prince majored in business administration and minored in economics. The degree he received was the first conferred upon a member of Saudi Arabia's royal family by a school in the United States.

Saud, a Moslem, entered the USD College for Men last fall after completing three years of study at Cambridge University in England.

Three persons were awarded honorary Doctor of Laws degrees by Bishop Furey at the exercises. They were Sister Mary William, IHM, president of Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles; Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Hochmuth, commanding general of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego, and E. Robert Anderson, administrative assistant to newspaper publisher James S. Copley.

Sister Mary William gave the commencement address. In her talk titled "On Growing Old," the speaker stressed three values which, she said, are summarized in the three words: change, chance and choice.

"Men who grow old are bent all their lives on these. Those who merely survive until superannuation overcome"

Blueprint for Learning Stressed by Bishop

afternoon I offer a stirring proof of this, and it applies not only to those of us who are gathered here, but in a sense, to the entire world.

Long before the ecumenical council spoke of ecumenism, long before anyone heard of the ecumenical movement, the good Sisters had chosen a motto which places them away ahead of all of us: Ut omnes unum sint!

Bond of Unity

As you young ladies leave the College for Women this afternoon, you must be conscious of a bond of unity among all of you. Physically you may never again be together as the Class of 1965. (Class reunions of college graduates are notorious for absenteeism!) But morally you will always be united under the mantle of your newly acquired Mother—your Alma Mater.

You already have three Almas Materes: your loving mothers who gave you birth; your Holy Mother, the Church; your Queenly Mother in Heaven. You are graduating on the eve of her great new Feast, the Queenship of Mary.

Today you become children of another Alma Mater: Your college. During your undergraduate days you have pursued different studies. You have learned different things. Some will be retained others forgotten. These are the frills of education.

But your education itself does not depend on memory. It is part of you. It is your very person. This is why you will always refer to the College for Women as your Mother, because, like all mothers, she has given of herself to you; you have become part of her.

Let us put it this way: Much has happened in the world since 1820 when Mother Barat held her educational council. You know much more about the physical sciences, about chemistry, biology, medicine, social welfare, than your counterparts of 145 years ago. But, you know, the same God is in His Heaven and the same frail human beings are on earth now, as then. And for this reason, I am convinced that Mother Barat, if she were doing it today, would not change her blueprint for the well-educated woman.

Stamped

You are stamped and sealed with strong religious principles and devotion to the Sacred Heart. This is the unique quality of your education. . . . You have a true sense of values. . . . Many years ago there was a cultured, refined, well-educated young man in the University of Alcalá. . . . in Spain, not San Diego. He belonged to a very prominent Italian family—the Gonzagas. Aloysius was also very pious and holy. In fact, as you know, he is now a canonized saint of the Catholic Church. He had developed a perfect sense of balance, a sense of true values, which might be summed up in a sentence that became his rule, norm, standard for living. It was "Quid hoc ad aeternitatem?" Used to play checkers and chess. . . . Aloysius was only 23 when he died. In Louisville, Kentucky, there is a famous monument. It is the likeness of a race horse, Man O'War. Erected by the people of Louisville to perpetuate the legendary performances of this fine animal. The inscription on the monument reads: "The Fastest Horse This World Ever Saw. After a night of what might, euphemistically, be called fun, a group of college students changed the inscription to read: The Fastest World This Horse Ever Saw."

—The world may have become faster (in more ways than one) since 1820, but I am sure you girls will always keep your sense of values.

This is my wish, my prayer, as I congratulate you, your parents, other members of your family, the Religious and all the faculty of the college on this, the 12th graduation exercise. May God's blessing be with you and all you do during a long and happy lifetime!

Commencement Address

Bishop Furey Stresses Blueprint for Learning

The blueprint for learning drawn by Mother Barat was stressed by Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Apostolic Administrator, in his talk at commencement exercises of the College for Women on the Alcala Park campus last Sunday.

The 1965 graduates are the beneficiaries of Mother Barat's views expressed at a meeting convened by Mother Barat in Paris in 1820. His Excellency said.

The text of Bishop Furey's talk:

As I thought of what I should say to you graduates this afternoon, it occurred to me that at least I should pay tribute to the fact that your charm and beauty are matched only by your intelligence and skill. But then I thought that perhaps I would be called an apostle of the obvious. . . .

On second thought, I felt that, instead of dwelling on the obvious, I should do better to speak on the source and secret of your outstanding qualities of mind and heart. I think I found them in the following resume of a meeting which Mother Barat convened in Paris in 1820.

Miniature Council

It was a miniature ecumenical council of all the Superiors of the new society. Its chief scheme had to do with a uniform course of studies for the schools of the Religious of the Sacred Heart.

Here was the conclusion reached at the council of 1820: "These studies are to be solid and serious, to fit the pupils to become intelligent wives and devoted mothers; to give that cultivation of mind, that formation of character, which go to make up a true woman; all must be stamped and sealed with strong religious principles and devotion to the Sacred Heart."

Here is a blueprint for learning if ever there was one. All the educational circles were anticipated at that council meeting 145 years ago. Mens sana in corpore sano—Education must fit one for life—Educate the whole human being, the entire person—Character training is essential in true education—etc.

Profound, Supernatural

It has been said that Mother Barat's views on education were "enlightened, profound and supernatural" and that, quite easily and skillfully, she communicated these views to all her Religious teachers.

You young ladies are the beneficiaries of these views today. They are truly enlightened, profound and supernatural ideas of what real education is, and must be. Some of you may not even believe in devotion to the Sacred Heart. There is no reason why you should if you do not profess the Catholic Faith. But you have been influenced by devotion nevertheless. You have been influenced by the Religious of the Sacred Heart, by their obvious qualities of mind and heart.

The beauty of the King's daughter is from within. Do you know that their "secret weapon" is devotion to the Sacred Heart? Hence, the spirit of that devotion pervades these graduation exercises today, and it is the spirit of Mother Barat.

St. Madeleine Sophie Barat died at the Motherhouse of the society in Paris on Ascension Thursday, 1865, 100 years ago. It was most fitting that the centenary of her death was observed all over the world during the past week.

A few weeks ago a very beautiful new series of commemorative stamps was issued by Vatican City. The occasion was the centenary of the birth, 700 years ago, of Dante Alighieri. It was the year 1265. He is the everlasting glory of his fatherland and one of the world's greatest poets. "Suae gentis imperitura gloria—Populorum dives poela." It is fitting that we observe the anniversary of his birth. He sang of Heaven; he wrote divinely; he had a genius for putting words together. . . .

But it is still more fitting that we keep the anniversary of the death of Mother Barat. She does not sing of Heaven; she occupies it. She does not write of divine things; she enjoys them in the Beatific Vision. Here was a genius for putting souls together. For this reason, she is attending the graduation exercises this afternoon.

Her Spirit Lives

Her spirit will pervade every graduation ever to be held on a campus of her own Religious. Seven hundred years ago Dante Alighieri was born to this world and left it a better one. One hundred years ago Madeleine Sophie Barat died to this world. Her spirit, her example, her inspiration, her intercession in Heaven will always make this a better world in which to live.

I am sure you have heard it said, "The Sisters are always a couple of steps ahead of you"—no matter what you are trying to say or do. This them are governed by one or all of the antonyms of change, chance and choice: that is, by caution, by drift, and by the closed mind." Sister Mary William's address is printed on Page 8.

For the Doctor of Laws degree, the nun was cited for her contributions to higher education and the contribution of her religious order to the educational edifice of the San Diego diocese.

Hochmuth and Anderson, a retired Navy captain, were recognized for their civic contributions and their distinguished military careers.

The prince and his wife left San Diego by automobile for New York City where they will board the liner Ile de France for a visit with her mother in London. The couple later will drive to Saudi Arabia.

Their three children were flown back to the oil-rich kingdom earlier last week. The country is ruled by the prince's brother, King Faisal. The prince said he planned to work for progress among the nation's eight million subjects upon his return.

As president and chancellor of the university, Bishop Furey commended the graduates their faculties and parents, thanked Sister Mary William for her address and congratulated the three recipients of honorary degrees for their marked contributions to our society's welfare. The Bishop's address to the graduates of the women's college is printed on page 1.

USD Gives Law Degrees

Degrees were handed to 23 graduates of the University of San Diego School of Law yesterday in colorful ceremonies at Alcala Bowl.

Honorary doctor of laws degrees were awarded to Lloyd E. Griffin, retired presiding justice of the 4th District Court of Appeals, and to Maj. Gen. George W. Hickman Jr., USA, ret., former judge advocate general of the Army.

Hickman, former acting dean of the USD School of Law, is now manager of committee services for the American Bar Association in Chicago.

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, apostolic administrator of the Catholic diocese of San Diego and president of the university, mentioned the sacrifices made by the wives of those graduating students who are married, sacrifices which permitted them to complete their studies.

Joseph A. Sinclitto, dean of the law school, told the graduates that the school has tried to develop three things in them:

First — The skills of the lawyer.
Second — A deep sense of professional responsibility.
Third — A philosophy of law which recognizes that it is of the essence of law that it be based upon the moral order.

Hickman, former acting dean of the USD School of Law, is now manager of committee services for the American Bar Association in Chicago. He handed the graduates a tough-minded appraisal of their position:

"I may shock you when I say that you, about to be graduated with a splendid basic legal education, are scarcely ready for the practice of law."

"You generally lack the how-to-do-it techniques. Law school training is not enough," he said, despite the high quality of the USD law school.

Hickman said the answer to this problem is for the graduate to start learning more after school and keep doing it.

You might expect a law school graduation to be unduly solemn, but this one wasn't.

White clouds sailed swiftly in the pastel blue sky over Alcala Bowl at the University of San Diego yesterday. There was a cool breeze.

Color was everywhere—in the gay flowers that lined the square where the audience sat; in the uniforms of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot Band, and in their brass instruments.

YOUNG FAMILIES

There were dashes of color from the suits and coats of women in the audience, and the purple of high church office surrounded by the black robes of scholars.

And there was youth.

The most striking thing about the audience was nicely dressed young women with one or more children. These were the wives and families of many of the 23 graduates of the university's School of Law.

The eighth commencement ceremony was punctuated by piping calls of "Mommy . . ." and motherly shushing of children.

There was pride on the faces of those young wives and mothers. Bishop Francis J. Furey and other speakers paid tribute to the sacrifices the wives made so their husbands could go to school.

First All-American Boasted by USD

The University of San Diego has its first All-American. He is Ron Cady, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cady of Spring Valley.

He was named last week as the third baseman on the College Division All-American baseball team by the American Association of College Baseball Coaches.

Cady received his degree of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration last May 28. His future plans include graduate work in business administration.

Three pitchers with a combined won-loss record of 24-1 topped the selections. They are Gene Riley of Central Connecticut State, 8-0; Henry Blanks of Trinity, Tex., 9-1, and Curt Cook of Augustana, Ill., 7-0.

The lone repeater on the first team was outfielder Fred Kovner of Old Dominion College, Va. Sal Manforte, Colby College second baseman, and George Glenn, Arkansas State third baseman, who were first team choices last year, were named to the second team.

Augustana College is the only college to have two players on the team. They are Cook and outfielder Ron Karlblom, who played with the United States Baseball

Woolpert Inks 3-Year USD Pact

Phil Woolpert, athletic director and head basketball coach at the University of San Diego, has signed another three-year contract with the university.

Woolpert, a former two-time NCAA basketball coach of the year, first came to USD in the spring of 1962 on a three-year contract. Since that time he has led the Toreros to 34 wins and 43 losses.

In his first season, 1962-63, the Toreros finished with a 6-19 record, the next year they were 13-13 and last season they compiled the best record in the school's history, 15-11.

While at the University of San Francisco, Woolpert coached such outstanding cage stars as Bill Russell, K. C. Jones, Mike Farmer, Gene Brown and John Cunningham.

Cage Pact Is Renewed By Woolpert

Phil Woolpert, athletic director and head basketball coach at the University of San Diego, has signed another three-year contract with the university. It was announced by Very Rev. John P. Cadden, College for Men president.

Woolpert first came to USD in the spring of 1962 on a three-year contract. During that period, the former two-time NCAA basketball coach of the year, has led the Toreros cage team to 34 wins and 43 losses.

The developer of such outstanding cage stars as Bill Russell, K. C. Jones, Gene Brown, Mike Farmer, and John Cunningham while at the University of San Francisco, Woolpert's progress with the Toreros the past three seasons also has been outstanding.

In his first season, 1962-63, the Toreros compiled a 6-19 mark. The next season Woolpert's squad had a 13-13 mark and last season, finished with the best record in the school's history, 15-11.

"We have been indeed fortunate to have Phil with us," said Father Cadden. "Not only has he upgraded the basketball program at USD, but he also has expanded the entire athletic and intramural program. He has been a definite asset to the school as well as to the community and I know he will continue to be so."

Since Woolpert took over the athletic reins, golf and tennis have been added to the intercollegiate program which consisted of basketball and baseball prior to his coming. The intramural program, for all students, also has been organized under Woolpert's chief assistant, John Cunningham.

"We intend to add to our intercollegiate athletics, hoping to take in swimming and wrestling in the near future," said Woolpert. "Developing a basketball program at USD has been a challenge and the cooperation from Father Cadden, the faculty and the students has been great. As far as the future of basketball at the university, I am sure that we intend continuing to offer both students and area fans the best in intercollegiate basketball."

Speaking Of Woolpert, Clay Shy And Assorted Subjects

Pickups, patter and puns: Phil Woolpert, basketball bossman at the University of San Diego, reports that 15 good college prospects were among some 90 junior and senior high basketballers who attended the recent University High clinic.

Woolpert, Forest Two good of Southern California and Johnny Wooden of UCLA supplied the blackboard work while Los Angeles Lakers Rudy LaRusso and Walt Hazzard demonstrated.

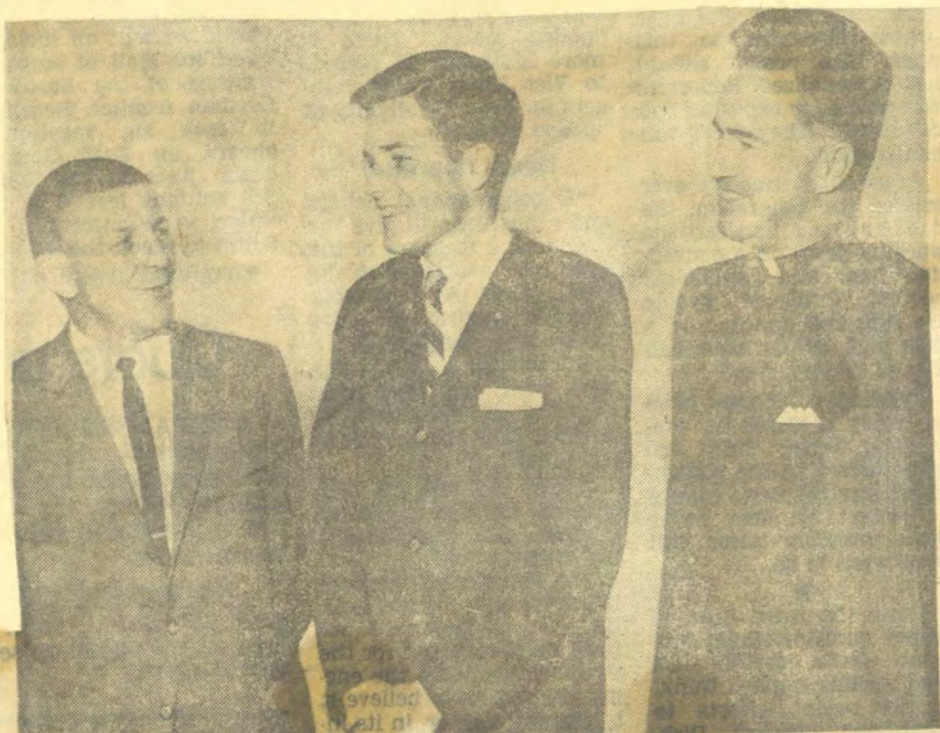

"Wooden was quite impressed with the turnout," Woolpert commented. "He said he runs two clinics each summer in the Los Angeles area and is lucky to see one college prospect. Most of the boys at our clinic were from San Diego County—which proves that basketball is not a dead issue here by any means."

Planning September Show

"Half the fun is getting there" is as true of working toward a successful benefit as it is preparing for a trip. Those who are planning the National Horse Show and bazaar to be given Sept. 24-26 at Westgate Park and Valley Lane Farms by the University of San Diego Auxiliary got into the mood of their project at a recent "box social" supper in Mrs. Henry Fenton's Mexican pavilion at her ranch near San Pascual. Don Howard auctioned the decorative box suppers and Dr. Richard Phillips, assisted by Mrs. Julian Kaufman, directed a horse-racing game. Mrs. Fenton received in a copper-colored squaw dress trimmed in gold rickrack braid. Dr. and Mrs. John J. Wells were "dress-alikes" in black equestrian ensembles. Capt. ## 'WE'VE TURNED CORNER' USD Growing—And Planning

One of a series

By CHARLES DAVIS
The San Diego Union's Education Writer

It was Feb. 11, 1952, that doors opened to admit the first 50 students to the University of San Diego. The doors were to USD's College for Women, a striking example of Spanish Renaissance which set the architectural styling for all the campus' buildings that have followed.

Now, almost 14 years later, there are 1,457 students in four distinct units at USD. They represent a community resource of future teachers, scientists, business, legal and religious minds.

"We've turned the corner," is how the Rev. John Paul Cadden, president of the College for Men, puts

it. "We've upgraded the curriculum. We've upgraded the academic standards."

And plans are afoot to do even more, including a proposal to accept Latin American students and teach them in their native Spanish during freshmen and sophomore years.

Father Cadden heads a college with 383. In less than three years he has helped build the new academic emphasis of which he speaks, and now looks for doubled enrollment—perhaps as soon as two years.

In addition to the separate men's and women's colleges, the latter having 700 students, USD, School of Law has a record 297, and 77 attend the School of Theology.

The Catholic institution is permeated with a concept that, not only is knowledge important but so is moral, Christian maturity.

Let Marsha Zandi, a senior planning a career in probation work and who is president of the women's college student body, tell her reasons for attending USD.

She has found a "classroom advantage" when girls do not compete with boys. And, she adds, there is a direct advantage for girls who seek positions of leadership.

Last summer Marsha went to meetings of the National Student Association in Wisconsin. There she discovered, with one exception, all coeducational institutions were represented by men.

"I wouldn't be where I am if I were not attending a women's college," Marsha said.

Marsha does, however, concede it desirable to have closer contacts between the College for Women, conducted by nuns of the Religious Order of the Sacred Heart, and the men's college, a diocesan school.

The two colleges do participate jointly in social functions, and a move toward greater cultural and intellectual togetherness was begun this year with a cooperative film festival.

One advocate of closer ties is the Rev. I. Brent Eagen, director of school relations at the men's college and a counselor of potential high school applicants in behalf of both colleges.

Father Eagen sees academic advantages if, say, men students received fine arts instruction at the

Bishop Furey Off For Rome Session

World Poverty Is Key Problem For Ecumenical Council, He Says

By JOE STONE

The discussion most likely to capture the public imagination during the fourth session of the Ecumenical Council in Rome is that of poverty in the world, the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey said yesterday before departing for the session.

Bishop Furey, apostolic administrator of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego, has attended the three prior sessions of the council. Pope Paul VI has announced this will be the last.

World poverty is one of three great problems to be discussed under the theme of "The Church and the World Today," said Bishop Furey.

The other two are war, particularly nuclear war, and birth control.

PRESSING PROBLEM

"Poverty has a bearing on the other two problems," said Bishop Furey. "It is the most universal and the most pressing."

"Not all nations have nuclear weapons, but all have poverty."

During their discussion of world poverty, the 2,300 delegates to the council will hear the report of an interim committee which has studied the economic systems of the world — capitalism, socialism and communism.

Members of the committee, appointed by the Pope, are not all members of the clergy, said Bishop Furey.

"Some are not Christians," he said.

STUDY OF COMMUNISM

The council can study communism because Pope Pius XI, in an encyclical written more than 20 years ago, defined the difference between communism as an economic system and atheistic communism. The church is opposed only to the latter, said the bishop.

To help solve the problem of poverty the Catholic Church can exert moral pressure, said Bishop Furey.

"We cannot enforce our will by weapons or power," he said.

"But we can prevail upon those who have more than they need to give to the needy."

Bishop Furey will serve on the Administrative Tribunal of the council. It is a committee of 11 which rules on any jurisdictional questions — questions of law — raised by the council.

The Most Rev. Floyd Begin, Bishop of Oakland, is one of two California clerics chosen to serve on the Administrative Council, which has world wide representation. Bishop Furey is the second Californian. The chairman is Cardinal Robert of Rome.

Bishop Furey will be in Rome in time for the opening of the session Tuesday, Sept. 14.

En route he will stop in Philadelphia to officiate at the ceremony when his niece, Miss Eleanor Furey of Philadelphia, is married to Jack Phillips, a graduate student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Bishop Furey hopes the council ends in time for him to return to the San Diego Diocese for the Feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe, Dec. 12.

NEW START—Mass of the Holy Spirit was offered by Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, president of the University of San Diego College for Men, last Friday in the Immaculata chapel to open the school year. Faculty and students attended the Mass and Rev. Leonard J. Brugman, chaplain of the College for Men, delivered the sermon in which he told the students that they must be spiritually and intellectually strengthened during the coming year. The Glee Club under the direction of Rev. J. Vincent Sullivan sang hymns during the Mass.

Classes Given For Teaching Credentials

In-service courses for those wishing to meet requirements for state teaching credentials will be offered afternoons, evenings and Saturdays by the University of San Diego's College for Men.

The school said courses in secondary curriculum, educational psychology, measurement and evaluation, educational philosophy and counseling and guidance will satisfy requirements for both the old general secondary and the new standard teaching credentials.

The college is offering also a new master of arts in teaching program. This provides graduate courses in English, history and education. Both in-service and graduate courses are co-educational.

Registration for in-service courses will be accepted through Sept. 25.

AWARD DISPLAYED — Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, apostolic administrator, and Mrs. John J. Wells, president of the University of San Diego Auxiliary, display a ribbon to be awarded at the horse show sponsored by the auxiliary at Valley Lane Farms Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, September 24, 25, and 26. An international bazaar also will be a feature of the gala event.

Horse Show, Bazaar Planned by Auxiliary

The first annual charity horse show and international bazaar at Valley Lane Farms in Mission Valley will be sponsored by the University of San Diego Auxiliary, with opening ceremonies scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday, September 24. The affair will be open to the public until late Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Maurice P. Turner is bazaar chairman and her technical coordinator is Mrs. Joseph E. Bennett. Costume design is by Mrs. Bernard P. Cunningham of Del Mar.

The bazaar will open at 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday and various foods will be available at all times. A chuckwagon barbecue dinner will be featured Saturday night and an English Hunt breakfast Sunday morning. Reservations and tickets for these two events may be obtained from Auxiliary members.

Bazaar wares will include jewelry, antiques, gourmet foods, children's toys, art, straw hats and bags, objects d'art, homemade jams and jellies. Gifts which have been collected during the year by auxiliary members during their travels will be augmented by boutique items, including hand knit and decorated sweaters. A post office, typical of early Americans, will sell unopened packages mailed from all over the world.

A spinning wheel which came across the prairies with the early-day Mormons will be featured in the Country Store along with a pot-bellied stove, cracker barrels and horns of cheese. Hand-tied fishing flies will be fashioned on the spot in Ireland by an expert in this field. Olive trees, dolls, religious icons and old paintings will be found in Italy and one may sip and relax over a glass of wine in the Cafe Roma nearby.

Bazaar chairmen include Mmes. Irving W. Martin, Country Store; Charles J. Rizzo, Dry Goods; Frank J. O'Connor and Paul A. Vesco, Italy; Remo Downs and James Hock, France; Frances C. Martin, England; Richard P. Phillips, India and Street of Daggers.

Others are Mmes. Thomas M. Manley and S. Falck Nielsen, Mexico; Charles W. Anderson, Greece; Charles A. Ragen, Ireland, and John E. Handley, Post Office; Cafe Roma, University of San Diego College for Men Alumni.

Ticket sales are under the chairmanship of Mrs. R. E. Archibald and Mrs. Robert Steed, both of Coronado. General admission to the area will include not only parking and access to the bazaar area but also seating at the horse show. The first of the six sessions will commence on Friday night and over 1,000 entries have been

San Diego U. Enrolls 1,433, 200 Above '64

Masters' Program In Teaching Added At College for Men

The University of San Diego has registered nearly 200 students more than last year, it was announced today.

The total at the Colleges for Men and Women and at the Schools of Law and Theology is more than 1,433.

The College for Men reported 370 students, the College for Women more than 700 (including part-time students), the School of Law 286 and the School of Theology, including St. Francis College in El Cajon, 77.

Late registrations are expected to increase these totals slightly.

Ten new faculty members are at the College for Men, plus a new administrator, Cdr. Thomas R. Pearson, USN, ret., director of students services.

Marriage Course

All students will be required to take a course in "Marriage and the Family" conducted by William R. Brockley, 41, former counselor with the marriage conciliation court here. This is the first time a California college has required such a course.

The College for Men has also initiated a graduate program leading to a master of arts in teaching, along with a secondary teaching internship under the direction of William E. Salles.

With the appointment of five new teachers and two assistant librarians, the School of Law has doubled its full-time faculty.

Borunda On Board Of USNSA

Editor's Note: The following is a report from Ernie Borunda, ASB President, on his recent trip to the University of Wisconsin for the annual student body presidents' conference sponsored each year by the USNSA, the United States National Student Association.

It was at this conference that Borunda was elected one of 10 members who will serve this coming year on the Advisory Board for this group. Miss Tice Doyle of the College for Women served in this position last year. Borunda's selection represents the first time in SBPC history that members of the same University have been elected in succeeding years.

By ERNEST BORUNDA

It is Aug. 21 and in a couple of hours I will be boarding an airplane for San Diego. It seems rather unbelievable that in the past five days Marsha Zandi and myself, along with more than 200 other student body presidents, have completed a course in the role of student body presidents on their campuses. It has been tiring, but enjoyable and the experiences and education which have become ours will certainly serve to improve our University in the coming year.

Student Services

Though the agenda was amended somewhat by the presidents themselves, the basic program offered by the NSA has been substantially useful and in line with preparing us for the coming year.

Student services are among the most important topics we have discussed. In addition, judicial systems, faculty and course evaluation, writing of constitutions, community service projects, cultural activities and travel opportunities have been presented in order that some or all these programs might be implemented at our own schools.

The philosophy that students are not being prepared for life but are actually living it, has been a constant thread throughout the conference, while responsibility of the student has been defined and redefined. Most important we have seen that for a school to run at its best it is necessary that administration, faculty and student body work together, with all taking part in forming the basic policies and philosophy of the school.

Rewards Seen

From my experience here, I return to the University prepared to present any and all programs we as students wish to implement. I am most prepared to bring to light the many areas in which students can and must take an active part if they wish to gain the very most from their education.

The year will be one of fantastic challenge, yet the reward of seeing our school move forward will be more than adequate . . . and this will be a reality in the coming school year.

Pearson Man To See For Jobs, Counseling

Thomas R. Pearson has been appointed director of student services at the College for Men for the 1965-1966 school year. The 46-year-old Navy commander retired from active duty Aug. 1.

As director of student services, he will be responsible for student employment, graduate placement and student loans. He will also counsel new and prospective students at the College.

Pearson will attempt to locate part-time jobs for the students and will work on the loans to needy and deserving students.

In graduate placement, he will arrange for interviews with prominent business firms and insurance and accounting companies, and will supply contacts for possible government positions.

Informal instruction on conduct for these interviews is also being planned.

This fall Pearson will visit public high schools in the county to familiarize future collegians with the benefits and advantages to attending the College for Men.

Pearson, a 1941 Annapolis graduate, was the executive officer and an associate professor of naval science with the Naval Reserve Officers Training Unit at Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind.

While at Purdue he took post-graduate courses in guidance and counseling, psychology and educational administration and received his master's degree in education. He spent much of his Navy career in San Diego.

"If I could have outlined the ideal of what I was looking for, this school certainly comes the closest," he said. "The location and the city are all I can ask."

"I am very impressed with the college and the people I work with. I've done a lot of work with younger men in the Navy and I will enjoy working with the students."

Pearson's oldest son is a junior at Purdue and another son is a sophomore at Annapolis. He also has a son, 13, and a daughter, 9.

USD Marital Course Set

One out of every three marriages in California ends in divorce. The divorce rate is three to four times higher among 15 to 19 year-olds.

These statistics were furnished by William R. Brockley, head of the Marriage Conciliation Court, who will initiate a new course at the University of San Diego College for Men called "Marriage and the Family." The course will cover "all aspects of marriage, including sexual, communication, finances, insurance, laws, social, parent-child relationships and religious conflicts."

Brockley said the course will emphasize what couples should do to prevent "a marriage from breaking into pieces with no one knowing what happened."

"My goal will be to develop a bridge between concept, theory, and research and some of the practical bread-and-butter problems," he said.

CITY'S TALLEST—Construction continues today on First National Bank's 25-story skyscraper at Fifth Ave. and

B St. while officials on the ground level seal historical items and pictures in a stainless steel vault.

History Deposited At Bank Skyscraper

City leaders made the first deposits today in First National Bank's uncompleted $11-million skyscraper on B Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

They were happy to do it, despite the fact that none of them expect to be around at withdrawal time.

Withdrawals, in this case, won't be allowed before the year 2065, give or take a decade.

The deposits were an assortment of words, pictures and recordings carefully selected to give San Diegans of the future a look at San Diego on this date — with a few historical items thrown in for good measure.

The memorabilia were sealed in a stainless steel vault, about 2 feet square, embedded in one of the entrance columns. The vault, replacing the customary cornerstone, was covered with an identifying bronze plaque.

While Anderson Borthwick, chairman of the bank's board of directors, presided during the 30-minute program, construction continued on the 25-story structure rising 388 feet above the ground. The city's highest building at 450 feet above sea level, the bank is scheduled to be opened for business in January or February. Construction on the 212,000-square-foot edifice began last year.

An Editorial

Summer Plans Promise Much

The school year labeled 1965-66 has begun in most schools around the country. For the University of San Diego the actual schooling has also just begun. But this past summer was the scene of more behind-the-scenes activity than ever before at USD in preparation for a school year.

Taking the spotlight was the successful program of dances put on by the college. This enhanced the reputation of the college and also somewhat enhanced the ASB treasury.

Then there is the Film Forum and the guest lecture series, and in the second semester there is Joe and Eddie.

The list seems endless. And the work done by the officers also appears to be endless.

Headed by president Ernie Borunda, the ASB council workers over the summer included vice-president Robert Shapiro, secretary James Schultz, and social chairman Richard Donoghue.

This is brief mention of four people who set up the things the students will remember outside of class. Their constant theme was improvement and a look at the social calendar will prove its success.

Now that the year has started, the theme might well be continuity. The effort should be centered on avoiding the second semester letdown that occurred last year.

This is where the students come in. They are needed to carry on in various posts and to attend these events and support the school.

Most prominent is the newspaper, The Vista, which will be staffed with people who show a continued effort through the first and second semesters.

The attitude of the new student should be to immerse himself in the activities for which he has an interest and then if he finds he doesn't like them, he can withdraw. This is better than waiting until the student has "cased" the campus activities and then joins the one which he can best use. The student may find he has become a part of the school too late to be effective for his first year.

With over 100 new freshmen out of an enrollment of 350 students at the College for Men it will be the new blood that will carry the school most effectively.

In getting into the school, the freshmen should recognize that they are needed and give their talents to building a better university. In the long run, they will help themselves as much as they contribute to the college.

This combination of active officers and an active student is the key to success. It is not a new solution but it is a successful one. The officers have been doing their part; now it's time for the student body to achieve progress.

Anything the mind can conceive, the will can achieve. USD is improving because it is lifting its aim and is willing to try more, new, and better things. This year looks as though we have more active student participation and interest.

With this new movement of the ASB and the fresh outlook provided by the many new freshmen, USD is like a seed beginning to grow. Let's all keep it growing.

Shapiro's Job Is A Busy One

The office of ASB vice-president has undertaken a variety of jobs this summer, ranging from a joint lecture and concert at reduced ticket rates with San Diego State College to investigating professional fraternities.

Among the most important developments, according to Bob Shapiro, ASB vice president, was seeking questionnaires from all freshmen and transfer students containing such information as previous clubs to which they belonged, musical and acting ability, special talents, and areas of interest. Any club president on the USD campus is welcome to study these questionnaires, Shapiro said.

Rules for cheerleaders and cheerleading were made, he said, and were passed at a joint ASB council meeting with the College for Women. It includes rules on tardiness and absence from games, and eligibility qualifications. Later in the year prospective cheerleaders will have a meeting and tryouts.

A joint lecture and concert series agreement was made with San Diego State College. The two schools will share reduced ticket rates to the lectures and concerts.

In addition, a list was compiled of all the professional fraternities in the nation. Letters were sent to some department chairmen who will use the information as they see fit.

Paul Theil, head of the political science department said he "would like to start an international relations club which could possibly be expanded to a chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, national political science fraternity."

A study was also made on outfits for the basketball team. It was decided to buy the team and coaches blazers and ties.

The blazers are navy blue and will have a USD patch on the upper right-hand pocket. A navy blue and red stripe tie will also be provided for the team. The outfits are the gift of the ASB as a result of the success of the summer dances. San Diego's Toggery Shop was chosen to supply the outfits.

College Thrills, Chills New Coed

By ANONYMOUS ANNE

College — exciting, fascinating, novel — these adjectives express the thoughts of a high school senior approaching another "road of life." But the prospects scared me to death.

My first adventure took place on visiting day. Mother Farrar, seeking new applicants for the college, invited girls from leading high schools to evaluate the College for Women. In looking over the campus, I was duly impressed and found myself willingly consenting to attend. The Mothers were unsurpassed for friendliness and the girls generated true hospitality toward their potential classmates.

Then came tests. Judging by my scores, I barely passed, and happily found myself admitted to USD. Now my apprehensions were fading.

Exciting? Oh, yes! I've already received a fabulous Big Sister, and found out girls' colleges allow Big Brothers, also, which promises a good social life. Fascinating? I couldn't be more fascinated than by the Romanesque atmosphere which permeates the campus of USD. Novel? Yes, very novel. I am looking forward to many more acquaint-

Father Matley Heads Newcomers On Library Staff

"When I took charge of the library, everybody started leaving." With this statement the Rev. Marcel Matley jokingly prefaced his announcement of many personnel changes in the staff of the University's library.

Father Matley replaced the Rev. Charles Dollen as Director of Libraries at the University of San Diego when Father Dollen became pastor of a new parish toward the end of the last school year.

"The biggest change," said Father Matley, "is that of Mrs. Joan Damrau. She left the college to take up a position with Claremont College's 'Honold Library' in the government documents section." Mrs. Damrau will be replaced by Adolph Koran, recently of the Navy. Koran was graduated from Syracuse University last February with a Master's in library science. His wife is employed in the literature section of the San Diego Public Library, downtown. Koran will be in charge of current periodicals and the history section of the library.

Other changes include the Rev. Henry McDonnell, who will replace Miss Janet Thompson. Miss Thompson was the clerk in charge of duplicate exchange and back periodicals. She left the University to begin work to open a school for deaf children in Tijuana. Father McDonnell's position is not yet known.

Also leaving was Miss Anita Isuel who was in charge of inventory. She is to teach in San Ysidro this year.

Over the summer, the library acquired a Thermo-Fax dry photocopier. The machine in the library last year cost 25 cents per page to copy and it did not pick up shadowing. Hence it could not copy pictures or drawings which some students need for their term papers.

This new photo-copier will cost only 10 cents per page and is capable of picking up drawings and other pictures.

Another slight change in procedure is the returning of books where no fine is due. Instead of leaving the books on the desk where they may get picked up or misplaced, there are now slots provided on the side of the librarian's desk for their return.

ASB Banquets College Leaders

The Associated Student Body officers played hosts to the top administrators of the College for Men last Saturday night.

The dinner meeting, first of its kind for the University of San Diego, was held at Mr. A's. It was designed to promote greater understanding between school and ASB leaders and to lay groundwork for future relations.

The highlight of the evening was a talk by the Very Rev. John Cadden, president of the College for Men. The theme was "Better Understanding Between the Administration and the ASB."

Student officers said they thought this dinner was important in establishing a greater liaison and would help in presenting new ideas and programs.

The administrators present, besides Father Cadden, included Rev. James Birkley, academic dean; Irving Parker, dean of admissions and records; Rev. William Phillips, dean of students; Rev. Vincent Walters, executive assistant to the president; Rev. I. Brent Eagen, publicity director for the college; and Thomas R. Pearson, director of student services.

Their hosts for the evening included Ernest Borunda, ASB president; Robert Shapiro, vice-president; James Schultz, secretary; and Richard Donoghue, social chairman.

'Mrs. G.' Back, Tells New Hours

Mrs. Grace Gonsowski is a popular "fixture" at the University of San Diego. For those newcomers who are not acquainted with "Mrs. G." she is the pleasant woman who operates the bookstore.

To begin this new school year, Mrs. G. is keeping in step with the many other advancements around the University and has announced new hours for the first month of school along with the addition of four new periodicals for sale.

The September hours for the bookstore will be as follows: Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. In addition on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 9.

Added to the selection in the bookstore this year will be copies of four periodicals: Time, Life, Sports Illustrated, and U.S. News and World Report.

"This year the bookstore also has more supplement readings, mainly due to the advanced English department," Mrs. Gonsowski said.

She also mentioned the assortment of binders and other school supplies, along with blazers and a new school emblem patch.

Mrs. G. advised the juniors and seniors to put in their orders early for their class rings so they will be able to enjoy them the full year.

USD — Where The Action Is!

'Lawmen' Bring Peace As Thousands Fill Gym

Summertime Dances Success In Fun, Games

By RICHARD DONOGHUE

"The Accents will be wailing at USD every Tuesday night all summer long."

So began the most ambitious financial gamble the ASB ever has undertaken. From the inception of this idea down at Oscar's late in May to the finale on Sept. 7, the "USD Dances" have been events of wonder. With an average of 1,500 persons a dance and a single dance high of 2,105, USD completely dominated the dancetime entertainment field in San Diego.

Lest anyone forget, this dance and all the successes derived from it are not the work of one or two individuals. The number of people connected with each "Tuesday night" is considerable. All those who have contributed in any way should feel proud of this contribution to the ASB and to the publicity for the entire University.

A dance committee member said he "would like to thank personally Joe Martinez as head of the Interfraternity Council for his efforts in the preliminary work involved. Without his organization of the publicity facet of the dance, it would have been a failure."

Saint Augustine High School should also be thanked for its generosity in lending their risers.

"Everyone in the ASB should also be aware of the long hours Ernie Borunda and Bob Shapiro devoted to the small details concerning the dance," the committeeman said. "The dances as a whole were outstanding. However, everyone involved can say that they were not easy to put on week after week. It took a lot of hard work and patience to do it."

"But it proved one thing — the deal from this summer and will use this knowledge to give you, the students, the best year USD officers have learned a great has ever had."

Campus Culture Program Stars Films, Speakers

As part of the expanding cultural program on the University campus, ten outstanding films will be presented in the coming year for entertainment and for critical review of films as an art form.

Chosen by a joint committee of the College for Women and College for Men, including Mother Anne Farrar and Father I. Brent Eagen, the series seeks to offer a varied program that will attract people from all parts of the University complex and serve as a supplement to the normal curriculum.

This year's program is under the direction of Jim Schultz, ASB secretary. A recent transfer from UCSB, Schultz has been the moving force in increasing the cultural activity on campus for the coming year. He lined up several speakers and has served as coordinator with the popular Carlijn Series of speakers.

Among the films being offered, according to Schultz, are the opening feature on Sept. 29, "To Kill A Mockingbird." In addition, other dates will feature "Beckett," "Grapes of Wrath," "High Noon," and "Birth of a Nation" in the first semester.

Second semester offerings include "Macbeth" and "Ballad of a Soldier." The film program started last year.

Ron Cady Named All-American

Sports Shorts

By DANNY WILSON

Here's hoping that all of you are as excited about the new VISTA as we are. We think it shows real promise and that the dedicated staff will make it very successful.

It seems only fitting that this first issue of the sports page be dedicated to Ron Cady. Ron's selection as NCAA All-American was the first such honor bestowed on any Torero. It has put USD "on the map," so to speak. Congratulations, Ron, and best of luck to you at Cal Western.

The staff would also like to express its condolences to Coach Pecarovich's widow and children. They have every reason to be proud. Coach is fondly thought of here on campus among those who remember USD's football days. Spirits were never higher than after the victory over MCRD in 1960 by a 21-20 score. The goalposts went down, tempers were high as are all in the most exciting moments of football. Our prayers are with Coach Pecarovich. He was a fine man.

Basketball prospects are good for this season. We have the winningest Frosh team in our history back to compete for varsity positions. With only four seniors gone from the squad, there will be a lot of competition for first string positions. It looks like another great year.

But closer than basketball is intramural football. Quite rough in style, this sport will again attract the bloodthirsty. Spirits on the teams will be up and there should be quite a bit of good, hard football.

Late USD Mentor Subject of Memorial

Pecarovich Field Planned At Gonzaga U.

Gonzaga University of Spokane, Washington, announced plans last July for the construction of a new $25,000 baseball field in memory of the late Mike Pecarovich, former USD grid mentor. Pecarovich was head football coach at Gonzaga from 1931 to 1939.

He died last March 22 when he suffered a heart attack in his sleep in his home in Rolling Hills, California, near Los Angeles. He was 67 and is survived by his wife and six daughters.

Claude McGrath, former basketball coach and athletic director at Gonzaga, is chairman of the memorial committee.

Among the committee members are such famous persons as Bing Crosby, Pecarovich's one-time roommate whom he encouraged to enter show business; Tony Canadeo of the Green Bay Packers and Ike Peterson, Detroit Lion halfback.

Plans for the field include team dugouts, backstop, outfield fences and bleachers. The field will be landscaped and a complete watering system installed. Plans call for completion to be next spring.

Lawmen

At each gate were two well-developed college athletes acting as funnels to let patrons in one at a time. The previous week, a mob upwards of 75 people had broken through the gate in one bug push.

Outside the walls were Gem patrolmen. Inside the walls were Gem patrolmen. They made sure no one entered over the top. Inside the dance were more patrolmen and a number of bouncers, well able to take care of themselves.

After the fifth dance there were no more fights.

Third Baseman Top In Country

Ron Cady was named the outstanding third baseman in small college baseball last semester when he was selected to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Small School All-American baseball team.

The 6'0", 180 pound senior slugged his way to a respectable .295 batting average last year, which included seven home runs, four triples, four doubles and 34 runs batted in. He also had 14 stolen bases to his credit.

Cady was a well-rounded and spirited student of the USD student body. Affiliated with Alpha Delta Gamma fraternity, he served as its president in his junior year. He also served as Chief Justice on the Student Court in his senior year and was an active member in the Society for the Advancement of Management.

A business administration major, Cady graduated last June with a grade point average of 2.9 for four years of college. He is taking his B.S. in business this year at Cal Western University to work for his master's degree. He is working his way through school with a gas station job.

In an interview, Ron had credit to give to his coach, John Cunningham, when asked to comment on his award.

"I'd like you to give Coach Cunningham his due credit for this award," said Ron. "Not only did he help my performance but it was his convincing personality and power of persuasion which got this award for me over all the other candidates. I want to express my gratitude to him publicly."

Coach Cunningham retaliated with "Ron won the award through his own performance."

ALL-AMERICA—Ron Cady, star third baseman on last year's winning USD diamond team, has knocked another home run. He's been named on the national Small Colleges' All-American baseball squad. Ron's the first ballplayer to win such honor.

Pecarovich's Novel Life Stirs Tribute

Mike Pecarovich was a 1922 graduate of Gonzaga where he played both football and baseball. His football coach at Gonzaga was Gus Dorais who teamed up with Knute Rockne to introduce the forward pass to modern collegiate football.

Pecarovich played his last college football here in San Diego on Christmas Day, 1922, when Gonzaga met West Virginia, the only undefeated team in the East that year.

He went into coaching after a brief drama career and stayed there for 30 years. He started as an assistant at Gonzaga before taking over the head coach position for nine years.

He then went to Loyola of Los Angeles for two years before going into professional football, where he scouted and served as both an assistant and head coach. He was with the New York Yankees of the old All-American Conference for four years. He also was affiliated with the Detroit Lions and Washington Redskins during his career.

When he left football, Pecarovich taught English at St. Anthony's High in Long Beach, until he was offered the head coaching position at the University of San Diego, starting in 1960. He stayed here for two years, when USD dissolved its football program for financial reasons.

Mike Pecarovich had another side besides football and athletics. He also was an accomplished drama student. He was instrumental in getting Bing Crosby interested in drama at Gonzaga and for two years following graduation was a lead actor in travelling theatre groups. He appeared several times in Bing Crosby pictures and had his own radio shows in Spokane and Los Angeles.

Since he left USD, Pecarovich had concentrated on being an after dinner speaker. He would sometimes be speaking four or five times a week. He was one of the most sought after speakers on the West Coast.

The principals of Southern California high and junior high schools have named him the best and most effective speaker in the state. His manner made his communication to the younger generation possible and had tremendous influence on them.

As Mrs. Pecarovich wrote in a letter to the memorial committee, "And yet, he is not wholly gone. He left so much of himself behind in his fine daughters, in the many boys he coached and helped mold into men, and in the countless thousands whom he inspired with his talks."

Course on Marriage Slated for USD Men

OUTLINE CHECKED—Superior Court Judge Robert Stanforth, left; William Brockley, head of Marriage Conciliation Court, and Bishop Francis J. Furey, president of University of San Diego, look at outline for "Marriage and Family," a new course to be required at College for Men this fall. Brockley will teach the course. Stanforth teaches at university School of Law.

College 1st in State To Require Class

Chief of Conciliation Court Will Direct Study This Fall

The University of San Diego's College for Men this fall will become the first educational institution in the state to require its students to take a course in preparation for marriage.

The course will be called "Marriage and the Family," it is intended to help curb the spiraling divorce rate.

William R. Brockley, head of the Marriage Conciliation Court, will teach the course. He said it will cover "all aspects of marriage, including sexual, communication, finances, insurance, in-laws, social, parent-child relationships and religious conflicts."

Every-Day Problems

"Many of the problems we see here every day in the Conciliation Court will be covered," Brockley said.

He said that in California, one out of every three marriages ends in divorce. The divorce rate is three to four times higher among 15 to 19-year-olds, Brockley said.

"Here at the college we'll be reaching most of that age bracket," he said.

Brockley said the course will emphasize what couples should do to prevent "a marriage from breaking into pieces and no one knows what happened."

Link to Practical

"My focus will be to develop a bridge between concept, theory and research and some of the practical bread-and-butter problems," he said.

The Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, college president, said the College for Men will be the first institution in the state to require such a course for all students.

Father Cadden said that when classes begin next Monday, the college will have about 350 students. The freshman enrollment of 100 will be double that of last year.

New Graduate Program

Changes in the curriculum include a new graduate program leading to a master of arts in teaching, and an internship program leading to a secondary teaching credential.

Bishop Furey En Route to Vatican Talks

Moral pressure is the Catholic Church's key weapon in combating world poverty, according to the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, apostolic administrator of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Diego.

Just how this moral pressure can best be applied will be discussed at the fourth session of the Ecumenical Council of the Roman Catholic Church in Vatican City which Bishop Furey will attend.

Bishop Furey will serve on the administrative tribunal of the council. It is a committee of 11 which rules on any questions of law raised by the council.

Nuclear war and birth control also are on the agenda.

During the consideration of the poverty problem, the 2,300 delegates will hear from a committee which has studied the economic systems of the world — capitalism, socialism and communism.

The council can study communism because Pope Pius XII 20 years ago differentiated between "communism as an economic system and a Godless belief."

Law School Resolution Honors Jurist

Late Judge's Aid To University Is Remembered

The faculty of the School of Law of the University of San Diego has adopted a special Resolution of Tribute to Judge deWitt H. Merriam, one of the founders of the school, who died recently after a long illness.

Joseph A. Sinclitico Jr., dean of the school, said the resolution expresses the sorrow of the faculty and students for the death of Judge Merriam and their appreciation of his long-time volunteer service as a faculty member and guide of the school. The resolution, adopted at a special meeting, has been entered on the minutes and records of the School of Law.

Sinclitico said the faculty also expressed sympathy and appreciation to Judge Merriam's widow, Portia, enclosing in a letter announcing the resolution a Spiritual Bouquet of 10 Masses to be offered up for Judge Merriam by the faculty.

Committal services for Judge Merriam, 76, were held Sept. 10 in Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale. Simultaneously, funeral services were held at St. James-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church, La Jolla. Judge Merriam, of 7244 Carrizo Drive, La Jolla, served 22 years on the federal bench in Michigan before retiring. He was instrumental in helping the USD School of Law obtain accreditation from the National Bar Association.

NEW WORLD—F. David Helkenn Jr., 18, who became blind a year and a half ago, will enter a new world this week when he starts at the University of San Diego College for Men. Helkenn is shown with his dog, Loreen, who will accompany him to college.

Blind Youth Sees Life as Chess Game

By BILL OTT

EVENING TRIBUNE Staff Writer

F. David Helkenn Jr., 18, stands on the edge of a whole new world of experience.

And he stands firmly, courageously, with a healthy philosophy about a turn of events that could well have been shattering.

David became blind a year and a half ago.

His new world of experience will swing wide its doors Friday, when he becomes a student at the University of San Diego College for Men.

"Glad to Start" David said. "Naturally, I wonder how it will work out. I've only been blind a year and a half. Studying with Braille and tapes will be a new experience."

But, there is that quality called courage. It blends well with David's own philosophy about turning points in life. He phrases it this way:

"A lot of people have one set goal and they rush directly toward it. It's rush, rush, rush. Some of them don't make it. When they don't, it's a major catastrophe and life, for them, comes to an end."

"You Have to Change" "But it doesn't have to," he added thoughtfully. "Life is something like a game of chess. Things often happen and you have to change your plans. A life can be directed along another channel. I think people should be more thankful for what they do have and less bitter about little things. Someone else is always worse off than you are."

"If people were more charitable toward others, the world would be a better place to live in," he said.

David, who lives at 4224 Feather Ave., Clairemont, will be accompanied on his new venture in higher learning by Loreen, his German shepherd guide dog.

Graduation Ceremony

He was officially presented with Loreen on Aug. 21 during graduation ceremonies at Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., in San Diego. The trained animal and Rafael, the trained animal and a month's instruction with it were given free by the nonprofit philanthropy.

David became blind because of a detached retina condition, which is congenital. It is a condition of myopia in which the eyeball grows progressively elongated to a point where the retina can no longer remain attached. A series of operations to correct the condition was unsuccessful.

David has known for years that he could become blind at any time.

"It Kind of Hurt"

"I've been at the Foundation for the Junior Blind in Los Angeles," he said. "At the time, I could see with both eyes, but not very well. I got to be around blind people a lot, so when I lost my sight I just became one of them. It kind of hurt."

David, who attends the Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Clairemont, said religion helped him live with the fact that he would eventually be blind.

"And the people around me helped," he said. "They were good about it. They didn't baby or pamper me. When they didn't know what to do in a particular situation, they admitted it. Then we were able to work something out."

2 Brothers, 6 Sisters

A June graduate of Clairemont High School, David lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Helkenn. He has two brothers, Charles, 15, and Michael, 10, and six sisters. They are Billy Jo, 17, Susan, 8, Mrs. Carol Maldonado of Lansing, Mich.; Mrs. Marylou Kochenderfer of Rochester, Ind.; Mrs. Margaret Falkenberg of San Diego and Sister Mary Charles Francis of the Good Shepherd here.

David said he will go through college at his own pace.

"I'm going to learn, not to memorize," he said. "I may want to teach later on."

David also is interested in law and will take some pre-law subjects, along with his major in economics.

"There are so many things you can do in life," he said.

University of San Diego basketball coach Phil Woolpert talks over the coming season with five of his top players from a squad which could be the best in the Toreros' history. Left to right are Mark Yavorsky, Bernie Bickerstaff, Phil Price, Woolpert, Cliff Ashford and Dick Verlasky.

ASHFORD LEADS RETURNEES

USD Cagers Could Be School's 'Best Ever'

By JOHNNY McDONALD
The timetable at the University of San Diego is running three weeks ahead of schedule, reports basketball coach Phil Woolpert.

"We feel our players are three weeks ahead of last year's club at this time," he said, following a lengthy, stop and go scrimmage with the freshmen.

Even Woolpert can't hide the feeling that this could be the best club yet at the Alcala Park school. He has the speed, better outside shooting, improved board work and promising defenders.

The latter category is a trademark for most Woolpert teams and the two-time National Collegiate coach of the year, is still reserving judgment.

Woolpert took over the Toreros in 1962 and struggled through a 6-19 season. He hit the .500 mark (13-13) in the 1963-64 campaign and had a 15-11 record last year.

His starting unit now would be Cliff Ashford, the 6-3 Mr. Everything in a basketball uniform, and Alan Fay (6-3) at forwards, Phil Price (6-7) at center and Bernie Bickerstaff (6-11) in the backcourt. Ashford, who led the team in almost every department last year, Yavorsky and Price are seniors while the other two are juniors.

"Ashford will be our bell-weather again but I think Fay will give us more shooting strength," he said. "I'm especially pleased with Bernie (Bickerstaff). He's in real good physical shape."

Price, an in-and-out last season, has improved greatly, according to Woolpert. "I think he has the confidence to do a consistent job," the coach said.

Woolpert has been impressed with sophomore Bill Sheridan, a six-foot guard, and transfer Bill Rutledge, who is the smallest member at 5-10.

"Sheridan has two brothers who were fine players at St. Mary's and I think he has the ability to be a good one, too," Woolpert said.

"He's a heady player and moves well. He is poised and is a model for other players. I'd say he reminds me of K. C. Jones."

Jones, currently playing with the Boston Celtics, was a member of Woolpert's NCAA championship teams at the University of San Francisco.

"Rutledge can help us," Woolpert appraised. "He's a good shooter, is quick and has been impressive."

Woolpert said he has plenty of depth for the first time. "It used to be rather embarrassing looking down the bench in past years," he said.

In the second USD unit are Ted Fields (6-2), Dick Cabrera (6-2), Dan Wightman (6-5), Dick Verlasky (6-4) and Bill Ferree (6-4).

It may be a bit early but that Woolpert timetable may be pushed ahead for even bigger things by the 1966-67 and 1967-68 campaigns with stronger opposition. He has an excellent crop of freshmen, too.

But, the 49-year old mentor prefers to concentrate on one season at a time and he's eager to get started.

Card Burners Stir Protest in Marine

than 90 per cent of the USD student body, including the College for Women, Law School and Seminary. The signature of the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Diego, tops the list.

Cave pointed out the statement makes no mention of U.S. policy in Viet Nam. "It's just a statement of thanks to the fellows who have been in Viet Nam and who are still over there," he said.

Signers Would Be Welcome

Bingman would not mind having any of the men who signed the statement packing a rifle beside him. The instigators of the protests are something else, however.

"Survival in Viet Nam is a matter of total security," Bingman said, "and I would not feel comfortable having to depend on one of these card burners. You might find yourself in a jam and when you turn around one of those fellows just might be gone."

Bingman got a pretty good look at the kind of war being fought in Viet Nam during the 26 days he was there. It started raining and he started fighting the first day he arrived. Neither let up. It rained for 23 of the 26 days Bingman was there.

Served as Battalion Chief Scout

Bingman was a chief scout for a battalion and he and a squad of 12 men set up surveillance devices used to detect the Viet Cong. "These devices were a favorite target of the Viet Cong," he said.

Bingman and three others were returning a piece of equipment to Da Nang when their vehicle started over the mined bridge. The driver's right foot was blown off and two other Marines escaped injury.

Bingman came out of the explosion with metal fragments in both eyes and both ear drums punctured. Now he has a scar on his right eye and has only shadow vision in his left eye. "I can make out images with my left eye, but nothing distinctive," he said.

One-Year Recovery Estimated

He has lost 60 per cent of his hearing. The doctors estimate it will take him about a year to recover.

Bingman feels that moves such as Cave's at USD and San Diego State College students who have given blood for U.S. servicemen are the best way to combat the protestors.

A 16-year Marine veteran and native Californian, the 28-year-old sergeant said, "These guys who are donating blood and showing servicemen they are appreciated are showing us the one way to put the card burners down."

SHAKESPEARE LECTURE

Amigos Encounter Friend In 'Hamlet'

By DICK WEBER

Operation Amigo teen-agers yesterday demonstrated that language is no barrier when it comes to understanding Shakespearean literature.

The 25 students from Peru who are visiting here for three weeks were treated to an impromptu lecture on Shakespeare during a tour of the University of San Diego campus.

They listened intently as their tour guide, Frank Ponce, an instructor at the college, explained in Spanish the imperfections of Hamlet's character which led to his destruction.

The Amigos all said they were acquainted with the play, "Hamlet," and many began firing questions at Ponce.

Conducts Class For Amigos

"These kids really want to learn," Ponce said afterward. "I was going to show them what the inside of a classroom looks like, but they wanted me to conduct a class just like I do for college students."

The Amigos are living with families of students at University High School, across the street from USD, for three weeks through the program sponsored by the high school and The San Diego Union and Evening Tribune.

Earlier in the day, the teen-agers met the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, who welcomed them to the college. He invited them to the patio of the college chancery where soft drinks and hors-d'oeuvres were served.

The Amigos, all of whom are Catholics, and the bishop got along very well and many of them took turns posing with him while other Peruvians snapped pictures.

Shortage Of Priests In Peru

They told the bishop 95 per cent of the people of Peru are Catholics, but that only about 35 per cent of them are "good" Catholics.

"It is because there are not enough priests in Peru," said Gustavo Eguren. He said many people in the country are not able to hear Mass for months at a time because of the shortage.

The Peruvians had lunch with college students in the Lark Cafeteria. Then began the tour through the Spanish renaissance buildings of the campus. Many of them have expressed desires during their visit to return here when they finish high school.

Today, the Amigos plan to do a last bit of shopping. They are scheduled to depart for their homeland Monday at 10 p.m.

Like USD? Watch Hoopsters on Tube

University of San Diego opens its basketball season in style tomorrow, going before the television cameras in a nonconference game at Los Angeles State.

Those in San Diego who receive Channel 13 on their picture box should tune in at 8 p.m. The Toreros won't be on television Saturday night, but they'll stay over for another nonconference commitment at 7 with Long Beach State.

Coach Phil Woolpert's team posted a 15-11 record last season, best in school history, and several veterans, led by 6-foot, 3-inch forward Clifford Ashford, have returned.

Ashford scored 494 points last year and is the third highest scorer in Torero history. He'll be complemented in the starting lineup by forward Alan Fay, center Phillip Price and guards Bernie Bickerstaff and Bill Sheridan.

Veteran Mark Yavorsky, a part-time starter at guard for two years, will miss at least the first two games, said Woolpert, because of a slow-mending sprained ankle.

USD never has beaten Los Angeles in four tries. It dropped a 78-73 decision last season to the Diablos.

The Toreros open their home season Dec. 16 against San Diego State College.

USD Cagers Slate Jaunt To Montana

University of San Diego opens its basketball season Dec. 3 against Los Angeles State on the Diablos' court. The Toreros' 21-game schedule includes a week-long swing through Montana late in December and early January.

The Toreros make their home debut Dec. 10 against Loyola. Coach Phil Woolpert said this year's club would be a better shooting team than last year when the Toreros rolled up a record of 15 wins against 11 losses.

Seniors Mark Yavorsky, Cliff Ashford and Phil Price along with juniors Bernie Bickerstaff and Alan Fay and sophomores Dan White, Barry Fay, Rick Cabrera and Ted Fields make up the squad. Schedule:

Dec. 3 — At Los Angeles State. Dec. 4 — Long Beach State at L.A. State. Dec. 10 — Loyola. Dec. 16 — San Diego State. Dec. 18 — Pepperdine. Dec. 20 — Cal Western. Tourney. Dec. 25 — Anacosta. Mont. ## Card Burners Stir Protest in Marine

By G. L. SCHULTZ
EVENING TRIBUNE Staff Writer

The first time SSgt. Robert L. Bingman and his Marine buddies heard about draft card burnings in the United States they laughed.

They thought of the card burners and other persons protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam as "a bunch of attention seekers."

"We classified them as idiots," Bingman said. "We all figured we would like to have them over there on a hill for a couple of hours—from then on they would be confirmed believers."

Those were the first impressions Bingman and his pals had. Since then, Bingman has had more time to think about the situation. The time was made available by a Viet Cong mine which destroyed a bridge as Bingman and three others in a truck passed.

Now Bingman says he would not want a card burner fighting beside him. He mentioned this yesterday before he accepted a statement of appreciation, signed by nearly 1,000 students and faculty members at the University of San Diego. He accepted the statement for all the wounded veterans of the Viet Nam conflict who are now at Naval Hospital. The statement was the brainchild of Paul Cave, 24, a USD senior studying philosophy.

Cave wrote the statement after reading an account in the Evening Tribune relating some of the reactions wounded veterans had about various Viet Nam protest movements.

"I had been concerned about these protests since they started and after I read the article I decided to try to do something to show our fighting men they were appreciated," Cave said.

He said the signatures on the statement represent more

SAN DIEGO NEWCOMER

Economist Busy In Young Fields

By CARL W. RITTER
The San Diego Union's Financial Editor

Dr. Robert E. Miller likes to be in the forefront of the times. For example, he was more than a limited authority on the international monetary situation years ago. His dissertation for his PhD degree at Bryn Mawr College was entitled "International Monetary Plans."

Just now, of course, proposals for international monetary reform comprise perhaps the hottest topic on the world economic agenda.

Early on the scene elsewhere, Dr. Miller got into econometrics before dictionaries began carrying the word. Now he teaches this science of applying mathematical techniques to economic analysis.

Econometric models of many kinds, dealing in some cases with literally thousands of forces, are concocted in Dr. Miller's classes. There is a relationship to war games in producing end results.

He also qualifies as a pioneer in teaching quantitative decision theory and international management. He has been professor of economics at Villanova University, assistant professor of economics at University of Southern California, and president of Universal Statistics Co., Los Angeles.

Dr. Miller was in the avant garde of economists called upon, because of professional abilities, to give expert witness testimony in court. Taking the witness stand was old hat for medical doctors and some other professionals, but not until recently for economists.

Where earning power has been lost through death or injury, the economists are able to project what income might have been expected if the person deprived had been able to live out his normal life expectancy. This projection is necessarily increasingly complex because of changes year by year in such areas as Social Security, pension plans, life insurance, seniority, advancement schedules, upgrading opportunities, etc.

In one case, Dr. Miller testified a young and able attorney accidentally killed in an auto accident while in his 20s and earning approximately $20,000 a year lost $1 million by untimely death.

It also might be said that Dr. Miller had a leg or two up on most other Americans in viewing first-hand what was emerging in the Forties and Fifties from Europe and the Far East—first as an Army paratrooper in Europe from 1944 to 1947 and later as an artillery major in the Korean War.

And it just may be that the 44-year-old economist had little precedent in denouncing the climate of his native Florida, extolling the virtues of California and moving to San Diego from Tampa.

Dr. Miller is the newly arrived chairman of the Department of Economics and Business at the University of San Diego.

Downtown yesterday, he had some comment on the international monetary picture. He predicted a new currency will be developed in the not-distant future to augment the U.S. dollar and the British pound sterling for use in international monetary transactions.

His bet: composite reserve units linked with the currencies of major Western European countries and the United States. Dr. Miller doesn't believe any of the following will take place: the gold price will be increased, an international bank will be set up, or a system of flexible exchange rates will be established.

The new economist on the local scene believes the city's businessmen are missing a ring-of-good opportunity in not willingly opening their cash registers to Mexican pesos the same as Baja California merchants do for U.S. money. "The peso is a hard currency," Dr. Miller pointed out. "San Diego businessmen should not be hesitant in accepting it."

Oh, about Dr. Miller's degree from one of the leading women's schools, Bryn Mawr: The Pennsylvania institution's graduate school accepts about 100 men students annually. The undergraduates are all women.

Judge Distributes Foundation Assets

By HOMER CLANCE

A court decision yesterday provided more than $1.1 million property and cash to three San Diego institutions of higher learning.

The University of California at San Diego, California Western University and the University of San Diego will benefit from ruling made by Superior Court Judge Joseph A. Kilgariff.

The money and land are the assets of the Templeton Foundation of La Jolla.

Kilgariff's order completed action by Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch, who filed a lawsuit to enforce the charitable purposes for which the foundation was organized. In the suit, it was charged officers of the foundation used assets for personal gain.

Under the ruling, the University of California at San Diego will receive the biggest share of the foundation's assets.

11-ACRE PARCEL

UCSD will receive 11 acres of land on Mt. Soledad and a three-story concrete building—most of which is underground—that will be converted to a laboratory for research on radioactivity. The value of the property and building are about $1 million.

California Western will receive $175,000 from the foundation. It will use the money to help build an $800,000 science building and lecture hall on its Point Loma campus.

The remaining assets, estimated at about $750,000, will be turned over to the University of San Diego.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Wallace Howland, chief of Lynch's Charitable Trust Unit, said 27 educational groups had applied for foundation funds.

MANY SOUGHT LAND

He said many wanted the Mt. Soledad land—located off Hillside Drive—but they wanted to convert it into cash.

The Mt. Soledad parcel is part of 140 acres originally owned by the foundation. The cash awarded to Cal Western and USD is the result of the earlier sale of some of the property.

In its application UCSD proposed a use that will take full advantage of the building and the Mt. Soledad land, Judge Kilgariff said.

He said the university said it intends to use the building, constructed to house radar facilities, an intelligence center and a command post during World War II, as a laboratory for the study of radioactivity in marine life and related work.

Such studies are part of the program of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, and the building is ideally suited, Kilgariff said.

He said the university has received indications the availability of the structure will qualify the program for grants and matching funds to finance the conversion and equipping of the building into a radioactivity laboratory.

Kilgariff said the gift to Cal Western will qualify it for a federal grant and additional funds from other sources on a matching fund basis for its science facilities.

The judge said construction of the Cal Western building must begin before Jan. 1, 1967, or the money could be distributed elsewhere.

When the assets are transferred the Templeton Foundation will be dissolved, Kilgariff said.

Letters, Signatures Sent to Servicemen

State Students 1,000 at USD
Write Notes, Express Thanks
Collect Gifts To Wounded

Some 300 San Diego State College students yesterday lined up at a booth on campus and wrote letters to American servicemen stationed in Viet Nam.

Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity is sponsoring the drive, which will continue through the week.

"We're doing this to encourage support for U.S. policy decisions on Viet Nam and to boost the morale of the servicemen there," Tom Kuhns, fraternity vice president, said.

Background Music
While students wrote letters at the booth, the SDS Air Force ROTC band, drill team and color guard put on a 15-minute marching and music performance nearby to gain students' interest in its "AM-MO for Peace" drive.

Phil Rizzo, commander of the Arnold Air Society, said the corps is conducting the drive in conjunction with the Marine Corps Recruit Depot. They are collecting used items for distribution to needy peasants in South Viet Nam.

Rizzo said the corps is asking for such items as clothing, blankets, work tools and canned or packaged food.

Angel Coeds Help
Angel Flight, a group of coeds which forms an auxiliary to Arnold Air Society, is helping to collect the items.

The drive will continue until after Thanksgiving. At the letter-writing booth, the fraternity furnished paper, pencils and envelopes to the students who wrote not to a specific serviceman, but "Dear G.I."

The letters will be collected by the fraternity and turned over to the 11th Naval District Headquarters in San Diego, Kuhns said. He said the letters will then be shipped to Viet Nam and distributed to sailors and soldiers there.

"You Are Not Forgotten"
The letter-writers expressed varying reasons for participating.

"I often think about all of you fighting in the fields far away from home and I just want you to know that you are not forgotten by any of us here," wrote one coed.

Larry Forkner, a junior majoring in political science, said, "We realize that other people have rights to demonstrate their minority views, but we have to show the servicemen that the majority has some views different from the protestors."

Tim Godwin, a freshman, said he is sending a letter because "I felt it was the least I could do for my country."

A "Statement of Appreciation," signed by 1,000 students and faculty members at the University of San Diego, will be presented to wounded veterans of the Viet Nam conflict at Naval Hospital tomorrow.

The signature of the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Diego, heads the list.

Father in Navy
The statement was the idea of Paul Cave, 24, a philosophy major, whose father, Navy Lt. George P. Cave, has served two tours of duty in Viet Nam aboard an attack transport.

Cave, of 1322 Manchester St., National City, said he was prompted by an article in the Evening Tribune relating the reactions of some of the wounded veterans to anti-Viet Nam demonstrations on campuses throughout the United States.

"Really Got To Me"
"This really got to me," Cave said. "I didn't see anyone thanking these men for what they're doing by fighting—their limbs, or maybe even their lives," he said.

A week ago, Cave wrote out the "Statement of Appreciation." After consulting with Ernest Borunda, president of the College for Men's Associated Student Body, Cave began circulating it on the USD campus.

Cave said he has been assisted by Judi Banks, a junior at the USD College for Women, who lettered the statement on a piece of parchment, and David Pollick and James R. Wilke, freshmen at the College for Men.

Text of Statement
The statement follows:

"We the undersigned of the University of San Diego, do hereby wish to thank you, the young men who have sacrificed yourselves in our armed services in order to preserve that freedom which we so often take for granted.

"To you, young men who have been wounded in combat on foreign soil, we thank you sincerely. To our young men who have been killed in combat on foreign soil, we hold you in high esteem.

"To the young men who are still in combat on foreign soil, we back you up 100 per cent. As you have so bravely shown the way, may we who will follow in your footsteps when our time comes to serve not be found wanting in dedication to God and Country.

"We salute all of you for being true Americans. Thank you."

GRATEFUL—Students at University of San Diego sign "Statement of Appreciation" for servicemen wounded in the Viet Nam war. Seated is Cheryl

USD Joining New League Next Spring

The Southern California Athletic Conference, a new association uniting five schools including the University of San Diego, is set to begin competition this spring after six months of planning.

In addition to USD, the league will be composed of Chapman College, Loyola University, Pepperdine College and UC Riverside.

Beginning in February, the conference will carry a three-round schedule in baseball only. One or two more spring sports are expected to be added to the conference program in 1967, according to Don Perkins, athletic director at Chapman and chairman of the SCAC formation committee.

All other sports will be played on a non-conference basis. Perkins said the league may later expand when all schools begin competing in the same sports. UC Riverside, for example, is the only school of the conference to have a football team.

President of the conference will be Dr. Arthur L. Flint, professor of biology at Chapman. Secretary-treasurer is Paul Deese, Chapman baseball coach.

Admiral Talks To Students

Rear Admiral Marshall White, Commander of Carrier Divisions 5 and 7 in Vietnam, will address the student body of the University of San Diego's College for Men Tuesday, November 30 in the Arts and Sciences Building. White's topic will be "United States Navy in Vietnam."

Congressman Bob Wilson, 36th District, addressed the students last Tuesday.

Wilson, a member of the Armed Services Committee and chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee, discussed "U. S. Policy Today." His address was the first of USD's Speakers Forum and Cultural Series for the 1965-66 academic year.

The Speakers Forum and Cultural Series are offered in conjunction with the Faculty Lecture Series which features talks by USD professors on topics of interest. Student body officers were responsible for the lecture series inauguration this year.

Law School Dean Slated For Parley

The University of San Diego announced today that Joseph A. Sinclitto, Jr., dean of the School of Law, has been invited by President Johnson to attend a conference at the White House. The conference will be held from November 28 to December 1, 1965.

Part of the program of International Cooperation Year, the conference is scheduled to explore the possibilities of improving cooperation between nations.

Proposed areas of discussion will include deletion of the Connally Amendment thereby accepting compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice and eliminating the reservation regarding multilateral treaties are involved.

Other areas to be explored include legal assistance to new nations by the United States, a joint program with other countries for the exchange of government lawyers, and establishment of an international law reporter system.

Dean Sinclitto is on the Arbitration Committee of the World Peace Through Law Organization which held its World Conference in Washington, D. C. in September of this year.

Templeton Gift

USD To Receive $7,500

The University of San Diego will receive $7,500 from the Templeton Foundation of La Jolla, whose assets amounted to $1.1 million.

A court ruling last week provided money and land also to the University of California at San Diego and California Western University. UCSD received the largest share of the foundation's assets.

Although USD did not receive as much from the foundation as the other two schools, its enrollment has increased to 1,500 students since its founding in 1949. Officials said the number of students is the highest in 15 years.

The USD College for men is staffed by priests and laymen. Students may pursue a course of study leading to a bachelor of arts degree, a bachelor of science degree and a Master of Arts in Teaching.

Pre-professional programs are in the fields of medicine, dentistry and law.

The latest addition to the curriculum is a five year secondary teacher education program, according to officials.

Toreros Insert Sheridan For Diablo Contest

Special to The San Diego Union
LOS ANGELES — Sophomore guard Bill Sheridan will be inserted into an otherwise veteran quintet tonight as the University of San Diego opens its basketball campaign against Los Angeles State in the Diablos gymnasium.

The game, which will be televised over Channel 13, will begin at 8 o'clock.

Sheridan is filling in for injured Mark Yavorsky, who sprained an ankle three weeks ago. The senior guard was kept out of 10 games last season also because of a damaged leg.

The 19-year-old performer from Oakland will join forwards Cliff Ashford and Alan Fay, center Phil Price and Bernie Bickersstaff at the other guard.

Ashford, who has been stymied somewhat with a cold during practice this week, was the club's top scorer and rebounder last year. Fay is believed to give the USD strong scoring support and added strength on the boards while Price is said to be improved tremendously over last season.

Bickersstaff, an agile player from E. Elmhurst, N.Y., was an added spark in the Toreros' attack last season.

Adm. White To Speak At USD

Rear Adm. Marshall White, aviator in 1937, served aboard Hornet. He also has served with the carriers Boxer and Ranger, with the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, and commanded the carrier Aeronautics.

White, commander of Carrier Division 7 based at North Island, will talk on "The United States Navy in Viet Nam" at 7:30 p.m. in the university theater on the Alcalá Park campus. The meeting is sponsored by students and faculty of the College for Men.

Members of the San Diego chapter of the Navy League of America are particularly invited and will hold a reception honoring White.

White has been in command of carrier forces conducting strike missions against Communist targets in North and South Viet Nam.

A 1934 graduate of the Naval Academy, he became a naval

USD Rolls In Opener, Faces 49ers

EVENING TRIBUNE Dispatch

LOS ANGELES — University of San Diego's basketball team, with an impressive season-opening win all tucked away, will take on Long Beach State at 7 tonight in the Los Angeles State gym.

The Toreros, mostly veterans from last year's 15-11 unit, smashed L.A. State, 66-51, here last night in a televised contest.

Forward Clifford Ashford took up most of the TV screen by scoring 23 points. He put through 48 per cent of his shots in taking up where he left off last winter as USD's top scorer.

The Diablos took a 29-28 lead into the locker room at halftime before running out of gas. They also ran out of rebounds, losing the battle of the boards, 51-44, even though Torero center Phil Price was saddled with four personal fouls and rode the bench a good portion of the evening.

Guard Phil Sheridan, a sophomore, was the only other Torero in double figures. He tallied 10.

Admiral Due To Address USD Groups

Vice-Admiral Marshall W. White, recently appointed Commander of Task Force Seventy-seven, the Attack Carrier Striking Force, Seventh Fleet, will speak at the University of San Diego Tuesday, November 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the Theatre on the Alcalá Park Campus. Admiral White's topic will be "The United States Navy in Vietnam."

Admiral White has just returned from seven months active duty as Commander of Carrier Divisions Five and Seven in Vietnam. White commanded the Attack Carrier Striking Forces which have conducted missions against the Viet Cong in North and South Vietnam.

With 31 years of service as a naval officer, Admiral White has an extensive background in naval aviation and carrier operations. He began his career as a 1934 United States Naval Academy graduate and served aboard the USS Concord as his first ship. After a year of flight training at Pensacola, Florida, he was designated a Naval Aviator in August, 1937.

Subsequent assignments as a navigator of the Boxer, pilot on the Ranger, Director of the Experimental Program Division of the Bureau of Aeronautics, Executive Officer of the Philippine Sea Command, and officer of the Homer, have highlighted his naval career.

USD Professor Will Give Address At Deactivation of Reserve Unit

Dr. A. Paul Theil, chairman of the Political Science Department at the University of San Diego College for Men, will speak Sunday at the deactivation ceremony of the Army Reserve's Fifth Squadron, Eighth Cavalry, 63rd Infantry Division.

The program will begin at 3:30 p.m. in the Army Reserve Center on Zion Road, east of Mission Gorge Road in Grantville. Theil's topic will be "The Political Dilemma in Viet Nam." The ceremony was canceled last Sunday because floods washed away an access bridge.

The abolishment of the 63rd Division, effective Dec. 31, affects the status of more than 450 reservists in this area. Largest of the affected units is the 5th Squadron, which has about 400 officers and men under command of Lt. Col. Robert E. Miller, USAR, a professor of economics at the University of San Diego. Other units retiring colors are Company C, 363rd Medical Battalion, with about 50 members, and the 337th Military Intelligence Detachment, with about 20.

The Defense Department has said that members of these units would be subject to call to active duty as individuals, rather than as part of a unit.

Deactivation was announced in early October. The Eighth Cavalry, organized in San Francisco in 1866 for service during the Indian Wars of the West, has had duty in Cuba, the Philippines, along the Mexican border, throughout the Pacific in World War II, in Japan after the war, and in Korea in 1950-52.

Woolpert Adopts Wait-and-See Attitude

USD opened everybody's eyes when it hit the road last weekend to knock off Los Angeles State and Long Beach State on successive nights. But the intense Woolpert has adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

"It was not all that artistic," laughed Woolpert, "but we came out on the better end of the score, so we can't be too discouraged."

When guard Mark Yavorsky comes off the injured list, probably this week, Woolpert will have an all-veteran lineup, which is the best kind and which could make this the best team in the Toreros' short history.

"That's hard to say," said Woolpert. "They need more seasoning. But the potential's here. It's a matter of getting them all operating together. We have better bench strength, we're playing better team defense, and we're getting better boards (rebounding), especially from Phil Price."

Toreros Come Up Short on Height

Like the Aztecs and the Westerners, too, the Toreros are a little short in the height department.

"Against Los Angeles' big front line," said Woolpert, "we looked like Singer's Midgets."

"We've been weak so far on the boards," reported the phlegmatic Kloppenburg. "If there's one thing we have to improve, that's it."

Kloppenburg has the experienced personnel required to operate his tenacious defense and disciplined offense. The Westerners, who have made the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament at Kansas City two of the last three years, don't beat themselves too often.

"This club is about like last year's club right now," he said. "As we go along, it could develop into a better one."

The big dates on the local calendar are Dec. 16 and 31 and Feb. 12 and 16. That's when the "Big Three" will determine San Diego supremacy.

ACADEMIC—Group therapy techniques are used by William R. Brockley, in black suit, center, in conducting marriage problems class at University of San Diego. Students are seated informally to help stimulate frank communication of ideas.

USD Sex, Marriage Class Reaches New Education Level

By RIP MANNING
EVENING TRIBUNE Staff Writer

A class in sex and marriage at the University of San Diego is a brand new dimension in academic education.

"It uses the technique and interaction of group therapy," said William R. Brockley, a long-time Superior Court marriage counselor who conducts the class.

"Students of the Men's College, mostly freshmen but some in higher grades, attend three one-hour classes a week."

On entering the classroom, the students rearrange the chairs to a more informal setting. Sitting with the group is William Brockley, a long-time Superior Court marriage counselor who conducts the class.

"One of the students, assigned as recorder, reads notes of the class's last session, like a secretary reading the minutes of a club meeting."

Then the students begin talking. Slowly, tentatively, awkwardly at first. There are a few false starts.

Uses Light Touch

Brockley, though part of the group, guides with a light touch. He asks a student to define his terms or explain an underlying thought.

Inevitably, a topic takes hold. The students expostulate, challenge, argue — enthusiastically but agreeably.

As the bell marks the speeding hour, a few students remain at a reporter's request. There are 19; one is 21. They are articulate, at ease, pleased to explain their unusual class.

Need Recognized

"I was interested when I first heard about it," one said. "It is a topic schools have needed for a long time."

"Yeah," said a second, "these are subjects you just have to know and you can't get them anywhere else."

What I like is the informality," said another. "It allows freer discussion."

"It's more interesting than other classes. You learn something from the books and then you discuss it. You learn about other people and their attitudes. You consider and it helps you form your own opinions and ideas."

Father Enthusiastic

"It's great. I wish all my classes could be this interesting," said Father William Nolan, chairman of the Department of Sociology, has taught a course in marriage for years. But he is enthusiastic about the new class taught by the veteran counselor of the Conciliation Department of Superior Court.

"I'd like to conduct one myself," he said. "But, being a priest, you know, I would kind of inhibit the boys' discussions and that would spoil the whole idea."

"People ask me from time to time what I think is the most essential key to a successful marriage. I tell them it is the ability of the man and wife to talk agreeably and intelligently about a great many things."

Communication Stressed

"That's exactly the idea here," Brockley said. "We use

USD Edges 49ers, 66-64, For 2nd Win

SPECIAL TO THE SAN DIEGO UNION

LONG BEACH — University of San Diego completed a sweep of its first road trip here last night as they downed Long Beach State, 66-64, in a season contest that saw the lead change hands frequently.

Phil Price led the visitors with 14 points with Cliff Ashford and Alan Fay each hitting 12 and Bernie Bickerstaff 10 as the Toreros won their second start in two outings this season. They beat Los Angeles State Friday night, 66-51.

Long Beach, paced by Chuck Hagen's 22 points, took a 31-30 lead to the dressing room at halftime. However, USD came back fired up and raced to an 11-point margin early in the second period.

Hagen, Ed Tucker, who tallied 11 points, and Pat Holmes, who had 10, whittled the lead away to tie it with less than three minutes remaining.

A field goal by Red Fields and two free throws by Dan Wightman gave the visitors the decision in the closing moments.

USD hit 39.6 from the field and won the game at the foul line with a 61.5 shooting percentage and 24 points. Long Beach shot 42.3 percent from the floor and 55.6 from the charity line.

USD's Basketball Season Opens Dec. 8

The University of San Diego opens its 1965-66 basketball season, December 8 against powerful Cal State at Los Angeles on the Diablos' court.

Six lettermen, led by All-American hopeful Cliff Ashford, return to bolster Torero hopes for a successful season.

Coach Phil Woolpert, in his fourth year as head mentor with the San Diegans, will call on guards Bernie Bickerstaff, 6-2, Mark Yavorsky, 5-11, and Dick Verlacky, 6-0, center Phil Price, 6-7, and forward Alan Fay, 6-5.

Considerable Action

All said considerable action last season when the Toreros compiled a 15-11 record, best in the school's history.

"We hope to have an improved team this season," said Woolpert. "The potential is there but our schedule is much tougher than last year."

Woolpert, one of the leading exponents of defensive basketball as attested to by his outstanding seasons with the University of San Francisco from 1950 through 1959, will rely on a stout defense this season.

Offensively, the Toreros will rely on the shooting ability of third year man Ashford who averaged 19.7 points a game last season.

Other team members include returnees Bill Ferree, 6-0, Steve Wojdowski, 6-4, and Dave Zupan, 5-8.

Fresh Group

Six members of last year's freshman team are also expected to help. They include guards Ted Fields, 6-2, and Bill Sheridan, 6-0; center Dan Wightman, 6-6, and forwards Rich Cabrera, 6-3, Mike Ferrua, 6-4, and Jimmy Allen, 6-2.

Fields and Cabrera were selected to the all-San Diego freshman team.

USD Freshman Quintet Wins

The University of San Diego Fresh overcame an early 22-9 deficit to defeat MiraCosta College, 65-52, last night in the USD gym.

The Torero yearlings closed the gap to 32-29 at halftime and forged in front behind a full-court press about four minutes into the second half.

George Anderson scored 14 points to lead the frosh to their second victory in three starts. He got double figure support from Jim Wilke (11), Mike Crawford (10) and Tom Thompson (10).

Guard Bob Brown of the losers was the game's high scorer with 21 points. The Spartans are now 1-3 for the year.

Religion Held Important For Maturity Of College Student

PHOENIX — About 600 students from Catholic and public high schools in the Phoenix area heard keynote speaker Rev. I. Brent Eagen emphasize the importance of the study of religion in Catholic colleges and universities today.

Father Eagen, director of admissions for the University of San Diego college for men, spoke Nov. 14, at the First All-Phoenix Catholic College Day, held at Bourgade High School, here.

The purpose of the program, which attracted representatives from 50 colleges and universities, was to acquaint the high school juniors and seniors with the various schools.

Speaking on the "Importance of Catholic Higher Education," Father Eagen tied in the important role of the emerging layman.

"There is a crisis in Catholic education and also in society," Father Eagen said, "the Catholic university is changing and will change even more. This is frightening to some and yet there is much good to this change."

Father Eagen lamented the attitude of some Catholics. "They want everything to be that Catholics must not permit "our critics to say we live in a ghetto of education." Catholic youth too, he said, must live in a world as it is and therefore use their Catholicism. This, he noted, is a good thing.

"Higher education never isolates the students," Father Eagen said. "The astronauts who walk in space don't do this without the proper equipment and so the Catholic student must be properly equipped to cope with the world. He must be academically and spiritually educated."

Father Eagen asked all to achieve the goal of Catholic education. "To this all of us must bend our energies and lift up our hearts," he said.

Another speaker, Mr. H. John Cashin, director of student relations of Loyola University of Los Angeles, outlined for the audience the financing of a Catholic education in a college or university. He explained the financial problems of the institutions and told how tuition, taxation and endowments figure into the entire picture. He also warned about colleges who charge much higher rates.

"It isn't always true that better things cost more," he warned, "and some thorough investigation should be made."

Mr. Cashin touched on the purpose and methods of obtaining scholarships for students.

Originator of the idea for the Catholic College Day was Mother Collette, I.B.V.M., girls vice principal at Bourgade High School. She was also honorary chairman for the day's program.

General chairmen for the event were Mrs. Thomas P. McWilliams of St. Francis Xavier Parish, Phoenix and Mrs. John J. Ross, of St. Theresa Parish, Phoenix. College representative coordinator was Mrs. John I. McChesney and Mrs. Harry J. Wrede was alumni representative coordinator.

The College Day was sponsored by the Associated Alumnae of the Sacred Heart. Planning for the event took several months.

Parents of the interested junior and senior students also were present during the day. Following the keynote and financial talks, the students were directed to various classrooms to hear representatives from the colleges and universities.

At the College Day, Rev. J. F. Gubbins, S.J., director of admissions for Gonzaga University at Spokane, Wash., explained that the Education Act of 1965, federal scholarships, work-study programs and government loans will provide United States funds to Catholic colleges.

Father Gubbins felt that Catholic and private schools would reap a greater benefit from the government money because of the paucity of such help in the past.

The priest educator advised that Catholic school enrollment has managed to keep even with the increase of students at state universities. This increase of students also means a problem of more buildings needed and a scarcity of teachers, he insisted.

To keep up with the competition from state universities in hiring top professors, Catholic universities depend on private donations to raise teacher salaries, Father Gubbins noted. He also stressed that private school costs tend to raise student tuitions. He cited an example from his own Gonzaga University where the tuition only handles 67 per cent of what is required to educate each student.

The Jesuit priest also declared that anti-Vietnam demonstrations similar to those recently voiced are few if any at Catholic universities. This, he attributed to the influence of religion, discipline and a closer bond between faculty and student. Smaller campuses also help the situation, Father Gubbins said.

The All-Phoenix Catholic College Day, according to Mother Collette is expected to become an annual event, with however, different groups sponsoring the program.

OVER L.A. STATE Ashford Sparks Toreros, 66-51

SPECIAL TO THE SAN DIEGO UNION

LOS ANGELES — Cliff Ashford, the fancy forward University of San Diego is booming for Little All American mention, scored 29 points last night to pace the Toreros to a 66-51 basketball verdict over Los Angeles State in a televised opener on the Diablos' floor.

Ashford connected on 48 per cent of his shots from the floor, but the USD team average dropped off to 34. However, the Diablos had more problems as they could down only 21 per cent of their field goals.

While Ashford was having a fine night, coach Phil Woolpert was content to utilize the rest of his crew for defensive duties. However, Bill Sheridan, a sophomore filling in for injured Mark Yavorsky, sank 10 points to be second high for the Toreros.

Los Angeles, who held a 29-28 halftime advantage, was led by Joe Davis' 14 points. Ken Ellsworth and Gregg Kind canned 10 points each for the losers.

USD played minus 6-7 center Phil Price much of the way when he picked up four quick personal fouls but it still had the rebound advantage, 51-44.

The Toreros will shoot for their second straight victory tonight when they oppose Long Beach State on the same floor at 7. LA State and Chapman will play in the nightcap.

Address Set For Military

Prof. A. Paul Theil, chairman of the Department of Political Science at the University of San Diego, College for Men, will address some 400 officers and men of the San Diego Cavalry Reserve Squadron at the Armory on Sunday, December 12. The topic of the address is "Political Dilemma in Viet Nam."

The subject matter of the address will trace the political evolution of the United States' commitment in Viet Nam from the days of World War II during which the enemy today was a good friend and gave considerable help to the Allies in the Viet Minh's struggle against the occupation of the Japanese; and the political reasons for the change in attitude in the post-war world from one of friendliness to hostility.

Further, Prof. Theil will offer the premise of another aspect in the present United States policy other than military engagement. He will explore the possibility that containment of the Communist power in the Southeast Asian area includes the necessity for a number of seaports along the Viet Nam coast from which American vessels can operate in the event where a quarantine of the China mainland becomes necessary at some future date.

Prof. Theil has spent the past 20 years in activities connected with international politics in the South-Southeast Asian area. His address on December 12 is part of the Army Orientation program which frequently engages civilian specialists in vital areas to lecture the officers and men.

Concert Slated By Glee Club

AZTECS, WESTERNERS FALL

USD, Grossmont Score Saturday Cage Victories

University of San Diego and Grossmont College cagers managed victories Saturday night in a weekend of action that saw four local schools bow in early-season contests.

On the losing side were San Diego State, Cal Western, San Diego City College and University of California at San Diego.

USD, sparked by Phil Price's 14 points, edged Long Beach State, 66-64, to sweep its season-opening two game junket up north. Cliff Ashford and Alan Pay each scored 12 and Bernie Bickerstaff added 10 in the victory.

KNIGHTS SURPRISED

A field goal by Red Fields and a pair of free throws by Dan Wightman in the closing moments aided the Torero victory effort.

Grossmont surprised SDC, 60-58 to win third place in the Palomar Invitational Basketball Tournament. Grossmont trailed 31-26 at the half. Guard Paul Landis was the big gun for the Griffins with 29 points. The Knights' Elbert Miller had 16 to match Landis with 100 points for four games.

Riverside, paced by seven-foot center Larry Bunce's 22 points, downed Hancock, 72-60, to capture the tournament crown. Bunce was named the most valuable player of the event.

The Aztecs, despite a 49-point second half, were unable to overcome Cal Poly of Pomona, bowing 82-80. The Pomonians held a 47-31 halftime edge.

SKALECKY HOT

Al Skalecky hit for 22 points and Rip Barrett 21, as the Aztecs suffered their second loss in two outings. Skalecky rimmed a shot in the closing seconds that could have sent the game into overtime.

Paul Scranlon led the Pomonians' attack with 21 points. Cal Poly's Frosh dumped the SDS JV's, 97-76.

Whittier's Poets derailed the high-minded Westerners, 82-71, handing the locals their first loss in three contests. Joe Vene led the winners with 22 points while Lem Lemons was game-high man with 23. Tim Cunningham contributed 13 for the Westerners.

USD's first voyage into competition was spoiled by the University of California at Riverside Frosh, who handed them a 76-64 setback at La Jolla Country Day's gym.

USD's freshman team found the going rough as they lost to Azusa Pacific, 67-62. Bernie Finley led the winners with 17 points. Vern Watson and George Anderson each hit 10 for the freshmen, now 1-1.

LOYOLA BASKETBALL GAMES TO BE TELEVIEWED BY KCOP

Four Loyola University home basketball games will be televised by KCOP Channel 13 during the coming season, according to John C. Arndt, Athletic Director and head coach of the Lion Varsity.

The games, all Friday contests in the Loyola Memorial Gymnasium, will take place between Loyola and the University of San Diego (December 10), California State at Los Angeles (December 17), Pepperdine College (January 7), and the University of San Francisco (March 4).

Other schools having games telecast by Channel 13 include Pepperdine, Cal State, and Valley State.

The contests, which will begin at 8 p.m., will be the only regularly scheduled basketball games on Southern California television. Bill Brundage, director of sports KCOP, will handle the play-by-play action.

"Come-Back" Season

The 1965-66 season will certainly have to go down as a "come-back" year for Coach Johnny Arndt's Loyola Lions, coming off one of the worst campaigns (6-20) in the school's history of the sport. On the debit side, the Lions have lost through graduation Dick Schiendler, the school's leading scorer with a 16.8 average per game last season, in addition to Seniors Dick McCloskey, Jim O'Keefe, and Wayne Boehle.

There is reason for optimism, however, when one considers the undisputed fact that Arndt has acquired a fine batch of Sophomores fresh from a yearling squad that will go down as one of the best-rounded clubs in Lion history.

Nine of the 13 squad members are Sophomores—and though this bodes well for future seasons, it could mean that the young Lions may experience a few rocky moments in the early part of the upcoming season.

Varsity Newcomers

Newcomers to the Varsity include Dick Sebek (6'5"), last year's leading pointmaker for the Frosh, Rick Adelman (brother to Varsity Letterman Clete Adelman) and Rick Ragsdale (6'1" and 5'11" respectively), two very quick guards, a position at which the Lions were deplorably weak during the past season. Two strong rebounders come up from the Frosh: Jim Halbur (6'4½") and Dick Zembal (6'3"). Another Sophomore, who was on the Frosh squad last year and who sat out last season because of academic difficulties, is Paul Deyden (6'8") an obvious hope for the Lions' dire need of the so-called "big man" on the team. The Sophs will be joined by veterans Ken Petersen (6'½"), a husky Junior who was very strong on the boards for the Lions during the past season, and Seniors Bob Burns (6'4½"), Ed McDonald (5'10") and Adelman (6'2").

The Lions will face tough inter-sectionals with Utah, Utah State, De Paul, Dayton, and Notre Dame plus the usual rugged West Coast Athletic Conference games.

Undeclared USD, Aztecs Collide

By JOHNNY McDONALD

University of San Diego and San Diego State put a pair of three-game win streaks on the line tonight in what should be a rousing cross-town basketball battle on the Toreros' floor.

Tipoff is slated for 8 o'clock. The freshmen clash in the preliminary, starting at 6. Phil Woolpert's USD quintet is unbeaten in three starts. The Toreros have beaten Los Angeles State, Long Beach State and Loyola. The latter accomplishment was a first for USD.

Meanwhile, George Ziegenfuss' sophomore-studded forces have rebounded after dropping their first two encounters. Since, they have knocked Whittier from the unbeaten ranks and followed with victories over Redlands and Nebraska Wesleyan.

The Toreros will be paced by classy Cliff Ashford, who is averaging 22 points, at one of the forward posts. He'll be joined by Alan Pay at the other forward, Bernie Bickerstaff and Phil Price at center.

The Aztecs will counter with Dave Miller and Rick Eveleth at forwards, Al Skalecky at center and Rip Barrett and Will Smith at guards. All but Smith, a junior, are sophomores. Skalecky, a 6-7 pivot, has 72 points for an 18-point average and 51 rebounds for a 12.8 per game output. Following him is Barrett with 17.2 point average, Eveleth at 10.8, Smith at 9.5 and Miller at 8.8.

"Frankly, I think State will have a lot of drive and I'm particularly impressed with Skalecky, Barrett and Smith."

Woolpert said Mark Yavorsky, a ball-hawking senior guard, has been working well in practice now that the sororens has left his injured ankle. However, Woolpert said he would start sophomore Sheridan. This will be the fourth meeting with the Aztecs leading, two games to one. Two years ago, the Aztecs nipped USD, 70-69, in the Torero gym and last season USD won in two overtimes, 89-85 in Peterson gym.

Woolpert said extra chairs will be added to increase the Torero gym capacity to 1,100.

East Montana Tests Toreros Second Time

Special to The San Diego Union
BILLINGS, Mont. — "Talented University of San Diego, beaten only once in 10 outings thus far, will have a return engagement tonight with Eastern Montana College as it continues its road trip through this state."

The Toreros defeated the Eastern Montana quintet, 69-60, last Wednesday in the first game of the Anaconda tournament. USD topped Whitworth, 57-52, Thursday to capture the four-team meet.

Cliff Ashford and Bernie Bickerstaff will head the Californians, although they were off form against Whitworth. However, Ashford collected 22 points and Bickerstaff 18 in the first meeting against Eastern Montana.

The Toreros are scheduled to play two more games in Montana before returning home. They'll oppose Montana State University at Missoula, Monday, and Carroll College at Helena, Tuesday.

Statement Of Appreciation Presented To Viet Veterans

A "Statement of Appreciation," signed by 1,000 students and faculty members at the University of San Diego, last Thursday was presented to wounded veterans of the Vietnam conflict at Naval Hospital.

The signature of the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy heads the list.

Father in Navy
The statement was the idea of Paul Cave, 24, a philosophy major, whose father, Navy Lt. George P. Cave, has served two tours of duty in Vietnam aboard an attack transport.

Cave, of 1322 Manchester St., National City, said he was prompted by an article in the Evening Tribune relating the reactions of some of the wounded veterans to anti-Vietnam demonstrations on campuses throughout the United States.

"Really Got To Me"
"This really got to me," Cave said. "I didn't see any one thanking these men for what they're losing by fighting — their limbs, or maybe even their lives," he said.

A week ago, Cave wrote out the "Statement of Appreciation." After consulting with Ernest Borunda, president of the College for Men's Associated Student Body, Cave began circulating it on the USD campus.

Cave said he has been assisted by Judi Banks, a junior at the USD College for Women, who lettered the statement on a piece of parchment, and David Pollick and James R. Wilke, freshmen at the College for Men.

ON FREE THROWS E. Montana Tips Toreros, 50-45

Special to The San Diego Union
BILLINGS, Mont. — Eastern Montana capitalized on 24 of 38 free throw attempts last night to gain revenge over invading University of San Diego, 50-45, on the victor's floor.

Mickey Hartsburg, a six-foot forward, led the winners with 14 points — all on field goals — but it was the accurate free throw shooting of four team mates which turned the tide.

The Toreros, hitting only 26 per cent from the floor, had beaten Eastern Montana, 69-60, last Wednesday in the Anaconda basketball tourney.

However, USD coach Phil Woolpert had to resort to his sophomores last night to get his club moving. Cliff Ashford, who has averaged 15 points, was held to five points; Cliff Bickerstaff had one free throw and Mark Yavorsky got only one field goal and two free throws in a disappointing contest.

Jim Soft, who connected on nine free throws, and Don Dunas tallied 11 and 10 points, respectively, to aid the Montana cause while Rick Cabrera of the Toreros was high with 16 markers.

The Toreros, who now own a 9-2 record, will travel to Missoula where they face Montana State University. This could be an even tougher test because MSU has dropped close decisions to Bradley, Wisconsin, Wyoming and Washington State so far.

Tourney Set For Toreros

The University of San Diego Toreros are flying high in more than one sense of the word.

The Toreros fly to Anaconda, Montana, Tuesday where they will compete in the Carroll College Invitational Tournament. They leave Lindberg Field at 12:40 p.m.

The Toreros are also flying high with a 7-1 record for the current season.

USD meets Eastern Montana College in the opening game of the tournament at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, December 29. Whitworth College defending tourney champ from Spokane, Washington, plays host Carroll College in the second game at 9 p.m. Thursday night the losers pair off for the consolation championship at 7 p.m. and the winners meet at 9 p.m. for the title.

Following the tournament USD will make a three game road trip throughout Montana meeting Montana State University in Missoula, Carroll College in Helena and Eastern Montana College in Billings.

Last week the Toreros won third place honors in the annual Holiday Basketball Tournament at Cal Western University. They nipped Eastern New Mexico in the opener 64-63, but dropped their second round contest to Arizona State College, 60-55. The Toreros then beat Eastern Washington, 51-48 for third place.

Admiral Says Viet Is 'Testing Ground'

Adm. Marshall W. White with the Seventh Fleet, said the war in Viet Nam is a testing ground for U.S. determination to halt Communist aggression throughout the world.

"The war is primarily a battle against Communist aggression," said White, who returned recently after seven months as commander of two attack carrier striking forces.

Time is Now
"I guarantee, if we don't beat them today, we won't beat them later," he said. "We'll be demolished."

White spoke at a meeting at the University of San Diego attended by about 200 students, and faculty members and members of the San Diego Council of the Navy League.

"It is incumbent on us to keep armed aggression by the Communists at a standstill in Viet Nam," White said.

Morale is Good
He said he was impressed with the "high morale" in the Navy.

He said the Navy crews — radar repairmen, electronic technicians, flightdeck crews and boilermen — are doing "outstanding jobs" in Viet Nam. White, recently appointed commander of Task Force 77

Toreros Go After 5th Win

Westerners Try To Snap 2-Game Losing Streak

University of San Diego and Cal Western University will try to extend a winning streak and start one, respectively, tonight.

Coach Phil Woolpert's USD Toreros go after their fifth straight victory without a defeat when they entertain Pepperdine, Cal Western, loser of its last two, plays host to Southern Utah. Each game starts at 8.

Woolpert will start the same team which propelled the Toreros to a 54-47 win over San Diego State College Wednesday. This alignment puts Clifford Ashford (6-4) and Alan Fay (6-5) at forward, Phil Price (6-7) at center and Bernie Bickerstaff (6-2) and Phil Sheridan (6-1) at guard.

Pepperdine has dropped four games, but three of them were by big-time clubs. The Waves lost to Iowa, 111-50, to St. Louis, 101-71, and to Memphis State, 85-66.

Cal Western, which dropped a pair to Pomona and Fresno State on the road earlier this week, will be favored to beat its foe. Southern Utah was beaten by Naval Training Center, 79-70, last night.

Toreros Choice In Holiday Test

University of San Diego, undefeated Toreros will be favored in the sixth annual San Diego Holiday basketball tournament which starts Monday in Cal Western's Golden Gym.

Coach Phil Woolpert's Toreros have six members back from the team that defeated PhibPac, 68-53, in last year's finals.

This year's meet will be the strongest in history.

Newcomers to the eight-team field are Eastern Washington State, Eastern New Mexico and California State at Hayward. Arizona State of Flagstaff will return to the meet for the first time since 1951.

Service entries are PhibPac and Point Mugu.

Host Cal Western figures to throw a strong challenge at USD with a veteran team made up of eight lettermen.

Four games will get the three-day event under way Monday.

Point Mugu and Arizona State meet in the opener at 7, followed by the Eastern Washington-PhibPac game at 8.

University of San Diego draws Eastern New Mexico at 7 and Cal Western plays Cal State at Hayward at 9.

Winner of USD-Eastern New Mexico plays winner of Point Mugu-Arizona State Tuesday at 7 with the PhibPac-Eastern Washington victor going against the Cal Western-Cal State winner at 9.

The championship game Wednesday will start at 9, preceded by the third place game at 7.

The Magi will be played by Tim O'Keefe, George Panel and David Farrell. Laurie Meyers is cast as their page.

Clayton Fox of the college's music department will direct the production. Featured will be the Alcala Choral.

The accompanist will be Jeffery Allen. Preceding the opera, the University of San Diego Chamber Orchestra, conducted by Henry Kolar, will play the "Concert in G Minor" by Charles Avison and Psalm and Fugue" by Alar Hovhannes.

The public is invited. There will be no admission charge.

Bishop Furey recalled the hectic schedule maintained by the bishops during the council.

"We had to get up no later than 6 a.m. to get dressed and have breakfast," he said. "Some had to get up even earlier because they were staying a great distance from St. Peter's Basilica, where the sessions were held."

He said the U.S. bishops chartered buses and worked out a route so all the council members could arrive at the basilica on time.

Chairs And Desks Are Installed

"They installed some temporary chairs and desks in the nave — the aisle — at the church," he said. "We called them the bleachers and the chairs were decidedly uncomfortable."

The business meetings would last past noon, and then — in the Italian tradition — the main meal of the day would be served.

"There might be some free time after lunch, but in Rome everything was closed from 2 to 4 p.m. You couldn't even buy a stamp."

And then there were various committee and subcommittee meetings in the afternoon and evening.

"When I got back to the hotel, I had to take care of the correspondence from the San Diego diocese, and this amounted to quite a bit," Bishop Furey said. "Before I left I delegated all the authority I was allowed, but there was still a good lot of work."

As remembrances of the historic council meetings, that lasted four years, the Pope presented each bishop with a solid gold ring, and a "diploma" signifying participation in the council. The mayor of Rome added a solid gold medal.

Bishop Furey ate lunch at the San Bernardino church, was serenaded by a mariachi band, then went to India to celebrate another Mass in honor of Our Lady of Guadalupe. Then he came back to San Bernardino, where he will remain until he returns to San Diego tomorrow.

Bickerstaff paced USD scorers with 14 markers while Yavorsky contributed 13. Top point maker for the Aztecs was sophomore Rick Evelevth with 12.

The heralded shooters were relatively quiet in the tight defensive ball game. Cliff Ashford, who has averaged 22 points for USD and 18 for the past two seasons, was held to seven markers while the lanky Al Skalecky collected only seven for the Aztecs. Skalecky, another sophomore on coach George Ziegenfuss' improving squad, carried a 17-point average into the contest.

Bishop Returns From Rome

By JIM McVICAR

SAN BERNARDINO — Catholics now stress the things they have in common with other faiths rather than the differences, the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey said yesterday.

"This is the single most important fruit borne of the Ecumenical Council," Bishop Furey, apostolic administrator of the San Diego Diocese, said in an interview.

Bishop Furey, fatigued after three months of hard work in Rome as a member of the council and a 17-hour plane ride back home Saturday, was nonetheless eager to talk about the council, its discussions and its deeds.

An interview scheduled for 20 minutes in the rectory of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church here stretched to more than an hour. Earlier, the bishop had celebrated Pontifical Mass in honor of the Feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe.

When the bishop left San Diego last September, he promised he'd try to get back to help celebrate the feast here. San Bernardino is part of the four-county diocese that also includes Imperial and Riverside Counties.

Pope Presides At Nondenominational Rites

"Four years ago, before the council sessions began, it would have been inconceivable for the Pope to preside at a nondenominational service at St. Paul's in Rome," Bishop Furey said.

"And yet he did, and participated with ministers and priests of many other religions."

Non-Catholic observers were in the council chamber for the first time.

"We were discussing things openly, and most Protestant observers were delighted," Bishop Furey said. "They, as we, believe there is much better feeling, more of a spirit of cooperation and goodwill among churches and faiths."

"I don't think there will be another Ecumenical Council in our life times, but a senate of Bishops representing all nations will be established by 1967."

Some impoverished areas abstaining from meat proves a real hardship.

Bishop Furey recalled the hectic schedule maintained by the bishops during the council.

Rep. Wilson Favors War Declaration

Wilson hits efforts to cut Navy housing—a-22

By PETER KAYE
The San Diego Union's
Politics Writer

Rep. Bob Wilson, R-San Diego, last night said he would support a United States declaration of war in Viet Nam.

"I'm in no position to say I'd advocate a declaration of war," Wilson said, "but I'm inclined to favor such a move if presented properly."

Wilson told a University of San Diego political forum that he feels a declaration of war would shorten the conflict "and let the enemy know we're not fooling."

WOULD EASE ACTION

Such a declaration, Wilson said, would make it easier for the President to act against draft card burning and stopping troop trains — acts that would be sedition in wartime.

"When you see those coffins come back," Wilson said, "you know we're really in a war."

"We are at war, and it would be better if our allies knew we'd be willing to settle it quickly with minimum loss."

As one congressman, Wilson said, he cannot exert leadership. The administration, with its 2 to 1 congressional majority, must do that, he said.

'NOT CANDID'

Wilson said the President has not been very candid with Congress or the people "in leading us to believe our (peace) overtures have been rebuffed completely."

He added: "It is evident today the Viet Cong are not interested in negotiating. We've got to force them into that position militarily."

Wilson said the United States should consider blockading or destroying the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong as a military action before negotiations.

RAPS McNAMARA

The congressman criticized Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara for his failure to authorize development of aircraft that would be useful in Viet Nam. He said 15 to 20 second planes are being used in that conflict.

The policy means future troops, Wilson predicted.

WESTERNERS ON ROAD

Aztecs, Toreros Battle Thursday

Cal Western's improving quartet gets a stern test as it opens a two-game road trip tonight and local basketball fans will be treated to the San Diego State-USD battle Thursday as the week's big game.

Both the Westerners and the Aztecs scored good wins Saturday night, Cal Western defeating Cal Lutheran, 67-62, while SDS knocked off Redlands University, 91-70.

Cal Western journeys to meet Pomona College tonight and then takes on Fresno State at Fresno Wednesday evening. The Westerners, who are 3-1 for the season, complete their week's activity as a prelude to hosting the Holiday Invitational next week with a Saturday tussle with Utah Southern at Golden Gym.

The Aztecs, evening their season record at 2-2, may have gained some much needed confidence with their hot-shooting performance against Redlands.

Rip Barrett sparked the Aztecs with 22 points and had plenty of help from Rick Evelevth (19), Al Skalecky (13) and Dave Miller (13).

They'll need much the same effort to cope with the unbeaten Toreros, who are now 3-0, and are rolling in high gear. The game will be played in the USD gym where Cliff Ashford and Co. are extremely tough.

This will be the one and only meeting of the two teams this year. USD then hosts Pepperdine Saturday night.

Forward Lem Lemons, who leads the Westerners in scoring with 69 points for a 17.2 average, will be joined by Al Razutis, center Steve Crowell and guards Tim Cunningham and Jim Michael as starters for tonight's game with Pomona College.

The Holiday Invitational will be played Dec. 20-22 with eight teams entered including the Toreros, who won last year's tourney.

First day pairings, in what tournament officials feel is the best field in the history of the meet, include: 1 p.m. — Arizona State College at Flagstaff vs. Point Mugu; 3 p.m. — East Washington College vs. PhibPac; 7 p.m. — USD vs. Eastern New Mexico and 9 p.m. — Cal Western vs. Hayward State.

Toreros Face E. Montana In Tourney

Special to The San Diego Union

ANACONDA, Mont. — The University of San Diego, sparked by sophomore guard Ted Fields, battled from behind in the final 10 minutes to defeat Whitworth College of Spokane, Wash., 57-52, for the championship of the Carroll College Invitational basketball tournament here last night.

With season-long high scorers Cliff Ashford and Bernie Bickerstaff off form, the Toreros never led until Fields triggered the late spurt that gave them the game.

His jump shot with 10 minutes to play finally put USD in front after the score had been tied three times.

Sophomores Rick Cabrera, Bill Sheridan and Dan Wrightman combined with Fields to help the Toreros protect the lead the rest of the way.

Fields finished with 12 points to pace the USD scoring, with guard Mark Yavorsky contributing 10 points.

Center Rod McDonald, voted the tournament's Outstanding Player, had 16 points for Whitworth, the event's defending champion.

USD continues its Montana road trip tomorrow night, meeting Eastern Montana State at Billings.

Hoop-Happy USD Ecstatic As Toreros Dump Aztecs

BALANCING ACT—Bernie Bickerstaff of University of San Diego appears to be balancing himself as he watches ball go out of bounds in third quarter of last night's game against San Diego State College in USD gym. Will Smith of Aztecs stands behind Bickerstaff. USD scored 54-47 victory.

Late Rally Paced by Yavorsky

By RICK SMITH
EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer

Basketball is No. 1 at University of San Diego, where coach Phil Woolpert and his Toreros are the biggest thing since co-education.

USD scored its fourth straight win without a defeat last night, topping San Diego State College, 54-47, in a wild, crosstown confrontation.

Since Woolpert arrived at Alcala Park in 1964, basketball has been the rallying point for the USD students, and their support of the program was demonstrated in the Torero gym last night, where a turnaway crowd of about 1,400 persons cheered them on.

It was nip and tuck all the way, but USD pulled away in the last moments after State's young club squandered a chance for victory.

"It verified what I thought," said Woolpert. State is gonna be good. They're the best team we've played. They're going to beat some people."

The Toreros might have been beaten were it not for a strong, off-the-bench performance by guard Mark Yavorsky, a springy, senior guard who prepped here at St. Augustine High.

Yavorsky scored only 11 points, but it was his outside sniping which kept his club ahead most of the way. He had played only five minutes in the first three games because of a sprained ankle.

"The turning point was Yavorsky's performance," said Woolpert. "It really was his first game. Bernie (Bickerstaff) also played well and (Phil) Sheridan made some clutch shots."

Over in the Aztecs' gloomy bathroom, coach George Ziegenfuss said, "It could have been won. A little more experience at the end of the ball game would have won it."

Center Al Skalecky of the Aztecs was called for traveling when his basket would have given the Montezumans a 47-44 lead with three minutes to go.

"We could have won it then," said Ziegenfuss, but, instead, USD rolled off six points to take a 50-45 lead. State still had a shot in the last minute when John Williams laid one home from the Willie Nash, firing mostly on fade-away jumps from the sides, sparked a second half attack last night to lead Arizona State College at Flagstaff to the Holiday Basketball championship in Golden Gym.

Nash, hitting 20 of his 30 points in the last 20 minutes, brought the Lumberjacks a 69-64 victory over Cal Western. The 6-2, 185-pound senior forward from McNary, Ariz., netted 13 of 18 field goal attempts.

of a consolation title in its only other tourney appearance here four years ago, had to battle back from a 12-point deficit, midway through the first half to gain a 31-30 advantage at intermission.

During the first portion of the contest, the Westerners took full advantage of a brief cold spell by the Lumberjacks and shot out to a 21-9 lead.

However, the Lumberjacks had the advantage on the boards in the second half and improved their shooting percentage. The Arizonans closed with a 43 per cent average.

The game was tied twice in the second half before Nash really went to work. He connected with two drives, a pair of jumps and a free throw during a 3-minute span to send Arizona State on top, 43-39.

The Westerners never regained the lead.

Lanky Bob Pence and Billy Hicks contributed for the victors with 13 and 10 points, respectively. Cal Western's Al Razutis led his team with 13 while Steve Crowell and Lem Lemons hit 11 and 10 points, respectively.

University of San Diego, trailing for some 34 minutes, came on in the late stages to down Eastern Washington, 51-48, for third place. The Toreros were defending champions.

In early action, Cal State of Hayward won the consolation crown with a 63-56 triumph over Eastern New Mexico while PhilPac belted Point Mugu, 61-49, for seventh spot.

Lemons, who collected 48 points in three games and was the sparkplug of his club, was named the most valuable player of the tournament.

Players named to the 10-man all-tourney team were: Pence and Nash of Arizona State, Lemons and Razutis of Cal Western, Bernie Bickerstaff and Cliff Ashford of USD, Ron Oram of Eastern New Mexico, Howard Foster and John Langenhorn of Hayward, Ron Drayton of Eastern Washington and Fred Mims of PhilPac.

USD coach Phil Woolpert, obviously displeased with the showing of his first club, began both halves with his second stringers and Eastern Washington was able to maintain the advantage.

The Northwestern quintet moved out to a 4-0 lead and held an advantage through the first half as USD failed to find the range. First stringers Phil Price, Bernie Bickerstaff and Bill Sheridan were finally inserted in the last nine minutes of the initial stanza but couldn't change the tide.

Utilizing its height, Washington went ahead, 20-12, on a pair of shots by Bill Bayless and left at intermission with a 22-16 bulge.

USD, now sporting a 7-1 record, connected only 20 per cent of its shots in the first half but Eastern Washington did little better with 30.

Woolpert finally sent in the first crew with 13 minutes remaining and the Toreros down, 31-26. At the six-minute mark, a free throw by Cliff Ashford knotted the score at 42-42. But Bill Brite's jumper for Eastern Washington sent the invaders ahead again, 44-42.

Mark Yavorsky's long jump shot with 4:18 left tied the score again at 46-46 and USD teammate Alan Fay followed later with another jumper to send the Toreros in front, 48-43, with 3:12 to go and Eastern Washington was finished.

Fred Mims, who set an individual scoring record of 44 points in this tourney two years ago, paced the Invaders with 17 in yesterday's seventh-place scramble. However, Point Mugu's Stoney Burke had game honors with 18.

Hayward and Eastern New Mexico battled evenly until the final minute when free throws and a tip gave the former a victory.

USD Joins 4 L.A. Colleges In Cooperative Program

By CHARLES DAVIS

The San Diego Union's
Education Writer

Southern California's Catholic colleges are looking outward. Representatives of five of them gathered yesterday at Alcala Park and talked about cooperation, understandings and interchanges that transcend campus boundaries.

Specifically, there was a brochure which, for the first time, depicted the five institutions as part of a loose confederation. It contained this statement:

"Although each college is owned independently, various inter-college programs have been agreed upon, including inter-college enrollment in many courses, exchange of faculty, cooperative student body activities and access to the colleges' library holdings of one-half million volumes."

BROCHURE PRAISED

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, apostolic administrator of the San Diego diocese and president of the University of San Diego, praised the cooperative brochure and went a step further.

He proposed a committee of representatives from each of the colleges to gain fuller insights of one another and, if possible, to organize programs with mutual benefits.

"There has never been any concerted effort before," Bishop Furey said. "It would be a good thing."

Meeting at the chancery with Bishop Furey were officials from Loyola University, Immaculate Heart College, Mount St. Mary's College and Marymount College.

SKETCHES INCLUDED

Thumbnail sketches of the four Los Angeles area institutions, plus USD, are included in the brochure, largely the work of the Rev. I. Brent Eagen, director of school relations at USD's College for Men, and H. John Cashin, director of school relations at Loyola.

As an example of how the colleges are going beyond their borders, Mrs. Gerald A. Larue, admissions director of Marymount, told of how a University of Southern California authority was called in to establish Marymount's new Asian Studies Center.

"There is a new era of understanding coming about," Mrs. Larue said, crediting the late Pope John with providing the impetus.

"PLURALISTIC SOCIETY"

"We've come to a realization in the United States that we live in a pluralistic society. The day when we kept to ourselves is pretty much in the past."

Mother Anne Farragher, president of USD's College for Women, told of a "tremendously warm and rewarding" reception when she approached San Diego State about attendance by prospective students and members of the Religious of the Sacred Heart at one of the state institution's philosophy classes.

Sister Joseph Adele, CSJ, admissions director at Mount St. Mary's, is compiling a list of faculty specialists at the Catholic colleges available to lecture in other colleges and high schools.

TRANSFER STUDENTS

Cashin said Los Angeles Catholic colleges are working out arrangements to make it simpler to accept transfer students from public junior colleges.

He said Loyola's arrangements already are complete. They include a listing of courses from 25 junior colleges and how they coincide with programs at the Catholic university.

Father Eagen and Cashin defined needs.

PROGRAMS PLANNED

The outward look reported by representatives of the five institutions is a corollary to a number of programs in development stages at USD's College for Men.

Among these is a plan for instruction in Spanish of students from south of the border during their first two years at the college, spearheaded by Dr. Robert E. Miller, dean of the division of business administration and economics.

Miller also plans to aid the business community in specialized seminars tailored to close-

San Diego's Collegians Back Viet War Effort

GRAVEYARD—Students at University of San Diego sign "Statement of Appreciation" for servicemen wounded in the Viet Nam war. Seated is Cheryl Norris. Witnessing from left, nobel Jim Wilke, Paul Crowell and Dave Pollick. More than 1,000 at the university signed the petition.

Letters, Signatures Sent to Servicemen

State Students 1,000 at USD
Write Notes, Express Thanks
Collect Gifts To Wounded

Some 300 San Diego State College students yesterday lined up at a booth on campus and wrote letters to American servicemen stationed in Viet Nam.

Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity is sponsoring the drive, which will continue through the week.

"We're doing this to encourage support for U.S. policy decisions on Viet Nam and to boost the morale of the servicemen there," Tom Kukins, fraternity vice president, said.

Background Music

While students wrote letters at the booth, the SDS Air Force ROTC band, drill team and color guard put on a 15-minute marching and music performance nearby to gain students' interest in the "AMMO for Peace" drive.

Phil Rizzo, commander of the Air Force ROTC, said the corps is conducting the drive in conjunction with the Marine Corps Recruit Depot. They are collecting used items for distribution to needy peasants in South Viet Nam.

Rizzo said the corps is asking for such items as clothing, blankets, work tools and canned or packaged food.

A "Statement of Appreciation," signed by 1,000 students and faculty members at the University of San Diego, will be presented to wounded veterans of the Viet Nam conflict at Naval Hospital tomorrow.

The signature of the Most Rev. Charles F. Biddy, bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Diego, heads the list.

Father in Navy

The statement was the idea of Paul Cave, 24, a philosophy major, whose father, Navy Lt. George P. Cave, has served two tours of duty in Viet Nam aboard an attack transport.

Cave, of 4132 Manchester St., National City, said he was prompted by an article in the Evening Tribune relating the reactions of some of the wounded veterans to anti-Viet Nam demonstrations on campuses throughout the United States.

"Really Got To Me"

"This really got to me," Cave said. "I didn't see anyone thanking these men for what they're losing by fighting— their limbs, or maybe even their lives," he said.

Angel Coeds Help

Angel Flight, a group of coeds which forms an auxiliary to Arnold Air Society, is helping to collect the items.

The drive will continue until after Thanksgiving.

At the letter-writing booth, the fraternity furnished paper, pencils and envelopes to the students who wrote not to a specific serviceman, but, "Dear G.I."

The letters will be collected by the fraternity and turned over to the 11th Naval District Headquarters in San Diego, Kuhns said. He said the letters will then be shipped to Viet Nam and distributed to sailors and soldiers there.

"You Are Not Forgotten" The letter-writers expressed varying reasons for participating.

"I often think about all of you fighting in the fields far away from home and I just want you to know that you are not forgotten by any of us here," wrote one coed.

Larry Forkner, a junior majoring in political science, said, "We realize that other people have rights to demonstrate their minority views, but we have to show the servicemen that the majority has some views different from the protestors."

Tim Godwin, a freshman, said he is sending a letter because "I felt it was the least I could do for my country."

A week ago, Cave wrote out the "Statement of Appreciation." After consulting with Ernest Borunda, president of the College for Men's Associated Student Body, Cave began circulating it on the USD campus.

Cave said he has been assisted by Judi Banks, a junior at the USD College for Women, who lettered the statement on a piece of parchment, and David Pollick and James R. Wilke, freshmen at the College for Men.

Text of Statement

The statement follows: "We the undersigned of the University of San Diego, do hereby wish to thank you, the young men who have sacrificed yourselves in our armed services in order to preserve that freedom which we so often take for granted."

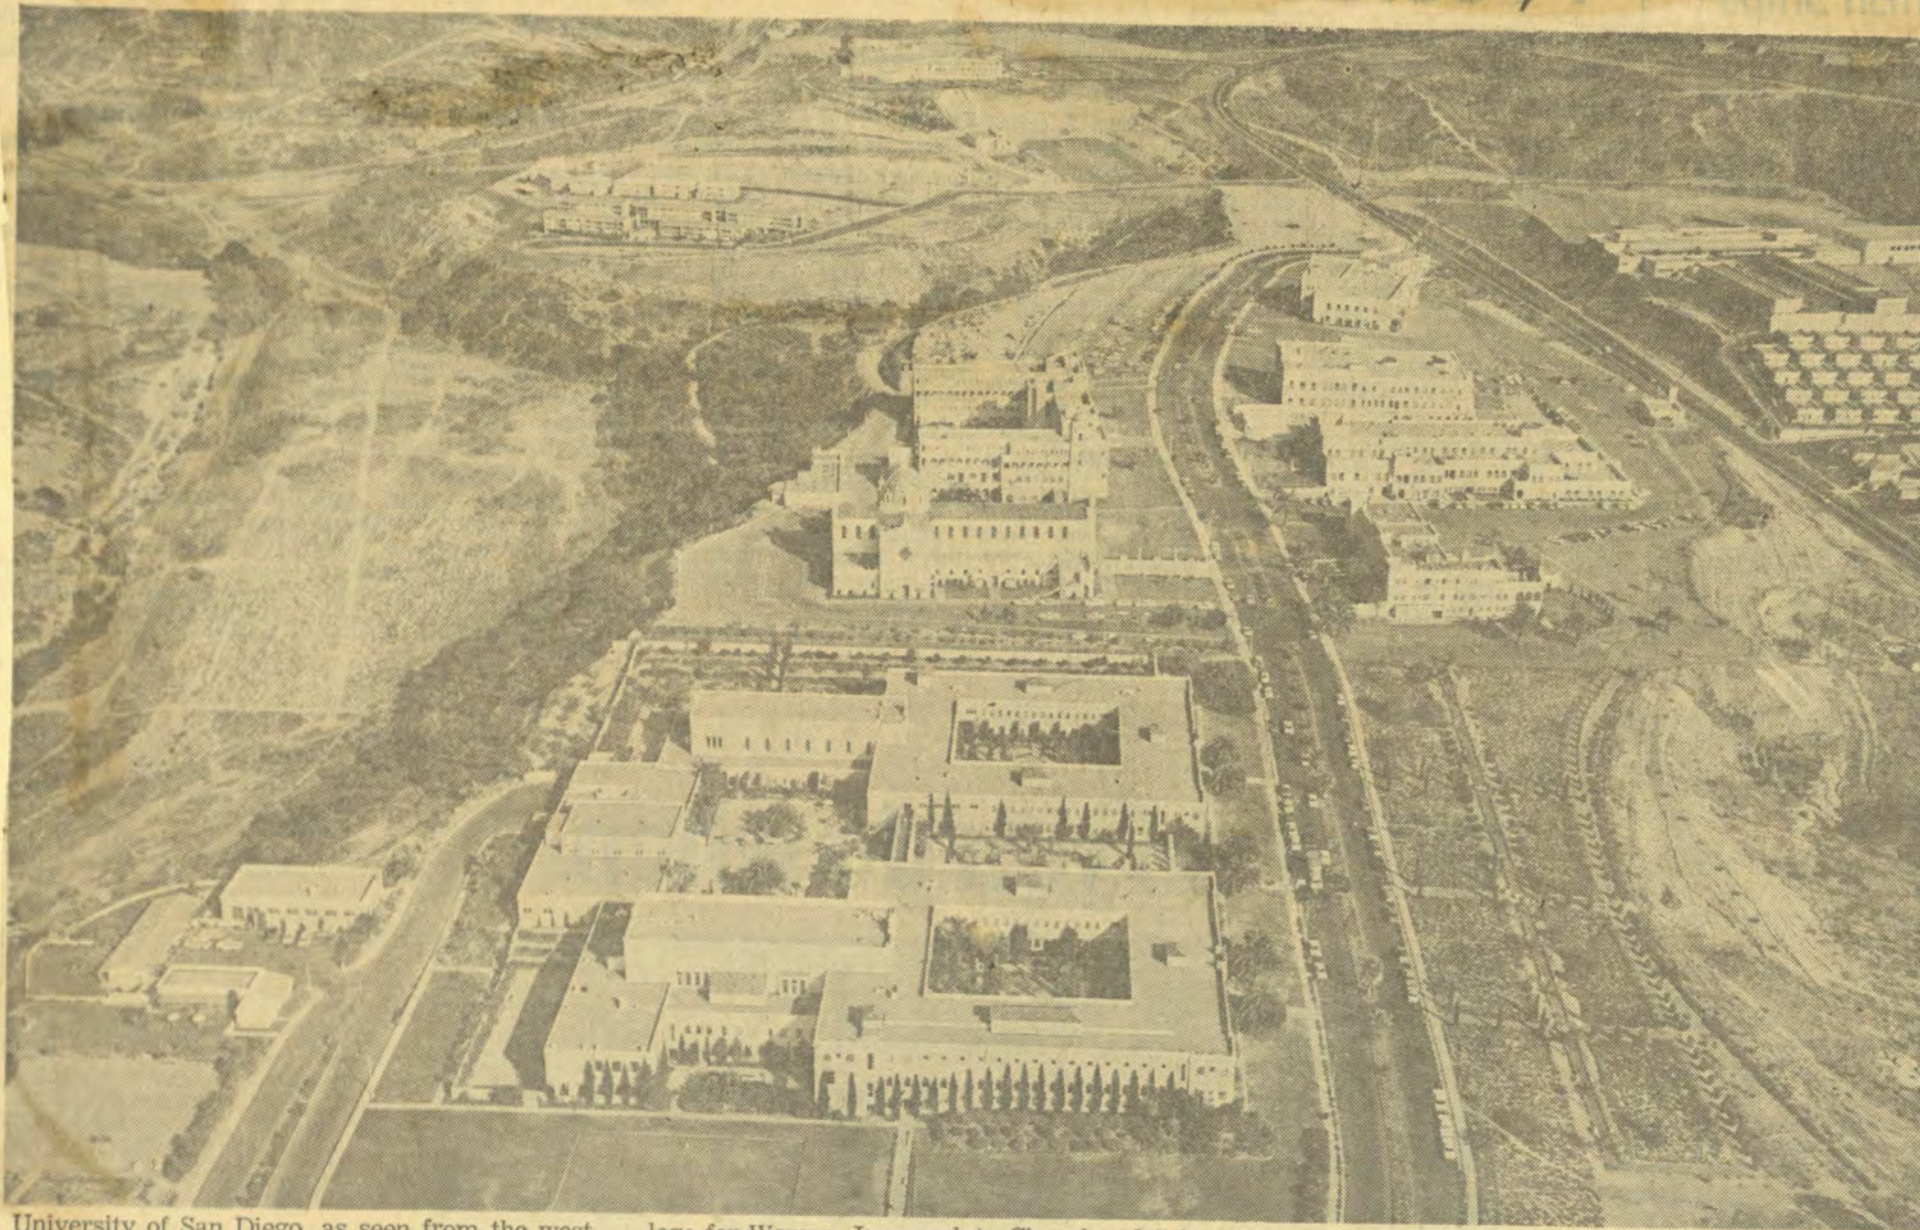

"To you, young men who have been wounded in combat on foreign soil, we thank you sincerely. To our young men who have been killed in combat on foreign soil, we hold you in high esteem."

"To the young men who are still in combat on foreign soil, we back you up 100 per cent. As you have so bravely shown the way, may we who will follow in your footsteps when our time comes to serve not be found wanting in dedication to God and Country."

"We salute all of you for being true Americans. Thank you."

'WE'VE TURNED CORNER'

USD Growing—And Planning

One of a series

By CHARLES DAVIS

The San Diego Union's Education Writer

It was Feb. 11, 1952, that doors opened to admit the first 50 students to the University of San Diego. The doors were to USD's College for Women, a striking example of Spanish Renaissance which set the architectural styling for all the campus' buildings that have followed.

Now, almost 14 years later, there are 1,457 students in four distinct units at USD. They represent a community resource of future teachers, scientists, business, legal and religious minds.

"We've turned the corner," is how the Rev. John Paul Cadden, president of the College for Men, puts Subscribers desiring extra copies of today's newspaper to send a Campus Profile to friends will find them available at news racks, news stands, or at any of The San Diego Union offices.

it. "We've upgraded the curriculum. We've upgraded the academic standards."

And plans are afoot to do even more, including a proposal to accept Latin American students and teach them in their native Spanish during freshmen and sophomore years.

Father Cadden heads a college with 383. In less than three years he has helped build the new academic emphasis of which he speaks, and now looks for doubled enrollment—perhaps as soon as two years.

In addition to the separate men's and women's colleges, the latter having 700 students, USD, School of Law has a record 297, and 77 attend the School of Theology.

The Catholic institution is permeated with a concept that, not only is knowledge important but so is moral, Christian maturity.

Let Marsha Zandi, a senior planning a career in probation work and who is president of the women's college student body, tell her reasons for attending USD.

She has found a "classroom advantage" when girls do not compete with boys. And, she adds, there is a direct advantage for girls who seek positions of leadership.

Last summer Marsha went to meetings of the National Student Association in Wisconsin. There she discovered, with one exception, all coeducational institutions were represented by men.

"I wouldn't be where I am if I were not attending a women's college," Marsha said.

Marsha does, however, concede it desirable to have closer contacts between the College for Women, conducted by nuns of the Religious Order of the Sacred Heart, and the men's college, a diocesan school.

The two colleges do participate jointly in social functions, and a move toward greater cultural and intellectual togetherness was begun this year with a cooperative film festival.

One advocate of closer ties is the Rev. I. Brent Eagen, director of school relations at the men's college and a counselor of potential high school applicants in behalf of both colleges.

There is a strong possibility this will come about, Father Eagen said, through Ecumenical Council deliberations opening the way for nuns of the Religious of the Sacred Heart to instruct men.

It is at the College for Men that expansion talk is confidently in the air.

Each of the college's 38 boarding units (each containing four students) is filled to capacity and Father Cadden says a new residence hall including a cafeteria and student union is a pressing need.

When this happens the present More Hall cafeteria will be converted into badly needed laboratory space for chemistry, biology and physics.

Father Cadden says the men's college always has been strong in philosophy and theology. Now it is preparing for major strengthening in business and the physical sciences.

Under Dr. Robert E. Miller, who came to USD in September from the University of Tampa, the division of economics and business next fall will have a revised curriculum stressing "conceptual" knowledge.

Students will learn about computers and relationships between business and society, Miller sees ethics as an area of appropriate concentration for the Catholic college.

Miller's division also plans conferences and seminars for the business community. These, instead of being open to all comers, will be joint efforts with professional societies to serve specific groups.

It is Miller's idea for the men's college to begin the new Spanish curriculum for Latin American students, something untied by any California higher institution so near the border.

These students would take the same courses as Americans, only in their native language for the first two years. They would make the transition to English upon becoming juniors.

One growth area at the College for Men is in pre-medicine. Of the college's three graduates who have applied, none has been turned down for admission to medical schools.

Dr. John P. McDermott, professor of chemistry, predicts this number will grow to six next year. He says it may possibly double again to reach 12 in 1967.

At the College for Men, instruction by diocesan priests and lay teachers has taken on a broadened quality by representatives of the Verona, Marist and, most recently, Carmelite orders.

USD's School of Law is the campus' only coeducational institution. It is accredited by state bars of California and New York and is approved by the American Bar Association.

The school offers a three-year full-time day program and a four-year part-time, or evening, school. Both lead to the doctor of laws degree.

The Rev. Mother Rosalie

Hill, who died last Dec. 12, set the pattern of USD's architecture at the women's college, and Edgar Ulrich, an architect also deceased, who did much to perpetuate it.

The Spanish Renaissance flavor extends from the College for Women on the west to an Olympic-sized pool and gymnasium on the east, and to dormitories and University High School on the south.

A remarkable physical, resemblance exists between San Diego's Alcalá Park, the campus home of USD, and Madrid's university city of Alcalá de Henares where San Diego's namesake, St. Didac, once studied.

In sum, it represents a lot of building since a ceremonial shovelful of earth was turned on the Linda Vista hilltop May 1, 1949.

Telephone Firm

Employees Buy Savings Bonds

Pacific Telephone employees in greater San Diego are quietly involved in a public service not directly related to their daily responsibility to provide good telephone service. In coastal communities from Oceanside to Point Loma, they are demonstrating their practical patriotism by buying US Savings Bonds.

Telephone installation, repair and plant service center forces serving Oceanside, Carlsbad, Fallbrook, Vista and Encinitas have subscribed 100 per cent to the purchase of bonds through the Pacific Company's payroll deduction plan, and telephone installers in Del Mar, La Jolla, Pacific Beach, Mission Beach, Ocean Beach and Point Loma have already reached the 100 per cent mark.

Also 100 per cent enrolled are central office plant maintenance forces in Oceanside and La Jolla, the Pacific Beach clerical group and one of two repair groups in Pacific Beach.

Telephone plant people are determined that each and every employee stand up and be counted. Plant forces in southern coastal cities have taken a big step toward reaching their goal.

UCSD Offers Course On Psychology Of Religion

The University Religious Foundation, comprised of 12 inter-denominational ministries and programs.

The non-credit course will be taught by Rev. John Angell of St. James-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church, and will be held in room 6257 of Building B on the Revelle College campus. Enrollment is open to all UCSD students.

The class time is scheduled Tuesday at 3 p.m. Registration and payment of a $5 fee can be made in next Tuesday's session.

Psychology of religion is the second of a series of URF-sponsored courses which are planned for the entire school year. Last Fall's offering was a course in world religions taught by Dr. Allan Anderson of San Diego State's philosophy department.

The Spring curriculum will offer a course in ethics to be taught by Dr. Francis Marcolongo and a survey of the Old Testament given by Rabbi Joel Gopfer.

The University Religious Foundation is currently seeking land in the southwest corner of the UCSD campus to build a religious center.

Kearny Mesa Surfers Are Hanging Ten

Kearny Mesa surfers are "hanging ten" around boxes of food and clothing this week as they collect the items for Mexican orphans.

The surfers, members of the 34-man Black's Surfing Association, began the drive the less fortunate and to help build a better name for the sport and the surfers, according to Jim Parks, president and Kearny High School senior.

"We are trying to help those who need help," said Parks. "Those children really need it. We will be collecting can food, usable clothing and blankets."

"This will create a better name for surfing and help the clubs," said Tom Briggs, treasurer and freshman at USD.

Club members will be combing the Kearny Mesa, Linda Vista, and Serra Mesa area this week. The drive will conclude Saturday.

The association has been in existence since April. It was voted the "most promising surf club" in the La Jolla Shores contest held this spring.

The clothing drive is one of several charity projects which the club plans to undertake this year. Another project is to have a benefit dinner in December with proceeds going to Muscular Dystrophy.

The most promising surfing club seems to be getting its feet wet in charity activity.

Members also will meet members of the college administration and the vice chancellor and secretary of the diocese, the Very Rev. Msgr. Donald F. Doherty, who will be guests of the association.

The administrators are the Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, president; the Rev. James I. Birkley, academic dean, and the Rev. Leonard J. Brugman, chaplain.

Bishop Furey is expected to informally describe his experiences at the closing sessions of the Ecumenical Council in Rome which ended Dec. 8.

USD Builds Steep Stairs To Campus

Construction of a concrete stairway up the near sheer Linda Vista hillside to the University of San Diego has put the school on a surer footing and on the right step toward future building.

Nearly completed, the stairway makes its way from the foot of Linda Vista Road up the hill to the campus. It is one of several proposed developments for the university.

According to university officials, students living in the Goshen Street student apartments will have easier access to the campus as compared to the old method of scaling the steep cliff.

Original plans called for construction of a pedestrian overpass, across Linda Vista Road to connect apartment dwellings with the campus. However, according to University officials, the City Planning Commission rejected such a permit for the bridge construction.

According to Rev. I. Brent Eagen, tentative plans call for joint participation by

Art Exhibit, Lecture Set At College

The University of San Diego College for Men's Faculty Lecture and Cultural Series Committee will present Dr. Clyde Curran, professor of Education at Claremont Graduate School, at 7:30 p.m. Monday, January 10, in the theater at the College for Women. Dr. Curran's topic will be "Philosophy and Art." The lecture is being preceded by an art exhibit in the College for Men Library on the Alcala Park campus this week.

Dr. Curran, 53, is a native Californian and received his doctorate in education from Stanford University. He is a member of the Far Western Philosophy of Education Society and a consultant to the Center for Field Studies of Harvard University. His publications include articles on "The Influence of Zen on Contemporary Art" and "Existentialism and Education."

Dr. Curran began painting five years ago for his own enjoyment. He started taking art lessons but found them to be boring and restricting. His art medium is plastic paint using a water color technique. His work may be described as western abstract painting with the Oriental influence noted in his use of calligraphy against a background.

The public is invited to attend both the lecture and the art exhibit. Alumni of Claremont Graduate School who reside in the San Diego area are invited to attend Professor Curran's talk and the reception which will be held in the foyer of the College for Men.

Ashford Leads USD Against Irvine Tonight

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Cliff Ashford, within striking range of an all-time school scoring record, will lead the University of San Diego basketball team against University of California, Irvine, tonight in the Toreros gymnasium.

Tipoff is scheduled for 8 o'clock. The Frosh squads meet in a preliminary at 6.

Ashford has collected 203 points for a 13.9 game average in 14 contests and needs 76 to equal the school mark of 1,234 set by Russ Cravens during a four-year period (1959-63). Cravens played for the varsity as a freshman while Ashford joined the team as a transfer from San Diego City College.

Ken Leslie, who tallied 1,174 points from '56 through '59, is currently second in the all-time scoring list. Ashford, a 6-3 forward, has accumulated 1,158 and can easily pass Leslie this weekend.

The Toreros, who own a 11-4 season record, will be opposing a young team in Irvine. Although in their first season of varsity competition, the Anteaters have compiled a good 8-6 record.

"They're a good size ball club," reports Torero coach Phil Woolpert, who had the team scouted in its 74-62 victory over Fullerton State last Saturday.

"Irvine's not a fast-breaking outfit . . . but it seems to take advantage of opportunities real well."

Woolpert said he would start his regular crew of Ashford and Alan Faye (6-5) at the forwards, Phil Price (6-5) at center, and Bernie Bickerstaff (6-0) and Mark Yavorsky (5-11) at the guards.

In the wings will be valuable No. 6 man Rick Cabrera, whose 16 points paced the Toreros over Whittier last Saturday.

Irvine, coached by former USC player Dan Rogers, will be headed by forward Dale Finney (6-4) and guard Tom Bryan (6-2). These two have averaged 13 points a game.

Pomona Cal Poly Rallies To Beat USD Quint, 60-57

Cal Poly of Pomona connected on 14 of 19 shots in the second half last night to down a smaller, less-sure University of San Diego basketball team, 60-57, in the Toreros' gymnasium.

The Pomonians, who now hold a 10-3 series advantage, quickly erased a seven-point, USD lead to begin the second half. Then they battled shot-for-shot until a drive by springy Paul Scranton with 1:26 to go gave them the vital two points.

Scranton, a 6-5, 220-pound senior, paced the Broncos with 14 points while 5-11 guard Tom Ferrard kicked in 11.

It was a toughy for the Toreros to lose, but they gave the ball away too many times. And, trying to match a 52 per cent shooting performance was just too much.

Cliff Ashford and Rick Cabrera kept the Toreros in the chase with 18 and 14 points, respectively.

This was Cal Poly's eighth victory in 11 games while USD dropped its fourth contest in 14 outings.

The Toreros must battle another stiff opponent tonight when they go against Whittier College on the home floor at 8. The Poets have also mastered the San Diegans, leading the long series, 12 games to one.

The lead changed six times in the first half last night before USD moved on top, 19-17. Actually, Poly's inability to hit from the free throw line gave the Toreros the advantage here.

Scranton, alone, missed 10 of 14 charity chances in the first half and for the game Poly had a 46 per cent mark in this department.

Cabrera's three field goals within a three minute span and a pair of fielders by Alan Faye in the last minute sent USD to the dressing room with a 31-24 lead.

With three minutes gone in the second half, however, Danny Rodriguez, Ferrard and Nick Barkett pulled Pomona even at 31-31.

Cal Poly managed two-point advantages through much of the second half and the score was knotted at 38, 42 and 50 before USD went ahead, 52-50, on Ashford's basket from inside.

But, Poly had the advantage of 1-and-1 foul situations and pulled out to 55-52 before Ashford's jumper closed the gap to 55-54.

Then, Scranton drove down court with 1:26 left for a basket but missed a free throw after being fouled. Bob Crenshaw's free throw with 59 seconds left and a pair of Scranton charity tosses with a second remaining made the difference.

Rested Toreros Await Cal Poly

By JOHNNY McDONALD

University of San Diego has had 10 days to rest up for what coach Phil Woolpert describes as "the toughest part of the schedule."

The Toreros, who have lost only three of 13 games this campaign, will receive a big test tonight when the fast-breaking Cal Poly team from Pomona (7-3) invades the USD gymnasium. Tipoff is set for 8 o'clock with a preliminary between the two freshmen quintets starting at 6.

Woolpert's lads won't find things much easier tomorrow night when they are challenged in the same gym by Whittier College.

Cal Poly has knocked off USD in nine of 12 engagements since 1956 while Whittier has lost only one of 13 to the Toreros in the same span.

The Poly Broncos, who embarrassed USD with 90-49 and 75-47 defeats in the last two campaigns, will be led by Paul Scranton, a good-jumping 6-5 center. He is expected to be joined by Jim Moeller (6-4) and Walter Wells (6-4) at the forwards and Danny Rodriguez (6-0) and either Tom Ferrard (5-11) or Nick Barkett (6-3) at the guards. Barkett is a former San Diego City College performer.

"We expect them to run," Woolpert said. "They're a loose ball club and they don't fool around . . . very explosive. Their coach has a good bench, and with the fast attack, he likes to substitute a lot."

Cliff Ashford, who is the third best scorer in school history, will lead the Toreros at one end while Alan Faye will be his front-court companion. Phil Price will be at center and Bernie Bickerstaff and Mark Yavorsky will work the backcourt.

Ashford has scored 175 points for a 13.5 average in 13 games but this is well below his average of the last two seasons. Bickerstaff has scored 112 points for an 8.6 mean, Yavorsky has 100 for 9.1, Faye has 105 for 8.1 and Price 92 for 7.1.

Woolpert believes Ashford has been pressing a little and feels the 6-3 senior has been looking much better in practice.

The Toreros have received some points in the national small college rankings and a pair of wins this weekend might boost them into the top 20.

Cabrera Leads USD Past Poets

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Sophomore Rick Cabrera recharged the University of San Diego Toreros in the second half last night to lead them to a 73-62 victory over Whittier College in the home gym.

Cabrera, a former standout from Loyola High, came off the bench to drill in 10 of his 16 points in the second portion of the contest to pace his club's scoring. Mark Yavorsky had 11 points while Cliff Ashford and Phil Price added 10 each for the victors.

This marked only the second time in 14 meetings that the Toreros have been able to stop the Poets but for a while it appeared the visitors had the rallying momentum to pull off another win in the long series.

The Toreros took a 42-33 lead into the dressing but much like their problems against Cal Poly of Pomona Friday night they let the advantage slip away in the second half. Whittier gained a 48-48 standoff after eight minutes had expired.

Big gun in the Poets' attack was smooth Joe Venne, a 6-1 sophomore, who sent in 26 points—11 better than his season average. Ken Evans contributed with 14 for the losers.

However, the Poets played minus the services of captain Joe Jemum, a 6-3 senior with a 15.1 average. The classy forward has been sidelined with a badly sprained ankle.

The San Diegans, who now have a 11-4 season mark, controlled the boards, 60-52. USD's centers, Phil Price and Danny Wightman, were able to take command for a change.

The Toreros slipped behind at the start with Evans and Venne sparking the Poet attack. USD trailed by seven at 12-5 and 14-7 before Ashford and Yavorsky closed the gap momentarily.

However, the Poets moved out to a 22-14 lead with nine minutes left. Then, USD regained some of its early season form and four minutes later had the score even, 29-29.

In cat-like fashion, USD hit 10 points and finally led, 42-33, at the half. But USD wasted many shots, hitting only 19 of 52 while Whittier connected on 14 of 29.

The Poets took advantage of Torero mistakes early in the second half and with Al Johnston and Evans hitting on twisters and layups they pulled even at 48-48.

Again, USD moved away to a five-point advantage and finally made it 60-50 with seven minutes to go. Only Venne was doing the shooting for the visitors while USD got good firepower from Cabrera, Price and Yavorsky to the final gun.

The USD Frosh downed San Diego State's freshmen, 66-45, in the preliminary.

MAY LOSE 2 PLAYERS

USD Hits Road For Two Games

Special to The San Diego Union

LOS ANGELES — The University of San Diego plays the first of two games on the road tonight when it meets Pepperdine College in a return match.

The game, which starts at 8 o'clock, will be televised over KLAS, channel 13.

The Toreros, who have a 12-5 season record, topped the Waves, 71-59, in San Diego last December with Bernie Bickerstaff and Cliff Ashford leading the way with 11 points each.

However, USD may be limited in personnel by game time. It is rumored that two members — one believed to be leading scorer Ashford — may be sidelined because of scholastic deficiencies.

Coach Phil Woolpert was not available for comment. Another source said "no word" had been received on the grade status of the two athletes in question.

If Ashford should be ineligible this would rule out any chance the senior forward would have of being the school's all-time scorer. He has amassed 1,166 points for three seasons, which places him third behind Russ Cravens (1,234) and Ken Leslie (1,174).

Ashford, a 6-4, 165-pound forward had averaged 18.1 points for the previous two seasons but has dropped off to 12.4 this year.

The Detroit cager joined USD after winning all-state honors at San Diego City College. He led the Metropolitan Conference in scoring with an 18.1 average.

Should Ashford be unable to join Alan Faye at the other forward post, Woolpert is expected to insert sophomore Rick Cabrera, currently averaging 6.9 points in 16 games.

The guards will be Mark Yavorsky (9.8) and Bernie Bickerstaff (8.4). Phil Price, who has a 7.4 mean, will open at center.

The Toreros will travel to Santa Barbara tomorrow night to face tough University of California, Santa Barbara. USD will return home to entertain Fresno State Monday.

Toreros Face Irvine Cagers

The University of San Diego Toreros will host the University of California at Irvine Anteaters at 8 p.m. this Friday, January 21.

This Saturday, January 22, the Toreros travel to Chapman College in Orange.

USD split a two-game home-stand last weekend, losing a close game to Cal Poly of Pomona 60-57, and rebounding with a 73-62 win over Whittier. The Toreros are now 11-4 for season.

Irvine will invade town with an 8-6 record. This is the Anteaters' first year in basketball.

The Chapman contest will be the ninth game in a series dating back to 1956. Chapman leads the series 6-2. However, USD has won the last two by scores of 70-61 and 65-61.

Tipoff Saturday night in USD Gym is at 8. Game time at Cal Western's Golden Gym next Wednesday is also 8.

Saturday's game is part of homecoming activities at USD.

Forward Rick Cabrera, who took over for Torero star Cliff Ashford when Ashford became scholastically ineligible five games ago, has become the new Torero standout. The six-foot-three forward has scored 97 points in those five games for a 19.4 average. Ashford was averaging 12.4.

USD put on the biggest rally of the season last Saturday night when they came back in the second half to outscore the San Fernando Valley State Matadors, 12-4, and erase a 47-36 Matador lead. They then captured the lead and pulled out a 76-74 victory.

Friday night, the Toreros lost to the Diablos of Los Angeles State, 61-60.

51-60 SQUEAKER

USD Stall Fails, Diablos Win

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Los Angeles State scoffed at a frantic stall and capitalized on errors in the final two minutes last night to down University of San Diego, 61-60, in the Toreros' gymnasium.

The Diablos took advantage of sudden USD game-plan change to post their seventh victory in 20 contests. This was USD's seventh setback against 4 victories.

The Toreros made good on 61 per cent of their shots in the second half but took only 18 shots from the floor. However, with a 57-53 advantage, USD reverted to stand-pat basketball with four minutes remaining and it backfired.

The Diablos, who led only once in this half, came through with a pair of field goals by Ken Ellsworth, a 6-4 guard, two free throws by 6-6 center Joe Davis and a layup by 6-4 forward William Nolan.

Ellsworth's underhand basket off a drive up the key was the clinching basket with 53 seconds left although USD still had a chance to pull off the victory. The opportunity came when center Phil Price fumbled a pass in Diablo territory.

Bernie Bickerstaff was charged with an offensive foul with 22 seconds remaining in an attempt to drive for a bucket and that put the finishing touches on USD's desperate bid.

Once again, sophomore Rick Cabrera was the leading figure in the Torero attack, collecting 11 of 18 field goal attempts for a total 27 points. Forward Alan Fay was his running mate with 15 points. Beyond these two the Torero scoring was slim indeed.

The Diablos, who had control of the boards, 43 rebounds to 35, were paced by David 22 points. Ellsworth added 18, Davis biggest point production was at the free throw line where he hit 12 of 15.

The Toreros will try to get back on the winning track tonight when they travel to Northridge to face San Fernando State. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Last night, the Diablos made good use of their size to keep ahead of the hometown club through most of the first half. The Toreros got off first but L.A. State forged ahead until intermission when Cabrera's free

USD Rally Wins, 76-74; Equals Mark

Special to The San Diego Union

NORTHBRIDGE — University of San Diego rallied back from an 11-point deficit to nip San Fernando Valley State, 76-74, here last night and equaled a school record by posting its 15th victory.

The Toreros were led by Bernie Bickerstaff and Rick Cabrera as the visitors downed 52 per cent of their shots. Bickerstaff, normally the playmaker on the club, collected 25 points and Cabrera, a fine-scoring sophomore, contributed with 18.

Other USD performers hitting in double figures were Bill Sheridan with 14 and Ted Fields with 12.

Ollie Carter and Mark Cooley, the latter a 6-6 center, paced the losers with 24 and 18 points, respectively.

The Toreros now own a 15-7 season mark as they prepare for a pair of showdown skirmishes with cross-town rival Cal Western. Last year's USD club set the school mark with 15 wins against 11 losses.

San Fernando moved on top shortly after the first tipoff and pulled away to a 47-36 lead at intermission.

However, the fired-up Toreros raced back in the second half 13-4, and maintained a two to four-point advantage until the finish.

San Fernando faltered on two field goal attempts and a tip in during the final 20 seconds of play and USD was able to preserve the victory.

Bishop Led Diocese For 30 Eventful Years

op called this site Alcala Park, in tribute to St. Didacus (San Diego) and his native university city of Alcala, Spain.

Bishop Buddy never failed to credit Jewish and Protestant leaders with their generous cooperation in the building of the university. They took a major role in his last campaign in 1958 for funds. Launched to meet a goal of $3.5 million, the returns mounted to $8,221,000.

Bishop Buddy attended the first session of the Vatican Ecumenical Council II in October, November and December 1962, in Rome.

'GREATEST JOY'

In 1959, Bishop Buddy made his "ad limina" visit to Rome. During his audience, Pope John XXIII asked, "What is your outstanding joy in San Diego—the seminary?" "No, Your Holiness," said Bishop Buddy, "my greatest joy is the Crusade for Souls."

When briefed on the crusade inaugurated in 1951, the Pope expressed lively esteem and encouragement. Later the Bishop recounted the inspiration for this crusade, a non-Catholic he met during a train trip to Chicago. The man criticized Catholics for being clamorous and making it difficult for unbelievers to get acquainted with the Catholic Church and her doctrines. Bishop Buddy agreed that his critic, a San Diegoan, lived in Mission Hills. He invited him to church.

Impressed by the train conversation, the bishop on returning to San Diego started organizing the Crusade for Souls. It was based on "door to door, floor to floor" visits by Catholic laymen to their neighbors who were cordially invited to the Information Forum and to Pignus Seminars held in neighborhood parish halls and in Catholic institutions.

MANY CONVERTS

This "Crusade for Souls" begun in 1951 has been carried on annually. One six-year study revealed 23,439 converts and more than 35,000 lapsed Catholics returned to the church.

The crusade method, under various names, has spread to dioceses throughout the world.

The Diocesan Consultors, the pastors, who with the bishop cooperated officially in the vast development of the diocese, were gratified at the unsolicited report from the nation's top commercial agency, Dun & Bradstreet, made in 1963, at the time of Bishop Buddy's retirement, attested to the high credit of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego. The report said in part:

"... The diocese has reaped obligations as agreed over the years, generally arranging financing in advance through local lending institutions. Bank obligations have been promptly liquidated."

HOLDINGS ESTIMATED

"According to informed sources total holdings of the Diocese of San Diego would conservatively be valued in excess of $200 million and it is understood that investment in San Diego University alone runs in excess of $25 million."

"The diocese either owns or controls all or nearly all properties where their various institutions are situated with over-all activities known to be very sizeable and highly substantial."

"The Diocese of San Diego, under the administration of Bishop Charles Francis Buddy, has been run in a highly capable and successful manner."

When Bishop Buddy assumed administration in 1937, the diocese of San Diego had no credit. He sought loans in San Diego and Los Angeles without success.

Finally he approached the late A. P. Giannini, San Francisco founder of the Bank of America. When asked for a loan, Giannini replied: "Yes, Your Excellency, we are neighbors."

Then he took the bishop to banking officials and said, "Give this man all the money he wants any time he wants it. If he brings any back, take it from him."

The loan was paid in four years and the credit of the diocese assured. Today the diocese is debt free in consideration of notes receivable which more than counterbalance the funded debts, less than 5 per cent of the Diocesan assets.

A project which Bishop Buddy remembered with affection was St. Vincent's Center in St. Joseph, Mo., as rector of the cathedral there in 1928 he established the center to help the poor during the depression. It served meals to hungry men, women and children and provided lodging for the destitute.

3,000 FED DAILY

It included a clinic, a used clothes department and recreational facilities; it occupied four warehouse buildings. Three thousand persons a day found meals and 900 shelter each night.

People seeking aid were asked only, "Are you hungry?"

In 1935, the federal government subsidized St. Vincent's. Bishop Buddy was born Oct. 4, 1887, in St. Joseph, Mo., the son of Charles Allen and Ann Farrell Buddy.

Baptized in Immaculate Conception Church, St. Joseph, he began his education in the Little Convent of the Sacred Heart, at that time the parochial school for the cathedral and six other parishes, taught by the same order which founded and now staffs the University of San Diego College for Women.

He attended Christian Brothers School in St. Joseph, the high school department of St. Benedict's College, Atchison, Kansas, and St. Mary's College, St. Mary's, Kansas.

ALTAR BOY

Even as a child his ambition was to qualify for the sacred priesthood. When 11 years old, he was delighted to serve as an altar boy in the cathedral in St. Joseph.

In 1909 Bishop Maurice Francis Burke of St. Joseph sent the young aspirant to Rome where he studied for the priesthood at North American College. He earned his doctorate in philosophy in 1911 and his licentiate in sacred theology in 1913.

Bishop Buddy was ordained a priest Sept. 19, 1914, in St. John Lateran, the cathedral of Rome. He studied another year, and on Aug. 24, 1915, returned to his home city, St. Joseph. Bishop Burke appointed him curate of St. Joseph's Cathedral and chaplain of St. Joseph's Hospital.

In 1917 he became chancellor of the diocese; in 1923, diocesan director of the Propagation of the Faith and in 1926, rector of St. Joseph's.

RECEIVES AWARDS

On March 18, 1964, Bishop Buddy was presented the first Medallion of Merit Award given by the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in San Diego.

In January, 1962, the City Council of San Diego presented Bishop Buddy with a parchment copy of a resolution it passed honoring him for more than a quarter-century of religious and civic service to the people of San Diego.

In April, 1964, the National Conference of Christians and Jews honored him for distinguished contributions to the advancement of good human relations among all people.

In January, 1961, he was honored by the government of Italy for his support of the Boy Scouts of Italy.

During World War II Bishop Buddy was vicar delegate of the Southwest military area including the Archdiocese of the Los Angeles, the Diocese of San Diego and the states of Arizona and New Mexico. He supervised Catholic clergymen serving as military chaplains.

In November, 1963, Pope Paul VI conferred on Bishop Buddy the honor of Assistant at the Pontifical Throne.

The bishop is the author of books, magazine articles and newspaper columns. The first book, titled "Diocesan Statutes," is a commentary of Canon Law to fit local need.

"Thoughts of His Heart" includes many of his sermons, writings and addresses. "Send Forth Thy Spirit," a book of prayer, has been translated into Spanish and Italian and now is in its eighth edition. "For Them Also," a resume of Catholic fundamentals, ran 63,000 copies for distribution in the United States, England, Ireland, China, Africa and South America. The fifth and last book written by Bishop Buddy is titled "Going, Therefore, Teach."

On Aug. 5, 1964, at a reception, Pontifical Mass and banquet, tribute was paid to Bishop Buddy on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of his ordination as a priest.

Responding to an address by the Most Rev. Gerald T. Bergan, archbishop of Omaha, on the occasion, Bishop Buddy made a few brief remarks and then, with typical patricism, named him coadjutor bishop with the right of succession.

Upon learning of the death of Bishop Buddy, Bishop Furey canceled a trip to Dallas where he was to attend consecration ceremonies for a new bishop.

Had he lived Bishop Buddy would have been spiritual leader of San Diego diocese Catholics 30 years on next Oct. 31.

It was on that date in 1936 that Pope Pius XI appointed him bishop of the newly formed diocese, created when the archdiocese of Los Angeles was formed.

He was installed in San Diego Feb. 3, 1937. He was a native of St. Joseph, Mo., and came to San Diego from his native city where he had served the church since childhood, beginning as an altar boy.

On Aug. 5, 1964, at a reception, Pontifical Mass and banquet, tribute was paid to Bishop Buddy on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of his ordination as a priest.

Responding to an address by the Most Rev. Gerald T. Bergan, archbishop of Omaha, on the occasion, Bishop Buddy made a few brief remarks and then, with typical patricism, said, "Let's all sing the Star Spangled Banner together."

The bishop once said to a friend, "I came to San Diego blessing the city and all of its people. I hope to go out the same way."

Mass for Bishop Buddy will be said at 9 a.m. today in St. Joseph's Cathedral with students of the cathedral schools in attendance. The 12:07 p.m. Mass for parishioners will be celebrated for Bishop Buddy.

It was the beginning of a series of ceremonies in mourning for the 78-year-old bishop, who died Sunday in Banning. The body now lies in state privately in a small chapel.

The ceremonies will end about 4:15 p.m. after entombment in Holy Cross Mausoleum. Bishop Buddy died Sunday in Banning.

Yesterday at 2 p.m. 1,000 parochial school children of San Diego County attended a Solemn Mass of Requiem for Bishop Buddy.

The bishop's greatest contribution to the Catholic children, Msgr. Hurd said, was his Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. It is a program by which Catholic children who are unable to attend parochial schools may get religious education in the parishes.

Major ministers of the Mass today, to be celebrated by the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, now bishop of San Diego, in the presence of James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles, will be: Assistant priest to Cardinal McIntyre, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John F. ## Final Tributes Paid To Bishop Buddy

By JOE STONE

People of the Diocese of San Diego yesterday honored the memory of the Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy in solemn rites of great beauty in St. Joseph's Cathedral.

With James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles, presiding, the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of San Diego, celebrated the Solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem.

Nineteen other bishops from all over the United States attended the Mass.

OFFICIALS IN PEW

Occupying the front pews in the cathedral were Mrs. Daniel Redmond Sr. of San Diego, a sister and only survivor of Bishop Buddy's immediate family, members of her family, other relatives and close friends of the family.

Mayor Curran, Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, and state Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego, occupied the pew immediately in back of the family.

Many representatives of the Jewish and Protestant faiths were among more than 1,000 who crowded the cathedral, lining the walls.

Bishop Buddy, who died Sunday in Banning at the age of 78, was eulogized in a sermon by the Most Rev. Timothy Manning, auxiliary bishop of Los Angeles.

'FOUNDATION STONE'

Bishop Manning recalled that it was in February, 1937, in the same cathedral, that the young Bishop Buddy first met the people of San Diego, Imperial, Riverside and San Bernardino counties, and became their first bishop in history.

"The first bishop of a diocese," said Bishop Manning, "is memory he will live as a great churchman.

Listening with bowed heads were two Navy captains and two commanders, chaplains who were honor guards at the casket; members of the Knights of Columbus and Knights of St. Gregory in full ceremonial uniforms; and the well known and the unknown of the area.

They heard a minister of the Mass read from the first epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians: "Death is swallowed up in victory."

"Where, O death, where is your victory. Where, O death, is your sting."

More than 12,000 persons came to pay final respects to Bishop Buddy while the body lay in state in the Immaculata Chapel and in St. Joseph's Cathedral during three days before entombment, officials of Benbough Mortuary said.

A mortuary attendant said 200 persons were in line to pass the bier at 1 a.m., Thursday, in the Immaculata in Alcala Park.

A church spokesman estimated 250,000 persons have attended Masses for Bishop Buddy in the four county diocese.

Following the rites in the cathedral the body was taken to Holy Cross Mausoleum where it was entombed.

MOST REV. CHARLES FRANCIS BUDDY

Quarter of a Century

Diocese's Great Growth Traced Under Late Bishop's Guidance

A review of the growth and development of the Diocese of San Diego under the guidance of Bishop Charles F. Buddy appeared in The Southern Cross, issue of August 30, 1962. It represents the achievements of a quarter of a century. It is reprinted here.

The date was February 3, 1937. The place was St. Joseph's new cathedral. The event was the solemn installation of San Diego's first Bishop.

On that day the new Diocese of San Diego began. It had been carved from the old jurisdiction of Los Angeles and San Diego by the Holy See July 11, 1936.

On that eventful day also, 62 priests knelt before their new superior, paid their obeisances to him and promised loyal cooperation for the task ahead.

They then served 51 parishes and 53 missions scattered mostly in small urban and rural communities in San Diego, Imperial, Riverside, and San Bernardino counties. In the new jurisdiction 200 nuns and six priests conducted 15 elementary and five high schools, a college for student nurses, and a school of philosophy for Franciscan novices.

Today little more than the area remains the same. Even old parishes have grown beyond recognition. The physical facilities in most of them are new, in the rest they have been renovated and enlarged.

The stream of migration from other states, conversions, and natural increases brought the Catholic population of the four counties from 80,000 in 1937 to nearly 300,000 in 1962. They are served by more than 430 priests.

The sustained effort to meet the religious and educational needs of the new communicants is the story of the Bishop's administration. It is the story of a builder, organizer, financier, educator, pastor, and leader. It is a saga of foresight, zeal, resolution, and achievement.

Educated in the parochial schools of his native St. Joseph, Mo., at St. Benedict's College, Atchison, Kans., St. Mary's College, St. Mary's, Kans., and at the North American College, Rome, Charles Francis Buddy was ordained priest for his own Diocese of St. Joseph in September, 1914.

Forged in pastoral assignments, he labored for 21 years first as curate, then as rector, of the cathedral where he served Mass as a boy. Terms as Bishop's secretary, chancellor, and director of The Society of the Propagation of the Faith tempered the future Bishop for the higher vocation in San Diego. He was consecrated December 21, 1936.

Hence at the outset the first Bishop of the new jurisdiction viewed the scene of his labors with an experienced eye. A tour of his diocese early in 1937 afforded an acquaintance with each parish and a study of each parish. The pattern of his administration soon appeared.

curia was established. Directors of diocesan agencies and societies were appointed. Clerical changes extended organization to the parishes. Existing lay associations were revitalized. New ones were organized. A diocesan newspaper, The Southern Cross, was founded.

In 1938 successful negotiations with the Bank of America were concluded. When a loan was secured and repaid in four years the credit of the diocese was established.

Then was initiated a program of construction the likes of which has not been seen since Father Junipero Serra and his valiant band of missionaries built a chain of 21 missions along El Camino Real.

Still underway, its fruits are seen in 158 parishes, churches, and rectories, in 30 missions, 75 elementary and 17 secondary schools, nine colleges, three retreat houses, five monasteries, two homes for the aged, a residence for working girls, five hospitals and two clinics, and in camps and recreation centers for underprivileged youth.

A San Diegan may attend any of one of five to nine Sunday Masses in each of 72 churches, any one of three or four in each of 66. The Bishop's instructions call for confessions before each Sunday and daily Mass, also during Mass where at least two priests are stationed.

Adequate facilities for lay retreatants are provided at Immaculate Heart Major Seminary, Alcala Park, St. Charles Benedictine Priory, Ocean-side, and El Carmelo Retreat House, Redlands.

The Crusade for Souls is an intimate part of the San Diego

The unexpected death of Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, first Bishop of the Diocese of San Diego, brought a flood of tributes from San Diego's business, civic, and religious leaders.

They praised the "ecumenical spirit" he had fostered. They spoke of his achievements. And they expressed sorrow over his death.

He was eulogized by Protestants, Jews, and Catholics, and by churchmen and laymen.

The Rev. Harold B. Keir, executive director of the San Diego County Council of Churches, said he was a relative newcomer to San Diego, but "I knew of the excellent relationships that existed among the various religious faiths of the area."

He said he realizes that "much of this is due to Bishop Buddy. His warm ecumenical spirit will be sorely missed, although we know that it will be carried forth by Bishop Furey."

In addition, the Rev. Mr. Keir said, "the beauty of the campus of the University of San Diego and the excellence of its scholastic achievements will remain as an everlasting memorial to Bishop Buddy."

Nathan Jerald, executive director of the San Diego region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, recalled that Bishop Buddy was honored by the organization at its 1964 citation banquet.

"Bishop Buddy played an important role in the tremendous improvement in Catholic-Protestant-Jewish relations," Jerald said.

George A. Scott, president of Walker-Scott Department Stores, said he was especially shocked by the bishop's death. He had just returned from a trip to find waiting him his mail a copy of "I Go Forth to Teach," the bishop's newly published book which the church leader had sent to him

Hands That Blessed

Some hands destroy — but his were raised to bless,
To sanctify, and consecrate, and raise
On sea-bathed shores, beside our sun-drenched bays,
In mountain glen, in desert wilderness,
Houses of God, new Sions, in distress
He sought Christ's poor, and led the sheep down ways
Of pasture — old and young he knew — his days
Were full — his work, his people's holiness.
Some hands destroy — HIS labored; broke the sod,
Ordained, confirmed, laid stones on which the glaze
Of sacred oil will outlast Time's slow mold.
Charles Francis Buddy, by the grace of God,
Our bishop, had a dream. It stands! What phrase
Of praise is worthy of those hands now cold?
Rev. William H. Sullivan, OSA

ECCE AGNUS DEI — Mirroring in his face the gratitude of his then eminently successful, eventful 70 years, Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy held aloft the Sacred Host as he celebrated his Mass of thanksgiving on the High Altar of the Basilica of Our Lady of Guadalupe in Mexico City in October, 1957. At the dinner feting him on his 70th birthday October 4, 1957, His Excellency said he was going to Mexico City to "lay at the feet of Our Lady of Guadalupe the burdens, sorrows and joys of the 70 years and pay to her a great tribute of loving gratitude." Bishop Buddy led the annual diocesan pilgrimage to the world-renowned shrine that year.

Diocese's First Ordinary

S.D. Mourns Bishop Buddy

A Solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem will be offered at 11 a.m. tomorrow (Friday) in St. Joseph's Cathedral for Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, first Bishop of the Diocese of San Diego.

Bishop Buddy died at the age of 78 of an apparent heart attack last Sunday morning in Banning, where he was to have conducted a Day of Recollection that day.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey will offer the Mass Friday. His Eminence James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Archbishop of Los Angeles, will preside, and Most Rev. Timothy Manning, Auxiliary Bishop of Los Angeles, will preach the sermon.

Bishop Buddy arrived in Banning Saturday night on a Confirmation tour. He spoke by telephone to Msgr. George M. Rice, rector of St. Joseph's Cathedral, early Sunday morning. Msgr. Rice said the Bishop was in good spirits.

When Bishop Buddy did not appear to celebrate Mass at 9 a.m. in Precious Blood church, Banning, a call was made to the Voyager Motel, where he was staying with his chauffeur, Jose Cervantes.

Cervantes and the motel manager went to the Bishop's room and when they received no response to their knocks, they called police who forced open the door. He was taken to a Banning hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

A message of condolence from his Holiness Pope Paul VI was cabled to Most Rev. Francis J. Furey by Amelto Cardinal Cigognani, Secretary of State.

The message reads: Holy Father has learned in deep sadness the death of Bishop Charles Buddy. Assures prayers for the repose of his soul. Lovingly imparts to the Diocese of San Diego paternal apostolic blessing.

From the Apostolic Delegate in the United States, Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, Bishop

Furey received the following message:

In deep sympathy I join Your Excellency, clergy, religious and laity of the Diocese of San Diego sorrowing over the death of Bishop Buddy. May the Divine Master reward his servant with the joys of heaven. In union of prayer.

The body of Bishop Buddy was taken to his private Chapel of the Holy Spirit on the second floor of the Chancery Building on the University of San Diego campus. The chapel is next to the living quarters he occupied for the last 12 years.

After the body was placed in the chapel by seminarians, Bishop Furey blessed the body. Present for the blessing were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Redmond, Sr., of San Diego, and their sons, Daniel Jr., of San Diego and Charles of La Mesa, and Mrs. Charles Redmond.

Mrs. Redmond, Sr., is the sister of Bishop Buddy. She is the youngest member of their family of two boys and five girls and the only one surviving.

The Rosary was recited Monday and Tuesday nights and four Masses were offered Tuesday and Wednesday mornings in the chapel.

The body was removed to the Immaculata on the Alcala Park campus at 4 p.m. Wednesday. Bishop Furey presided.

A Solemn High Mass of Requiem coram Pontifice was offered at 11 a.m. today (Thursday) by Rt. Rev. Msgr. William A. Bergin for the communities of Sisters in the diocese. Bishop Furey presided.

The body was taken to St. Joseph's Cathedral at 2 p.m. today (Thursday). Msgr. Rice then offered a Solemn High Mass of Requiem for school children of San Diego County. There will be recitation of the Rosary at 8 tonight.

Bishop Buddy was born October 4, 1887, in St. Joseph, Mo., the son of Charles Allen and Ann Farrell Buddy. After studies at the North American College in Rome, he was ordained to the sacred priesthood September 19, 1914, in the Basilica of St. John Lateran, the cathedral of Rome. After studying there for another year, Bishop Buddy returned to St. Joseph to take up his priestly duties.

Pope Pius XI appointed him to head the newly created Diocese of San Diego on October 28, 1936. He was consecrated a bishop on December 21, 1936, in St. Joseph's Cathedral, St. Joseph, and he was installed as the first Bishop of the San Diego diocese on February 3, 1937.

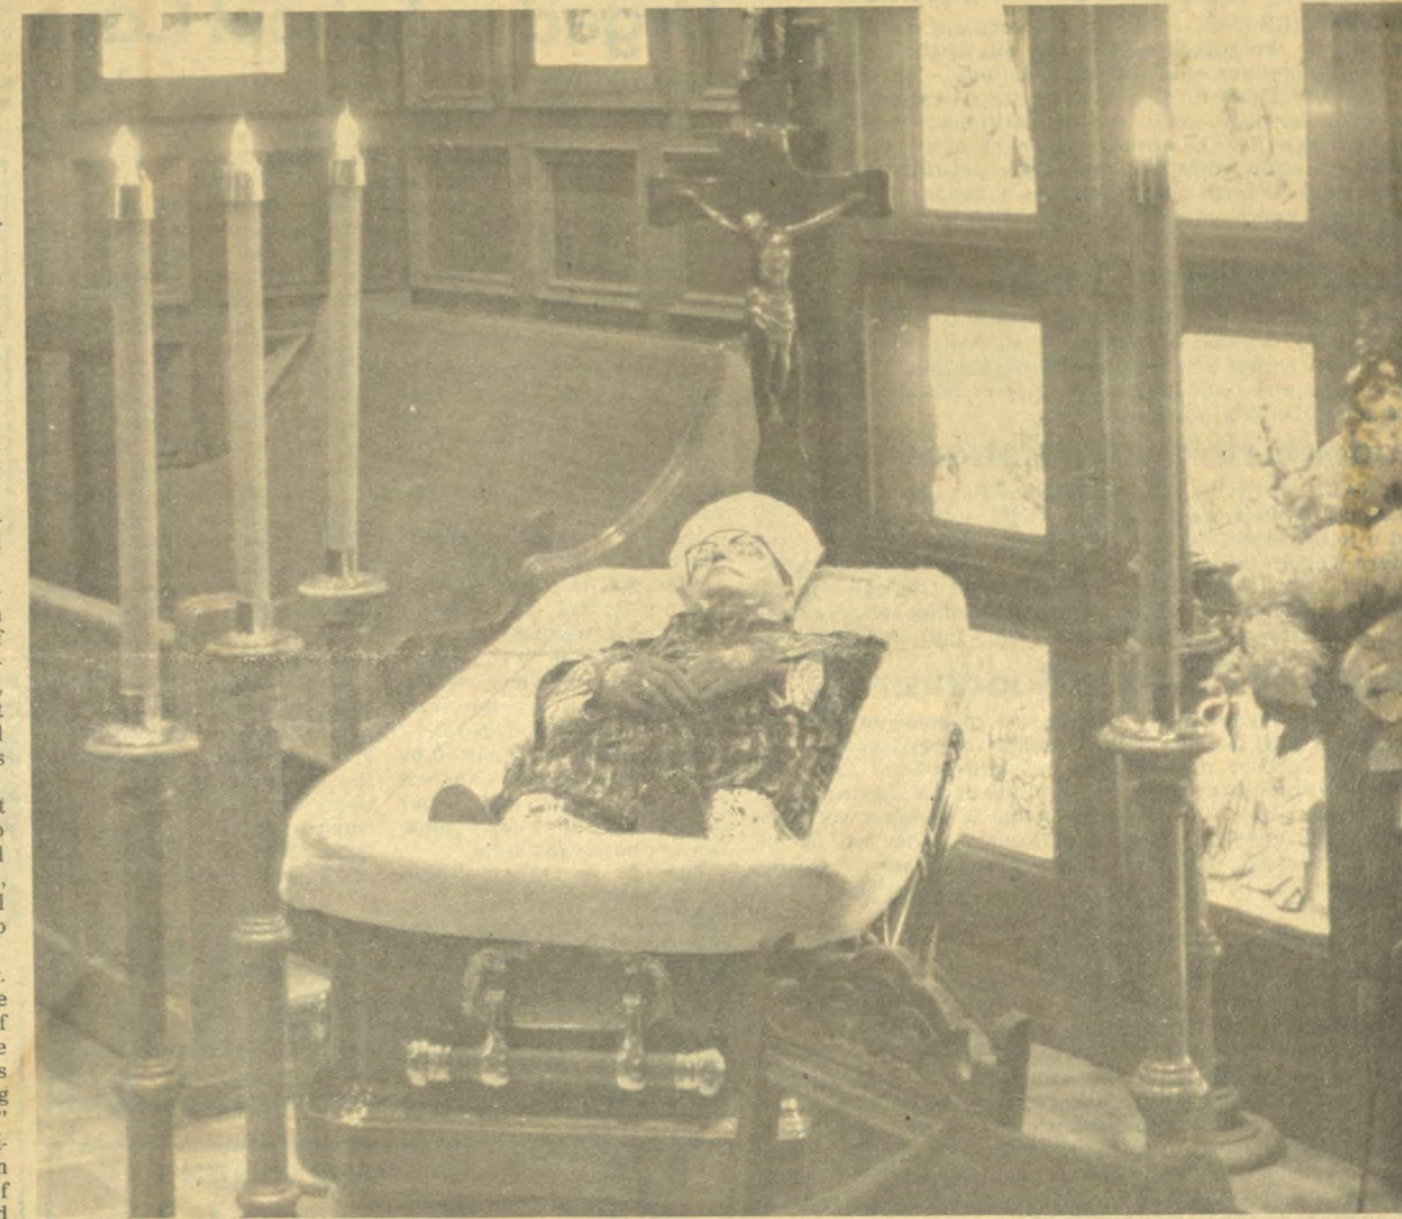

One of his happiest moments came in August, 1964, when hundreds of Bishops, priests, and friends gathered to pay him high tribute on the occasion of the golden jubilee of his ordination.

Said Bishop Buddy on that occasion: "The earth holds no happier heart than mine today."

Union Hails Legacy Left By Bishop

The following is an editorial published by the San Diego Union on Bishop Buddy's death.

The single sentence that most typifies the philosophy and work of the Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, Bishop of the San Diego Diocese, was eight words he spoke to Pope John XXIII in 1959.

"My greatest joy," he told the Pope, "is the Crusade for Souls."

Today, when Bishop Buddy has been taken from his beloved San Diego for a greater kingdom, the Crusade for Souls remains as one of the great accomplishments he left behind.

As the result of the Crusade to return strayed people back to His ways, hundreds of thousands of persons also will be able to enjoy eternal happiness in the Kingdom of God.

San Diego's greatest joy, when our sorrow at the loss of Bishop Buddy becomes less acute, is the fact that His Excellency graced our city for three decades of his more than half-century as a priest.

We are morally and physically a better community because of his presence. For while his goal always was spiritual, the bishop was keenly aware that many of the means were temporal. When a person came to him with a

Bishop Buddy Hailed As A Great Priest

Mourning the death of the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, Most Rev. Francis J. Furey praised the first Bishop of the Diocese of San Diego as "a great priest who pleased God in his lifetime."

Bishop Furey's message:

On the sad occasion of Bishop Buddy's death it is natural for us to think of the words we so often repeat in the Missal: "Here is a great priest who pleased God in his lifetime."

Bishop Buddy said these words over and over again as he celebrated his daily Mass. In his innate humility he would never dream of applying them to himself, yet today they seem amazingly appropriate.

His greatest glory was in his priesthood. Offering Mass, giving Holy Communion, hearing confessions, preaching, confirming, ordaining — these were the most important things in his life.

Because of them he will always be remembered as a man who was pleasing to God.

Bishop Buddy's deeds speak louder than words. His labors in the early pioneering days of the new Diocese of San Diego, his constant care for all his parishes, his concern for the poor, his thoughtlessness of self and this thoughtfulness of others, his contributions to the field of Catholic education, especially the University of San Diego, by all these will be remembered by countless generations yet unborn.

He did not seek, and he would not wish, words of praise. Rather would he have me ask that we keep him in our prayers, so that the Eternal High Priest may receive him into the blessedness of Heaven.

May his noble soul rest in peace!

Good Works Are Lauded By Tribune

The following is an editorial published by the San Diego Evening Tribune on the death of Bishop Buddy.

The San Diego Diocese and the community at large have lost to a higher dominion a great spiritual leader, patriot, educator and civic builder in the death of the Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy.

His Excellency, the first Catholic Bishop of San Diego and the spiritual heir to nearly 200 years of church history here, died Sunday in Banning. He was 78.

His life was a rich mosaic of saintliness, scholarship and tireless work in building his diocese. And as the last piece fell into place, there was, as always with Bishop Buddy, a fitness about the last mission he was to undertake.

He had gone to Banning to preside at a service called A Day of Recollection. The service was for school students and teachers.

Later he was to have confirmed a class of 79 persons, among them grammar school and high school students.

Students and teachers held a particularly warm spot in the heart of this man whose concern and compassion extended so wide and so deep into humanity.

The whole of his life is his legacy, of course.

MOST REV. TIMOTHY MANNING

Place in History Assured

Bishop Buddy Memory to Live As Great Religious Leader

Following is the eulogy delivered by Most Rev. Timothy Manning, Auxiliary Bishop of Los Angeles, at the obsequies in St. Joseph's Cathedral last Friday for Bishop Charles Francis Buddy.

About seven miles distance from Jerusalem there was an inn in a village called Emmaus. On Easter evening two travelers walked toward it from Jerusalem. They were weary from the journey, disillusioned by failure, and had surrendered as if to the awakening from a meaningless dream.

On the way they had been overtaken and enchanted by another Traveler, and, when they came to the inn, they had constrained Him to remain with them. "Stay with us," they said, "for it is toward evening and the day is now far spent."

Rested at Inn

Last Sunday, likewise at an inn, Charles Francis Buddy rested from a journey. He was weary with the weight of years; perhaps he too did struggle against the temptation to disillusionment and the seeming frustration of unfulfilled designs. The severances that death would ultimately demand of everyone were anticipated in him as if in rehearsal for it. It was already toward the sunset of his years and the day was far spent.

Yet suddenly it was dawn! His eyes were opened wondrously to see the vision of the unseen Companion of his earthly journeys revealed in glory. Snow-capped Gorgonio and Hemet, like Thabor and Hermon, gave place to the eternal hills.

Home from Hills

The fisherman was home from the seas with loaded nets, the shepherd was home from the hills, the servant sat at the banquet table with the Master. The empty hands were filled once more.

"All which I took from thee I did but take not for thy harms, But just that thou might'st seek it in my arms."

All which thy child's mistake fancies as lost, I have stored for thee at home.

Rise, clasp my hand, and come!

An ordinary man is doubly judged — what he is in the eyes of his contemporaries and what he is in the inscrutable searching of God. A greater man has a third evaluation, that what he is in the eyes of history. Insofar as human knowledge allows us to know, we would wish to give testimony at this moment to Bishop Buddy's claim to a place in history and to the indelible remembrances of him in the hearts of his contemporaries.

Longer Perspective

It is too facile entirely to catalogue the items of achievement in the pontificate of this Bishop. The number of parishes and schools, the increase in Catholic population, the growth of vocations. These and kindred facts can readily be found in the records of the journals of the day. The aggregate of them is not history. We are too near to signify what will survive. History needs a longer perspective. It must be left to another generation.

We would venture to hint at the shape of that history. These four counties comprised the last frontier of the Church in the United States. To the south, another nation with a climate then unfavorable to religion, westward the limitless ocean, easterly the desert, and to the north the new metropolitan community, jealous of rivals until she would become the mistress of the west.

Into this pocket, like a pilgrim, came the Missouri prelate, rich in a Roman tradition and in Roman friends, youthful as the prairie, handsome and noble in bearing. To the desert and the river and the sea he would give challenge. For him the faith knew no frontiers. His episcopate stands for a proof of his courage and his zeal. Higher education, seminary training, convert crusades, immigrant solicitude, literary ventures — all these were assembled to put the Church of the Diocese of San Diego prominently and progressively outdistancing most other sees in the network of jurisdictions that cover the United States.

The first bishop of a diocese is eternally a foundation rock to its progress, a founder of a dynasty to his successors and the prelude and cradle of its subsequent greatness. Charles Buddy was all this, and his name now stands linked with Garcia Diego, Joseph Alemany and Eugene O'Connell, founders of the hierarchical church in California.

Yes, we may safely predict that the memory of Bishop Buddy will live as a great churchman and as a champion in a chapter of salvation history here in California.

Leaves Imprint

Bishop Buddy inevitably leaves an imprint on the memories of his contemporaries. His bearing was consciously noble, his voice a soft vehicle for the native kindness of the heart. Tension and compression are to be expected in any administration. There are many problems to be faced, acute decisions to be made. Often there is a move begun on information unknown to the critics of that action.

Memorial Fund Set For Bishop Buddy

A Bishop Buddy Memorial Fund for educational purposes has been established in honor of the late Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, first Bishop of the Diocese of San Diego, Most Rev. Francis J. Furey announced this week.

Bishop Furey said it was decided to establish the fund in response to requests of many persons to do something in memory of Bishop Buddy, who died March 6. It will be used for scholarships and financial assistance to students in Catholic schools and possibly for building funds for these institutions.

Sending Donations

"People actually were sending in donations to be used for whatever Bishop Buddy would have liked done," Rt. Rev. Msgr. James T. Booth, chancellor, said.

"One of Bishop Buddy's pet projects was education," Msgr. Booth said, "so it was decided to start an educational fund."

A "surprising amount" already has been donated, Msgr. Booth said. "Most of the parishes have started receiving donations," he added.

Bishop Buddy was the guiding light in the establishment of the University of San Diego. The university includes the College for Women, College for Men, School of Law, and School Theology.

Those wishing to contribute to the Bishop Buddy Memorial Fund may do so by making checks payable to the Diocese of San Diego and sending them to Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Bishop of the Diocese of San Diego, or to the Chancery, Alcala Park, San Diego 92110.

Plan to Spur Vocations Underway

Plans for setting up a four-year program for boys interested in the priesthood are being formulated in connection with the Pre-Seminary Department at University High School recently established by Most Rev. Francis J. Furey.

The director of the new department, Father Patrick J. O'Keefe, has completed visitation of all parochial schools in the city and county of San Diego and states the new program has been enthusiastically received by teachers, students, and parents. With the cooperation of the pastors, parents clubs and parish organizations have had the program explained to them.

Father O'Keefe used as a basis for talks, both to the children and their parents, the idea that if the boys "think, pray and inquire now and throughout their high school years, they will come to know of and preserve a vocation to the priesthood, if God so will."

It is hoped through special courses to acquaint those in the program with the life of a priest, as a teacher, counselor, dispenser of the sacraments and the savior of souls. They also will take the college preparatory course which every student takes at University High.

Periodic Afternoons of Recollection will be planned throughout the year and the boys will be encouraged to take a more active part in their own parishes, serving Mass and helping their pastors wherever needed. The boys also will take part in all phases of high school activity, academic, athletic, and social.

Requests have been made to diocesan organizations for grants to help boys who are financially unable to enroll in this program. Private donations have been received with which a pre-seminary bursary has been established. With the help of the Serra Club, a lay speakers committee will endeavor to acquaint Catholics with the dire need for vocations to the religious state.

Plans are being made to use the Serra Club's films in the Parish Grade Schools and High Schools of Religion. If the response warrants it, the program will be made available on weekends for boys.

Evening devotions consisting of sermon and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. During the women's week a special Mass will be scheduled at 9:30 each morning.

AT OBSEQUIES — Religious, civic, military, and business leaders from the four counties of the diocese filled St. Joseph's Cathedral to overflowing last Friday in a final great tribute to Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, first Bishop of San Diego, who died unexpectedly March 6 in Banning while on a Confirmation tour. Hundreds of the faithful failed to gain admittance in the 1,250-seat cathedral.

Mission Set At St. Rita's

Father Stephen Gibbons, OSM, and Father Dominic Albino, OSM, priests of the Servite Order will conduct a two week Mission at St. Rita's 5124 Churchward street, starting on Sunday, March 20, the Fourth Sunday of Lent.

The first week of the Mission will be for women. The second week, ending Palm Sunday, April 3, will be men's week.

Mission services will include daily Masses at 6 and 8:15 a.m. and at 6 p.m. A brief instruction will be given after each Mass.

Evening devotions consisting of sermon and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. During the women's week a special Mass will be scheduled at 9:30 each morning.

Requiem for Bishop Buddy

Cardinal, 21 Bishops, 400 Priests Attend

"Yes, we may safely predict that the memory of Bishop Buddy will live as a great churchman and as a champion in a chapter of salvation history here in California."

These words epitomized the eulogy delivered by Most Rev. Timothy Manning, Auxiliary Bishop of Los Angeles, at the obsequies for Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy in St. Joseph's Cathedral last Friday.

His Eminence James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Archbishop of Los Angeles, presided at the services. Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Bishop of San Diego, offered the Solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem.

Some 20 bishops and more than 400 priests attended the obsequies. Hundreds of persons were unable to find accommodations in the more than 1,250-seat cathedral.

Bishop Buddy died suddenly in Banning on March 6. He had arrived the previous afternoon in the northern area of the diocese for episcopal functions during the next several days.

Bishop Furey, who had been apostolic administrator of the diocese and coadjutor bishop with the right of succession since September, 1965, automatically succeeds a Bishop of San Diego.

Bishop Buddy was such a man, designed by nature and graced by God, to have been the center of the jurisdiction's movements for now these 30 years.

Memory of Bishop - A Great Churchman

Charles Buddy was enthroned in this same sanctuary as the first Bishop of San Diego, he fashioned his own epitaph. These are his very words:

"In the midst of all, our rejoicing this morning there must neither be misgivings nor false notions about the future. One thought stays with me: sooner or later the ring that now encircles this finger will encircle nothing but dust and ashes."

Epitaph Verified

Today this epitaph is verified in our eyes. We commend his mortal remains to the kind earth, we present his memory to be enshrined in the hearts of those who have known and loved him; that which is symbolized by his ring to see entrusted to his successor, for he takes to wife this diocese as a man his brother's widow. His soul we commend to God. May he be united to his fellow-laborers and friends who have gone before him in the sign of faith and sleep the sleep of peace. To them, O Lord, and to all those who rest in Christ we pray you to grant a place of refreshment, light and peace.

Fr. Shipley Slates Talks

William Shipley, chairman of the Philosophy Department at the University of San Diego College for Men, will give four lectures on pre-marital sex, marriage, and birth control at More Hall, the Law School building of the University of San Diego. All lectures will begin at 7:30 p.m.

400 Priests In Attendance

The text of Bishop Manning's eulogy is printed elsewhere on this page.

Survivors include Mrs. Daniel Redmond, Sr, sister, youngest and only surviving member of the immediate Buddy family and several nieces and nephews.

Entombment was in Holy Cross Mausoleum.

CARDINAL PRESIDES — His Eminence James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Archbishop of Los Angeles, presided at the Solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem for Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, first Bishop of San Diego, offered by Most Rev. Francis J. Furey in St. Joseph's Cathedral last Friday. Some 20 Bishops from throughout the west and south attended, along with more than 400 priests.

Highlights of Bishop Buddy's Eventful Years

ENTERTAINING VICE PRESIDENT — During his work-filled years as first Bishop of San Diego, Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy greeted leading personages from throughout the world. Here he shows plaque on wall of Arts and Science Building to Richard Nixon, then vice president of the United States, and Mrs. Nixon, commemorating dedication of the building by the vice president. Nixon was presented an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at commencement exercises of the College for Men.

to right, James S. Copley, chairman of the corporation publishing the Copley newspapers; U. S. District Court Judge Jacob Weinberger, and Nat (King) Cole, late famous singing star. The awards were presented for exceptional and devoted service.

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE VISITS — One of the highlights of 1960 was the visit to the University of San Diego campus by Most Rev. Egidio Vagnozzi, Apostolic Delegate in the United States. Archbishop Vagnozzi, left, was accompanied by James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles. They are shown with Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy being greeted at the College for Women during a tour of the Alcala Park campus.

AD LIMINA VISIT — Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy is shown in his stateroom on an ocean liner as he sails from New York City for Rome and an Ad Limina visit with Pope John XXIII in 1959. During his visit with Pope John, Bishop Buddy told the Holy Father that "my greatest joy is the Crusade for Souls." When briefed on the crusade, Pope John expressed lively esteem and encouragement, Bishop Buddy reported on his return.

Women on the USD campus. Shown seated left to right on the occasion are Rt. Rev. Msgr. James P. O'Shea, editor of The Southern Cross; Rt. Rev. George M. Rice, rector of St. Joseph's Cathedral; His Excellency, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. William A. Bergin. Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Storm stands at microphone at right.

LAW SCHOOL PROGRAM — Law School commencement exercises also shared the attention of Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy during the years. The School of Law was the last of the major colleges of the University of San Diego to be established by His Excellency on the Alcala Park campus. It is rapidly gaining rank as one of the outstanding law schools on the Pacific Coast. Bishop Buddy is shown addressing the graduates, relatives and friends. Also shown, seated at center, are Rt. Rev. Msgr. William A. Bergin, then rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary and now pastor of Holy Spirit parish, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. James P. O'Shea, editor of The Southern Cross. Busy as he was, Bishop Buddy always was ready to aid the cause of education at Alcala Park.

GOLDEN JUBILEE — One of Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy's happiest moments came in August, 1964, when prelates, priests, and his host of friends joined in paying him heart-felt tribute on the occasion of the golden jubilee of his ordination to the sacred priesthood. Deeply moved by the flood of warm tributes, Bishop Buddy said, "The earth holds no happier heart than mine today." Shown at the head table on the occasion are, left to right, Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Thomas Cardinal Tien, exiled Archbishop of Peking, China; Bishop Buddy, and Most Rev. Gerald Bergin, Archbishop of Omaha, Neb. Archbishop Bergin was co-consecrator at Bishop Buddy's consecration.

MILITARY CHAPLAINS — During World II, Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy was vicar delegate of the Southwest military area, including the Archdiocese of Los Angeles, the Diocese of San Diego, and the states of Arizona and New Mexico. He supervised Catholic clergymen serving as military chaplains. He is shown entertaining a group of military chaplains stationed in the area after conducting a retreat for them.

CHURCH DEDICATION — One of the many duties that brought justifiable pride to the heart of Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy was the dedication of new churches. And through the years, Bishop Buddy established more than 100 parishes and later dedicated their new churches. Here he is shown dedicating Blessed Sacrament church in East San Diego, one of the outstanding churches in the diocese. Blessed Sacrament was one of the first parishes established by Bishop Buddy after becoming first Bishop of the San Diego diocese. It was established in 1938.

Good Works Are Lauded By Tribune

But as many noted, when word of his death was received, the magnificent University of San Diego in Alcala Park will be a lasting monument to his greatness in service to all mankind.

And yet this is only part of the tangible works he left behind him. During Bishop Buddy's 30-year tenure here, the San Diego diocese increased from 67 to 224 parishes. Not only schools, but hospitals, clinics, recreation centers and day nurseries have been built.

The building of the university brought into focus another facet in the character of Bishop Buddy: his warm ecumenical spirit and his influence across denominational lines.

He never failed to credit Protestant and Jewish leaders in the community for their generous co-operation in building the university.

The breadth and depth of his influence, temporal as well as spiritual, can be measured in the communitywide expression of sorrow and sense of loss at his death.

The words of one friend and admirer succinctly summed up the life and works of this good man who has lived among us.

"Bishop Buddy inherited few material values when three decades ago he assumed responsibility for establishing the Diocese of San Diego," he recalled.

"His inheritance largely was a challenge. He planned wisely, he built with love and understanding for his Church, and his spiritual and material accomplishments long will endure."

San Diego and its people are better because Bishop Buddy passed our way.

Growth of Diocese Traced from Start

story. Inaugurated by the Bishop in 1951, the crusade is designed to reclaim the lapsed Catholic and to extend to interested non-Catholics the benefits of religion.

From door to door and floor to floor trained lay committees go once a year to invite and accompany to religion classes at rectories and halls those who choose to attend. A major contribution to parochial life, and one commended by the Holy See, the crusade has helped more than 15,000 into the Church.

The University of San Diego crowns and completes the educational edifice the Bishop has built. A dream the Bishop dreamed in 1937 and fondled through the years, it emerged gradually in the fifties as one of California's finest examples of Colonial Spanish architecture and one of San Diego's proudest boasts.

Located near the spot overlooking San Diego Bay where Junipero Serra planted the Cross, the Alcala Park campus includes seven major units.

They are the College for Women, opened in September, 1962; the College for Men, opened in September, 1954; the School of Law, opened in September, 1954; Immaculate Heart Seminary, opened in February, 1957; the Immaculate, university church, dedicated in May, 1959; Knights of Columbus Memorial Library opened in May, 1958, and the Administration Building opened in April, 1954.

Other units erected on the Alcala Park campus are the Verona Fathers seminary, University Boys High School and the Athletic Center.

Bishop Buddy never ceased to make it known publicly that Protestants and Jews as well as Catholics helped him to finance construction of this multi-million dollar institution.

Before his reign ended, the founding bishop of the diocese saw to it that Catholic youth in public secondary schools were provided with courses in religion. For this purpose he has established the Parish High School of Religion in 1961.

Today some 12,000 teenagers in the public high schools throughout the four counties of the diocese are instructed in the doctrines and practices of their faith. In addition some 36,600 students in public elementary schools as well as 30,000 in Catholic schools and colleges receive a proper religious education.

At the end of his life he could say that Father Junipero Serra did not sow in vain.

Union Hails Legacy Left By Bishop

spiritual or physical need, Bishop Buddy never asked the man's faith but gave of himself unstintingly to fill the need.

As a result of his zeal, energy, acumen and towering personality, the diocese of San Diego increased Catholic parishes from 67 to more than 220 to strengthen the work of saving souls, hospitals, schools, clinics, recreation centers and day nurseries were constructed to serve and take care of other needs of humanity.

Alcala Park, the "Fortress on the Hill," one of the outstanding institutions of its kind, will fortunately serve to carry on the spiritual and educational tradition of Bishop Buddy.

This is the legacy the late Bishop Buddy has left for us — the spiritual philosophy and wisdom that will lead us to eternal happiness, and the physical base of churches, cathedrals and educational institutions to accomplish the goal.

The philosophy expressed during his sunset years is particularly appropriate: "Take a stand with Christ. Do not argue with temptation on it. In the sacraments we receive nourishment and strength to triumph over evil. If the human heart were explored, it would reveal a vast wealth of affection that could heal the wounds of mankind."

Proper recognition for his work has come from persons of all faiths and from many lands. One of the great honors he received was selection as Assistant to the Pontifical Throne by Pope Paul VI in 1963.

Today the San Diego area prays and grieves over the loss of Bishop Buddy, consoled somewhat only by the thought that he now serves as assistant at a higher throne.

High Tributes Paid Bishop by Leaders

Scott, who was president of the Fiesta del Pacifico, recalled the bishop leading all-faith prayers at the Fiesta five years ago. "He was far ahead in the ecumenical movement," said Scott.

Phillip L. Gildred, dean of the consular corps in San Diego, said the group will feel the loss of Bishop Buddy greatly.

"We thought very highly of his person, his actions and his thoughts," Gildred said.

The Rev. Grandison Phelps, president of the Southeast Ministerial Alliance and pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church, said "the influence he exerted across denominational lines will not be easy to fill by another."

Mayor Curran called Bishop Buddy "a great leader" and a "great citizen of San Diego." He said the bishop contributed a good deal to the community "primarily in the field of education with the establishment of the University of San Diego and its kindred organizations."

Curran said Bishop Buddy "certainly has left a mark on our community which will be a continuing tribute to his interest in the expansion of education."

James S. Copley, publisher of The San Diego Union and the Evening Tribune:

"Our nation and our southland have lost a great spiritual leader, patriot, educator and civic builder."

"Bishop Buddy inherited few material values when three decades ago he assumed responsibility for establishing the Diocese of San Diego. His inheritance largely was a challenge. He planned wisely, he built with love and understanding for his Church and his spiritual and material accomplishments long will endure."

The University of San Diego with its magnificent buildings in Alcala Park will be a lasting monument to his greatness in service to all mankind."

De Graff Austin, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, knew Bishop Buddy for many years.

"He grew up with several of my cousins in St. Joseph, Mo.," Austin said. "The news of his death is sad news for all." Austin lauded Bishop Buddy's "faithful service" and the establishment of "a vast and splendid educational system."

Max Streicher, foreman of the grand jury, said Bishop Buddy "left a great impact on this area."

"San Diego is a much greater place for his being here," said Streicher. "I treasured his friendship very much. He was one of my dearest friends."

The Most Rev. Alfredo Galindo Mendoza, bishop of the Tijuana Catholic Diocese, praised Bishop Buddy for his close liaison with Tijuana.

"He was a great benefactor of the Tijuana seminary and a good friend," Bishop Galindo said.

The Rev. John James Barbour, pastor of Central Congregational Church of La Mesa, recalled some advice he received from Bishop Buddy when he was discharged from the Navy 20 years ago.

"I was debating about remaining in San Diego, and the bishop convinced me," the Rev. Mr. Barbour said. "He said that after you're here a year you like it; after two years you love it, and after three years you catch yourself lying about it."

Maj. Gen. Bruno Hochmuth, commanding officer of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, said, "This is a great loss to San Diego. All the Marines, and I'm sure all of his friends, will miss him greatly."

Murray Goodrich, civic leader who headed a $3.5 million drive for the University of San Diego, said:

"It came as a tremendous shock to learn that one of my closest, dearest friends had been lost to me," Goodrich said. "I'm only happy that I was able to visit the Bishop two weeks ago..."

Toreros Face Air Force Nine

The University of San Diego Toreros baseball team meets the Air Force Academy in a double-header at noon this Saturday in Westgate Park.

The Toreros are 9-6 for the season and 4-2 in Southern California Athletic Conference competition after two league victories and a loss last weekend.

The Toreros met Cal Western yesterday, travel to Pasadena tomorrow afternoon and meet San Diego State next.

THE AMERICAN TRADITION: The great use of a life is to spend it for something that outlasts it.—William James.

Bishop Buddy's Good Works Long Will Endure Among Us

The San Diego Diocese and the community at large have lost to a higher dominion a great spiritual leader, patriot, educator and civic builder in the death of the Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy.

His Excellency, the first Catholic bishop of San Diego and the spiritual heir to nearly 200 years of church history here, died Sunday in Banning. He was 78.

His life was a rich mosaic of saintliness, scholarship and tireless work in building his diocese. And as the last piece fell into place, there was, as always with Bishop Buddy, a fitness about the last mission he was to undertake.

He had gone to Banning to preside at a service called A Day of Recollection. The service was for school students and teachers.

Later he was to have confirmed a class of 79 persons, among them grammar school and high school students.

Students and teachers held a particularly warm spot in the heart of this man whose concern and compassion extended so wide and so deep into humanity.

The whole of his life is his legacy, of course.

But as many noted, when word of his death was received, the magnificent University of San Diego in Alcala Park will be a lasting monument to his greatness in service to all mankind.

And yet this is only part of the tangible works he left behind him.

During Bishop Buddy's 30-year tenure here, the San Diego diocese increased from 67 to 224 parishes. Not only schools, but hospitals, clinics, recreation centers and day nurseries have been built.

RECORD TURNOUT FOR UNIVERSITY DISPLAY

Sister Mary Samuel, from Dominican College in San Rafael, pointed out the religious values. Brother U. Cassian, from St. Mary's College in Moraga, stressed the educational values. Sister Catherine Julie, from Notre Dame in Belmont, was very persuasive in pointing out the social values of a Catholic higher education. Mr. Leo O'Brien, from the U.S.F. Law School, caused his adult listeners to reflect on their own professional ethics, were they living up to the influence of their Catholic training? Father I. Brent Egan, from the University of San Diego introduced their financial expert, Mr. Pearson, to carry the explanation of the financial problems and possible solutions.

Following the panel discussion many members of the audience proposed questions to panel members. All questions were given thoughtful and satisfactory answers, leaving many thought-provoking observations in the minds of the audience. Mr. Val King as moderator did a superb job in wrapping up this educational exhibit.

The grant is for the preparation of a "mathematics for management" text principally for underdeveloped nations.

Tennis Team Plans Future

Led by head coach, Father Thomas Carlin, and assistant coach, Frank Ponce, the University of San Diego's College for Men tennis team has started a drive toward establishing tennis as a major sport at USD.

The nine-man team is largely comprised of freshmen with little experience in tennis competition. Senior Bret Hayward, a transfer student from San Diego City College, is the only member of the squad that has previously participated in intercollegiate tennis.

Several of the freshmen on the squad are former prep stars. Among them are Bob Cota, first man on Granite Hill's team and all CIF player, Greg Vervais, first man on El Cerrito High School's squad, and Mike Springer, first man on Villanova Prep's tennis team.

The USD six will close out the season with California Western University on May 1.

Dr. Miller will spend the summer at the International Labor Organization headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, preparing material for the text. While in Geneva, Dr. Miller will also be a member of a United Nations economics-management team mission to several of the eastern European nations.

He will also present a paper in Zurich, Switzerland, at the Duttweiler Institute for Economic and Social Studies, which is attended by senior European business managers. Dr. Miller's paper will deal with the applications of mathematics in economics and management-econometrics.

Miller received his B.A. and M.A. from University of Miami and his Ph.D. from Bryn Mawr. Previous teaching assignments include positions at Villanova University, the University of Florida and the University of Southern California. Dr. Miller is a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army Reserves and resides with his wife and two sons at 3430 Hawk Street, San Diego.

Professor At USD Gets U.N. Grant

A United Nations grant of $5,000 for preparation of a mathematics textbook has been awarded Robert E. Miller, 43, chairman of the division of economics and business at the University of San Diego College for Men.

The announcement was made by the Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, college president.

Miller is scheduled to spend the summer at the International Labor Organization headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, preparing material for the work on "mathematics for management."

While in Geneva, Miller also will be a member of the U.N. economics-management team mission to several of the eastern European nations, according to Father Cadden.

Co-ed University Near San Diego Bay

The University of San Diego is one of 12 diocesan colleges and universities throughout the nation.

The Most Reverend Charles F. Buddy, first Bishop of San Diego, was the founder of the university, which was chartered and empowered to grant degrees in 1949 by the State of California.

The Most Reverend Francis J. Furey, Apostolic Administrator of the Diocese of San Diego, is the chancellor and president of the university, which is situated on a 221-acre campus in the metropolitan community of San Diego, a city of half a million people.

The campus, with 12 buildings of Spanish Renaissance architecture, is located high on a hill commanding a view of San Diego harbor, Mission Bay, and the Pacific ocean.

The university offers the following degrees: bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, master of arts, master of arts in teaching, and doctor of laws.

It is composed of five units—the College for Women, the College for Men, the School of Law, the School of Theology, and St. Francis College located in El Cajon.

The colleges are accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges and the School of Law is accredited by the State Bars of California and New York and approved by the American Bar Association.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE

The college for women, the first unit of the university established, is conducted by the Religious of the Sacred Heart and offers majors in the following fields leading to the bachelor of arts degree: art, biology, chemistry, French, English, history, mathematics, music, philosophy, political science, psychology, sociology, Spanish, speech and theatre arts.

Minors may be elected in these fields and in economics, German, Italian, and physics.

Pre-professional programs lead to studies in medical technology, law, and medicine.

The college is empowered by the California State Board of Education to recommend candidates for the California standard credential with specialization in elementary and secondary education, and has inaugurated the program leading to the credential for teachers of the mentally handicapped.

Graduate work for the master's degree is offered in English, history, social sciences, French, Spanish and education.

Besides extensive classroom and laboratory facilities, buildings include a chapel, 1000-seat theatre, a library designed to house 250,000 volumes, and a residence area.

The college for men, conducted by the Diocese of San Diego, offers programs leading to the degrees of bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, and master of arts in teaching.

Students may major in biology, business administration, chemistry, economics, English, history, mathematics, philosophy, physics, political science, and psychology.

PROFESSIONAL

In addition, there are pre-professional programs in medicine, dentistry, and law. Courses leading to the California standard credential with a specialization in secondary education are offered.

An in-service education program enables a graduate to receive a salary during the fifth year of graduate studies.

In general, freshmen follow academic courses based on a broad foundation of humanistic studies, as a firm basis for later specialization. Provision is made for both academic and personal counseling, according to the desires or needs of the students.

A guidance and counseling center is available to all students. Freshmen are encouraged to make use of this facility from the outset of their college careers.

All students under 21 who are not living with parents or relatives live on campus in the college's apartment facilities and take their meals in the university cafeteria.

A distinguishing feature of the university's activities is the joint social program between the college for women and college for men, including musical and dramatic productions, university chamber orchestra, film forum, social and sports events, forensic society, and publications.

The university recreation center, including an Olympic-size swimming pool, is open to all students. Freshmen are allowed to pledge one of the three fraternities approved by the college in the second semester of the first year. There is an active intramural and intercollegiate athletic program.

The school of law is coeducational and open to students of all faiths and races, who meet the scholastic requirements for admission—a baccalaureate degree from an approved college or university and a satisfactory score in the law school admission test.

The school offers a three-year full-time day program and a four-year part-time program (evening school), both leading to the degree of doctor of laws.

SURVEY INDICATES AVERAGES

4-Year College Costs $5,000

If you have $3,372 to $5,964 laid away, your money worries are over for four years of attending a San Diego college or university.

Provided, however, that you live at home and do not figure cost of your meals.

If you live in campus dormitories, and include boarding costs, the range at San Diego colleges and universities is $6,408 to $10,500 from the freshman through senior years.

Of course, the best bargains of all are public junior colleges. Mesa College, for example, calculates the cost of two years' attendance at $728, excluding room and board.

These figures — all subject to a large number of variables — indicate that an insurance company's suggestion of a $5,000 reserve for four years of higher education is not out of line.

If the estimates sound high, consider 15 years from now when some projections are more than one-third, and almost 50 per cent larger, than they are today.

The picture for 1981 has pertinence for anyone with a pre-school child of 3 or 4. It also affords a rough gauge of climbing costs for anyone in elementary or secondary grades — or even cradles.

Scholarship money is available to some. So are other types of grants and, increasingly popular, low-interest loans repayable after graduation.

Nevertheless, says the Educational Research Division of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., at least 100,000 young Americans fail to enter college each year because they lack the money.

A Ford Foundation survey shows that 60 per cent of the parents whose children were not yet in college had no plan to provide for college expenses.

Among parents in high-income brackets, the survey showed 58 per cent had savings plans averaging $670 a year.

Only 38 per cent of those in average income brackets are saving for college — at about $100 a year.

The survey found the average family with one child was saving $140 a year for college; with two children, $150; and with three or more children, $180.

BONDS PURCHASED

About six per cent of families saving for college have government bonds, according to the Ford Foundation.

Under a regular bond-a-month purchase plan, the monthly investment of $18.75 (for a $25 bond) can amount to $4,461 after 15 years. A monthly investment of $37.50 (for a $50 bond) brings back $5,378 in 10 years, or $2,428 in five years.

About 11 per cent of parents in the Ford Foundation survey said they are setting aside college funds in savings accounts.

Assuming 4 per cent interest (it is higher than that in California savings and loan associations) $5,000 can be reached at age 18 by putting away $20.55 a month when a child is aged 3; or $34.25 a month when a child is 8; or $76.10 a month when a child is 13.

INCREASE PLANNED

The Ford survey — quoted with unsurprising approval by the insurance firm — showed parents preferred savings plans based on life insurance for funds to pay for a college education.

Among San Diego institutions estimating attendance costs 15 years from now, the University of San Diego's College for Men attributed much of its increase to a plan to double faculty salaries.

Salaries at this non-publicly supported college now are as high as $10,000 for the teaching staff. The college hopes to bring these to $20,000 by raising tuition, currently $800 a year, to $1,600 by 1981.

UP TO STUDENTS

At the low-cost end of the scale, the tax-supported Mesa College is typical of area junior colleges in the amount of financial burden that is up to the students.

Per semester there is a $7.50 student body fee and a $5 parking fee. College officials estimate costs of books at $50, supplies $20, lunches $50 and transportation $50, emphasizing that the latter two figures are purely arbitrary.

First in Four

Four divisions comprised the forensics portion of the tournament, with USD winning a first in all four classes. Freshman Ray Sherman was a double awardee with ratings of superior and first place in impromptu and in extempore.

William Hammond, also a freshman, won superior and first place awards in persuasion. Brothers Anthony and Dennis Sinclitico, sophomore and junior students respectively, also contributed to the victory. Anthony Sinclitico won superior and first place awards in Interp, while Dennis Sinclitico helped team-mate Bill Sink to a 4-1 record in the men's debate division of the tournament.

USD Law Review Cites Legal Views

By CHARLES DAVIS

The San Diego Union's Education Writer

Associate Justice Tom C. Clark of the U.S. Supreme Court favors a plan for law students to deepen their insights by working with defense attorneys in federal courts.

Stanley Mosk, associate justice of the California Supreme Court, tells of court decisions on sovereign liability that mean strides in providing remedies for men wronged by their governments.

And Walter A. Rafalko, a Duquesne University law professor, writes of struggles among overlapping districts and municipal authorities in urban development.

The place where these views come together is between the covers of the third San Diego Law Review, student-edited journal of the University of San Diego School of Law.

Not every law school publishes a journal but Dean Joseph A. Sinclitico Jr. believes that, among those which do, it is a reflection of the school's activity and worth.

He believes the San Diego Law Review is a commendable reflection for a school that is still new and small.

The first edition of the Review came out in 1964, when the school contained seven day students and 16 in its night classes. It included an address by Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz.

Another edition came out last year. And the latest put out by a student staff including 11 editors headed by Alonzo K. Wood III, recently emerged from the presses.

Wood, who will be graduated this spring, sees his work on the Review — and that of the other students involved — as providing research opportunities not otherwise available.

The editorial board was appointed in February, 1965. Basic research continued into September, followed by two or three months of writing, rewriting and editing.

40 May Get 2nd Chance At Draft Test

Number Missed Examination in Mixup at USD

The 40 youths who missed the draft deferment exams at the University of San Diego last Saturday because the exams weren't there may get another chance this Saturday.

It depends on whether the tests arrive on time, according to Father I. B. Eagen, director of school relations at the university.

Draft exam officials at the Science Research Corp. in Chicago took full blame for the foul-up that left the 40 young draft eligibles cooling their heels at the university Saturday for a test that never appeared.

1,200 Take Exam

About 1,200 other young men took the test at San Diego State, the University of California at San Diego and Southwestern College near Chula Vista.

Ronald Bowker, test director of the Chicago firm under contract with federal draft officials to prepare and grade the tests, told newsmen that San Diego University officials had informed his company that they would not be able to administer the test last Saturday, but the word came too late to relay the word to the youths directed to appear for the test.

40 Tests Mailed

Father Eagen said he has been told the 40 tests scheduled for last Saturday have been mailed to the university. If the tests arrive in time, he said, the 40 youths will be able to take the test this Saturday along with about 400 already scheduled for testing this Saturday.

Another testing date, here as well as across the nation, is June 3, test officials said. Those who miss the tests originally offered can re-register for a "make-up" test scheduled for June 24, officials said.

Prof. Paul Theil Speaks Sunday On Viet Nam

Prof. A. Paul Theil, chairman of the Department of Political Science at the University of San Diego, College for Men, will address some 400 officers and men of the San Diego Cavalry Reserve Squadron at the Armory this Sunday. The topic of the address is "Political Dilemma in Viet Nam."

The subject matter of the address will trace the political evolution of the United States' commitment in Viet Nam from the days of World War II during which the enemy today was a good friend and gave considerable help to the Allies in the Viet Minh's struggle against the occupation of the Japanese; and the political reasons for the change in attitude in the post-war world from one of friendliness to hostility.

Further, Prof. Theil will offer the premise of another aspect in the present United States policy other than military engagement. He will explore the possibility that containment of the Communist power in the Southeast Asian area includes the necessity for a number of seaports along the Viet Nam coast from which American vessels can operate in the event where a quarantine of the China mainland becomes necessary at some future date.

Prof. Theil has spent the past 20 years in activities connected with international politics in the South-Southeast Asian area. His address on Sunday is part of the Army Orientation program which frequently engages civilian specialists in vital areas to lecture the officers and men.

Cal Western, USD To Compete In Surf Meet

San Diego will soon make another "first" in surfing.

When California Western University and the University of San Diego meet April 24 at 8 a.m. at a spot called "The Pipes," it will be the first intercollegiate surfing match in the history of the sport.

Twelve men from each college will compete in a contest they hope will spark interest among West Coast colleges and lead to the possible formation of an organized league.

"We hope to set up an intercollegiate league through the physical education departments of several West Coast colleges and their surfing associations," said contest director Jim Henry of Cal Western. "With surfing becoming more and more recognized as a competitive sport, we feel this league is a thing of the near future."

The Pipes area is a half mile south of the self-realization fellowship buildings in Encinitas on Highway 101.

Contestants will wear wetsuits and colorfully flowered swim suits. Cal Western cheerleaders will wear swim suits also.

The winning team will be determined by the total number of points amassed by the team members in preliminary heats.

Semi-finals and finals will determine first, second and third places and a paddling team relay race will conclude the contest and will be worth points in the competition.

Prominent San Diego surfers Chuck Hasley, Carl Ekstrom and Steve Jenner will judge the contest.

A perpetual trophy will go to the winning team, with mugs and Kim-Tim swimwear going to individual place winners.

Jacobsen Honored at USD Banquet

By BILL WEURDING
EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer

"Words come hard at a time like this," Von Jacobsen began. "I feel very humble accepting this award. I would just like to thank those who made it all possible."

Jacobsen had just been presented a three-foot trophy for being chosen the San Diego-CIF basketball player of the year and the crowd of 250 generously applauded the Crawford High star as he returned to his seat.

BOB SPEIDEL
Coach of the year

Words came hard for a lot of persons last night at the third annual San Diego County basketball Appreciation Night at University of San Diego's Lark Cafeteria, sponsored by USD's Booster Club. No one cared, however, for those honored weren't professional speakers — just a collection of the finest high school and college basketball talent in the San Diego area.

Jacobsen, who also walked off with a trophy for being Eastern League player of the year, set nearly every scoring record in the book this year as he wound up his career by totaling 712 points to capture the county scoring title.

"The records don't read Crawford High, they read Von Jacobsen," Colt coach Jim Sams said. "I'll let the stats speak for themselves. I'm going to miss Von next year, and Crawford is going to miss him."

Others awarded high-school player-of-the-year trophies were San Diego Military Academy's Bob Donald, Southern League; Carlsbad's Sam Thayer, Palomar League; San Diego's Darrell Blacklock, Avocado League; Clairemont's Bob Martin, Western League; Chula Vista's Eric Martensen, Metropolitan League; Helix' John Skalecky, Grossmont League, and University's Ed Coupee of the Catholic schools.

Trophy's also were presented to the all-San Diego college team, composed of forwards Lem Lemons and Al Razutis of Cal Western, center Al Skalecky of San Diego State, and guards Bernie Bickerstaff and Rick Cabrera of University of San Diego.

'Appreciate All Creation,' USD Graduates Told

The graduating class of the University of San Diego's College for Men yesterday was told to appreciate the value of all creation.

The Very Rev. Monsignor Donald F. Doxide delivered the challenge in a baccalaureate address to 78 seniors.

"You must not be afraid to begin to appreciate the value of all creation — creatures, ideas, political and economic achievements, the truth of science," he said.

Father Doxide is vice chancellor of the university.

He told the graduates the world is to be theirs and they have to take their place in it.

Quoting from the constitution on the church which was written in the second Vatican Council, Father Doxide said:

"The faithful must learn the deepest meaning and the value of all creation . . . by their competence in secular training and by their activity, elevated from within by the grace of Christ, let them vigorously contribute their effort so that created goods may be perfected by human labor, technical skill and civic culture for the benefit of all men according to the design of the Creator and the light of His word."

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Bishop of San Diego and chancellor of the university, celebrated a baccalaureate Mass for the graduating seniors.

USD Student Falls 80 Feet, Is Hospitalized

A 19-year-old University of San Diego student accidentally fell about 80 feet down the side of a cliff at Sunset Cliffs Boulevard and Guizot Street yesterday afternoon, police reported.

Patrolman Arthur M. Barnes said Sinclitico climbed over the guard rail to call to two friends on the beach below when he apparently lost his balance and fell. "He must have bounced once or twice before he hit the sand below," Barnes said.

A city lifeguard cliff rig was called to the scene and a rescue litter basket was lowered to lift Sinclitico to the top of the cliff.

S.D. Mission Remains Found, Believed to Be 180 Years Old

DIG INTO HISTORY—Archaeology students and teachers from University of San Diego excavate their discovery at Mission San Diego—a building which may be 180 years old. Discovery could result in reconstruction of building for San Diego's anniversary. Mission is in background.

USD Class Project Uncovers First Site

Building Reconstruction Hoped For 200th Anniversary Fete

By LEO BOWLER
EVENING TRIBUNE Science Writer

A team of archaeology students has unearthed the remains of a building at Mission San Diego de Alcalá that may be as much as 180 years old.

The discovery has stirred interest in religious and lay circles which may result in reconstruction of the building in time for the celebration in 1969 of the 200th anniversary of the founding of San Diego.

The find is the result of intensive studies by students at the University of San Diego. Two groups at the university, both under the direction of Dr. Ray Brandes, delved into the history of the mission.

The first, a seminar of 16 graduate students interested in Spanish borderlands, concentrated on old Spanish documents concerning the mission and related topics.

Each student selected a phase of the work for study and as a subject for compilation of a research paper. The papers will be published in a single volume, Brandes said.

Diverse Topics Covered in Papers

Although the history of the mission is the central theme of the publication, the papers deal with widely diverse topics. They range from accounts of the Spanish soldiers in the area to the ships which brought supplies from San Blas in what is now Mexico.

The second group of students concentrated on the site of the mission itself. They went over old documents and drawings, then selected a spot 100 yards southeast of the present mission church to perform an archaeological excavation.

They obtained the cooperation of Msgr. James T. Booth, pastor of the mission church, for the project.

Under Brandes' direction they excavated trenches. Their digging uncovered parts of a tile floor, a post hole which apparently was the site of a column holding up a porch roof, the remains of walls, and numerous artifacts from different periods.

The mission was founded by Fr. Junipero Serra on Presidio Hill in Old Town in 1769, then moved to its present site in Mission Valley in 1774. The mission flourished through the first 25 years of the next century, then began a decline brought on by the Mexican revolution and the American occupation of California.

For a time it was used as a barracks for American troops.

During the period of prosperity, many buildings were constructed. Old documents show it as a hollow square, with the church on the southwest side. Other buildings in the square include those used as rooms for the priests, storehouses, kitchens, and workrooms. The interior was a patio.

Tile Floor, Clay Pipes Found in Hole

Among the artifacts uncovered by the students are the bowls of two clay pipes which may have belonged to American troops, a broken wine bottle which Brandes thinks also belonged to the troops, a flint from an English rifle, bits of English china, rusted belt buckles, handles from tubs, and scraps of wood and leather.

Brandes says some of the artifacts may date back to the early history of the mission, but much of the material found is of later origin.

The pipes are of a type made in New England. They bear the initials T.D., long thought by historians to stand for Timothy Dexter, a New England pipemaker, and 13 stars.

"The trouble is, although we know that Dexter made such pipes, several pipes which had to come from earlier manufacturers also bear the T.D. initials," Brandes said.

Msgr. Booth has hopes that the newly discovered building can be reconstructed, using the floor tiles which are still in place.

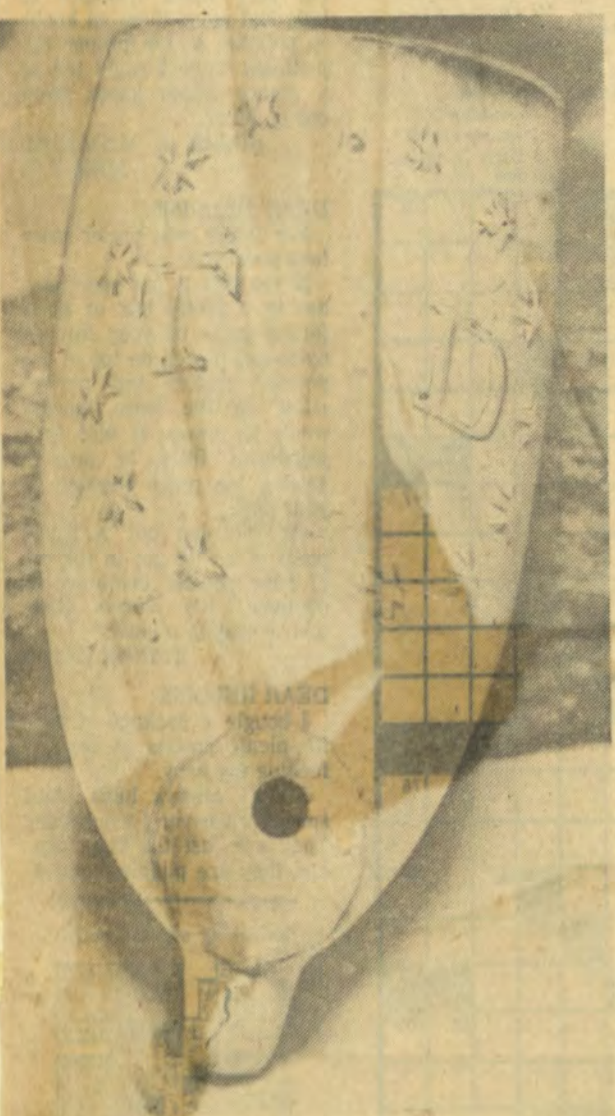

The excavations will be surrounded with a fence and left open so that visitors to the museum can see parts of the floor.

TIME'S SHARDS—These pieces of broken wine bottle and tile are among historic artifacts excavated by the student archaeologists.

EASY DOES IT—Ed Ostermeyer, left, tells Curt Harper he's found something in excavation. In minutes, they unearthed a clay pipe.

ARTISAN'S CLUE—Clay pipe found by students at Mission San Diego, bears initials "T.D." and 13 stars. Timothy Dexter, New England?

TILE TALK—Dr. Ray Brandes, head of two University of San Diego groups excavating remains of a building at Mission San Diego, describes quality of tiles for Msgr. James Booth, pastor of mission church. Brandes says students' papers on the work will be published in a single book.

New facilities, an enlarged faculty and increased enrollment marked the start of fall semester today at the University of San Diego College for Men.

The Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, university president, announced that, for the second consecutive year, freshman enrollment will be doubled with more than 200 new students.

Total student body enrollment exceeds 500.

Father Cadden said 15 teachers holding doctoral degrees have been added to the faculty.

New faculty members include Dr. John S. Bradshaw, Dr. Ross Dingman, Dr. Gerald Estberg, Dr. Jack Opdycke, Dr. Patricia Traylor and Mrs. Gail R. Cohen.

Mrs. Marjorie A. Rosevear will serve as library director and Rev. James H. Rolins and Mrs. Vera Hrusoff as library assistants.

Father Cadden announced that Dr. Leland H. Carlson of Claremont Graduate School and School of Theology has been appointed visiting professor in ecumenism.

"All students enrolled in theology courses will attend two lectures each semester given by the noted Protestant theologian," Father Cadden said.

New facilities include expanded science laboratories and new equipment. One of the new laboratories will be used only for research projects and two others by pre-medical students and physics majors.

Courses in oceanography and archeology are being offered by USD for the first time.

"Evening and Saturday courses in the teacher education program enable teachers to work toward a master of arts in teaching or a California standard credential with a specialization in secondary education," Father Cadden said.

COLLEGE SPEAKER—Dr. Leland H. Carlson, right, examines copy of early manuscript with The Rev. John A. Myhan, head of theology department at University of San Diego College for Men where Carlson opened lecture series Thursday night. Carlson's appearance marked first time a Protestant theologian lectured to students at the college.

USD SERIES STARTS

Protestant Gives Catholics Lecture

The University of San Diego College for Men has launched what its theology department chairman calls as "a new phase in the teaching of theology."

Students Thursday night heard the first in a series of three lectures by Dr. Leland H. Carlson, ordained in the United Church of Christ and now professor of theology at Claremont Graduate School and School of Theology.

He was recently appointed visiting professor in Ecumenism at the Catholic college.

New Times

Carlson said his appearance at USD is "part of the new times and is in keeping with the spirit of Pope John."

The Rev. John A. Myhan, chairman of USD's theology department, said the lectures will be academic in nature and "are offered to broaden the religious understanding of the students at the College for Men."

He said, "The appointment of a non-Catholic theologian to a Catholic college is of major significance and in keeping with the Ecumenical spirit of the Second Vatican Council."

Accord Pleases

Carlson told students he was "pleased with the accord throughout the world in this atomic and Ecumenical age."

His lecture series will span the 16th and 17th centuries and will cover the English

Reformation and Puritanism and the development of religion in colonial America.

He displayed scrolls and a fourth-century manuscript copy he purchased during a recent trip to England.

Father Myhan said today's youth belong to a "probing, questioning generation."

Meet Challenge

"This is good," he said, "and theology and philosophy instructors must meet this challenge."

Other significant changes are coming in the teaching of theology, he said without elaborating.

He urged young students to "voice your doubts and questions. Don't be muzzled. Ask your questions and find out the answers."

He said the lecture series is a mandatory for all Catholic students attending the College for Men and will supplement regularly scheduled theology classes on the day they are presented.

First Time

Father Myhan said that this is the first time that lectures by a Protestant theologian have been mandatory on a Catholic college campus.

Carlson, former director of the Chicago Theological Seminary and former president of Rockford (Ill.) College, is a fellow of the Royal Historical Society in London and the Folger Shakespeare Library.

Mother Nancy Morris Named President Of Women's College

University of San Diego College for Women will open its academic year September 13 under the administration of a new president, Mother Nancy Morris. Mother Morris succeeds Mother Anne Farragher who came to the college as president in 1963.

A native Californian, Mother Morris has served for the past five years as principal of the Convent of the Sacred Heart in San Francisco. Previously, she taught at the Convents of the Sacred Heart in Menlo Park and San Francisco.

She was professed as a Religious of the Sacred Heart in Rome in 1959, following the traditional six-month visit to the motherhouse there.

Degrees Received

Mother Morris received her B.A. in English from the University of California at Berkeley and an M.A. from the San Francisco College for Women. She has done further graduate work at Stanford University. Mother Morris also is enrolled in the summer M.A. program in theology at the University of San Francisco.

As administrative head of the 450-student women's college, Mother Morris hopes to foster work in the apostolate of community service. "I understand," she said in a recent interview, "that the girls here have been working in the apostolate by teaching deaf children. We hope to do even more."

Great Change

"This is a time of great change and challenge in education, particularly higher education. We must seek to find the constants in this stage of transition and have courage to maintain what is good. Likewise, we must embrace and foster the new."

"The great challenge for higher education," Mother Morris continued, "is to develop the personal relationship of teacher and student which will foster growth and freedom."

Mother Morris also announced that eight new members have joined the faculty for the coming year. Among the eight are two graduates of the College for Women.

PRECIOUS MOMENT — Little Margarita Capella is shown receiving first Holy Communion from Msgr. Donald F. Doxie in the University of San Diego's College for Women Chapel. It was an unexpected event for the little girl as she earlier in the month arrived here from her home in Bilbao, Spain. She had been taking instructions there for first Holy Communion when she learned she, her mother, sister and brother would be able to join her father here. Her father is a professor at the College for Women.

Far From Home

First Communion Received by Two

Dressed in long, nun-like white robes and veils Thais and Margarita Capella received their first Holy Communion from Msgr. Donald F. Doxie October 12 in the chapel of the University of San Diego College for Women.

The unusual dress is typical first Communion attire for children in Spain. Thais, 6, and Margarita, 8, arrived in the United States from Bilbao, Spain, October 4. They were certain they would miss their first Communion day.

Thais and Margarita are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Capella. Capella, who came to the United States 16 months ago to fulfill contracts in watercolor and portraiture in the Fallbrook area, joined the faculty of the college this fall. He teaches watercolor and anatomical drawing in the art department.

Attend School

As the family planned to join Capella in the United States, Thais and Margarita were attending the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Bilbao where their mother also had studied. The children were preparing to receive their first Holy Communion with their class on the Feast of Our Lady of Pilar, October 12.

And then the trip to San Diego interrupted their preparations.

Following her arrival in San Diego, Mrs. Capella called on Rev. Mother Leonor Mejia and asked her help in fulfilling the children's dream.

Almost the Same

And so, though San Diego is many thousands of miles from Bilbao in the northeast of Spain, October 12 was Thais' and Margarita's Communion day. In Spanish dress they knelt before an altar in a school conducted by the Religious of the Sacred Heart. It was almost the same as Spain.

After the ceremony the children, their older sister Hosta and their parents were entertained at breakfast in the college dining hall. There were presents, laughter, and happy smiles — almost the same as there would have been in Spain.

Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, president of the University of San Diego College for Men, announced that the College for Men has joined the Associated Colleges and Universities for Programs Abroad. Dr. Gilbert Oddo, director and founder of the ACUPA program, joined the USD faculty as professor of Political Science this fall.

The College for Men will participate in ACUPA's summer program at the recently built Institute of Technology in Guadalajara, Mexico. Dr. Oddo initiated the program in the summer of 1964. He conceived the idea while a lecturer in political science at Catholic University of Guadalajara during a 1963 sabbatical leave from St. Joseph College. Oddo received a Fulbright Fellowship and returned to Guadalajara for an additional 15 months.

In the summer of 1964 he discussed his plans for a summer program at the Jesuit Institute of Technology with Georgetown, Loyola, Gonzaga, and St. Louis University. These four universities sent 37 students to Guadalajara for the first session of the program.

Boston College and St. Bonaventure University joined the association the second year and brought the enrollment to 89. Holy Cross College, Loyola University of Los Angeles and Sophia University, Tokyo, Japan, affiliated with ACUPA in its third year and raised the enrollment to 124 students. The University of San Diego is the latest university to enter the association. An enrollment of 150 for the summer session of 1967 is anticipated.

Each participating university promotes the program in its own area, accredits the courses in which students enroll and contributes one faculty member per session. Rev. John A. Myhan, chairman of the Theology Department and professor of history, will be the University of San Diego's faculty representative for the 1967 session. Courses are offered in Spanish language, Spanish and Mexican literature, fine arts, political science, history, psychology and education. The Institute of Technology is the only university in Guadalajara with a completely modern language laboratory. The Phillips Foundation donated the language facility.

The six-week ACUPA program in Guadalajara starts July 5 and ends August 13.

Debaters Score High

The University of San Diego debate team competed recently at San Fernando Valley State College in the Pacific Southwest Collegiate Forensic Association's first speech tournament. The team, consisting of W. Fenton Sink and Everett Harry, won a superior rating for outstanding debating and was one of seven teams out of 107 awarded undefeated medals.

The tournament attracted entries from 48 colleges and universities in the West. Among those represented were USC, UCLA, University of Arizona, Loyola, Redlands, and Idaho.

Tomorrow (Friday) the school will be represented at a tournament at San Diego State College.

During November, USD will attend tournaments at Loyola, University of Oregon, and the University of California at Santa Barbara. Now in its second year of forensic competition, USD competes in all of the major collegiate forensics tournaments.

The debate team is coached by Fred C. Sanders, chairman of the Speech Arts Department at the College for Men.

Guests included State Secretary Albert Gonsalves, State Treasurer Roy Sweeney, State Advocate Francis Driscoll, State Warden Melvin Lackey, Past State Deputies Lambert J. Ninteman, Fred Pelletier, and Delor Bombardier.

Local officers present included Regional Deputy Mark Fabrizio, Area Deputies Fritz Bingeli, Frank Krenach, and Gus Kirehloff, and District Deputies, Conrad Nagengast, William Smith, and Alonzo Lovell. The check represents the first returns from the "Party That Never Was," organized by the Auxiliary as a party-less fund raising event to cover the Auxiliary's annual contribution to the college's National Defense Loan Scholarship Fund. Mrs. Harold F. Tebbetts, right, was chairman of the recent Homecoming Luncheon sponsored by the Auxiliary at the Hanalei Hotel in Mission Valley.

CROSSTOWN: Atty. George McClenahan has a telephone number that is a single digit away from that of a major airline office here. After his secretary had left the other afternoon, a caller said he'd like to know something about flying to New York. McClenahan told him: "We're flying a Sopwith Camel and we're leaving as soon as our pilot sobers up." Did that end the conversation? You're right. It did not. "I was sort of hoping," the voice came back, "to fly in a Spad." And with that, McClenahan was left hanging on a dead line.

THIS WAS SAN DIEGO: Herbert Kunzel was fired as a saxophone player at the Orange Lantern, an old sailor hangout near the site of the new Gasco Building. So Kunzel got mad and went to college. Now he's president of Solar.

DOTTED SHORTS: The enmity between ice hockey players and figure skaters showed up the other evening at the Mission Valley Ice Arena. A hockey puck smashed through the glass trophy case of the S.D. Figure Skating Club. "Almost as bad," moaned a figure skater, "as what they do to the ice." Name Game: A marriage license was issued to Rene R. Champagne and Julie E. Mumm. . . . Its European specialties come from the Paris-trained hands of owner-chef George Batura. . . . Classified ad from suburbia: "Wanted — Lazy babysitter with car."

SAN DIEGO VIGNETTE: The visitor at Clayton Brace's offices in KOGO, the Time-Life station, stared at a wall map of the world stuck with multi-colored pins. "What in the world is that map supposed to say?" he asked. Replied Brace: "That's your empire, Mr. Luce."

NOTEPAD: Jane Schmauss of Coronado, an avid bumper sticker reader, nearly busted her seat belt straining to read the fine print on a car in front of her. What it said was "What in h— are you looking at?" . . . Then there's the Mission Hills couple who nearly drowned before they could shut off their automatic ice maker. GREEN CRISIS: Consternation spread along Ivanhoe Avenue after merchants discovered nails driven into three flowering eucalyptus trees. A contractor was blamed. The La Jolla Town Council was alerted, and gumshoes summoned from the Park & Recreation Dept. "Undue alarm," decided Bill Studebaker. "The trees are bleeding from a disease we call gumosis, probably brought on by a lack of air and food. It's not a result of the nails, which apparently were put in sometime ago." Happy ending: the city's best tree surgeons have gone to work on the trees.

REGISTRATION AT USD MEN'S COLLEGE

College for Men. When USD's separate law school and men's and women's colleges all begin classes, the university will have about 1,520 students.

USD Classes Will Begin This Friday

University Means Many Things To Many Persons

The University of San Diego will open classes in its men's college Friday and in its women's college Sept. 14.

The university, long a part of the city's educational picture, means many things to many people.

It is a men's college with a doubled number of freshmen, a law dean who expects an important accreditation and a nun who wants students to alleviate social ills.

It is a former New York public schools superintendent who wants to instill personalized qualities into new teachers, and it is a student leader who says USD is on the move.

'FIND IDENTITY'
When classes start this month, USD will have 27 new, full-time faculty members and 378 more students than a year ago. Its enrollment will be about 1,520, up from none in 1962.

"Most students I know came here to find identity in a small campus, to feel that they are persons," said Stephan A. DeSales, 20, student president at the College for Men.

In DeSales' view, USD, with separate men's and women's colleges, a law school and a seminary, is a "modern-day version of the classical university" undergoing alterations.

IVORY TOWER 'OUT'
Across Marian Way from where DeSales made his remarks, the new president of the College for Women, Mother Nancy Morris, believes the insular, ivory-tower approach of higher education no longer applies.

"The idea that students are here now, and are preparing to do something four years hence, is not satisfying them any more," she said. "We have to allow them more elbow room, even if they make mistakes."

Mother Morris arrived here from the Academy at Broadway, San Francisco, where she was principal. She succeeds Mother Anne Farraher, the college's president since 1963.

In 1966-67 she hopes at least 75 per cent of the college's away 100 qualified students this year will fall because of lack of space, work in the community, largely to help the culturally deprived.

'MORE GENEROUS NOW'
"So often we hear young people condemned," she said, "I feel they are far more generous of themselves than we were at their age."

The college is making strides to implement recommendations of the American Association of University Professors, and Mother Morris feels that certain freedoms also are important in student government.

"To grow intellectually you have to have a certain amount of freedom," she said. "It means that we have to keep the lines of communication open."

At the College for Men, under presidency of the Rev. John Paul Cadden, 200 freshmen will help push enrollment to 500 (last fall there were 392), doctorate-holding, full-time faculty will rise to 25 and four science laboratories have been added.

St. Francis College for theology students, formerly in El Cajon, is being absorbed into the men's college and its students, who used to wear cassocks, will wear white shirts and black trousers.

It's a move to bring Catholic priest students into greater contact with others during the four-year college portion of their preparation, according to the Rev. I. Brent Eagen, director of school relations.

For the last 20 years Dr. Terence C. Donahue was vice president of Eastchester, N.Y.,

TO BEGIN FRIDAY
Classes at the men's college will start Friday; at the women's college, Sept. 14.

Anthropology, archeology and oceanography will be introduced in the men's curriculum. Radiation chemistry and biology, contemporary French novelists, anatomical drawing and American social legislation will be among new courses at the women's college.

The women's college will initiate team teaching in preparing student teachers.

One team will assist prospective teachers in areas of reading, science and language arts. Another team will perform similarly in fields of music, art, mathematics and physical education.

Mobile Atomic Lab Unit Is Visiting USD

A special event of interest to science students and professors was announced by Mother Agnes Schmitt, chairman of the Chemistry Department at University of San Diego College for Women. A mobile radioisotope laboratory, provided by Oak Ridge Associated Universities, for the Atomic Energy Commission, is at Alcala Park for two weeks. The special program, including laboratory experiments and lectures by specialists in the field of atomic search, is designed to give training in the use of radioactive materials to students and faculty members who would otherwise not have such an opportunity. All laboratory sessions will be held in the traveling unit where experiments will be devoted to the study of Geiger counters and scaling systems, identifying an unknown radioisotope, carbon-14 assay and a study of phosphorus distribution in rats. A typical course pattern consists of a 90-minute lecture five days a week, with two laboratory sessions of two hours duration each scheduled at convenient times throughout the day. Six to eight participants can work in each laboratory session. Those participating in the two-week program include professors from both the Women's College and the Men's College, according to Mother Schmitt. From the Men's College, Dr. John S. Bradshaw, Dr. Curt W. Spanis, Dr. Donald Peterson, Dr. Patricia Taylor and Mrs. Gail Cohen will follow the course. Dr. Lawrence Selman, Mother Patricia Shaffer, Mother Bernice Farrens, Mother Agnes Schmitt and James L. Lockwood of the College for Women will participate. In addition to these faculty members, four students from the College for Women will benefit by the program. They are JoAnne Pinkel, Peggy Cunningham, Linda Lovel and Anna M. Pitrore. Dr. John Noakes, a scientist in the Special Training Division of the Oak Ridge Institute, will direct the session. With Dr. Adrin Dahl, he will give the lectures for the course. Dr. Dahl is at present director of Biology and Biophysics at Colorado State University at Fort Collins, Colorado. He has been senior physicist for several years at Oak Ridge. Thomas Stone, research assistant in the Oak Ridge Institute, will direct the laboratory sessions. All classes are in the science wing of the College for Women.

USD Offering Free 8-Lecture Law Course

K Of C Chapter Hails Success Of Barbecue

Imperial Valley Chapter of Knights of Columbus last night celebrated the success of their annual barbecue. And what better way to do it than with a meal?

The group met for a formal dinner at Hanaelei Hotel to honor the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego, Francis J. Weller of Palo Alto, state deputy, and George Tasch, last year's barbecue chairman and this year's chapter president.

The group presented Bishop Furey a $5,000 check from proceeds of the Knights annual barbecue on "Fathers' Day" at Alcala Park.

The funds will be added to the Knights of Columbus Memorial Building Fund at the University of San Diego for use by the school library.

Bishop Furey commended the Knights for their contributions to the library fund and encouraged them to pray for peace. The bishop celebrated World Day of Prayer Oct. 4 with two Masses here and said Pope Paul requested that Catholics recite the Rosary during October to pray for peace.

He made the request with the aid of what he termed a "visual aid," an elaborate Italian rosary trimmed in gold.

He said October was particularly appropriate for the plea for peace because this month

USD Fresh Enrollment Is Doubled

A 100 per cent increase in the size of the freshman class marked the opening of school Tuesday at the University of San Diego, College for Men.

Some 450 applications for admission were received from which the admissions committee selected 200 men. They are the most promising class ever enrolled here, said Rev. I. Brent Eagen, director of school relations.

The student body will number about 500, including 41 in St. Francis College, a seminary formerly in El Cajon, but now housed in the School of Theology at USD.

Two new courses of study are listed in the catalog this year. Oceanography will be taught by Dr. John S. Bradshaw, formerly with Scripps Institution of Oceanography, La Jolla. Archaeology will be taught by Dr. Ray Brandes, formerly with the Serra Museum.

A new series of lectures on ecumenism will be given during the year by Dr. Leland H. Carlson of the Claremont School of Theology, a leading Protestant institution. Four lectures will be given during the school year.

Jazz Event Scheduled By College

Starts of the 1965 Monterey Jazz Festival will be featured performers in the University of San Diego's night of jazz October 1 at the College for Men gymnasium. Jimmy Lyons, general manager of the Monterey Jazz Festival, will moderate the program.

An extensive variety of jazz, both modern and folk, will be offered. Scheduled to perform are the John Handy Quintet, Bola Sete and His Brazilian Trio, and Jean Hoffman.

Featured Jazz critics have called the John Handy Quintet the first jazz group organized in the last 10 years which is primarily a concert jazz ensemble. John Handy is featured on alto saxophone, Michael White on violin, Henry Hahn on guitar, Donald Thompson on bass, and Terry Clark on drums.

White's introduction of the violin into modern jazz has been termed the first major new contribution on the instrument in a quarter century. Jazz critic Leonard Feather called the quintet "individually and collectively, the most exciting new group to gain recognition during the past year."

The recently formed Bola Sete Trio will also appear. Bola Sete organized the Brazilian jazz group after several tours as featured guitarist with Vince Guaraldi's Trio. Sete, named "The Best New Guitarist for 1965" by Down Beat magazine, is accompanied by bassist Sebastian Netto and drummer Paulino. Neto was named "Best Jazz Bassist for Brazil" in 1962 and Paulino received the "Best Drummer of the Year in Brazil" award from 1951-1959. Sete's trio plays Bossa Nova, American ballads, classical Bach, and large samplings of Brazilian folk music.

Jazz song stylist and pianist Jean Hoffman will complete the program of Monterey Jazz Festival standouts. Jean Hoffman began her career in the mid 1950's performing at the Jazz Workshop in San Francisco. Critics "consider her jazz piano style similar to the Bud Powell tradition. She has performed at numerous other colleges and universities including the University of British Columbia, Reed College and Pacific State College.

Meet U.S.D.'s Graphic Designer

—from "Snoopy and The Red Baron" by Charles M. Schulz. Published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

Bill Noonan and the Red Baron

By DR. ARMIN KIETZMANN
The San Diego Union's Art Writer

During September the corridor gallery at the Public Library is featuring oils and caseins by William Noonan, the well-known San Diego designer.

A note accompanying the show mentions that Noonan studied advertising design at the Art Center in Los Angeles, but that as a painter he considers himself self-taught.

If this would imply a difference not only in medium and subject matter but also in formal approach, Noonan would be the first to protest. Several years ago he declared it "trite" to speak of a difference between applied and fine art. In both success depends not only on the idea but also on the way it is presented.

The themes of the paintings in this show hover around planes and pilots of World War I. Last cry as they may seem, these subjects have nothing to do with the current fad. Some of the exhibits pre-date Blue Max or Snoopy's Red Baron by 10 years. As Noonan says, he has been enthralled with the old war-planes since he was a child.

He shares the interest with another local artist, Charles Faust, whose paintings frequently refer to the flying machines of the early 1900s. Where the roots of that imagery reach, neither of the artists explains. It might be recalled, however, that Noonan as well as Faust had a hand in the imaginative and understanding design of San Diego's Children's Zoo; Noonan, together with Gilbert A. Watrous, designed the fish bowl inverting the idea of a bathysphere—one looks in, not out.

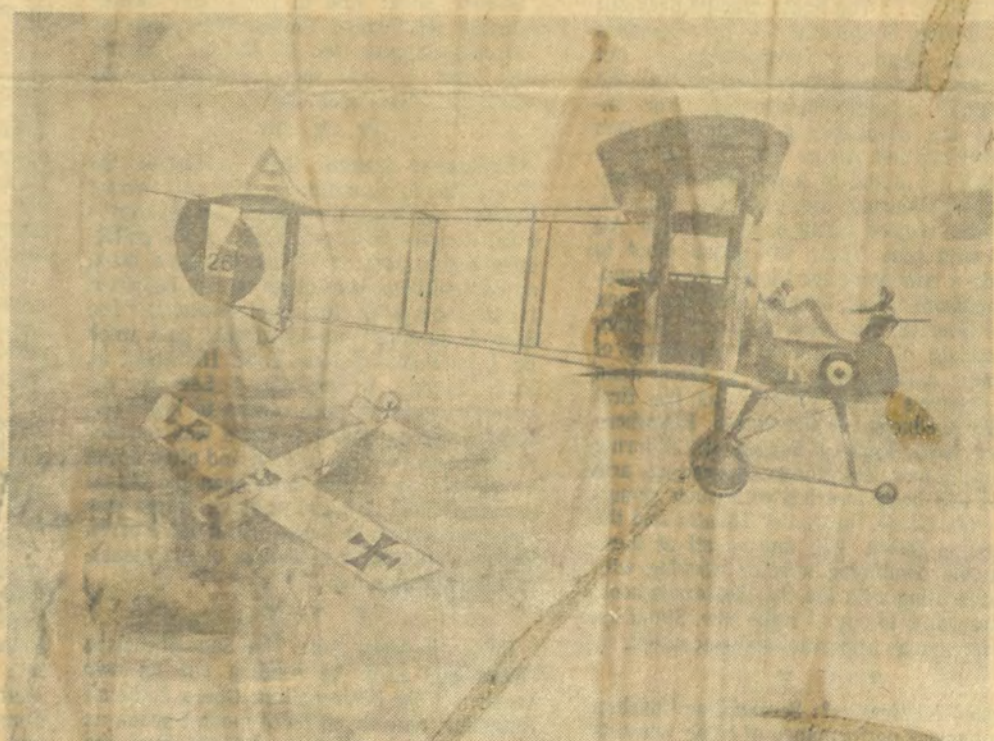

Yet despite all possible involvement with the theme Noonan stays at the controls. As to the antique aircraft, he speaks, as the main points of appeal, of the "character" of the planes, their structure, color and texture, all purely esthetic traits. He identifies Caudron and Farnam types or the storied German Fokker planes, and it is rational caricature to show German officers, striding away from their dirigible at Alhorn, with small pink heads and ham-like fists. Deliberate is also the handling of form, holding between description and abstraction. Each picture's design—perhaps with the exception of the nonobjective, "Malta"—is calculated. The drawing, sometimes broader, sometimes hard-edged, remains precise. Compositions like to work with slanting lines providing drama like angle shots of a zoom camera (the Wyeth approach). Compared to the compositions' forte, color is the weak part in the Noonan exhibits: most stick to a blue-white-ochre palette, smoothly or occasionally more visibly brushed on, yet the purple-red-ochre variations in "Aces" seem to hold possibilities.

Possibilities for what? The answer would be that the dichotomy between designer and painter could be solved in a, perhaps, more abstract vein.

USD Toreros Open Season With Wins

With victories in their first two games, the University of San Diego Toreros will invade the Pepperdine campus this Friday night, December 9, then travel to Fresno State for a Saturday, December 10, encounter.

The Toreros could tie the series standing with Pepperdine at four games each with a victory Friday night. Cap. Steve Ebey will lead the Pepperdine starters. He scored 13.4 points a game last year and had one of the top field goal percentages in the West Coast Athletic Conference.

Other starters for the Waves are expected to be Hal Grant (6-9) at center, Tandy Holmes (6-7) at forward and Ron Whitehouse and Gary Dinnel at the guard positions. Pepperdine lost its opener to the University of Utah, 115-64, and lost to Weber State (Utah) last Saturday in overtime, 103-96.

After pulling out a 59-58 win in their opener here against Cal Poly, Pomona, the Toreros traveled to Cal State, Los Angeles, where they pulled out an 86-83 overtime win over the Diablos after forward Rick Cabrera had made a 17-foot jumper to knot the count as the buzzer sounded. Cabrera, who is averaging 20 points per game, will start at forward and will be joined by Alan Eay, Ted Fields (16.0) and Bill Sheridan will draw the starting guard positions. After his performance against Cal State, Gus Magee (17 rebounds and 17 points) may draw the starting bid at center over Durol Carpenter.

Fresno State, which claimed a rebuilding season this year, seems to be stronger than expected. The Bulldogs won their opener over University of California, Santa Barbara, Saturday night, 79-59.

The Bulldogs will start Ron Reigel (6-7) or Wes Russell (6-7) at center, Russell, Bob Lee (6-3) or Jack Kennedy (6-4) at forwards and Harry Maloney (6-0) or Leo and Jim Waldron at guard. Waldron is Fresno's only veteran starter.

Coach John Cunningham's USD frosh team exploded in their first two games this season, smothering Cal Poly of Pomona JV squad, 73-49, Thursday, and coming back to smother the frosh of Cal State, Los Angeles, 90-61, Saturday in Los Angeles.

REV. MOTHER NOTHOMB
... new mother vicar

Nuns 'Hobby' Of Order's New Superior

"Nuns are my hobby," says the Rev. Mother Beth Nothomb, new mother vicar of an order of nuns stationed here.

She was recently named Superior Vicar for the Far West of the Society of the Sacred Heart. She is in residence at the San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, San Diego.

As superior vicar she is the major superior of six West Coast houses of nuns and local superior of the San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, San Diego.

Mother Nothomb succeeds the Rev. Mother Leonor Mejia, who recently retired and now is living in St. Louis.

"The position means a great deal of responsibility," says Mother Nothomb with a twinkle in her eye.

NEBRASKA NATIVE

Responsibility is not new to her. She comes to San Diego from San Francisco, where she was mother superior at the San Francisco Convent of the Sacred Heart. She served there from 1933 through last September.

Before that she was director of teacher education at the San Francisco College for Women from 1927 to 1933.

She also has served as supervisor of studies at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in San Francisco. In addition, Mother Nothomb was a secondary and elementary teacher in schools of the Convents of the Sacred Heart in San Francisco and Omaha.

She is a native of Nebraska and comes from a town near Omaha.

The new superior vicar was graduated with a degree in Education from Duchesne College, Omaha. She received her master's and doctorate degrees from the University of California at Berkeley.

Mother Nothomb, who has lived in California most of her religious life, feels like a true Californian.

"I became a San Franciscan by 'adoption' and maybe will become a San Diegoan by the same token," she says.

HONORARY PRESIDENT

She has been in San Diego a month and already is enamored of the weather and her new job.

Her new position is both administrative and advisory. As religious superior she works with girls of all ages, and with the nuns in the convents of her order.

Mother Nothomb also is honorary president of San Diego College for Women.

The faculty of the college officially welcomed Mother Nothomb at a Christmas tea in her honor Friday.

San Diego AREA NEWS

PANELSHIP: Dr. Richard Farson was assigned to write and read three papers at a recent conference of psychologists in New York. Now he's wondering if there weren't more papers than psychologists. He was one of four panelists scheduled for 9 a.m. on Sunday in a roomy Manhattan hotel. Only one conferee was in the audience by 9 a.m., and the members invited him to join the panel. Two more drifted in, but as the subject was introduced, one rose and excused himself. "I'm afraid I'm in the wrong place," he said.

QUOTABLE: The executive secretary of a big name San Diegoan (who recently retired) went in search of a new job, and in the course of one interview succeeded in totally unnerving her future employer. "How are you at taking dictation?" he asked. "Oh, rusty, I'm afraid," she said suavely. "I've had several secretaries working under me in recent years, you know, and I've been giving more dictation than I've taken."

ONE MAN'S BEAT: SatEvePost, in collaboration with the German picture magazine, Stern, has won the rights to an exclusive story on Lt. Dieter Dengler, the escaped POW. Interviews began during the week-end at Hotel del Coronado after the magazine flew Dengler's fiancée here from San Francisco. . . . From Beverly Hills, Maestro John Green keeps up a running Walter Mitty-type game with Symphony Manager Bill Denton. Green's latest communique, in which he says the name of his composition for Combo Fandango is "Combo," not "Combo March" ("that sounds like it was written for a high school football game"), is signed Karl Heinz Stockhausen.

OFF TARGET: When his son, Larry, 12, came down with flu, banker Jim Mulvaney helped with his newspaper route. Mulvaney drove while Larry sat on the left side of the station wagon and threw the papers "like a football." "That's not the way to do it," corrected Mulvaney. "You're supposed to flip them." Whereupon Mulvaney proceeded to show him. That's what led to Mulvaney's being on the roof, the other morning at 4:30, of City Manager Tom Fletcher's house.

DIS 'N' DATA: Capt. Erman Proctor, skipper of the Navy oiler Tappanmuck, is a devotee of Mexican cooking. He sent his ship's steward, Al Almachar, to Coronado's Mexican Village with orders to spend the day in the kitchen learning to prepare it. . . . Col. Frank Seifert, the old flying ace who earned his silver wings in the Army Air Force, honored a newcomer. He took off the miniature wings which he wears on his World War I Veterans' cap, and presented them to Evening Tribune reporter Betty Peach, who had just soloed.

THE SILLIES: Gordon McGaw, directing a visitor to the Muscular Dystrophy office on Fourth Avenue: "You take the bus up Fifth to Fir, then walk down Fir to Fourth, then north on Firth." . . . Dan Trumble has ended the countdown on summer visitors. He's had 14 out-of-town guests, who stayed (in Convention & Visitors Bureau-type figures) for a total of 127 visitor days. They spent $3,000. If everybody had that many visitors, Trumble figures, the city would boom (and everybody would be as broke as he is).

DIARY: The Stardust's new members-only club room is strictly a men's haven; entrance is through the men's locker room. . . . Supervisor Frank Gibson, waiting to board a bus at San Diego State en route to a dinner party: "Whom does that house belong to?" Reply: "It's the Urban house." "You mean an urban renewal house?" "No, Dr. Harvey Urban." . . . Sightseeing on Highway 94: a "Scenic New Hampshire" license tag with the letters "CALIF." . . . USD's Saturday night of jazz will feature several stars of the 1965 Monterey Festival, including the John Handy Quintet, Bola Sete and his Brazilian Trio and Jean Hoffman. . . . The Smothers Brothers are booked for an Oct. 30 return to the Convention Hall.

CLEAN-CUT TYPES: Tom Cunniffe of SAS (the airline jointly owned by Scandinavian governments) took the four Scandinavian vice consuls here out to lunch: Dan Larsen, the Dane; S. Falck Nielsen, the Norwegian; Harry Malm, the Swede, and Ed Koko, the Finn. No wonder, he decided, all those Scandinavians have such bright clear eyes; none of the group smokes.

SO THE DAY STARTED: Mrs. Donald Schoell, wife of the Del Mar architect, still is stunned. A policeman stopped her as she drove hurriedly to put her child on a bus for Scout day camp. "I can't stop now, follow me," she said. He did, but en route she started the wrong way down a one-way street. The policeman drove in front and told her firmly: "You follow me!" At her destination she kept the policeman waiting longer while she put her daughter aboard the bus. "Tell that nice man over there," she asked another young camper, "that I'll be with him in just a minute." "That nice man," the girl answered, "said he couldn't wait any longer."

Cage Star Joins Harlem Globetrotters

USD's Bernie Bickerstaff announced last week that he has decided to accept an invitation to join the Harlem Globetrotters.

"I received another letter from them (the Globetrotters) after it was announced last Monday I was going to stay on and assist Woolpert this year," said Bickerstaff.

"The Globetrotters made me a very lucrative offer," Bickerstaff replied when asked why he changed his mind. He declined to give the amount.

USD has granted Bickerstaff a five-year leave of absence, which will enable him to complete his undergraduate studies within the five years without his graduation requirements being changed.

"I plan to take classes each summer," Bickerstaff said.

"Playing with the Globetrotters will definitely not be a career," Bickerstaff explained when asked what his plans were. "After graduation and the Globetrotters are over, I'd like to coach most of all."

Bickerstaff reports to De Paul Community Center in Chicago on October 10 for "more intensive workouts." Less than a handful of men were invited back from the 13 that tried out this summer in Chicago.

USD Coach Phil Woolpert stated, "We will certainly miss Bernie's assistance with basketball squads, but recognizing opportunities afforded him with the Globetrotters, we wish him the very best and know he will make a fine contribution."

High Schoolers Hear Fr. Eagen

Father Brent Eagen, school relations officer for the University of San Diego College for Men, yesterday presented information on admission to the college to the senior class at St. Augustine High School.

He was accompanied by Thomas R. Pearson, financial aid officer, who discussed scholarship possibilities.

The U.S.D. program is the first of ten such college assemblies presented through the first semester for Saints seniors.

Father Eagen's visit was supplemented by a new counseling tool, a tape recording of college impressions as presented by recent Saints graduates now attending U.S.D.

MY SAN DIEGO: At a meeting of the men who admire old firefighting equipment — Pioneer Hook and Ladder of San Diego — Banker Tom Sefton ate in the cafeteria of the rival First National Bank. And as he stood at the end of the line with his tray, facing the cashier, he had to admit that he'd left his wallet at home. Host bankers baffled him out.

THE NAMES: Dr. Harold Urey and his wife are back from a European sojourn, curtailed by the Nobel laureate's bout with diverticulitis. . . . Hand-some young Alfonso Bustamante Jr., son of the Tijuana gas tycoon, is an aspiring matador. In a charity tienda next Sunday at the charro ring at La Gloria, he'll fight bulls along with Genaro Valladolid, whose brother is assistant chief of Mexican immigration. . . . KOGO's Clayton Brace, co-hosting the NBC News staff show last night at Hotel del Coronado, gave a bow to Milton Brown as the man "in charge of this traveling circus." Brace added: "Keep in mind that whenever Brown is in San Diego I saved his life in World War II. Whenever I am in New York he saved mine."

DIS 'N' DATA: Duffy, a 6-year-old Irish Setter belonging to Padre Manager Eddie Leishman, ran away from home and apparently tried to join the Navy. He turned up at the Naval Training Center, which identified him by his collar and telephoned Mrs. Leishman to come and get him. In the meantime, he was treated like any AWOL sailor. Mrs. Leishman found him waiting, behind bars, in the brig. . . . Spring Valley shopping center displayed a sampling of new Christmas decorations just to see how merchants liked them. The reaction was swift; customers want them taken down. . . . Adman John Blackford has discovered his clients spending more and more of their time on the Stardust golf course. He spends more of his time tracking them down in a rented electric cart.

NAME GAME: The new auditor at Hotel Del Charro has the same name as our mayor. He's also new in town, and "it's a heckuva thing," he says, "to find out that when I go into a store and say 'I'm a Dodger' fan one eyebrow is raised. And when I say my name is Frank Curran up goes the other eyebrow."

MEMO FROM OUR MAN FRIDAY: Dear N.M. — Paternal pride abounds. After the item about our colleague Jack Murphy's son taking charge of the student body at Francis Parker School, there arrived an issue of the University of San Diego campus paper Vista, with a lead story by Feature Editor Dennis Dunne, son of veteran reporter Vinnie Dunne. . . . Carl Stratman picked up an item from his F. O. Eagles No. 244 newspaper. The secretary of the Auxiliary is Marie Inks. . . . The same mail brings a letter beginning: "You have been referred to us as a party who could assist us in disposing of Upland College in Upland, Calif. . . ." The entire property will be sold at auction on Oct. 25, following a merger with Messiah College of Grantham, Pa.

Jazz Stars Featured In University Concert

Stars of the 1965 Monterey Jazz Festival will be featured performers in the University of San Diego's night of jazz, Oct. 1 at the College for Men gymnasium. Jimmy Lyons, General Manager of the Monterey Jazz Festival, will moderate the program.

An extensive variety of jazz, both modern and folk, will be offered. Scheduled to perform are the John Handy Quintet, Bola Sete and his Brazilian Trio, and Jean Hoffman.

Jazz critics have called the John Handy Quintet the first jazz group organized in the last 10 years which is primarily a concert jazz ensemble. John Handy is featured on alto saxophone. Michael White on violin, Harry Hahn on guitar, Donald Thompson on bass, and Terry Clark on drums. White's introduction of the violin into modern jazz has been termed the first major new contribution on the instrument in a quarter century. Jazz critic Leonard Feather called the quintet "the most exciting new group to gain recognition during the past year."

The recently formed Bola Sete Trio will also appear. Bola Sete organized the Brazilian jazz group after several tours as featured guitarist with Vince Guaraldi's Trio. Sete, named "The Best New Guitarist for 1965," by Down Beat magazine, is accompanied by bassist Sebastian Netto and drummer Paulino. Neto was named "Best Jazz Bassist for Brazil" in 1962 and Paulino received the "Best Drummer of the Year in Brazil" award from 1961-1969.

Sete's trio plays Bossa Nova, American ballads, classical Bach, and large samplings of Brazilian folk music.

Jazz song stylist and pianist Jean Hoffman will complete the program of Monterey Jazz Festival standouts. Hoffman began her career in the mid 1950's performing at the Jazz Workshop in San Francisco. Critics consider her jazz piano style as similar to the Bud Powell tradition. She has performed at numerous other colleges and universities including the University of British Columbia, Reed College and Portland State College.

Tickets for the Saturday performance may be purchased at the USD Bookstore and Thersie Music Company.

New facilities, new faculty members and new students will mark the opening of the University of San Diego. The College for Men opens tomorrow (Friday). The College for Women begins the Fall term September 14.

Returning students at USD will find 27 new, full-time faculty members and 378 more students than a year ago. The total enrollment is 1,520.

The College for Men will welcome 200 freshmen according to the president, Father John Paul Cadden. Total enrollment at the college will be 500, an increase of 108 over last year. Father Cadden said.

Four science laboratories have been added. One will be used exclusively for research projects. Two others will be used for pre-medical students and physics majors, he added.

Courses Added to Program
Courses in oceanography and archeology are being offered for the first time. Evening and Saturday courses in the teacher education program will enable teachers to work toward a Master of Arts in Teaching or a California Standard Credential with a specialization in secondary education.

Students for the priesthood from St. Francis College at Alcalá Park, formerly in El Cajon, will read their course in philosophy and the arts at the College for Men. This course leads to a Bachelor's degree. The clerical students, who used to wear cassocks, will attend classes in white shirts and black trousers, Father Cadden said.

New Administration Guides College
The College for Women will open its school year under the administration of a new president, Mother Nancy Morris. Mother Morris succeeds Mother Anne Farraher, president since 1963.

Among her plans for the 1966-67 year, Mother Morris hopes to involve 75 per cent of the 650 students in community activities to aid the culturally deprived.

"So often we hear young people condemned," she said, "I feel they are far more generous of themselves than we were at their age."

Mother Morris commented that the college is making an effort to implement recommendations of the American Association of University Professors. She also feels that certain freedoms are

San Diego Diocese Named Province of Newman Club

The National Newman Club Federation formed the Province of the Diocese of San Diego August 31, at the National Newman Congress in Milwaukee, Wis., August 31 to September 5. The NNCF represents the Newman Apostolate throughout the United States.

The country was divided into provinces, the Diocese of San Diego formerly belonging to the Southern California Province, which also included the Archdiocese of Los Angeles and the Diocese of Monterey-Fresno. It is hoped that each diocese now being its own province will bring a development and unity of the Newman Apostolate in these areas.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, when word was received of the formation of the San Diego Province, asked Rev. Philip F. Straling, chaplain at San Diego State College, to act as province chaplain for the diocese.

Catholic students attending secular colleges throughout the diocese will find a Newman Club at most colleges. All students are encouraged to become active members of their Newman Club. The Newman Club is the Catholic student organization of Catholic culture and companionship that fosters the spiritual, intellectual and social interest of students. The Newman Apostolate is the Catholic Church on campus.

New College President Strives For Total Character Formation

Coeds to Serve Community Under University Project

By PHEBE BROWN
EVENING TRIBUNE Staff Writer

When a young woman graduates from University of San Diego's College for Women she has gained more than a degree—she has learned to be a mature Christian woman who realizes the power of her heart, says the college's new president.

Mother Nancy Morris has just assumed the post at the college, replacing Mother Anne Farragher, who had been president since 1963.

"Our function, as is that of all Catholic schools, is to educate toward the total character-formation," Mother Morris said of her new office this week.

"If our young women can learn to express themselves and work for the community as well as their families, giving of themselves through their hearts, then we will be successful in helping them prepare as mature Christian women to take their place in life and society."

Former Principal A native Californian, the young president comes to San Diego from San Francisco, where she was principal of the Convent of the Sacred Heart for five years.

She formerly taught English at the convents of the Sacred Heart in Menlo Park and San Francisco.

Majoring in English, she received her B.A. from the University of California at Berkeley, her M.A. from San Francisco College for Women, and was working toward her Ph.D. at Stanford University when she was called to be principal at the high school.

She says her first few weeks in this city—she arrived Aug. 16—have been very "pleasant." (It is her very first time here.)

Becoming Acquainted "I was very quickly made to feel at home here, San Diego is a community which is very sensitive and warm to higher education and its aims," she said in an interview.

"So far I've been kept very busy becoming acquainted with the college, but the really busy time comes now when classes start."

As classes open today, Mother Morris sees some changes in the policies.

"We must be sensitive to the changes felt in higher education today and must be courageous in embracing new policies while at the same time holding onto those good things which have been tested by time and found worth keeping," she said.

Among the differences in emphasis this year, Mother Morris said, will be an augmentation of the community apostolic work done by the students.

Want to Contribute

"Previously college was thought of as preparation for things to do later, but now it is clearly being demonstrated that students want to contribute to society WHILE they're in college," she explained.

So the college will be encouraging the young women to volunteer their after-class hours to such activities as tutoring underprivileged children in San Diego and other service projects.

"In this way we can really serve the community—which is one of the chief aims of higher education," Mother Morris said.

Religion Is Answer

The college president is firmly convinced that the need for Christian education in the Roman Catholic schools is greater today than ever before.

"Only through religion can we properly teach morality. Otherwise the basic American ideals have no anchorage—no roots," she said.

In viewing the benefits of an education at an all-woman university, Mother Morris felt the advantages to be many.

"I never went to a Catholic school in my life—always to a public school, and I was one of two daughters, with five brothers in my family—so I speak with some experience when I say that girls usually take the second seat to boys in school," she said.

Offers Freedom

"By virtue of her psychological nature, women are more reticent than men, and thus usually step aside and let men take the important positions."

This is not the case at a university such as San Diego's College for Women, she said. There the young women hold all the student government positions and learn to stand up and express themselves as well as to make decisions without the aid of a man in a superior position.

"Of course, this isn't the answer for everyone, but for many it offers a freedom they never before enjoyed—to express themselves without fearing intimidation," she added.

"The students here do enjoy a very normal social and intellectual exchange with the young men studying at the university—I feel this is an ideal arrangement."

HOW COLLEGE LIBRARIES STACK UP

Special to the National Catholic Reporter

PHILADELPHIA—A classicist at St. Joseph's college has developed a method of mathematically rating college libraries. His own school library ranks near the bottom of the list.

The top rating was achieved by Oberlin college, Ohio.

Catholic colleges in general ran behind other schools in the rankings developed in a study of 666 liberal arts college libraries by James T. McDonough Jr., director of the college's office of humanistic research.

The study was designed to show where a college's library stands in relation to comparable colleges in the country, according to McDonough. "It also attempts for the first time to compute an objective, over-all excellence quotient for liberal arts college libraries."

The study ranks college libraries according to their number of books, number of books per student, and salary budget.

These were found to be the three key factors out of 20 measurable factors reported by the colleges in a survey by the U.S. Office of Education, which financed the study.

Other factors examined but found less significant included such things as the number of hours of student help, periodicals subscribed to and budget for rebinding books.

To determine the key factors and their relative importance, McDonough and statistician Henrik Arnesen used a computer to find significant differences between all of the colleges in the survey and a control group of 70 colleges rated in another study as excellent on the basis of factors other than their libraries.

Weighing and combining the three factors gave McDonough an "excellence quotient" for each library.

ON THE BASIS OF the excellence quotient, Oberlin college, Ohio, has the best college library in the country.

Following Oberlin in the top 10 were Wesleyan university of Connecticut, Port Hays of Kansas, Trinity of Connecticut, Smith, Amherst, Vassar, Haverford, Wellesley, and Bryn Mawr of Philadelphia.

Only institutions considered by the Office of Education as liberal arts colleges were included in the study. The group includes some seminaries and institutions designating themselves universities.

Of the 666 college libraries ranked, 184 are Catholic; 86 in the top half of the ratings and 98 in the bottom half.

In the top 10 per cent (67 libraries), 5 are Catholic, and of the bottom 10 per cent, 17 are Catholic. In the top and bottom 20 per cents there were 19 and 35 Catholic colleges respectively.

The highest ranked Catholic college library was at St. Vincent's college, Latrobe, Pa., a Benedictine school, which ranked 31st. Its excellence quotient was 635 on a list that ran from Oberlin's 864 to Edwards Waters' (Jacksonville, Fla.) 242.

McDonough noted: "While in general the better the college the better the library, this report is in no sense whatsoever to be understood as a ranking of the colleges concerned, merely their libraries."

He added that a difference of a few places on the list one way or another is probably insignificant, and that the study does not take into account changes since 1962-63 when the original survey was made.

THE VALUE of the survey for colleges, he said, is to show how far they have to go to reach a specific percentile under present standards. He said that somewhere between the 80th and 90th percentile on the current rankings would be a reasonable place for the average college to shoot for.

McDonough undertook the study partly to prove a point to the St. Joseph's college administration. He is a member of the school's library board, and found it difficult to make a case for more funds for the library in the absence of objective tests for how good the library was.

St. Joseph's has an excellence quotient of 410, putting it in the bottom 10 per cent.

McDonough, who earned his Ph.D. in classics at Columbia university, first used the computer on a humanities problem in 1961 when he analyzed the meter and syllables of the Iliad to show that it was written by one man, not several as 19th century scholars contended.

In addition to his planned rankings of other kinds of educational institutions' libraries, McDonough is developing plans for a follow-up study by teams of experts of some of the college libraries to assess the importance of factors that can't be measured in numbers, such as "open" versus "closed" stack systems, operating hours and the attitude of librarians.

Catholic institutions with libraries in the top 20 per cent were: St. Vincent's, St. Francis College for Women (43rd), Benedictine Heights, Tulsa Okla. (46th), Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart (49th), St. Benedict's, Atchison, Kansas (62nd), St. John's, Collegeville, Minnesota (71st), St. Francis seminary, Milwaukee (83rd), Leons, Dubuque, Iowa (85th), Immaculate Heart, Los Angeles (92nd), Marygrove, Detroit, and College of St. Catherine, St. Paul, Minn. (129th).

In the bottom 20 per cent were: Providence (R.I.), Saint Regis, Newport, R.I., University of Dallas, St. Joseph, Emmitsburg, Md., Mercyhurst, Erie, Pa., Mount Mary, Yankton, S.D.; Marian, Indianapolis; Bellarmine, Louisville; Pontiac, Racine, Wis.; Mount Mercy, Cedar Rapids; Mount St. Joseph, St. Louis; Orangeville, Calif.; St. Mary of the Plains, Dodge City, Kans.; Mount St. Mary, Hooksett, N.H.; Caldwell College for Women, New Jersey; Horrocks seminary, Columbus, Ohio; Notre Dame college, Staten Island, N.Y.; Marymount, New York; Villa Maria, Erie, Pa.; in the bottom 10 per cent: St. Francis, Hidesford, Me.; Our Lady of Cincinnati (Ohio); Mount St. Mary, Newburgh, N.Y.; St. Basil's, Stamford, Conn.; Siena, Memphis, Tenn.; St. Joseph's, Philadelphia; Our Lady of the Pines, Chocoma, Mass.; St. Michael's, Santa Fe, New Mex.; Cardinal Cushing, Brookline, Mass.; St. Joseph's, N. ## Toreros Prep For Opener

Only two things stand in the way of the University of San Diego Toreros from being ready for the Cal Poly, Pomona, Broncos in their season opener on Dec. 1 at the USD Gym.

They are, Bill Sheridan's fractured arm and Gus Magee's weak knees. Dr. Gordon Stolzoff, the Torero's team physician, has been working hard to ready the players for the important opener.

"The opener against Cal Poly, Pomona is of prime importance at this moment," said Coach Phil Woolpert this week. "We've scheduled a lot of teams this year that look like extremely tough opponents on paper, but I'll have to worry about them later."

Right now, Coach Woolpert is worrying about how the injuries of Sheridan and Magee will affect the Toreros' strength in the opener. Sheridan, a starter at guard much of last season, suffered a hairline fracture of the wrist in the first week of practice. Dr. Stolzoff will decide Nov. 23 whether or not Sheridan's cast can be removed allowing him to play with the aid of a leather brace.

"Sheridan is an excellent ball handler with exceptional basketball sense," said Woolpert. "How soon Bill is able to play is questionable, but we hope he'll be well by Dec. 1."

Gus Magee, the 6-7, 215 pound transfer trying for starter center, has resumed practice sessions after being sidelined due to an aggravated football injury. Gus's knees have been heavily bandaged and although they were not damaged, have been weakened considerably. After two weeks rest, Gus is again practicing with the squad, and hopes are high that his knees are now strong enough to prevent further troubles.

Great Artists' Work Shown At University

An exhibition of original woodcuts, etchings, and lithographs by Chagall, Miro, Daumier, Matisse, Renoir, Appel, Baskin, and many others will be held Nov. 28 through Dec. 16 at the Knights of Columbus Library, University of San Diego College for Men.

While visitors to the exhibition are under no obligation to purchase any of the works to be shown, all of the items will be offered for sale at prices ranging from $3 to $75.

The exhibition has been arranged with the cooperation of the Ferdinand Rotten Galleries of Baltimore, well-known dealers in graphic arts, by Dr. Lee Gerlach, Chairman of the English Department, University of San Diego College for Men.

Original prints are impressions on fine paper, taken from plates, woodblocks, or lithograph stones prepared by the artist and handprinted by him or under his supervision. No photo-mechanical process is employed, as in reproduction of paintings, etc. Original prints are usually limited in number and often the modern print is signed by the artist.

Toreros Look Toward Next NCAA Tourney

The University of San Diego Toreros, last year's NCAA regional representative, are in their second week of practice preparing for their season opener at USD Gym, Dec. 1 against the Broncos of Cal Poly, Pomona.

Six returning lettermen lead the squad of 16. Returning lettermen Rick Cabrera and Alan Fay were starters and Bill Sheridan and Ted Fields were off-and-on starters on last year's squad. Cabrera, Sheridan and Fields are juniors and Fay is a senior. Jimmy Allen, junior, and Bill Ferree, senior, are second-team lettermen from last year.

Up from the Frosh squad are 6-7 Phil Hand and 6-6 Jim Wilke, who are vying for center position on Coach Woolpert's squad, and 6-2 Bob McCloskey and 6-5 John Gleave, who are forwards.

Three transfer students figure to be tough in the running for starting positions. Also, Gus Magee, 6-7, 215 lbs. and Greg Long, 6-8, 200 lbs., are both after the center position left empty by the loss of Phil Price and Dan Wightman.

"There's no reason in the world why we can't return to the NCAA Playoffs again this year," said Woolpert. "We have four starters back from last year's squad and any of our three transfers could win a starting role. Also, there's the height that the Frosh has given us."

The Toreros have added no new teams to their schedule, but the teams on the schedule generally boost high numbers of returning lettermen and good records. USD meets the San Diego State Aztecs at State on Dec. 15 and plays Cal Western twice in February.

USD Auxiliary To Meet Today

Each member of the panel will discuss, aside from the tenets of his particular faith, his own church's viewpoint on ecumenism. Questions and discussions from the membership will be invited.

Assisting with arrangements for the luncheon meeting are Mmes. Madeline M. Kinney, Bernard R. Maloney and Emil A. Ghio.

Priest Named To Post In Fraternity

Rev. Terrence Van Orshoven, treasurer and professor of homiletics at Immaculate Heart Seminary, has been elected national moderator of Alpha Delta Gamma fraternity. Father Van Orshoven was chaplain and moderator of the Omicron Chapter of ADG at the University of San Diego College for Men.

Father Van Orshoven is a 1958 graduate of the University of San Diego College for Men. He has done graduate work in management psychology at San Diego State.

He was made an honorary member of Alpha Delta Gamma, Omicron Chapter, in 1963. His appointment as national moderator followed the death of Rev. Laurence E. Henderson, former national moderator and member of the Board of Trustees of Loyola University, Chicago.

Alpha Delta Gamma is a national fraternity founded in 1924 and located on Catholic college campuses. Seventeen chapters now comprise the national organization.

The principal duty of Father Van Orshoven's office is the maintenance of communication between the religious and social activities of the fraternity. Father Van Orshoven termed the "understanding and practice of Vatican II in apostolic and liturgical works" the keynote of his religious goals for Alpha Delta Gamma. He stressed his intention to "participate as only one vote and one person involved with many" during his three-year term of office. Periodic visits to the chapters of Alpha Delta Gamma are included in his appointment duties.

Debating Team Shares Second In Tournament

The Intercollegiate Debate Team of the University of San Diego College for Men tied for a second place in the Pacific Regional Tournament held recently at the University of Oregon, Medford, Ore. Fifty-seven colleges and universities participated in the tournament.

USD was one of three California colleges that received an invitation to the tournament. The University of the Pacific and Stanford University also received bids. USD was awarded a three-way tie for second with Stanford and the University of Washington, Junior William Sink, and freshman, Everett Hark, represented USD. The latter was Sweetwater High School's Most Outstanding Debater for 1966.

Frank Sanders, chairman of the Speech Arts Department at the College for Men, announced that USD has received an invitation to attend a tournament at the University of Portland since their second-place showing at Oregon. The College for Men debate squad will travel to the University of California at Santa Barbara for a debate November 18 and 19. Competition at Pasadena College on December 9 and 10 and the University of Southern California January 6 and 7 will complete USD's first-semester tournament schedule.

Montana Meet Attracts USD

A 10-man University of San Diego basketball squad will leave by plane today for Anaconda, Mont., and a two-day tourney which gets underway tomorrow night.

Head coach Phil Woolpert and frosh coach John Cunningham will accompany the team. Besides the tourney, the club will meet Montana, Jan. 2; Carroll College, Jan. 3, and Eastern Montana, Jan. 4, in other contests in the cold country.

Making the trip will be Rick Cabrera, Ted Fields, Bill Sheridan, Allan Fay, Gus Magee, Dural Carpenter, Greg Long, Jim Allen, Bill Ferree and Jim Wilke.

Woolpert said he had not been advised who his opening opponent would be tomorrow. Tourney teams include E. Montana, Carroll and Southern Colorado.

Woolpert said he intends to make some offensive adjustments for the trip, admitting "that the club has been 'stagnating' a bit."

"I think we should be a better shooting team now and we won't have to rely on just one man," he said. Otherwise, he said he was pleased with the team's progress.

USD Cagers Tune For Season Opener

The University of San Diego Toreros, last year's NCAA regional representative, are in their third week of practice preparing for their season opener at USD Gym December 1 against the Broncos of Cal Poly, Pomona.

Six returning lettermen lead the squad of 16. Returning lettermen Rick Cabrera and Alan Fay were starters and Bill Sheridan and Ted Fields were off-and-on starters on last year's squad. Cabrera, Sheridan and Fields are juniors and Fay is a senior. Jimmy Allen, junior, and Bill Ferree, senior, are second-team lettermen from last year.

Up from the frosh squad are 6-7 Phil Hand and 6-6 Jim Wilke, who are vying for the center position on Coach Phil Woolpert's squad, and 6-2 Bob McCloskey and 6-5 John Gleave, who are forwards.

Three transfer students also figure to be tough in the running for starting positions. Also, Gus Magee, 6-7, 215 pounds, and Greg Long, 6-8, 200 pounds, are both after the center position left empty by the loss of Phil Price and Dan Wightman.

"There's no reason in the world why we can't return to the NCAA playoffs again this year," said Woolpert. "We have four starters back from last year's squad and any of our three transfers could win a starting role. Also, there's the height that the Frosh has given us."

The Toreros have added no new teams to their schedule, but the teams on the schedule generally boost high numbers of returning lettermen and good records. USD meets the San Diego State Aztecs at State on December 15 and plays Cal Western twice in February.

USD Grabs 71-67 Win In Montana

Special to The San Diego Union
MISSOULA, Mont. — The hot-shooting University of San Diego last night handed the Montana Grizzlies a 71-67 setback before 2,000 disappointed partisans.

Alan Fay, Ted Fields and Rick Cabrera paced the Toreros as they downed 52 per cent from the field and overcame a late Montana bid. Fay, playing one of his best games of the season, hit seven for 10 from the floor and bagged 17 points. Fields and Cabrera, who sank six of 10, added 15 and 14 points, respectively.

The Californians were ahead, 35-29, at the half and moved to an 11-point lead at 41-30 three minutes into the second half. But the Grizzlies chipped away and caught the Toreros at 50-all with 10 minutes left.

A pair of shots by guard Bill Sheridan in the last three minutes provided the important margin. The Toreros sank 26 of 50 field shots while Montana had 26 of 61.

For the Grizzlies, high scoring was by Gregg Hansen with 18 points and Dennis Bletnikoff, formerly of Southwestern College, with 15.

USD, which has a 6-5 record, meets Carroll College tonight at 7 o'clock (PST) and Eastern Montana tomorrow night.

Toreros Bow To Montana Five, 61-55

Special to The San Diego Union
BILLINGS, Mont. — Three free throws each by Ernie Fortney and Don Russell last night enabled Eastern Montana to gain a 61-55 basketball victory over invading University of San Diego.

The free throws came within the last two minutes after the Toreros had battled back to near-even terms. This was USD's fourth loss on a five-game road trip through Montana.

Charles Kelly, who defeated USD with a late basket in the recent Anaconda tournament, shared scoring honors with Jim Soft for the Montana quintet. Each collected 16 points.

The Toreros, who have a 6-7 season mark, were in foul trouble early and lost center Dural Carpenter shortly after the second half began and forward Alan Fay in the final period.

Three members of the Toreros hit in double figures. Rick Cabrera collected 14 points, Jim Wilke had 12 and Bill Sheridan 11.

USD returns home and will play host to Loyola University Saturday night.

USD Toreros Open Season With Wins

With victories in their first two games, the University of San Diego Toreros will invade the Pepperdine campus this Friday night, December 9 then travel to Fresno State for a Saturday, December 10, encounter.

The Toreros could tie the series standing with Pepperdine at four games each with a victory Friday night. Cap. Steve Ebey will lead the Pepperdine starters. He scored 13.4 points a game last year and had one of the top field goal percentages in the West Coast Athletic Conference.

Other starters for the Waves are expected to be Hal Grant (6-9) at center, Tandy Holmes (6-1) at forward and Ron Whitehouse and Gary Dinnel at the guard positions. Pepperdine lost its opener to the University of Utah, 115-64, and lost to Weber State (Utah) last Saturday in overtime, 104-96.

After pulling out a 59-58 win in their opener here against Cal Poly, Pomona, the Toreros traveled to Cal State, Los Angeles, where they pulled out an 86-83 overtime win over the Diablos after forward Rick Cabrera had made a 17-foot jumper to knot the count as the buzzer sounded. Cabrera, who is averaging 20 points per game, will start at forward and will be joined by Alan Fay, Ted Fields (6-8) and Bill Sheridan will draw the starting guard positions. After his performance against Cal State, Gus Magee (17 rebounds and 17 points) may draw the starting bid at center over Dural Carpenter.

Fresno State, which claimed a rebuilding season this year, seems to be stronger than expected. The Bulldogs won their opener over University of California, Santa Barbara, Saturday night, 79-59.

The Bulldogs will start Ron Reigel (6-7) or Wes Russell (6-7) at center, Russell, Bob Lee (6-3) or Jack Kennedy (6-4) at forwards and Harry Maloney (6-0) or Lee and Jim Waldron at guard. Waldron is Fresno's only veteran starter.

Coach John Cunningham's USD frosh team exploded in their first two games this season, smothering Cal Poly of Pomona JV squad, 73-49, Thursday, and coming back to smash the frosh of Cal State, Los Angeles, 90-61, Saturday in Los Angeles.

Carroll Stops USD, 102-72

HELENA, Mont. — University of San Diego ran into a hot Carroll College team which shot 60 per cent from the field here last night and the Toreros dropped a 102-72 basketball decision.

Led by Tony Sapit and Arnie Andersen, both 6-7 and 225 pounds, Carroll hit on its first six attempts at the basket for a quick lead and never trailed in winning its seventh game against six defeats. USD is now 6-6.

Carroll, which owned a 47-34 edge at intermission, had only two fouls called against it in the first half, the second one at the halftime buzzer. USD wound up with a 20-11 edge in fouls for the night.

Rick Cabrera scored 24 points as high man for the Toreros with Ted Fields adding 22. USD ends its road trip against Eastern Montana tonight at Billings and returns home to face Loyola of Los Angeles Saturday.

USD Foul Shots Balk Pepperdine 94-85

By JOHNNY McDONALD

University of San Diego basketball team broke open a tight first half and held off a Pepperdine bid in the second half last night to down the Waves, 94-85, at USD's Gymnasium.

The Toreros, who evened their season mark at 8-8, cashed in on 12 free throws in the last four minutes to put the game away. Alan Fay, Bill Sheridan and Ted Fields were the steady men at the charity line.

Fields, the head man for the Toreros with a 16.3 average, drilled in 50 per cent of his shots from the floor to pace his club with 23 points. The jumping-jack guard was aided by Fay, who connected for 20 points, and Rick Cabrera, who canned 18.

Two other Toreros hit in double figures. They were center Dural Carpenter and guard Sheridan, who contributed 13 and 11 points, respectively.

Big Hal Grant, an agile 6-9 center, and guard Tim Flowers kept the Waves in the contest with 26 and 22-point performances.

The lead changed 16 times during a rough first half with Pepperdine leaving at intermission with a 45-44 advantage.

Neither club led by more than three points with the Waves outshooting the Toreros, 48.6 per cent to USD's 46. The Waves' rebound advantage, 25-20, was a telling point.

However, USD struck fast in the opening stages of the second half with Cabrera leading the way. Cabrera, used sparingly in the first half, connected for eight points and ignited his club to a 66-53 advantage.

The Toreros couldn't stand prosperity, however, and Grant was able to find the range and help pull his club to within three, 73-70. It was during this period that the Waves moved into a zone defense.

But from this point, the Toreros took advantage of several fouls and came off with the important victory. Pepperdine maintained a 48-47 per cent shooting average from the floor while USD had a slim advantage from the free throw line, 72-71. Although USD was the victor, Pepperdine controlled the boards, 51-39.

Fast Sharpshooters

USD Frosh Coach Lauds Cage Squad

"This year's frosh team is the quickest and best shooting of all the frosh games I've coached," University of San Diego freshman basketball coach John Cunningham reports.

The reason for Coach Cunningham's confidence has been the great showing of his team against the varsity in early scrimmages this season.

The starting line-up for their December 1 opener against Cal Poly, Pomona, is still not set, but Cunningham indicated that eight players are in the running.

Jeff Filzenger, 6-4 forward from St. Francis High in La Canada, Calif., "figures prominently in this season's plans," said Cunningham. Mike Windle, 6-7 center from Hoover High in San Diego, shows the best rebounding ability and proves to be well along defensively in the squad's scrimmages.

Also being readied as a starter is 6-4 Jim Usher from Brophy High School in Phoenix. Mike Pradelis is one of the team's leading scorers in scrimmages this year. The 6-1 guard comes from Hilltop High in Chula Vista where he was all-league. Neal Schram, a 5-11 guard, has been impressive with his speed and quickness despite suffering a leg injury.

"Perhaps the biggest surprise so far has been Bob Gamble," Cunningham said. "Bob is 5-10, very quick, the best ball handler and tough."

Gamble comes from Judge Memorial High. Nick Nicassio and Dan Freglette are strong candidates for starting guards. Nick is a 5-11 guard from St. Francis High in La Canada, and Dan is a 6-2 veteran of Notre Dame High in Sherman Oaks.

Others to watch for are Marvin Gillespie, 6-3 forward from Central Commercial High School in New York; Dick Lavelle, 6-2 forward from St. Ignatius High in San Francisco; Tim Gardner, 5-9 guard from Crespi High in Encino; John Otombrino, 6-0 guard from St. Augustine High, and Jerry Sockowski, 6-3 forward from Loyola Academy in Illinois.

Rev. Eagen Chaplain for Catholic Unit

The Rev. I. Brent Eagen, director of school relations and public information at the University of San Diego College for Men, has been named national chaplain of the National Association of Catholic Alumni Clubs.

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, appointed Father Eagen to the post at the request of Thomas Dalton of San Diego, national president of the association.

The clubs are limited to unmarried Catholics who are graduates of four-year colleges or who are registered nurses.

USD Seeks Second Win, Ditto Diablos

LOS ANGELES — University of San Diego's basketball team seeks a second straight victory tonight over Los Angeles State, which has the same objective in mind.

The Toreros opened the season Wednesday with a 59-53 victory over Cal Poly of Pomona. Los Angeles State beat Fullerton State, 93-7.

A freshman game between the schools opens the action at 5:45.

USD coach Phil Woolpert said he would start Rick Cabrera and Alan Fay at forward, Gus Magee or Durel Carpenter at center and Ted Fields and Bill Sheridan at guard.

L.A. State mentor Bob Oldham will bank on Joe Barnes and Joe Davis at forward, Charlie Thomas at center and William Fahn and Charles Oakes at guard.

Davis had 32 points in the Diablos' opener.

USD Cagers Own Potent Point Punch

By PAUL COUR

Take it from Phil Woolpert, a man who has coached some great shooters, including Bill Russell and K. C. Jones, the University of San Diego Toreros should have no trouble finding the hoop this season.

"We should be a pretty fair shooting club," said Woolpert, whose Toreros open their season Dec. 1 against Cal Poly of Pomona.

Vets Accurate
USD includes in its scoring arsenal Rick Cabrera, Alan Fay and Ted Fields, three veterans with deadly shooting eyes.

The trio has been sharp in pre-season drills.

The Toreros hope to physically be in one piece by the time they open the season. They've been plagued with a series of injuries.

Injuries Strike
"We held a hard scrimmage the other day and six players came up with groin injuries," said Woolpert. "And, guard Phil Sheridan had been slowed by a hairline wrist fracture and Gus Magee, our 6-7, 215-pound center transfer, has just started to practice again after being troubled by knee injuries."

"We should be well in a couple weeks, but I'm not figuring on Magee early in the season."

'Midget' Strong
With Magee, who is considered a good prospect, sidelined, Durel Carpenter, 6-5, former prep star at Chino, looks like the starting center.

"He's the smallest of our centers, but he's strong and has good hands," said Woolpert.

Bench Good
If Sheridan isn't ready for the opener, 6-2 guard Bob McCloskey will get the call at his guard spot. Fields will go at the other guard and Cabrera and Fay at forwards.

Woolpert figures the USD bench will be strong enough, with Jim Wilke, 6-4, and Jim Allen, 6-1, available at forwards and Greg Long, 6-8, and Phil Hand, 6-7, fortifying the center spot.

USD Home After Tour, Four Losses

University of San Diego basketball coach Phil Woolpert probably was muttering today, "Why did I ever schedule that trip?"

The Toreros returned from a disastrous swing through Montana, in which they won only one of five games. The tour included a 61-55 loss to the Eastern Montana College Yellow Jackets in Billings last night.

Free Throws Enough

Three free throws each by Ernie Fortney and Don Russell in the final two minutes provided the difference for the winners, who edged USD, 68-67, last week in the Holiday Invitational in Anaconda.

Chuck Kelly, who beat USD with a late basket last week, shared scoring honors with Jim Mota for the Yellow Jackets, each scoring 16 points.

To Foul Out
USD, now 6-7, lost center Dural Carpenter on fouls at the start of the second half. Forward Alan Fay followed a while later.

Rick Cabrera paced the losers with 14 points, followed by Jimmy Wilke with 12 and William Sheridan with 11. The Toreros play host to Loyola University of Los Angeles Saturday.

USD Auxiliary Plans For Christmas Gala

The University of San Diego Auxiliary's annual Christmas Gala will be celebrated Thursday, December 1, in the Bay Room of the Bahia Hotel. Mrs. Floyd A. Wooden, chairman, and Mrs. Kenneth R. Whitney, co-chairman, have announced that a complimentary champagne punch social will precede the noon luncheon.

Mmes. Manuel M. Ferreira and Robert E. Fitzpatrick are chairmen of decorations. Mrs. James Barron is in charge of the Christmas basket. Guests are invited to contribute a special treat to the holiday basket which will be given to a needy organization.

Santa Claus will be present to assist Auxiliary members in the traditional gift exchange. Christmas caroling by members of the College for Men's Glee Club under the direction of Father J. Vincent Sullivan is a part of the program.

Members of the committee and hostesses include Mmes. Leo J. Durkin, Murray D. Goodrich, Thomas G. Lanphier, Sr., Carl E. Lengyel, Wulfrano Ruiz, Madalyn Smay, and Paul A. Vesco.

Honored guests will include Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Very Rev. Msgr. Donald E. Duxie and Father I. Brent Eagen, director of school relations at the College for Men.

Reservations are being accepted by Mmes. Neil R. McIntyre, Francis C. Martin, and Kenneth R. Whitney.

Tune for Opener Two USD Cagers Slowed by Injuries

The University of San Diego Toreros have sustained two injuries so far this season but the local cagers should be in good shape for their first game with Cal Poly of Pomona at USD gym December 1.

Guard Bill Sheridan (6-0, 180) suffered a hairline fracture in his wrist the first week of November and has been refraining from strenuous workouts. Dr. Gordon E. Stolzoff, the Toreros' team physician, will remove the cast from Sheridan's arm Saturday. At that time he will decide whether the arm will be strong enough for Sheridan to play with the aid of a leather brace.

Sheridan was a starter on last year's squad which won the at-large berth in the NCAA regional play-offs at Fresno last March. Sheridan and the other four starters who return this year have been pushed by talented new men to retain their positions and Coach Phil Woolpert hasn't mentioned a possible starting team. At present, Sheridan is a doubtful starter in the opening game.

Gus Magee, a transfer to the Toreros from Tougaloo College, Miss., by way of the Air Force, where he played ball for four years, also is on the injured list, although he resumed workouts with the squad last week. The 6-6, 215-pound center, had a recurrence of a knee problem which resulted from a high school football injury.

"His (Magee's) knees are better after the rest," said Woolpert, "but we're still taking it easy with him. If he doesn't start for us, he'll sure add to our depth at center."

Coach John Cunningham's frosh team also has absorbed two injuries, both during the past week. Dan Freglette, 6-2 guard, suffered a muscle strain in his upper thigh. He is resting but should return in good shape next week.

Nick Nicassio, 5-11 guard, twisted his ankle in the freshman's scrimmage with Miramonte Junior College Friday.

NEIL MORGAN

NOTE: Richard Lavelle, the forward on USD's freshman basketball team, was especially jubilant over his team's defeat of Cal Poly. His grandfather, Julian McPhee, is president of Cal Poly. . . . One of the Texans in the La Jolla Beach & Tennis tournament, Roy Wilder of Corpus Christi & Tennis tournament, license plates TENNIS. . . . Jack Thompson's S.D. ## Coach Woolpert Optimistic

Strong USD Cage Team Seen in Making

The University of San Diego Toreros, last year's at-large representative in the NCAA regional play-offs in Fresno, has two weeks left to prepare for their 1966-67 basketball opener against Cal Poly, Pomona, USD gym. The freshman contest between the two schools will precede the varsity contest at 6 p.m.

Coach Phil Woolpert is optimistic about the Toreros' chances to return to the NCAA play-offs this year. "We have the potential to make it back to the play-offs," said Woolpert, "and I think that barring injuries, we will be a strong contender."

6 Lettermen Back
The Toreros return six lettermen this year after losing the same. But those returning contain some of the cream of last year's crop. Rick Cabrera, a junior, who was named to the United Press International All-West Coast team last year as a sophomore, is back to lead the Toreros. Cabrera took the scoring title last year with 305 points after taking over the first-string spot vacated by Cliff Ashford for the second semester. Cabrera scored 195 points in those 11 games for a 17.7 average. In the previous 17 games, he had collected 110 points for sixth position and a 6.9 average.

Backing up Cabrera are two more juniors and a senior. The juniors, Ted Fields, (6-2, guard-forward) and Bill Sheridan (6-0 guard), earned starting positions by mid-season last year. Fields has been called "one of the best guards on the coast" by Woolpert. Sheridan, whom Woolpert labels an excellent ball handler with a fine basketball mind, led the Toreros last year in free throw percentage with 79.6 percent.

Lone Senior

The lone senior starter returning from last year's squad is Alan Fay (6-5, forward). Last year, Fay was third in rebounds (136), second in total points (256) and second in accuracy from both the floor (41 per cent) and the charity line (73 per cent). After two varsity seasons, he ranks 10th among the all-time scorers at USD.

Other returning lettermen are Jimmy Allen (6-1, forward), a junior, and Bill Ferree (6-0, from last year's squad are Mike Ferrua, Larry Gaddy, and Steve Wojdowski.

Transfers and players from the freshman team are another big reason for Woolpert's optimism. There are five big men presently vying for the center position on the first team. Transfers Gus Magee (6-6, 215 pounds), Greg Long (6-8, 200 pounds) and Durel Carpenter (6-5, 215 pounds) and two of last year's freshmen, Phil Hand (6-7, 210 pounds) and Jim Wilke (6-6, 185 pounds) have been handling themselves very well in practice.

Air Force Veteran

Magee comes to the Toreros via the Air Force, where he played four years of service ball for Mather AFB, Sacramento. Magee is a sophomore and has three years of eligibility left but is presently laid up with a bad knee. Long played two years at East Texas State, Commerce, Texas, before returning to his home town, El Cajon, and enrolling at USD. He was a starter for East Texas and one of their top scorers. Carpenter, who transferred to USD last year for the baseball season after attending Stanford and Mt. San Antonio JC, is playing his first year of collegiate basketball and is some of that hidden talent coaches are always glad to find.

Wilke is the top prospect from last year's freshman team. He scored 235 points for an 11.1 average in his freshman career and was second in rebounding (187). He has shown himself to be a team leader and an accurate shooter.

Tough Schedule

The Toreros play just about the same schedule this year as last. The tougher opponents are Cal State, Los Angeles, Fresno State, University of California, Irvine, Cal Poly, Pomona, and Loyola.

In inter-city competition, the Toreros meet the powerful San Diego State Aztecs at State's Peterson Gym on December 15. The Aztecs started four sophomores and a junior last season and all five have returned. They are young and experienced and will be the team to beat in their conference. The Toreros have beaten the Aztecs the past two years to tie the rivalry at two games each.

The Westerners of Cal Western have two dates with USD late in the season. USD hosts the Point Lomans on February 18, and then travel to Golden Gym the following Tuesday, February 21.

Holiday Cage Tourney To Feature Area Teams

Three San Diego basketball squads will take the country Dec. 20-22 to lend inter-sectional interest in the seventh annual Holiday Basketball Tournament to be contested in California Western University's Golden Gym.

Co-sponsors of the event are Cal Western and Phibopac. The Westerners are defending NAIA District 3 champions, and the Navy's Phibopac Invaders are rated by many coaches as one of the best organized service teams on the West Coast.

Coach Phil Woolpert's Toreros from the University of San Diego make up the third local team. They will be shooting for a second tournament championship to match their 1964 record.

The team to beat will be the 1965 champions, Northern Arizona University's Lumberjacks, coached by Herb Gregg. Last year the Lumberjacks from Flagstaff edged Cal Western out of the championship, 69-64.

Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo will be returning to Point Loma tournament competition after an absence of three years. In 1963, the Mustangs ended Whittier College's championship hopes, 79-64, only to be stopped short in the semi-finals by Cal Western, 64-53.

Donnell, Lavelle, 12/1/66

Durel Carpenter (21) of USD tries to get a jump shot away despite close guarding by Cleo Robinson (42) and Russ Thompson (41) of Cal Poly. Carpenter scored seven points to help the Toreros to a 59-58 victory.

SURVIVE LATE SCARE

Toreros Outlast Cal Poly, 59-58

By JOHNNY McDONALD

University of San Diego gave out with a big sigh of relief last night as a missed field goal from easy distance enabled the Toreros to gain a shaky 59-58 victory over Cal Poly of Pomona in the USD gym.

Bronco center Cleo Robinson had a clear shot from 10 feet but with three seconds to play the ball bounced away and into the eager hands of the Toreros.

Coach Phil Woolpert described his club's initial triumph as a "spectator's game, but a coach's nightmare."

SQUANDER LEAD

The Toreros, who appear a bit slower than last year, frittered away a 16-point first half advantage, struggled to keep ahead through the second portion of the contest and finally fell four points behind with six minutes remaining.

USD regrouped its forces in the final stages to knot the score three times and win it on Ted Fields' free throw with 20 seconds to play. Ex-Hoover High performer Nick Barkett, working at forward for the Broncos, committed the foul.

Coch Bob Stull tried to maneuver his club into scoring position for a winning bucket. After a toss down court, Cal Poly called time with 14 seconds remaining. Another pass neared the bucket and the Broncos stopped the clock again.

Trying to grab the rebound, Torero Rick Cabrera had the ball bounce away and out of bounds with four seconds to go.

JONES GETS 19

Dave Jones, a 6-foot junior guard, sparked the "Broncos" comeback in the late stages of the first half and fired up the visitors in the second half to walk off with high point honors with 19 points.

The Toreros were paced by three players who hit in double figures. They were Fields with 14, Cabrera with 13 and Alan Pay with 12.

USD got off first as Poly failed to find its shooting eye. The Toreros had a 14-4 lead with 11:01 to go before Doug Shinn earned the first basket for Poly.

"We substituted to give some of our boys a rest (with 6:29 to go) but poor handling cost us," said Woolpert. Poly got untracked and left at intermission trailing only 31-27.

With Cabrera, Durel Carpenter and Pay connecting on field goals, USD was able to stretch its advantage to 37-31 early in the second half but Jones and swift Danny Rodriguez were hard to handle. Eight minutes later the score was tied, 50-50.

USD had the shooting advantage with 39 per cent to 32 for Poly and also claimed the boards, 53 rebounds to 30.

USD Debaters Take First Place Trophy

The superior first-place trophy for debate is at the University of San Diego, College for Men, this week.

The college's debate and forensic team won its first top-flight trophy in the novice division of the fall championship last weekend at Pasadena College.

Everett Harry, freshman, and John Kennedy, sophomore, were awarded the first place novice trophy in the Pacific Southwest Collegiate Forensic Assn. sponsored tournament.

Fred Sanders, speech arts chairman and USD's debate coach, entered two other teams in debate competition.

Bill Saleeby, freshman, and Jerry Dominelli, junior, competed in the novice division and compiled a 4-2 record. Joseph and Dennis Snelittico, senior and junior at the College for Men, won three and lost three debates in lower division.

The tournament included competitors from 30 colleges and universities, all four-year institutions in the Pacific Southwest. USD's next tournament will be January 27-28 at the University of Southern California winter tournament.

Loyola University of LA will co-host the national tourney that will draw colleges and universities from the East and Midwest. USD will enter two teams in the lower division competition at the tournament.

USD LIGHTS UP THE CAMPUS

Glow of luminarias (paper bags in which candles are placed in bed of sand) will light University of San Diego campus each night from 7 to 9 through Dec. 18. Placing of the 425 lights is student project.

USD's Rick Cabrera (21) scores on a layin last night against San Diego State in Peterson Gym. Al Skalecky (34), Gary McCoy (10) and Rick Eveleth (52) couldn't prevent Aztec victory in overtime, 55-50.

5TH IN ROW FOR SDS

Aztecs Beat USD With Rally, 55-50

By HOWARD HAGEN

Undefeated San Diego State scored nine pressure points in overtime to beat University of San Diego, 55-50, at Peterson Gym last night and gain a leg toward the city basketball crown.

A crowd of 2,338 saw the Aztecs, winners of five straight, rally from a five-point deficit late in the second half and triumph on balanced scoring during the five-minute extra period.

It was a tense, old-fashioned defensive battle as both clubs shot poorly on field goals, probably because of the tenuous man-to-man defenses both teams threw up. The scoring difference, actually, came at the free throw lines where the Aztecs sank 21 of 33 against 10 of 15 for USD.

The Toreros, now 4-2 for the season, were nailed with 26 fouls, the Aztecs only 14.

After regulation time ended with the count at 46-41, little Aztec guard Gary McCoy put his side out front to stay with a free throw, after being fouled by Torero Bill Sheridan.

Big Aztec Bob Lundgren, the game's high scorer with 17 points, banked home a basket and Aztec Bob Clem followed with a short jumper that sent the Aztecs ahead at 51-46 and, in reality, out of sight.

In the final four minutes of overtime, four points by Aztec Al Skalecky and Clem more than offset a jump basket by Durel Carpenter just before the gun.

Skalecky, who teams with Lundgren in a rugged Aztec front line, and clever Torero Ted Fields each accounted for 16 points while the only other man in double figures was Sheridan with 11.

The quick, tight-guarding Toreros were on top most of the time against the cold-shooting Aztecs, who hit only 26.6 per cent of their field goal attempts, 17 out of 64.

The Toreros were almost as poor from the field, scoring 20 of 63 for 31.7 per cent. The Aztecs hit only 19 per cent before intermission, forcing many shots and missing repeatedly from all positions.

Because of the well-coached defenses, only nine points were scored in the first six minutes. Torero Alan Pay was doing a good defensive job on Lundgren and the Toreros were setting some nice screens but the faster-breaking Aztecs stayed with them and it was 13-13 midway of the first half.

Then Torero Carpenter came onto the floor and hit twice over Skalecky to fire his team into a 20-15 lead and it was 22-19 for USD at the break.

Early in the second half, the Aztecs tied the score at 24-24 on Dave Miller's follow shot, and Rick Eveleth regained the lead for State with a jump basket.

Aztecs Shade Toreros, 55-50

from behind a screen set by Dave Olmsted.

In one stretch of the second half, the Toreros outscored State by 11-2 for a 36-31 lead before Aztec Miller hooked a basket from out front.

The Aztec press forced two turnovers that they converted into a 43-42 lead. With 2½ minutes left in regulation time, Skalecky tied the score at 44-44. Lundgren pushed the Aztecs into a 46-44 edge but Torero Gus Magee's basket 1½ minutes before the regulation gun sent it into overtime.

The Aztecs then stalled for the final shot but lost the ball when McCoy double dribbled with three seconds left.

Pay, an excellent defender, had picked up four fouls at 12:10 of the second half and the Torero cause was hurt when he relied on five personals with 2½ minutes left in the game.

In the prelim, the USD freshman beat the Aztec Frosh, 69-64.

Waves Host Undefeated USD Tonight

LOS ANGELES — Hot-shooting Rick Cabrera will lead the unbeaten University of San Diego Toreros against a stronger Pepperdine quintet tonight on the Waves' floor.

Tipoff is slated for 8 with a 5:45 preliminary pitting the freshman clubs.

Cabrera, who scored 27 points against Los Angeles State in his last outing, will be joined at the forward location by Alan Pay, a 6-5 senior who is 10th on the all-time list at USD.

The 6-3, 175-pound Cabrera has hit 41 per cent from the floor and has an exceptional 84 per cent at the free throw line.

The two will be joined by Gus Magee, a 6-4 center who leads in rebounds with 23; and guards Ted Fields, who has a 16-point average, and Bill Sheridan, a fine playmaker.

The Waves, beaten twice by USD last season, are expected to rebound from a 2-24 win-loss campaign with team captain Steve Ebey, a 6-4, 215-pound forward leading the attack.

FRESNO — Fresno State last night came alive in the second half and went on to hand the University of San Diego its first defeat of the season, 71-61, in a game that featured four technicals and the benching of one of the visiting stars.

The Toreros led at the half, 35-32, and were on top until Ted Fields was banished by an official with about eight minutes gone in the second period. Fields was the second high scorer for the visitors with 11 points. Rick Cabrera was the top individual performer with 27 points for the Toreros.

Jack Kennedy tallied 20, Vince Clemmons, 16, and Ron Riegel, 12, for the visitors.

The four technicals were called on the Toreros.

Former Pastor Honored Here

Very Rev. John A. Daley, OSA, former pastor of St. Patrick's Church in North Park, was honored at a reception given in his honor last Sunday by the Archconfraternity of the Blessed Sacrament.

Father Daley, a visitor the past few weeks in San Diego, served as pastor of the parish from 1926 to 1941. The present church was built during his time of service there.

He is the religious superior of the Augustinian community serving St. Laurence's parish in Lawrence, Mass.

Fr. Eagen Named National Chaplain

Rev. I. Brent Eagen, director of school relations and public information at the University of San Diego College for Men, has been appointed national chaplain of the National Association of Catholic Alumni Clubs. Father Eagen was appointed to the office by Most Rev. Francis J. Furey at the request of Thomas Dalton, San Diego business consultant and national president of the Association of Catholic Alumni Clubs.

The NACAC is an organization limited to single Catholics who are graduates of accredited four-year colleges or who are registered nurses. The primary purpose of the club is to bring together unmarried, college-educated, Catholic men and women for religious, cultural, social, charitable, and recreational activities.

The history of the Catholic Alumni Clubs began in 1940 with the formation of a club for single Catholic college graduates in Milwaukee. A second club was formed in Los Angeles in 1949. The Southern California clubs formed a Council of Catholic Alumni Clubs in 1956. New clubs were established in Seattle, San Francisco, and Detroit in the same year. The National Association was created in 1957 and has expanded to a present size of 37 chapters throughout the United States.

Father Eagen attended Loyola University of Los Angeles prior to entering St. Francis College in El Cajon to study for the priesthood in the Diocese of San Diego. He was ordained May 19, 1956, in St. Joseph's Cathedral. He returned to Loyola University and received his Master of Arts degree in English.

He was appointed assistant professor of English at the University of San Diego College for Men and taught English and American literature until he received his present assignment as director of school relations and public information. Father Eagen has been admitted into the doctoral program at the University of California at Los Angeles, where he has done further graduate work.

USD Coach Finds Ray of Sunshine in Defeat

By PAUL COUR

LOS ANGELES—Rick Cabrera and Ted Fields sparked the University of San Diego to its second straight basketball victory last night, an 86-83 overtime decision over Los Angeles State in the Diablos' gymnasium.

Cabrera led the USD attack with 27 points while Fields collected 18. Center Gus Magee hit 17 before fouling out in the extra session.

However, Cabrera and Fields connected when it counted. Cabrera, a 6-3, 175-pound junior, sank a 17-footer in the final second of regulation play to give the rallying Toreros a 73-73 standoff. In overtime, the quick-moving forward and Fields, a 6-2 junior guard, garnered 12 of the 13 points tallied by the visitors.

A pair of free throws by Fields with 3:14 left settled the issue.

The taller Los Angeles State club had four players in double figures. They were Joe Davis with 21, Cary Smith with 20 and Charles Thomas and Joe Barnes with 17 each.

The Diablos jumped out front and built a sizeable lead before USD shaved it to a 44-34 deficit at halftime. Again LA State expanded its margin by as much as 14 points in the second half before USD came alive.

USD had the edge in shooting percentages, 42.7 to 41.9, but the Diablos outscored the visitors, 69-51.

In the foul-plagued affair, each club lost three performers. Alan Fay, Durel Carpenter and Magee were sidelined for USD while Davis, Barnes and Bob Reid fouled out for LA State.

USD's inability to hit from the outside took away a major offensive weapon from Woolpert's club, which has a 42 season record.

"Our outside shooting wasn't good," Woolpert said. "We didn't get many good shots though. They played tough defense against us. I'd say they're the best club we've faced, particularly on defense."

The Aztecs shot only 27 per cent on 17 of 64 from the field against the defense-minded Toreros.

The Toreros were cool in the shooting department, too, with 29-for-63 for 32 per cent.

Forward Alan Fay, usually a consistent point-getter for the Toreros, scored only one field goal in 13 attempts and Rick Cabrera, another good shooter, was two-for-nine against the pesky SDC defense.

Woolpert was pleased with the Toreros' backboard play. "We were pretty tough on the boards," he said. The statistics backed him up, too. USD, paced by Durel Carpenter's nine retrieves and Cabrera's eight, outboarded the taller Aztecs, 39-37. All Skalecky accounted for 17 of the Aztecs' points.

Aztecs Risk Unbeaten Record Against USD

Crosstown rivals San Diego State and the University of San Diego collide tonight for the first and only time this basketball season in the Aztecs' Peterson Gym.

A capacity crowd is expected for the 8 p.m. game, which follows a 5:45 p.m. meeting of the freshman teams.

Undeclared after four games and striving to match the national recognition accorded its football team, the Aztecs took a big step in that direction Tuesday night by routing Evansville, 86-43.

The Aztecs were ranked 14th in the first small college basketball poll but easily handled the third-ranked Aces and may be on their way to the top in this sport also.

The Toreros will counter with Gary McCoy (5-9) and Rick Evaleth (6-4) in the starting lineup.

Parents' Day Program Set

The first Parents' Day will be held Saturday, February 4, at the University of San Diego College for Men. A Faculty-Parent Tea will begin the program at 1 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge. The Associated Student Body is sponsoring the event.

Guided tours of the campus will be conducted by students from 2 to 4 p.m. Student residence apartments, science labs, classrooms, and the Knights of Columbus Library will be open for inspection.

Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, president of the College for Men; Rev. I. Brent Eagen, director of School Relations; and Stephen DeSales, president of the Associated Student Body, will address the parents at 4 p.m. The University of San Diego Glee Club, directed by Rev. J. Vincent Sullivan, will present a choral program.

Parents' Day visitors will be served a ranch-style dinner from 5 to 6 p.m. in the Lark Cafeteria. Parents and their families will be the guests of the Associated Student Body at the USD frosh and varsity games against San Fernando Valley State at 6 and 8 p.m. in USD gym.

USD Faces Aussie Five Here Tonight

The Australian basketball team currently touring the United States will be the guests of the University of San Diego Toreros in a game at 8 tonight (Thursday) in the USD gym.

The Aussies are coached by Ken Watson, coach of the Australian Olympic team in 1956. Watson's teams have won seven national titles in Australia since 1950. The big man for the visitors is former Auburn star Fred Guy, 6-7, 220-pound center and forward. Also playing for the visitors will be two veterans of the 1964 Olympic team. They are Lindsey Gaze and Bill Wyatt. Ray Watson, the coach's son, also plays for the visitors.

The game was scheduled last week and is not official for the Toreros, but promises to be a fast and exciting game. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students with student body cards.

The game interrupts a previously long break in the Toreros' schedule preceding final examinations. The Toreros will continue their current homestand against Fresno State next Monday, January 16, with a preliminary game pitting the freshmen against the USD alumni at 6 p.m.

Fresno dealt the Toreros their first loss of the season at Fresno in early December, 71-61, when the Toreros ran into foul trouble, collected four technicals and had scoring leader Ted Fields tossed out of the game in the second half.

Having evened their record at 7-7 with last Saturday's win over Loyola, USD hopes that the home floor advantage will keep them on the winning note. USD has won their last three home games and six of their last seven.

Fields continues to pace the Toreros with a 16.8 average followed by Rick Cabrera with 16. Gus Magee and Dural Carpenter have been the Toreros' strong men in the rebounding department with 92 and 85 grabs respectively for the season.

Rated Best Game
"We played our best total game of the season against Loyola," said Coach Phil Woolpert. "We were consistent for the entire game on both defense and offense. I have to take the blame for our inconsistency, the biggest problem we've had."

After the Fresno game, USD will host Pepperdine on January 28, Cal State, Los Angeles, on February 3, San Fernando Valley State, February 4, and Chapman February 10 before traveling to Whittier on February 11.

IN OVERTIME

Toreros Defeat Loyola, 74-66

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Basketball victories haven't come easy at University of San Diego this season but when the battling Toreros pull one off it's a lulu.

Last night was just such the case as the Toreros surprised Loyola University in overtime, 74-66, before a screaming crowd at USD gymnasium.

Ted Fields, a spring-legged guard, and long-shooting Rick Cabrera led USC in its catch-up struggle with 25 and 20 points, respectively, but it was a follow-up shot by center Dural Carpenter which provided the momentum.

Carpenter, a 6-5, 215-pound sophomore, dropped in a field goal with two seconds remaining, after a pair of missed shots, to send the game into the extra session. This was the third time this campaign that USD has been forced to battle into overtime.

Then, Fields and Cabrera took over from there and scored 11 of the Toreros' 16 overtime points. Fields bucketed nine of 10 free throws and Cabrera sank a follow shot and a pair of charity tosses.

Loyola, which appeared ready to collect its eighth win of 12 engagements, led 9-55 with 55 seconds to go in regulation. But two turnovers by the Lions was enough to change the game around. Alan Fay pumped in a jumper from about 15 feet away with 52 seconds to play and Carpenter supplied the tying shot.

This was the Toreros' seventh victory in 14 games and ended a slide which had seen them fall four times on a five-game Montana road trip.

Also, this was only the second time in 10 years the Toreros have been able to knock off the usually stronger Lions from the WCAC.

Dick Sebek, a 6-5 junior, and Ken Petersen, a 6-4 senior, provided the scoring punch for the visitors with 20 and 20 points, respectively. However, 6-8 center Paul Dayden was unable to carry his load because of the fine defense work of Carpenter. The big fellow failed to get a field goal and had only two free throws.

The first half was a struggle from the opening jump. The lead changed nine times and the score was tied on 10 occasions.

Biggest advantage was USD's 28-24 margin with five minutes to go. However, Sebek hit three free throws and a jump and Loyola left at intermission with a 32-31 lead.

Toreros Salvage Hoop Win Despite Pressing Distress

By PAUL COURT

Evening Tribune Sports Writer

"Would you believe," said University of San Diego basketball coach Phil Woolpert,

"that we practiced more against the full court press than we ever had before?"

Nope, Phil, it's hard to believe, after watching the Toreros struggle to a 59-53 victory over Cal Poly of Pomona in their hoop opener last night in the USD gym.

The Toreros were coasting along nicely, with a 31-16 lead over the Broncos with less than three minutes to go in the first half. Then it happened. The Broncos came out in their press and completely befuddled the Toreros.

Margin Chopped

The Pomonans chopped the USD margin to 31-27 by halftime and the Toreros had to scratch right down to the final whistle to pull out the victory.

"We were making them play our kind of game until late in the first half," said Woolpert. "Then, they turned it around, and pretty soon we were playing their game."

"They just took the play away from us there. We were penetrating, but we'd start dribbling the ball instead of passing it. I hope our ball club learned something from this game."

Must Keep Drilling

"We'll just have to keep drilling against the press. It takes a real team effort to beat it. We're going to have to learn to prosecute the advantage when we have a lead, too."

It was back to practice today for the Toreros, who return to action tomorrow night against Los Angeles State College on the "Diablos" court.

The Toreros found themselves on the short end of a 59-56 score with 1:49 to play last night. Rick Cabrera was fouled with 1:28 to go and made good on both gifts to send USD into a 58-58 deadlock.

Nick Barkell, 45-Hoover High eager, playing for the Broncos, fouled Ted Fields with 20 seconds to play and the Torero guard made the second of two free throw attempts to provide the slim win margin.

Bronco Cleo Robinson missed a two-handed jump shot from the key in the dying seconds to give the Toreros their narrow escape.

Ragged Ball-Handling

Ragged ball-handling plagued the Toreros, who turned over the ball to the Broncos 31 times. Cal Poly reciprocated with 22 turnovers.

Fields, Cabrera and Alan Fay paced USD scoring with 14, 13, and 12 points, respectively. Dave Jones led the way for the losers with 19.

USD shot 19-for-48 for 39 percent in Pomona's 21-for-64 for 32 percent.

IN OVERTIME

Toreros Defeat Loyola, 74-66

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Basketball victories haven't come easy at University of San Diego this season but when the battling Toreros pull one off it's a lulu.

Last night was just such the case as the Toreros surprised Loyola University in overtime, 74-66, before a screaming crowd at USD gymnasium.

Ted Fields, a spring-legged guard, and long-shooting Rick Cabrera led USC in its catch-up struggle with 25 and 20 points, respectively, but it was a follow-up shot by center Dural Carpenter which provided the momentum.

Carpenter, a 6-5, 215-pound sophomore, dropped in a field goal with two seconds remaining, after a pair of missed shots, to send the game into the extra session. This was the third time this campaign that USD has been forced to battle into overtime.

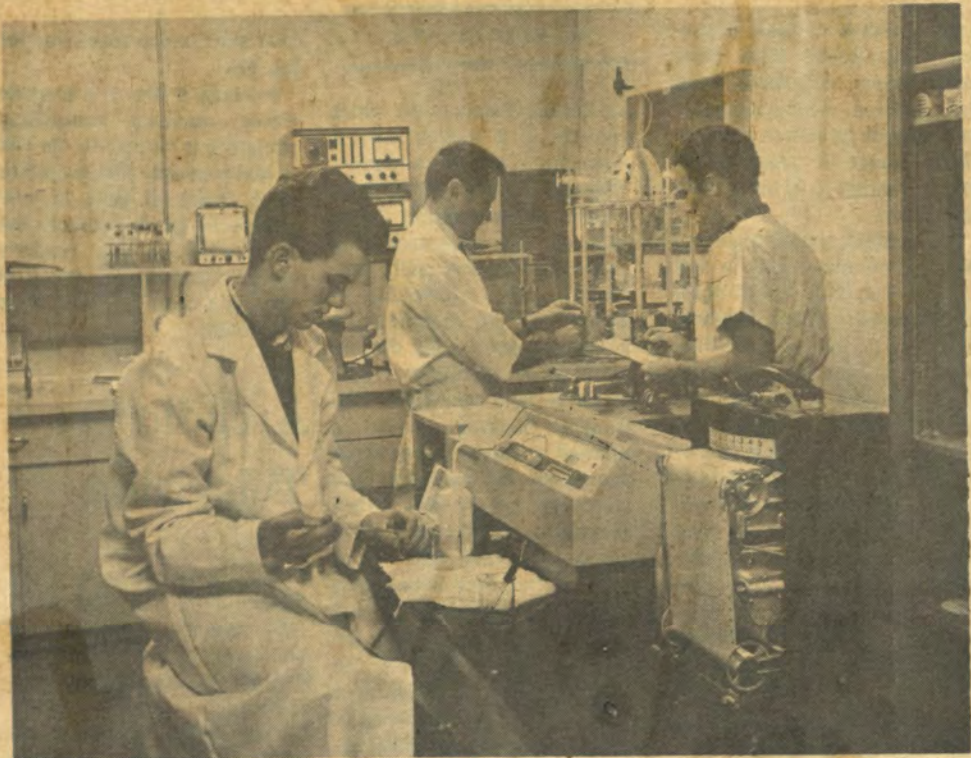

Then, Fields and Cabrera took over from there and scored 11 of the Toreros' 16 overtime points. Fields bucketed nine of 10 free throws and Cabrera sank a follow shot and a pair of charity tosses.

Loyola, which appeared ready to collect its eighth win of 12 engagements, led 9-55 with 55 seconds to go in regulation. But two turnovers by the Lions was enough to change the

UNIVERSITY OF SAN DIEGO—OUTSTANDING SCIENCE PROGRAM

Science Labs Improved At SD

New faculty, enlarged facilities and enrollment marked the opening of the University of San Diego this fall, according to Rev. I. Brent Eagen, Director of School Relations.

Fifteen new Ph.D.'s will be available to the student body of more than 1,500. Graduates of Harvard, Georgetown, Cornell, UCLA and Michigan State are represented on the new faculty.

Dr. Leland H. Carlson of Claremont Graduate School and School of Theology has been appointed visiting professor in Ecumenism. All students enrolled in theology courses at the University will attend two lectures each semester given by the noted Protestant theologian.

New facilities include expanded science labs and new equipment. One of the new labs will be used exclusively for research projects and two others for pre-medical students and physics majors.

Courses in archeology are being offered for the first time with students working on excavations at Mission San Diego de Alcalá. Evening and Saturday courses in the Teacher Education program enable teachers to work toward a Master of Arts in Teaching or a California Standard Credential with a specialization in secondary education.

The University of San Diego is one of 12 diocesan institutions of higher education in America.

The late Bishop Charles F. Buddy was the founder of the University, which was chartered and empowered to grant degrees in 1949 by the State of California.

The Most Reverend Francis J. Furey, Bishop of San Diego, is the chancellor of the University, which is situated on a 221-acre campus in the metropolitan community of San Diego, a city of a half a million people.

Ecumenical Day Slated at College

Plans are being completed for an Ecumenical Day of Reflection to be held at the University of San Diego, College for Men, February 15.

Formerly, the Day of Reflection was conducted by a priest for Catholic students only. Under the new plan, students of all faiths will be asked to participate with Rabbi Joel Goor of Temple Solel, Rev. John Huber of University Lutheran Church in La Jolla and a chaplain at UCSD, and Father John Mort, CSP, director of the Catholic Student Center at UCSD.

Associated Student Body officers participating in the planning include Steph DeSales, president; Ed Ostermeyer, vice president; Dennis Vice, secretary; and Robert Greer, treasurer.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey will introduce the three clergymen when the program begins at 9 a.m. in More Hall. The topic for the discussion will be

"Is God Dead on the College Campus?" Each clergyman will present his views for approximately 15 minutes. At 10 a.m. there will be a coffee break during which students may continue informal discussion with the speakers.

At 10:45 a panel discussion will be held, with the clergymen and five students participating. At noon there will be a concelebrated Mass in the Immaculate, with priests from each of the five USD colleges participating. Students will sing folk music and hymns during the Mass and will be accompanied by stringed instruments.

The Mass will conclude the day's program.

Questions Spark Conference

Hadassah Is Hostess For Event

By ESTHER GWYNNE
Evening Tribune Staff Writer

It was a notable first for everyone.

The Jewish women of Hadassah had invited leaders of Catholic women's organizations to an all-day conference in Catholic-Jewish relationships — and the response was something to see.

They came by the scores — about 200 in all — to the University of San Diego's College for Women yesterday, notebooks in hand, their names carefully lettered on their name-cards, and questions flowing from their lips.

"I've always wondered, but never had an opportunity to ask anyone," the questions invariably began, as the two groups of women intermingled first over coffee cups, then in the college auditorium, and later in workshops and at luncheon.

All Seek Answers

The questions came from both sides. The Jewish women were seeking answers as well as the Catholics.

"Why," one of them asked, the hurt still evident in her voice, "couldn't one of your Catholic girls be in my daughter's wedding, just because it was in a synagogue?"

"What is a Jew anyway," blurted a Catholic woman, who had listened for a long time before she spoke. "Is it a race, or is it a religion?"

The answers to both of these questions didn't come from a rabbi or a priest, although both were present and participating in the conference.

Gaps Revealed

They usually came, sometimes haltingly or even in confusion, from another woman just like the questioner, a woman who sometimes revealed a gap in her knowledge about her own faith, or more frequently, a bigger gap in her knowledge about the other's faith.

And there wasn't always agreement on the finer points, as the difference in the reformed and the conservative Jew and the liberal and conservative Catholic struck sparks.

Mrs. Morton Thaler, a member of Hadassah, presided at the conference, opening it with the traditional Jewish greeting "Shalom," and inviting Hadassah's Catholic guests to join in the greeting (which means "Peace.")

Need Is Cited

Herbert Solomon, president of the United Jewish Federation of San Diego, was the first speaker, noting "there is still much to be done" in the field of inter-faith relations.

He cited the anti-Catholicism of the 1960 presidential campaign, and the anti-Semitism in a school board election in New Jersey just this month.

A Navy lieutenant commander, Dr. Donald F. Duff, staff psychiatrist at the U.S. Naval Hospital, welcomed the conference from the Catholic point of view.

"I am struck by the similarities in our religions," he said. "We must not be afraid to share." Dr. Duff reminded his audience that there was a "groundswell of young people" in high school and college who will not be contented with accepting prejudices of their parents.

Conferences Called 'In'

Rabbi Joel Gorr of Temple Beth Israel and the Rev. Talmage Glazier, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, gave the two key speeches of the conference, after dodging such greetings as "Father Gorr" and "Rabbi Glazier" all day.

Inter-religious conferences are the "in" thing to do right now, Gorr said, and added that those participating need to be sure they know their own religions first, and then determine what effect their religion had on others.

"Teaching the doctrine of the Chosen People," he said, as an example, "will produce chauvinistic Jewish children. Teaching Catholic children that Christ was crucified by the Jews, without emphasizing that he and his disciples also were Jews, will bring about cries of 'Christ-killer' in the school yard."

Rabbi Gorr suggested that not only should Jews not be cast as villains in the crucifixion, but that perhaps the whole Catholic emphasis on the crucifixion should be put aside for emphasis on the life of Christ.

He added that Jews, for their part, shouldn't shrink from a study of Christ, his important role in history and his "wonderful life."

Father Glazier urged a "happy tolerance" for differences among the faiths, and reminded the women that their sons and daughters are "refusing to wait" for this tolerance to come about at some future time.

"They are demanding it now, by radical means," he said. "We have to keep this in mind." The Rev. Glazier and Rabbi Morton J. Cohn of Temple Emanuel fielded questions from the conference participants as the lengthy day drew to a close.

It was evident that no minds had been changed about individual faiths — but that vistas into each other's faiths had been considerably widened.

Toreros Bow To Irvine 27-2 In Overtime

The season was extended five minutes for University of San Diego Saturday night but the Toreros couldn't capitalize on them.

The Toreros dropped a 70-64 overtime decision to University of California at Irvine on the latter's court to close with a 14-11 season mark. This was USD's sixth overtime session, giving the Toreros a 3-3 split in this department.

Dale Finney paced the victors with 21 points but received double-figure support from three others. Tom Bryan collected 15, Mike Heckman 12 and Darrell Milliner 10.

Finney's hook from short range with eight seconds left tied the game, 61-61. He hit a field goal and free throw early in the extra session to turn the tide.

Bill Sheridan, Alan Fay and Ted Fields led USD. Sheridan canned 19, Fay 17 and Fields 15. Sheridan, however, fouled out in the second half and Fields picked up his fifth personal in overtime.

Coach Ralph Keegan's nine-man team led USD. Sheridan paced the winners with 24 points, including a pair of threes in the fourth quarter. He hit a field goal and free throw early in the extra session to turn the tide.

Following today's visit to Cal Lutheran, the Poets travel to Cal State Los Angeles tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. and return to San Diego to meet the University of San Diego in a double-header at noon.

The twinbill will be the first of the season for the Poets, who now have twin 2-0 marks on the road and at home.

Cal West, USD Renew Rivalry This Saturday

California Western University will close out its regular basketball season a high note with two games against cross-town rival University of San Diego Saturday at USD and Tuesday in Golden Gym. Both tussles tip off at 8 p.m.

Coach Bob Kloppenburg's Westerners have concluded NAIA District 3 play with a 13-3 record and are 15-4 over all, in NAIA competition. They are 18-8 for the year.

Forward Al Razutis, with a 20.3 point per game average and 13.6 rebounds per contest, will lead the Westerners along with alternate front-liners Craig Meyer, who has an exceptional 38.1 percent field goal mark. Jim Sunderman and Chuck Ambers, center Dennis Gray, who is asserting himself more and more on the boards, and guards Rich Wasser and Jim Michael.

USD, coached by Phil Woolpert, has improved its season record to 12-3 after getting off to a slow start and own a five-game win streak. Leading marksmen for the Toreros are guard Teddy Fields, with a 17.2-point average, and forward Rick Cabrera, who has a 15.3-point average. Other USD starters are guard Bill Sheridan (9.2 point average), forward Alan Fay (8.9-point average) and center Durrel Cargener (7.4 points).

Strong Defense
The Poet defense again turned in a strong effort, playing errorless ball and executing two more double plays for the unit's fifth and sixth twin-kills of the year.

In the fifth, he stole second and came around on Coffman's first single. In the seventh Gardner advanced to second on Clint Albano's single and scored when Coffman again hit safely.

BOB ORTMAN

Coaches George Ziegenfuss of San Diego State and Phil Woolpert of University of San Diego were drooling at yesterday's final Union-Tribune basketball luncheon, and it wasn't because of the bill of fare.

BOB ORTMAN

who captured the California Collegiate Athletic Association crown with five local prep products among his top seven performers.

"Amen," said Woolpert, whose only regret is that he doesn't have more of them.

The pencil-thin Martensen, "when he's not reading his textbooks," said Ziegenfuss, "he should be lifting them." And Eveleth already are at SDSU, and Otis won't graduate from San Diego High for another year.

But Foster, who sparked the Calvers of two San Diego CIF titles in his three years at SDH, and Imperial Valley College's Reynolds are available. They're being wooed by four-year institutions from coast to coast. There hasn't been a courtship like this since Richard and Eddie were vying for Liz's hand.

Foster Trying to Reduce Choices

Foster still is attempting to narrow his choice to "six or seven schools." Reynolds hasn't got the word yet from his Svengali as to where he will continue his pursuit of higher education.

Jack Holley is taking care of that, said George Holley, the round IVC member who collects videotapes like someone else might collect matchbooks or buttonholes. The sweet-talking southerner has won three consecutive conference championships at IVC while compiling an 80-10 record.

He could charm the rattles off a snake or sell a used Dodge to William Ford. However, he deserves his rhetoric for use on tall and talented basketball players in Michigan, New Jersey and Nebraska. He convinces them that, no matter what they've heard about home, there's no place like Imperial, Calif.

Holley Has Typical Coach's Reaction

The versatile Reynolds, whose skill as a rebounder is exceeded only by his scoring prowess, hails from New Jersey and is a worthy successor at IVC to Shaler Hallimon and Vic Morton, who now are starring at Utah State and Nevada Southern, respectively.

"Our philosophy when we're in trouble," said Holley, "is let George do it."

Holley is as easy-going as grits and molasses but, like every basketball coach from Dr. Naismith to Dr. Ziegenfuss, he sometimes is prompted to question the wisdom, judgment, ancestry and moral character of the men in striped shirts.

"I called up Joe Frivaldszky (head of San Diego officials) and asked him where he got his referees," reported Holley. "From what he said, I gather they come from under rocks. He told me, 'We leave no stone unturned.'"

Like the fellow who took an aptitude test and found out he didn't have any.

Latest Alcindor Defense Proves Futile

There still trying to find a way to beat UCLA. But that's like looking for the fountain of youth.

After Lew Alcindor scored a record 61 points against Washington State's man-to-man defense, Cougar coach Marv Harshman stubbornly insisted that's the only way to guard the Bruin giant.

"If you put two or more men on him, that leaves too many men open," said Harshman. "They have too many good ballplayers to do that. We wanted to apply pressure to the other guys on the team, hoping they would cause the turnovers and mistakes."

"I guess," Harshman concluded, "nobody is going to beat them."

Not without a club.

er night with 24 points for the Point Lomans.

The Toreros got a brilliant offensive effort from guard Ted Fields, who hit on 10 of 17 field-goal attempts and six for eight from the free-throw line for the game high of 26 points.

"Fields is the best guard we've played against all season," said Kloppenburg. "Actually, (Jim) Michael did a good job on him defensively, but there was no way to stop most of the shots he made."

Fay, Cabrera Policed
"We cut off Fay and Cabrera and that made a big difference. Our defense was near-perfect, as far as I was concerned."

The only USD big man who did any scoring was 6-foot, 5-inch center Duval Carpenter, who had a perfect shooting night — five for five on field goals and four for four on free throws — for 14 points.

Guard Bill Sheridan also gave Fields a hard time in the Torero scoring with 14 points.

USD Leads, 36-34
Forward Jim Sunderman came up with some clutch buckets in the second half to pace the Westerners' comeback. He wound up with 12 points.

USD built a 36-34 halftime lead and stayed ahead until the Westerners forced ahead, 52-50, on Wagner's layup with 11:32 to play. The Westerners stayed in front from that point on but had some anxious moments in the final two minutes when the Toreros' press almost stifled them.

73-67 at 1:05
CW spurred to a 72-59 lead with about two minutes to go. USD then made it tough for the Westerners to get the ball over the center line and forced them into mistakes.

The Toreros drove within six points, 73-67, with 1:05 left, but time ran out of them.

USD Law Library Gets U.S. Label

Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-San Diego, has designated the library of the University of San Diego School of Law to become the fifth Federal Depository Library in San Diego County.

The designation was requested by Father Alfred F. Geimer, the Law School's head librarian.

Father Geimer wrote the Congressman that the federal collection in his library will be intended for use by law students and faculty members from California Western University as well as by USD's own legal scholars.

In addition, depository status for the USD library has been endorsed by the San Diego County Bar Association.

Long-range plans of the USD law library call for the development of extensive collections in the fields of oceanographic law, water law and maritime law — all of special significance in a seaport city like San Diego.

As Father Geimer pointed out, a high proportion of the source materials for such areas of study are documents published by the federal government.

As the librarian of a depository library, Father Geimer will be entitled to receive all journals, books and public documents issued by the Government Printing Office.

30,000 Volumes
The USD law library now has about 30,000 volumes and room for another 30,000. All the books are available to the public.

Previously designated as federal depositories were the libraries of the City of San Diego, the County of San Diego, San Diego State College and the University of California at La Jolla.

The USD library will be the first law library in the county to receive the federal designation.

WILKE, CARPENTER DO WELL Hands Do It — USD Wins

By PAUL COUR

EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer
The subject got around to hands in the post-game interview with coach Phil Woolpert at University of San Diego Saturday night.

Not the rough, dry kind from the television commercials, but those that wrap around a basketball.

"Good hands are the essence of this game," said Woolpert. "You can have a lot of other talents, but if you don't have the good hands, you're out of luck."

1,500 See Contest
While on the subject, Woolpert had to hand it to 6-foot, 6-inch sophomore forward Jim Wilke and 6-5 sophomore center Duval Carpenter for their role in the Toreros' 68-57 victory over Cal Western before a turnaway crowd of 1,500 in the USD gym.

"Both Wilke and Carpenter have the good hands," said Woolpert. "They go up and get the ball and hang onto it on the way down pretty well."

It was the rebounding of Wilke and Carpenter that proved the big difference against the Westerners.

Carpenter Bags 12
USD out rebounded the Westerners, 54-39, with Carpenter pulling down 12 and Wilke 10.

"Wilke got some big clutch baskets for us, too," said Woolpert, whose Toreros go after their seventh straight win tomorrow night in a rematch with Cal Western in Golden Gym.

Woolpert was unstinting in his praise of 6-4 Westerner forward Al Razutis, who he classes in the "good hands" category.

Razutis, playing until he almost dropped in the final minutes, scored 20 points and grabbed 15 rebounds.

He Can Do a Lot
"He's a great scorer and rebounder," said Woolpert. "You can't say too many good things about him. He can jump, he really gets up on the boards and he hangs onto the ball. You can't get it away from him."

The Toreros got balanced scoring with Alan Fay leading the way with 15, followed by Rick Cabrera with 14, Ted Fields with 13 and Bill Sheridan with 11.

Rich Wasser and Dennis Grey followed Razutis in the CW scoring parade with 12 points apiece.

Squeeze Tightened
"We were giving Wasser a little too much in the first half and he was hurting us," said Woolpert. "We tightened up on him in the second half and that made a big difference. Wasser got eight points in the first half and only four in the second half."

"We were a little tight in

BOARD MAN — University of San Diego controlled backboards against Cal Western Saturday night and Gus Magee, shown here grabbing rebound, was one reason why.

the first half," said Woolpert.

"But, you have to give your defense credit for that. They don't give you anything."

USD left the floor at the half with a 33-31 lead, thanks to Cabrera's controversial layup at the buzzer.

The Westerners came out in the second half fired up and, with Razutis hitting two quick field goals and a free throw and Grey contributing two gifts, grabbed a 38-33 lead in the first three minutes.

USD bounced back and took the lead, 44-44, with 11:26 to play and never relinquished it.

Tomorrow night, the scene changes to Golden Gym. Remembering that the Toreros won big at home last year, too, and then bowed to the Westerners on the latter's home court, Woolpert looks for another tough game.

Fresno State Away Fast, Nips USD

By PAUL COUR

EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer

Coach Phil Woolpert shook his head in disappointment. "We shouldn't be making mistakes like this at this point in the season," he said, in reference to errors in fundamentals the Toreros committed while absorbing a 93-84 defeat by the Fresno State Bulldogs last night in USD gym.

The Toreros gave away too many points in the first five minutes when the Bulldogs built a 15-2 lead. The San Diegans never could completely regroup from that deficit, although they put on a rally in the second half to close the gap to five points.

'Little' Mistakes

The Toreros are in the midst of midterm examinations, and at times last night they appeared to have their minds in the classrooms.

"We made a lot of little mistakes that hurt, like stepping over the line in the act of shooting free throws," said Woolpert. "You can't toss away points like that and expect to win."

Bob Lee, a 6-foot, 3-inch, 190-pound forward, was the difference between victory and defeat for Fresno. He chucked in 16 pressure-packed points in the second half for a game total of 24. Lee made nine of 11 field-goal attempts and was six for 10 at the free-throw line.

"Lee killed us," said Woolpert. "He got the clutch baskets and rebounds when they needed 'em."

51-34 at Half

After USD's listless start, Woolpert benched his entire first unit and the reserves brought the Toreros mildly back into contention. Still, the Bulldogs led, 51-34, at halftime.

In the second half, the Bulldogs turned ragged and the Toreros cut the deficit to 70-65 with 7:36 to play.

USD had its big chance to pull ahead at that juncture as 6-4 center Ron Besset fouled out of the game, but the Bulldogs revived and forged into

USD Cagers Seek To Curb Rebound

By PAUL COUR

EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer

Coach Phil Woolpert shouldn't have any trouble with overconfidence tonight when he takes his University of San Diego Toreros to Golden Gym to do battle with California Western in the second half of the bitter intracity basketball rivalry.

Woolpert need only remind his Toreros of what happened last season.

The Toreros whipped the Westerners, 70-50, on the USD court, then the tables were pulled off a 70-67 coup on their home floor.

USD comes into tonight's game in the same position it was last season. The Toreros beat the Westerners, 68-57, Saturday night.

"The fact we've beaten them won't make it any easier for us," said Woolpert. "They'll be up for us, trying to avenge that first defeat."

Coach Bob Kloppenburg figures his Westerners must make a vast improvement on their inside shooting if they're going to reverse the decision.

University Plans Men's College Ecumenical Day

Plans are being completed for an Ecumenical Day of Recollection to be held at the University of San Diego, College for Men on Feb. 15.

Formerly, the Day of Recollection was conducted by a priest for Catholic students only. Under the new plan, students of all faiths will be asked to participate with Rabbi Joel Gooor of Temple Solel, Rev. John Huber of University Lutheran Church in La Jolla and a chaplain at UCSD, and Rev. John Mort, C.S.P., director of the Catholic Student Center at UCSD.

Associated Student Body officers participating in the planning include: Steph De-Sales, president; Ed Ostermeyer, vice president; Dennis Greer, secretary; and Robert Greer, treasurer.

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, Bishop of San Diego and Chancellor of the University of San Diego, will introduce the three clergymen when the program begins at 9 a.m. in More Hall. The topic for the discussion will be "Is God Dead on the College Campus?" Each clergyman will present his views for approximately 15 minutes. At 10 a.m. there will be a coffee break during which students may continue in informal discussion with the speakers.

At 10:45 a panel discussion will be held with the clergymen and 5 students participating. Students will sing folk music and hymns during the Mass and will be accompanied by stringed instruments. The Mass will conclude the day's program.

USD Whips Australian Quint, 71-57

The University of San Diego basketball team broke open a close game in the final two minutes and 18 seconds last night to defeat the touring Melbourne Club of Australia, 71-57, at USD Gym.

With the Toreros clinging to a 55-54 lead at the 2:18 mark, Ted Fields and Rick Cabrera triggered a seven-point spurt that put the game out of reach.

Fields and Cabrera finished with 18 points apiece, while center Duval Carpenter contributed 16 and picked off 17 rebounds.

Fred Guy, a 6-3 former Auburn University star, and Lindsay Gaze, a two-time Australian Olympic veteran, paced the Melbourne team. Guy collected 20 points before fouling out with 5:45 left. Gaze added 15 points.

Two other members of the Melbourne Club, Bill Wyatt and Tim Cole, also are Olympic veterans.

The game wrapped up a six-week tour of the United States by the Australian team. The visitors compiled a 6-9 record during the trip, defeating Oregon, San Jose State and UC Riverside while losing to such teams as Brigham Young, Oregon State and Utah State.

Strictly Sports
By BOB LEBOW

With four college basketball teams in the area it seems a shame that no plans are being made for a round robin series of some type that would determine a true city champion.

University of California at San Diego is a newcomer to competition but in the future is bound to be representative in all sports. This year the new school upgraded its schedule and posted victories over a number of four-year schools.

This season some writers are claiming the mythical city championship for San Diego State, which holds single wins over both University of San Diego and California Western. Both wins, however, were posted in the friendly confines of Peterson Gym where the Aztecs are just about invincible with a 13-0 record.

The Aztecs edged Cal Western, 53-52 and they topped the USD Toreros in overtime, 55-50. In their two closest home victories of the campaign.

The two other city quintets also were strong competitors on their home courts with USD losing only one of nine games while the Westerners ran up a 14-3 mark in Golden Gym.

In two games played between USD and Cal Western, the teams divided with each winning on their home court. At USD the Toreros won, 68-57 and in Golden Gym Coach Bob Kloppenburg's eagles rebounded for a 75-70 decision.

It is logical to assume that San Diego State, despite its fine 19-1 record, would have found the competition extremely keen at the two other city schools this year (particularly when the home court is figured to be worth 10 points).

Next year, if the same scheduling procedure is followed, San Diego State will play both USD and Cal Western away from home. Then, again it will be foolish to pick a mythical champion.

Both Cal Western and USD would like to play two games each season with San Diego State. Coach George Zelgonuss at SDS feels, however, that the heated rivalry that emerges from games with city opponents will detract from his team's play in the California Collegiate Athletic Conference. Winning the CCAA is paramount in Zelgonuss' planning and his schedule is designed with that in mind.

It took a long time before University of Pennsylvania, St. Joseph's, La Salle, Temple and Villanova got together in Philadelphia but once they did the attendance figures took a big jump.

The same could happen here and the time will come when pressure will force schedule makers to be realistic.

USD To Participate
History Parley Set

Graduate students and members of the faculty of the University of San Diego, College for Men will take part in the third annual San Diego County Historical Convention at the Hanalei Inn, May 9-11. Dr. Ray Brandes, assistant professor of history at the College for Men, is the co-chairman of the three day conference.

Historians from the University of San Diego, the University of California at San Diego, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, San Diego State College, California Western University, San Diego City Schools, San Diego Science Foundation, Fremont-Kearney Historians, the David B. Hoffman Historical Society, the Los Angeles County Museum, the Cabrillo Historical Association and the Railway Historical Society of San Diego, Inc., will participate in the convention.

Dr. Joan Jensen, history chair, will chair a session on the Pacific Ocean in History. Captain Frank N. Bellis, U. S. Navy, and Chief William Bravich, U. S. Naval Hospital, will present papers at various sessions. Bravich will discuss "Surgeons and Bloodletters." Donald Lengyel, a senior history major at the College for Men, will deal with Mission San Diego de Alcalá on the program concerned with Historic Site Archeology.

Freglette's 3-Hitter Saves USD Split

The University of San Diego, thanks to Dan Freglette's three-hitter, salvaged a split in a doubleheader with Pasadena College Saturday, the Toreros winning, 10-1, after dropping the first game, 4-3, in 10 innings.

Freglette went the route in the abbreviated nightcap, striking out four. Third baseman Paul Tuominen led with three hits in four trips as the Toreros exploded for eight runs in the seventh to win it.

In the first game, Pasadena hitters produced three straight singles in the bottom of the 10th to end a tight battle.

The split left USD with a 2-3 record. The Toreros play next at San Diego State Wednesday.

Foreign Aid To Give Talk At College

The International Relations Club of San Diego College for Women will host its guest speaker Richard H. Morefield, a foreign service officer, who has just returned to San Diego from the foreign embassy in Montevideo, Uruguay, at a meeting at 11:30 a.m. this Friday, February 24, in Room 11 on the campus.

According to Patricia Corkill, IRC president, Morefield will emphasize opportunities in the foreign service, with special reference to those open for girls from the San Diego area. He also will tell of his experiences in South America as a representative there.

Morefield, a graduate of San Diego High School, attended the University of San Francisco and later obtained an M.S. degree from the University of California at Berkeley. Prior to entering the Foreign Service he served overseas with the U.S. Army.

In addition to an assignment in the Department of State in Washington, Morefield has served in the consulate in Barranquilla, Colombia, and the embassy in Oslo, Norway.

Following a short period of home leave here in San Diego, Morefield will return to Washington to be re-assigned to duty in Montevideo, Uruguay.

Four Male Graduates Listed 'Outstanding'

Four graduates of the University of San Diego, College for Men, have been chosen for the 1967 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America."

Greg Pearson, William Thomas, Dave Cox and Frank Ponce are among the 10,000 men between the ages of 21 and 35 who are annually selected for the biographical volume.

Pearson, a 1958 graduate of the college, was the GOP candidate for Congress in Colorado's first Congressional District in 1966.

Thomas, a 1961 graduate, received a master's degree in journalism from Columbia University and is a worker on a local newspaper.

Cox, a 1961 graduate, is a junior executive in a San Diego insurance firm.

Ponce is working toward a doctorate in English at Stanford University. He was an instructor of English and Spanish at USD in 1966. He graduated from there in 1963.

The publication is sponsored by the Jaycees of America. Ten men among these 10,000 are chosen as the Ten Most Outstanding Men of America. Past winners are such well known figures as John F. Kennedy (1946), Nelson Rockefeller (1941), Dr. Tom Dooley (1956), and Henry Ford II (1945). The Honorable Arthur J. Goldberg and Leonard Bernstein will write the introduction for the edition.

Gala Benefit Party Slated For Mission San Diego

The adobe-walled Mission San Diego de Alcalá will be the scene of dining, dancing, and song come April 23.

Members of the San Diego Woman's Club Juniors will stage the gala event that is expected to attract some 2,000 San Diegans.

The reason for the party? It will provide funds to redecorate the mission for San Diego's 200th anniversary in 1969 and to help build a room to house artifacts now being excavated at the mission.

"We are the first organization really to go ahead with a program to support the anniversary plans," Mrs. Richard Lay, spokesman for the group, said.

"We want it to be a memorable evening for everyone who attends, and we want to help preserve the mission, which is of enormous historical importance."

An archaeological survey is under way at the mission under the direction of Dr. Ray Brandes, professor of archaeology at the University of San Diego College for Men.

Members of the survey group are unearthing artifacts buried many years ago. The display room which the women will provide will be temperature-controlled to help preserve the important finds.

Since parking is limited, those attending will be brought by bus from the Mission Valley Center parking lot in time for a no-host cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m.

Strolling mariachis will provide music, as will a band. A portable dance floor will be laid under the olive trees for dancing.

Recipes from mission days are being researched to provide authentic cuisine. The feature will be barbecue beef prepared in an enormous deep pit being dug for the occasion.

Mrs. Lay said the women are invited to wear their prettiest patio costumes, "everything from silk at-home pajamas to long gowns."

In addition to the formal entertainment, there will be an art exhibit adding color to the setting, as will hundreds of fresh flowers.

Robert D'Hue, an instructor in the city schools system, is completing a mural depicting scenes from early mission days.

Mrs. Lay emphasized the need for restoration funds to preserve the mission. It was rebuilt in 1776 after having been burned by Indians in 1775.

Mrs. Arthur W. Jones is general chairman of the gala project, with Mrs. Charles Gault serving as co-chairman.

Invitations are expected to be in the mail this weekend. Reservations may be made and information obtained by calling Mrs. Duane Keiser or Mrs. Keith Gilbert.

Bishop Furey Is Named To U.S. Education Board

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Diego, has been named by Gov. Reagan to represent California in a national study of educational problems.

The bishop was among four named to the National Education Commission of the States. The commission was formed last year under a compact for education with 33 states.

The commission delegates center on common problems in education, recommending progress for legislative action.

In addition to Bishop Furey, Reagan appointed Charles Luckman Sr., a Los Angeles architect and member of the Board of Trustees of California State Colleges; Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, and James E. Stratton, executive director of the Booker T. Washington Community Service Center in San Francisco.

USD Ecumenical Meeting Airs Issue: 'Is God Dead?'

By CHARLES HULL

A Jewish rabbi, a Catholic priest and a Lutheran pastor yesterday discussed the catalytic question, "Is God Dead on the College Campus?" — and concluded the answer is up to each individual.

The occasion was the first Ecumenical Convocation at the University of San Diego's College for Men. About 250 students attended the meeting in More Hall on the Alcala Park campus.

Speakers were Rabbi Joel S. Gorr of Temple Solei; the Rev. Ernest C. Mort, director of the Catholic Student Center at the University of California at San Diego; and the Rev. John G. Huber, pastor of University Lutheran Church, La Jolla, who is a chaplain at UCSD and other schools here.

"HISTORIC EVENT"

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furley, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, introduced the speakers and welcomed the Ecumenical Convocation as a "historic-making day" on the USD campus. He said he was "very happy to see the ecumenical spirit" of the dialogue.

Pointing out that "men and God are always changing," Rabbi Gorr said: "If God is dead on college campuses, or anywhere, we have a duty of bringing Him back to life."

"God changes in every generation. The God concept is evolutionary. You can make God live, I believe, on the campus as well as the outside world now while you have the power as well as the will . . . and cause Him to be alive in our society."

NO PROOF, BUT SIGNS

Pastor Huber, in his talk and in later discussion of student questions, conceded God might seem to be dead from psychological and sociological viewpoints in human experience. Although He "doesn't give us proof" of His existence, "He gives us plenty of signs," he said.

"The record of Christ's life and death and resurrection is a sign of the existence of God," the La Jolla clergyman said.

The question of whether God is dead on the college campus "centers around the problem of relevancy," Father Mort declared. He said such questioning by either the believer or non-believer "leads to greater inquiry."

referring to the Last Supper, from which Communion has evolved.

"His last supper," Rabbi Gorr said, "was the seder meal in the Jewish faith and was held during Passover (which commemorates the liberation of the Hebrews from slavery in Egypt)."

"Even the use of unleavened bread in communion reflects this early rite in Judaism."

Jesus Spoke Hebrew

The rabbi said that Jesus was trying to teach Jews their basic laws on how to treat their fellow man.

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised," Rabbi Gorr said, "that when Jesus recited the Golden Rule (as quoted in the Book of Matthew), he spoke in Hebrew rather than in Aramaic, which was the language of his time."

Good Response

He said the response to his class has been exceptional and recognized as something that was needed.

Rabbi Gorr currently is teaching three classes in the same course at the college.

The Rev. Vincent Walters, vice president of the College for Men, said Rabbi Gorr's class is a new course for theology students.

"We asked Rabbi Gorr to teach Judaism," he said, "because we felt a Jew could do it best. We're very happy with this arrangement."

So is the rabbi, who said he feels very much at home in a campus community.

nerve to ask me about play-offs," said Ziegenfuss.

Cal Western coach Bob Kloppenburg said the Westerners actually played well in their 68-57 loss to USD last week, "but the difference was on the boards. They controlled them in the last 10 minutes."

Edge in Rebounds

Cal Western's state sheet had a 39-37 edge in this department for USD, but the latter's charts showed a 32-37 advantage.

"I don't know what to believe," said Kloppenburg. "But they deserved to win. They were well drilled."

"We'll be the underdogs now, for the first time this season, and we're glad about that. We'll just try to come back."

Kloppenburg also announced that the Westerners had been selected to compete in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics' district 3 playoffs next month.

Woolpert Lauds Fay

USD coach Phil Woolpert, whose team can with its eighth in a row with another win over the Westerners, lauded college player of the week Alan Fay.

"Alan has played great ball for us three years," he said. "He does a job most people overlook. He's our best defensive man, a fine rebounder and an excellent shooter."

Straight-A Student

"He's also a straight-A student and we look for great things from him in the academic field."

Fay scored 15 points in the first showdown with Cal Western and, though Al Razutis, the man he was guarding, had 30 and 15 rebounds, Woolpert praised his play.

"Alan did a good job," said Woolpert. "He was playing as fine a forward as we'll see. The films showed Alan did the job, but Razutis is so tough."

IT'S SO EASY!—University of San Diego's Ted Fields goes high in air to score two points with ease in last night's hoop battle with Chapman. Closest to Fields was Chapman's Tom Hart (42). USD won by 86-78.

Toreros Bag 11th Victory, Go on Road

University of San Diego's Toreros take a winning record on the road tonight for a basketball game against Whittier College.

The Toreros climbed to an 11 won, eight lost record for the season with an overtime win over Chapman College here last night, 86-78.

Ted Fields led USD in scoring with 27 points. Frank Franklin with 23 was high for the losers.

Chapman's Panthers almost pulled the game out by sinking two field goals in the last minute of regulation play to tie the score at 76-76.

Rick Cabrera put the Toreros back on the track with two field goals at the opening of the overtime period. The Panthers were unable to get back in the game, picking up only two points in the extra period.

CW Wins, 75-70, To Even City Series

By PAUL COUR

EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer

Coach Bob Kloppenburg didn't look like a man with the flu.

His California Western basketball team had just effected a cure for what ailed their coach.

The tonic was a 75-70 victory over University of San Diego last night before a crowd of 3,000 in Golden Gym.

Kloppenburg spent yesterday at home, nursing his ailments and plotting a defense against the Toreros, who Saturday night beat the Westerners, 68-57, in the USD gym.

"We put more pressure on them this time," said Kloppenburg after the last volley was fired in the heated intracity rivalry.

Coach Phil Woolpert of USD summed up the turnaround in a nutshell.

"We didn't get the scoring from our front line this time," said Woolpert.

The Westerners, playing what Kloppenburg described as "our best defense of the season," held Alan Fay, who scored 15 Saturday night, to three points; Rick Cabrera, who had 14, to two, and Jim Wilke, who contributed eight, to two.

Meanwhile, the Westerners improved on their shooting, from 31 per cent in defeat to 52 per cent in victory. Al Razutis sparked, as usual, with 25 points and Rich Wasser doubled his output of the off-court rivalry.

LAB EQUIPMENT—The Most Rev. Francis J. Furley and Mrs. George Byrnes are shown radiation-biology counter by Dr. John Bradshaw. It is part of new equipment installed in Mehren Memorial Biology Facilities at University of San Diego. Mrs. Byrnes is daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Mehren, who established $80,000 trust for university. The bishop dedicated the classroom yesterday.

Mehren Classroom Dedicated at USD

A new biology classroom equipped with a bank of microscopes, test tubes, a mouse and the latest radiation counting mechanism was dedicated yesterday at the University of San Diego.

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furley, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, officiated at the ceremony which opened the Mehren Memorial Biology Facilities.

Before blessing the classroom with holy water, the bishop led USD officials and guests in a dedication prayer.

Asks Inspiration

He asked that the pupils be inspired to "grasp, sustain and put into practice the lessons learned here."

The laboratory classroom in the basement of the College for Men was made possible through an $80,000 trust left to the college by the late Edward J. and Grace W. Mehren of La Jolla.

In addition to the facility, five full-tuition science scholarships of $4,000 each have been established at the college in their name.

Leaves Million

Mr. Mehren left his entire estate of more than $1 million to Catholic educational and religious institutions.

Members of the Mehren family present at the dedication ceremony were four sons, Edward of Palm Springs; Bernard of Rancho Santa Fe; Laurence of Phoenix; and a daughter, Mrs. George Byrnes of Palos Verdes Estates.

The classroom formerly was used as the campus bookstore.

Guests Shown

Dr. Carl Spadis, chairman of the biology department and director of the premedical program at the college, opened the science facility students two weeks ago.

Twenty-four students can use the classroom at one time.

Following the dedication, biology department staff members showed guests through the facility and explained the uses of the various equipment.

Dr. John Bradshaw, professor of biology and oceanography, demonstrated one of two radiation scalars.

Scalars Displayed

"A sample is placed in the chamber," he said, "and the equipment measures disintegration of alpha and beta rays as they are given off by the substance."

The sample went into a cylindrical lead-shielded chamber.

USD, CAL WESTERN MEET

Home Court Vital in Series

The home court advantage proved decisive in last year's University of San Diego-California Western basketball series. It could be the difference again this season.

The Toreros and Westerners open the series tonight in the USD gym, with the tipoff scheduled for 8 p.m.

They'll meet again Tuesday night in CW's Golden Gym when the Toreros and Westerners split last season, both winning on their home courts.

The two intracity rivals appear evenly matched again.

Both gave San Diego State College, the mythical city champion, a tough ball game. The Aztecs beat the Toreros, 55-50, in overtime and the Westerners, 53-42.

Offensively, the Westerners appear to have an edge. They've averaged 80.4 points a game to the Toreros' 71.6. Defensively, USD has an advantage, giving up 69.6 points a game to CW's 72.7. The Westerners have the better record, 18-3, to USD's 13-8.

Coaches Bob Kloppenburg of CW and Phil Woolpert of USD seem agreed on the point that points will be hard to come by in this traditional rivalry.

Al Razutis, 6-4 forward, will play a key role in the Westerners' victory plans. If the Toreros can contain his scoring and rebounding, they'll have won half the battle. Razutis has averaged 20.3 points and 14.6 rebounds a game. And, defensively, he's tough to shake.

The Toreros' big threat is Ted Fields' outside shooting. He's averaged 17.2 points per game.

Woolpert is expected to give the starting center call to 6-6 Gus Magee, who leads the club in rebounds with 135. He'll be up against 6-8 sophomore Dennis Grey, another good rebounder.

Alan Fay, 6-5 forward, probably will be assigned the job of guarding Razutis. Defense is Fay's biggest asset. Rick Cabrera with a 15.3 average gives the Toreros another good scoring threat at forward. Craig Meyer, long shot specialist, is dangerous for the Westerners, along with outside shooting Rich Wasser.

Bill Sheridan, 6-foot guard, has given the Toreros the floor generalship they've needed in winning their last five games.

CAL WEST, USD MEET

Coach Calls Game Tossup

Coach Bob Kloppenburg rates tomorrow night's game between his Westerners and University of San Diego a tossup, "with the edge going to the team which makes the fewest mistakes."

The cross-town rivals meet at 8 in USD gym.

Kloppenburg envisions a defensive battle, "similar to our game with San Diego State College."

The Aztecs beat the Westerners, 53-52, and USD, 55-50, in overtime.

"We'll try to make 'em play a faster tempo," said Kloppenburg. "I think USD is a little stronger overall than last year when we split with them."

The clubs clash again Tuesday night in CW's Golden Gym.

Kloppenburg will start Jim Sunderman and Al Razutis at forwards, Dennis Grey at center and Rich Wasser and Jim Michael at guards against the Toreros.

Cal Western has a 18-3 season record, USD 13-8. The Toreros are riding a five-game winning streak.

Ted Fields continues to pace the Torero scoring with 34.5 points for an average of 17.2 a game. Statistics:

Al Razutis and Jim Sunderman will work the forwards for Cal Western, Dennis Grey will be center and Rich Wasser and Jim Michael will be at guard. Razutis leads the club with a 20.2 average while Wasser is next with 15.4 and Grey has a 12.1 mean.

Rabbi Enjoys Post At Catholic College

By FRANK SALDANA
EVENING TRIBUNE Staff Writer

Students didn't fall asleep in his class.

"That, coupled with the fact that I was able to cover only two of 12 points to be made," said Rabbi Joel S. Goor of Temple Solel, "indicates a good response by the students."

The rabbi was speaking of his presence at the University of San Diego College for Men, which marks another major ecumenical step by the Catholic institution.

Was Invited

He joined the theology department faculty this semester at the invitation of college officials.

"I have never been made to feel so welcome," Rabbi Goor said. "At first I suppose there was concern by a few but it never showed."

Religious History

"Our first session was an exchange of ideas and this is what I wanted. My purpose here is not to change anyone's religious thinking, but to establish a dialogue."

Rabbi Goor, 34, teaches Judeo-Christian history at a University of California at Los Angeles graduate, he continued his studies at the Hebrew Union College, Jewish Institute of Religion, New York, and was a faculty member at the Jewish Torah Convocations, Berchtesgaden, Germany.

A former Air Force chaplain, Rabbi Goor zooms about San Diego at a jet pace, conducting several classes at his temple, holding religious services and at the same time studying for his doctorate degree in education at California Western University.

Started in Judaism

"No one can consider himself a true Christian," he said, "without knowing the facts about Judaism. Jesus, in a sense, established a sect in Judaism."

"The first Christians were Jews and, in fact, had to be in the early days of Christianity."

He illustrated his point by

USD Aims At Rebound Vs. Loyola

The University of San Diego basketball team, home from a disastrous road trip through Montana, will oppose Loyola University tonight at USD gym in an attempt to regain a few lost steps.

Tipoff for the contest is set for 8 o'clock.

After a third-place finish in the Cal Western tourney, USD dropped successive games in the Anaconda meet, defeated University of Montana but then had trouble again against Carroll, 102-72, and Eastern Montana, 61-35.

Loyola, which has a 3-3 record in WCAAC action, will be paced by Rick Adelman (17.1-point average), and Dick Sebek (13.3).

Big man for the Lions is 6-8 center Paul Deyden, who cleared 19 rebounds in two games while performing briefly. He is expected to be near top shape since a knee operation several weeks ago.

Adelman and Al Sebanhaar will be at guards while Sebek and Ken Peterson will work the forwards.

The Toreros will counter with Gus Magee at center, Ted Fields and Bill Sheridan at guards and Alan Fay and Rick Cabrera at forwards.

Toreros Defeat Loyola, 74-66

By JOHNNY McDONALD

Basketball victories haven't come easy at University of San Diego this season but when the battling Toreros pull one off it's a lulu.

Last night was just such the case as the Toreros surprised Loyola University in overtime, 74-66, before a screaming crowd at USD gymnasium.

Ted Fields, a spring-legged guard, and long-shooting Rick Cabrera led USC in its catch-up struggle with 25 and 20 points, respectively, but it was a foul low-up shot by center Dural Carpenter which provided the momentum.

Carpenter, a 6-5, 215-pound sophomore, dropped in a field goal with two seconds remaining, after a pair of missed shots, to send the game into the extra session. This was the third time this campaign that USD has been forced to battle into overtime.

Then, Fields and Cabrera took over from there and scored 11 of the Toreros' 16 overtime points. Fields bucketed nine of 10 free throws and Cabrera sank a follow shot and a pair of charity tosses.

Loyola, which appeared ready to collect its eighth win of 12 engagements, led 9-55 with 56

seconds to go in regulation. But two turnovers by the Lions was enough to change the game around. Alan Fay pumped in a jumper from about 15 feet away with 52 seconds to play and Carpenter supplied the tying shot.

This was the Toreros' seventh victory in 14 games and ended a slide which had seen them fall four times on a five-game Montana road trip.

Also, this was only the second time in 10 years the Toreros have been able to knock off the usually stronger Lions from the WCAAC.

Dick Sebek, a 6-5 junior, and Eken Petersen, a 6-4 senior, provided the scoring punch for the visitors with 23 and 20 points, respectively. However, 6-8 center Paul Deyden was unable to carry his load because of the fine defense work of Carpenter. The big fellow, filled to get a field goal and had only two free throws.

The first half was a struggle from the opening jump. The lead changed nine times and the score was tied on 10 occasions.

Biggest advantage was USD's 28-24 margin with five minutes to go. However, Sebek hit three free throws and a jump and Loyola left at intermission with a 32-31 lead.

Ecumenical Day Slated at College

Plans are being completed for an Ecumenical Day of Reflection to be held at the University of San Diego College for Men February 15.

Formerly, the Day of Reflection was conducted by a priest for Catholic students only. Under the new plan, students of all faiths will be asked to participate with Rabbi Joel Goor of Temple Solel, Rev. John Huber of University Lutheran Church in La Jolla and a chaplain at USD, and Father John Mort, CSP, director of the Catholic Student Center at UCSD.

Associated Student Body officers participating in the planning include Steph DeSales, president; Ed Ostermeyer, vice president; Dennis Vice, secretary, and Robert Preser, treasurer.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey will introduce the three clergymen when the program begins at 9 a.m. in More Hall. The topic for the discussion will be

"Is God Dead on the College Campus?" Each clergyman will present his views for approximately 15 minutes. At 11:15 a.m. there will be a coffee break during which students may continue informal discussion with the speakers.

At 10:45 a panel discussion will be held, with the clergymen and five students participating. At noon there will be a celebrated Mass in the Immaculate, with priests from each of the five USD colleges participating. Students will sing folk music and hymns during the Mass and will be accompanied by stringed instruments.

The Mass will conclude the day's program.

Torero Five At Home To L.A. State Tonight

The Los Angeles State Diablos, seeking revenge for an overtime loss earlier this season, will battle the University of San Diego basketball squad tonight in the Toreros' gymnasium.

Tipoff is set for 8 o'clock following a preliminary frost encounter which starts at 6.

This will be the first of two crucial contests for the Toreros, who have an 8-8 record. They'll oppose another California Collegiate Athletic Association member, San Fernando State, tomorrow night.

The Diablos have several statistical points which belie their 10-9 record.

Not only do they have the nation's 17th leading rebounder in Charlie Thomas, who averages 17.3 crows a game, but in Charlie Thomas, who averages 17.3 caroms a game, but their entire first squad ranks 24th in offense with a 92.2 point mean.

The Diablos are particularly tough on the road, having won seven on foreign courts.

Cal State will start Thomas (6-6) at center, Joe Davis (6-7) and Joe Barnes (6-4) at the forwards and Cary Smith (6-4) and Jim Reid (5-10) at the guards.

USD coach Phil Woolpert will rely on his 1-2 punch of Ted Fields and Rick Cabrera. They have averaged 16.9 and 15.7 points per game, respectively.

Joining Cabrera at the other forward spot will be Alan Fay (9-0) while Bill Sheridan (8-6) will work at the other guard post with Fields. Dural Carpenter (7-5) will start at center.

Tomorrow, San Fernando will be trying to maintain their series lead over the Toreros. USD nipped the Matadors, 76-74, last year to close the gap to 5-4.

USD Cagers Collect 10th Win, 65-56

University of San Diego had little trouble in collecting its 10th basketball victory of the season against eight defeats via a 65-56 win over San Fernando Valley State last night in the USD gym.

The Toreros were out in front by 39-26 at the intermission and moved out by as much as 21 points (61-40) in the second half before San Fernando began to cut into the big advantage.

USD got balanced scoring with Bill Sheridan leading the way with 14 points followed by Ted Fields with 13, Rick Cabrera with 12 and Dural Carpenter with 10.

Luther Williams was the only San Fernando player in double figures with 12.

Mrs. John M. Murphy of La Jolla, retiring president of the Auxiliary, has named Mrs. James F. Mulvaney to serve as chairman of the installation luncheon.

The Auxiliary has as its objective the furthering of the growth of the University of San Diego as a cultural part of the community.

AT USD GYM

Toreros Battle Fresno Tonight

University of San Diego will try to avenge an earlier setback tonight when it engages Fresno State on the USD floor.

The contest starts at 8 o'clock.

The Bulldogs handed USD its first loss of the season last month, 71-61, on the Fresno court when the Toreros encountered foul trouble, collected four technicals, and had leading scorer, Ted Fields, tossed out of the game.

Fresno State had its problems at Peterson gym Saturday night when it fell before seventh-ranked San Diego State, 84-63. USD dropped a 55-50 overtime decision to the Aztecs earlier this season.

The Toreros, although not spectacularly successful, are aying the rebound from a disastrous Montana tour where they dropped four of five. Since, USD has picked up an overtime 4-66 decision over Loyola and topped the Melbourne Club of Australia, 74-57.

Fields and Rick Cabrera will ace the Toreros' attack. Fields has averaged 17 points while Cabrera is close behind with 16.2.

"We played our best game of the season against Loyola," said coach Phil Woolpert. "If we keep up the good work we'll have a pretty good season yet. The boys have looked real good in practice. Those wins over Loyola and Melbourne were good rebounds for the squad."

The Toreros will start Gus Magee at center, Cabrera and Alan Fay at forwards and Fields and Bill Sheridan at guards. Jim Wilke will spell Fay if the latter is unable to play because of the flu.

Starting for the Bulldogs will be Ron Riegel at center, Harry Maloney and Jim Waldron at guards, and forwards Jack Kennedy and Bobby Lee. Kennedy picked up 16 points against the Aztecs and has averaged 19.1 this season.

USD Seeks To Be Rude Hosts Again

University of San Diego tonight returns to basketball action after a 12-day layoff when the Toreros tangle with Pepperdine College in the USD gym. The tipoff is at 8.

The Toreros are riding a three-game winning streak and are 8-8 for the season. The Waves have a 5-9 record.

Coach Phil Woolpert is expected to start 6-foot, 5-inch Dural Carpenter at center, Rick Cabrera, 6-3, and Alan Fay, 6-5, at forwards and Bill Sheridan, 6-0, and Ted Fields, 6-2, guards for the Toreros.

That starting combination has performed well in recent outings.

Overtime-Prone USD Cagers Take Week Off

The University of San Diego, Lions, 76-66, in USD gymnasium.

This was the fourth time this season USD has been forced into extra minutes. The Toreros had beaten Los Angeles State, 66-63, and lost to San Diego State, 53-50, and Northern Arizona, 73-73, in other overtime contests.

Ted Fields and Rick Cabrera led the Toreros' scoring with 25 and 20 points. They collaborated for 11 of the 16 overtime points.

However, Dural Carpenter's follow shot with two seconds remaining in regulation play enabled USD to draw even, 59-59.

Loyola made two errors in the last minute and the Toreros were able to capitalize on them. Trailing 59-55, USD got the ball when the ball was tossed out of bounds. Seconds later a traveling call put the ball in USD's hands again.

Dick Sebek and Ken Peterson were high scorers for Loyola with 23 and 20 points.

'Sing Out San Diego' Has Ideals Tuned Up

IN ACTION—"Sing Out San Diego" group rehearses for performance as Frank Beaudine conducts. The 300 local young people in the cast want to spread their ideals throughout city via music.

Four Virtues Via Music Is Purpose

300 Young People Participate; Leader Says It's No Fad

By KAREN RHINER

Evening Tribune Staff Writer

"Sing Out San Diego" is concerned with love, honesty, purity and unselfishness. And, in the little over a month that the musical group has been organized, it's made these ideals heard throughout San Diego.

The 300 young people who make up the cast already have appeared on television and in a local shopping center. More performances are being planned.

It all began when "Up With People," a musical Moral Re-Armament show presented by a cast of youths from throughout the nation, appeared in San Diego last month.

Fans Recruited

That show recruited local fans for the group's ideas.

The "Up With People" cast called a meeting at the University of San Diego College for Women. About 300 local young people showed up and expressed their enthusiasm for forming a "Sing Out San Diego" group modeled after the national touring one.

Frank Beaudine Jr., 19, a political science major at the University's College for Men, was named head coordinator.

He got things moving right away. It hasn't slowed down yet, and it doesn't look like it will.

The young people, ranging in age from 15 to 21, rehearse twice a week or more in either the auditorium of Cathedral Girls' High School or the College for Women. Its volunteer band rehearses even more frequently.

Backing Broad

The group has broad backing. A group of 16 adult officers and directors help the young people with arrangements. The San Diego Police Officers' Association recently presented the group with a $100 check.

Basically, "Sing Out San Diego" is a non-profit organization designed to emphasize the uplifting of youth and its feeling for America and its people.

And that's what Beaudine is most concerned and excited about. The music — that's just a means of getting ideas across.

Virtues Absolute

"Our purpose is first to accept the challenge of the four absolute virtues: love, honesty, purity and unselfishness," he said in an interview.

"If each of us takes this challenge on himself, then we can present this challenge to those around us and maybe transmit this ideology to audiences through music.

"We'd like first to saturate San Diego with our philosophy and our music, then maybe present it all across California, and meet with other Sing Out groups in other cities in the state," he said. "Maybe we could even get together to do a show in the Rose Bowl."

It Won't Die

"It's been said that this is a fad that will die out, but I don't think so. The ideals behind it are undying, and will hold us up. It's built on conviction."

"We hope to replenish the cast each year as members grow older and move away. The new spirit will help keep us alive."

"We're not concerned about money. We're more concerned about what this type of program can do for the youth of San Diego. This philosophy is inherent in everyone and just has to be brought out."

Image Needed

"Everyone in the cast seems to be learning a lot about people through this, and this is what's unifying us and giving us strength."

"I came down here from Fullerton six months ago, and I've noticed that youths here don't have an image. Youth isn't a force in either a negative or a positive way in San Diego."

"We're hoping that 'Sing Out San Diego' will give youth here a strong image and a strong force in a very positive way."

Debate Unit Ties for 9th

The University of San Diego's Debate and Forensics Squad tied for ninth place at the recent Desert Invitational Tournament at the University of Arizona. Freshman debater Everett Harry and sophomore John Kennedy compiled a 4-2 record in competition with 52 teams.

Schools such as the University of Chicago, Harvard University, the Air Force Academy and the University of Minnesota were represented in the three-day tournament. USD entered debate, extemp, and original oratory events. Senior Tony Sinichio placed fifth in original oratory.

Fred C. Sanders, chairman of the Speech Arts Department at the College for Men and coach of the debate squad, has been selected for the second consecutive year to be a judge at the California-Arizona National Debate Tournament. Sanders will join three other judges who were selected from the 102 member schools of the Pacific Southwest Collegiate Forensics Association.

The California-Arizona Qualifier will be held at San Fernando Valley State College tomorrow (Friday), and Saturday. The winner of the tournament will represent the California-Arizona region in the National Debate Tournament at the University of Chicago in April. Sanders was chosen last year to judge the National Debate Tournament held at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N.Y.

Catholic-Jewish Program Set on Campus Feb. 27

The first Hadassah conference on Catholic-Jewish relationships will be held at the College for Women, University of San Diego, Monday, February 27, at 10 a.m.

Mrs. Morton Thaler, general chairman for the event and Hadassah's vice-president for education, stated that most Catholic and Jewish women are expected to attend.

Mrs. Thaler will open the program with greetings for the group. Speakers at the first session will be Dr. Donald F. Duff, psychiatrist and a leading Catholic layman, and Herbert Solomon, attorney and president of the United Jewish Federation of San Diego.

Personal Interpretation

Dr. Duff will give a personal interpretation of his reaction to the first dialogue program conducted by both faiths last October here in San Diego.

Solomon will stress the accomplishments achieved by interfaith programs and will consider plans for the furtherance of such work.

Rabbi Joel S. Goor of Temple Solel of San Diego also will address the first session. He will ask his audience to enter into the spirit of the conference "with an open mind, a listening ear and a willing heart," according to Mrs. Thaler.

A teacher of a class in religion at the University of San Diego, the Rabbi is a winner of the coveted Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith award. He served his country as a U.S. Air Force chaplain in France, Spain, and Morocco. He is an authority on Jewish community life as well as interfaith activities.

Workshop Sessions

Informal workshop sessions designed to allow for an intimate exchange of ideas, opinions, questions and answers also are scheduled. Subjects to be discussed include:

Religious and Moral Beliefs and Practices, The Family and The Home, The Educational Problems of Catholics and Jews and The Role of Religious Groups in the Total Community.

Father Talmage Glazier, pastor of Immaculate Conception parish, Old Town, will address the conference on "Attitudes and Images at the session after luncheon. Father Glazier is a member of the National Council of Christians and Jews and serves as coordinator for the Interdisciplinary Dialogue of Psychiatrists, Psychologists and Clergymen here.

Rabbi Morton J. Cohn of Temple Emanuel will speak at the luncheon session on matters pertaining to the Jewish religion. A U.S. naval chaplain during World War II, Rabbi Cohn has held assignments in Memphis, Tenn., Niagara Falls, N.Y. and Temple Beth Israel here. He is a graduate with a Doctor of Divinity degree from Hebrew Union College Jewish Institute of Religion.

Father I. Brent Eagan of the USD College for Men will open the second session with a prayer.

A statement issued this week by the organizers of the conference says:

"In its historic declaration on non-Christians, the Second Vatican Council summoned all Catholics to re-appraise their attitudes toward Judaism and their relationships with Jewish people. The call of the council to a new fraternal encounter may be seen as one of the more important fruits of the spirit of renewal generated by that body in its deliberations and decrees."

Promote Understanding

"It is hoped that the conference may serve to bring members of both faiths into closer conversational contact with each other. Its avowed aim is to promote understanding."

The registration fee of $2.50 includes the luncheon. Checks may be made payable to Hadassah and addressed to Mrs. Rudolph Hess, 5275 Monroe Avenue, San Diego 92115.

Mrs. Samuel Vener, president of the San Diego chapter of Hadassah, has extended a cordial invitation to all women of both faiths to attend the event.

Serving with Mrs. Thaler are the following committee members: Mmes. Martin DeSurre, luncheon; Rudolph Hess, reservations; Milton Lineoff, mailings; Sidney Chemnick, summaries; Charles Schwartz, recorders; Martin Rosten; printing; Herbert Lerner, invitations; Stanley Levitz, morning reception; Jonas Kurzeig, consultants; Richard Singer, telephone; Sidney Vexler, registration; Edith Richter, workshop leaders; Alie Woskin, recorders; Arthur Toland, hostesses; and Mmes. Robert Caplan, Harry Niederberger, Joseph Schwartz, Philip Binder and Alfred Poland.

Art Display Slated At Men's College

The University of San Diego, College for Men will present a collection of 800 original etchings, lithographs, and woodcuts from the Ferdinand Roten Galleries of Baltimore, Md., on February 27.

Dr. Lee Gerlach, chairman of USD's English Department, has selected 90 representative works that will be displayed from February 27 to March 17 in the Knights of Columbus Library on the USD campus. Library hours are 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

Picasso, Chagall, Lautree, Renoir, Rouault, Goya, Piranesi, and Baskin are some of the artists represented in the collection. The work of Kaethe Kollwitz (1867-1945), regarded as art history's most accomplished woman artist, will be featured.

Robert W. DeMuth, a representative of the Ferdinand Roten Galleries, will be at the library from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday, February 27, to accept orders for the prints.

The prints represented in the display are "impressions on fine paper taken from plates, woodblocks, or lithograph stones prepared by the artist and handprinted by him or under his supervision. No photo-mechanical process is employed as in reproductions of paintings. Original prints are usually limited in number and often the modern print is signed by the artist."

The prints are priced from $5 to $2,000, with the majority under $100. All works will be for sale and purchases may be charged or paid for over a three-month period.

USD Cagers Face 2 Tough Contests

Two CCAA teams invade USD Gym this weekend for crucial battles, as far as the University of San Diego Toreros are concerned. Cal State, Los Angeles, will play the Toreros this Friday, February 3, and San Fernando Valley State on Saturday, February 4. Both games begin at 8 p.m. and are preceded by the frosh contests at 6 p.m.

The non-conference games will not affect the CCAA standings, but USD hopes for a successful season will be tested.

The Toreros beat Pepperdine for the second time this season, 94-85, last Saturday night. The victory evened USD's record at 8-8 for the season, with eight games remaining, all against tough competition.

Ted Fields, 6-2 guard, led the Toreros with 23 points against Pepperdine, while 6-5 forward Alan Fay added 20. Hal Grant (26) and Tim Flowers (22) were the point producers for the Pepperdine Waves.

After a fast first half, Pepperdine held a 45-44 edge. USD pulled away in the second half, but the waves narrowed the margin to four points, 85-81, with 1:33 to play. USD made good on eight of eight charity tosses to insure the win.

Cal State, Los Angeles, will be after revenge when they visit the Toreros Friday night. The Diablos were 86-83 victims of USD in overtime at the beginning of the season. Charlie Thomas is the Diablos' top rebounder with over 17 17th in the nation. The Diablos also are ranked 24th in the nation in offense. They have averaged 92.2 points per game.

The Toreros will be trying to even their highly competitive series with San Fernando Valley State Saturday night. The Matadors have won five of nine games with USD. Last year, the Toreros nipped the Matadors 76-74 on the Matadors' home court.

Ecumenical Day Planned At USD

The University of San Diego plans to hold an Ecumenical Day of Reflection Feb. 15.

Students and ministers of all faiths will be invited to participate. Starting at 9 a.m., a Jewish rabbi, a Protestant clergyman, and a Catholic priest will give their views on religion and invite comment from the audience. At noon, a Mass will be celebrated in the school's chapel, with folk-singing and hymns accompanying the singing of the Mass.

tatives of the Jewish, Lutheran and Catholic faiths on the topic: "Is God Dead on the College Campus?"

Also on Wednesday is a 6:30 p.m. Powder Puff basketball game in the Torero gym featuring teams from the College for Women. At 8:30 p.m. a snow ball fight will be staged on the gym parking lot.

A university film forum Thursday at the College for Women Theater will feature

"Rocco and His Brothers." It will be shown at 7:30 p.m.

Friday's activities will include a 7 p.m. "Coffin Procession" from the College for Women to the bonfire area across from Knights of Columbus Library.

Bonfire

Other activities that day include a rally and bonfire for the USD Toreros at 7:45 p.m., and a "Blue and White Dance" in the Lark Cafeteria at 7 p.m. The Homecoming Queen and her court will be presented then.

Two basketball games Saturday evening pit USD frosh against California Western frosh in the Torero gym at 6 p.m., and an 8 p.m. varsity thriller between California Western University and University of San Diego.

A Homecoming Dance later from 10-2 p.m. will be held in the Stardust Room of the Stardust Country Club in Mission Valley.

Legs spread, his body arched out, Cal Western's Dennis Gray is behind Carpenter, who is behind Al Razutis. Behind them are USD's Durel Carpenter and Al Razutis. The game was played in the USD gymnasium.

USD Thumps Westerners, 68-57, In Crosstown Duel

By JOHNNY McDONALD

The scheduled rebounding of Durel Carpenter and Jim Wilke and a well-balanced offense sparked University of San Diego to a 68-57 basketball victory over Cal Western University last night before a loud, full naway crowd of 1,500 in the Toreros' gymnasium.

This put the Toreros 14-1 in the crosstown series which began Tuesday night at Cal Western and 15-15.

Coach Phil Woolpert's team, however, had to battle back to gain its sixth straight triumph and 14th of 22 encounters. The Westerners' ninth loss against 18 victories.

Carpenter, a 6-5 sophomore center, and Wilke, a rapidly improving 6-4 sophomore forward, made the big difference as they came through time and again to outlast the Point Lomans. Carpenter picked off 12 and Wilke 10 as USD cleared 33 caroms to the Westerners' 27.

Had it not been for iron-man service of remarkable Al Razutis, the Westerners might have had trouble keeping pace in the early stages. The spring 6-4 senior forward cleared off 15 rebounds and paced his club with 20 points in going all the way.

Meanwhile, USD put four players in double figures with senior Alan Fay leading the shot with 15. Rick Cabrera had 14, Ted Fields 13 and Bill Sheridan 11 as the Toreros connected on 41 per cent of their shots.

Rich Wasser, the Westerners' scrappy 5-9 guard, and 6-8 center Dennis Gray each tallied 12 for the losers. But 32 per cent shooting was not enough to get the job done and a six-minute

WILKE, CARPENTER DO WELL Hands Do It — USD Wins

By PAUL COURT

Evening Tribune Sports Writer

The subject got around to hands in the post-game interview with coach Phil Woolpert at University of San Diego Saturday night.

Not the rough, dry kind from the television commercials, but those that wrap around a basketball.

"Good hands are the essence of this game," said Woolpert. "You can have a lot of other talents, but if you don't have the good hands, you're out of luck."

1,500 See Contest

While on the subject, Woolpert had to hand it to 6-foot, 6-inch sophomore forward Jim Wilke and 6-5 sophomore center Durel Carpenter for their role in the Toreros' 68-57 victory over Cal Western before a turnaway crowd of 1,500 in the USD gym.

"Both Wilke and Carpenter have the good hands," said Woolpert. "They go up and get the ball and hang onto it on the way down pretty well."

It was the rebounding of Wilke and Carpenter that proved the big difference against the Westerners.

Carpenter bags 12

USD outrebounded the Westerners, 54-39, with Carpenter pulling down 12 and Wilke 10.

"Wilke got some big clutch baskets for us, too," said Woolpert, whose Toreros go after their seventh straight win tomorrow night in a rematch with Cal Western in Golden Gym.

Woolpert was unimpressed in his praise of 6-4 Westerner forward Al Razutis, who he classes in the "good hands" category.

Razutis, playing until he almost dropped in the final minutes, scored 20 points and grabbed 15 rebounds.

He Can Do A Lot

"He's a great scorer and rebounder," said Woolpert. "You can't say too many good things about him. He can jump, he really gets up on the boards and he hangs onto the ball. You can't get it away from him."

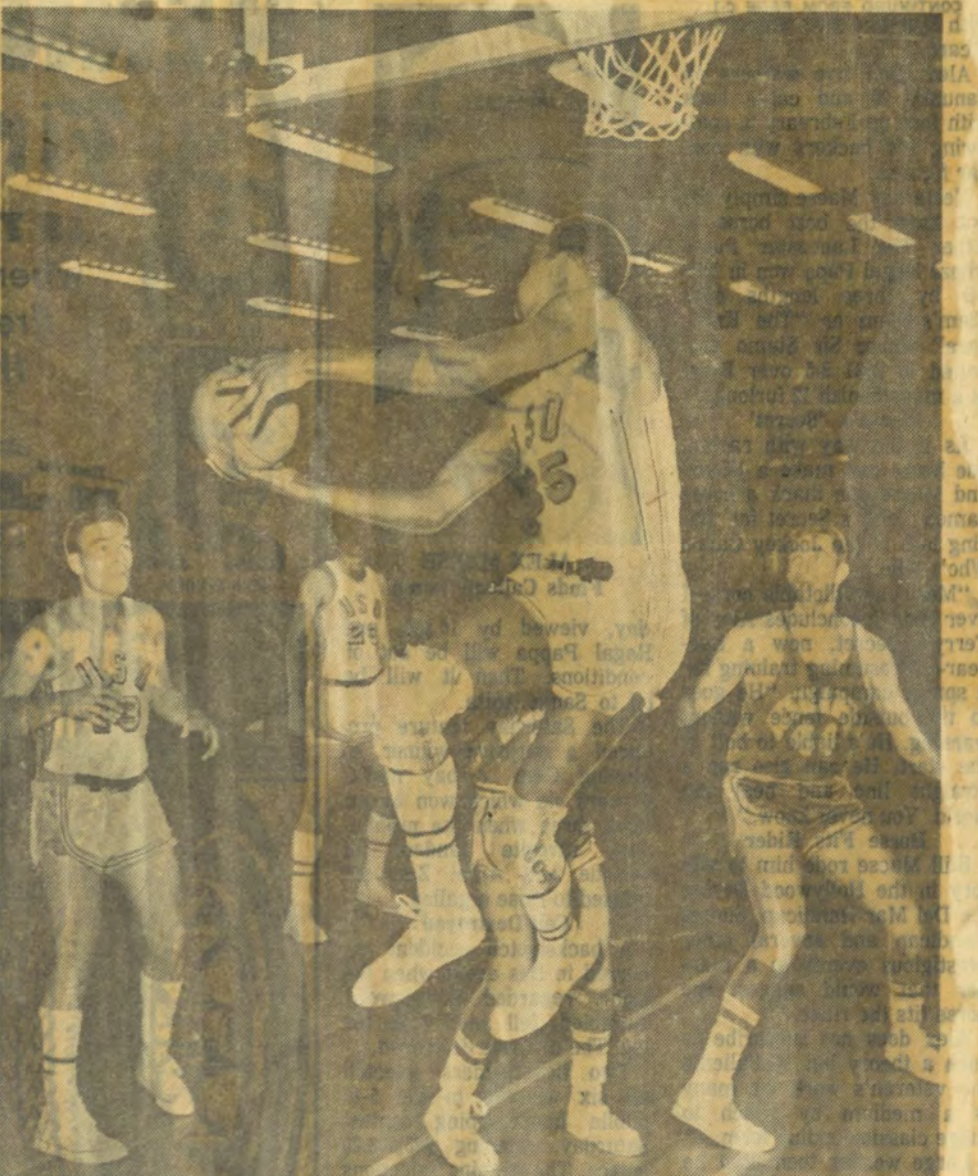

The Toreros got balanced scoring with Alan Fay leading the way with 15, followed by Rick Cabrera with 14, Ted Fields with 13 and Bill Sheridan with 11.

Rich Wasser and Dennis Gray followed Razutis in the scoring parade with 12 apiece.

Squeeze Tightened

Were giving Wasser a too much in the first half he was hurting us," said pert. "We tightened up in the second half and made a big difference. We got eight points in the third half and only four in the second half."

But Cabrera's jumpers of 20 were a little tight in

BOARD MAN — University of San Diego controlled backboards against Cal Western Saturday night and Gus Magee, shown here grabbing rebound, was one reason why.

play and never relinquished it.

Tomorrow night, the scene changes to Golden Gym. Remembering that the Toreros won big at home last year, too, and then bowed to the Westerners on the latter's home court, Woolpert looks for another tough game.

Venne Fails To Appear As Poets Bow To San Diego

By MILT STARK

Daily News Correspondent

The mysterious absence of the poet Joe Venne, who had scored 60 points in Whittest until Fenderson and center Jeff Eckmier combined for a 37-31 lead.

The San Diego quintet was leading 55-44 midway through the second half, when Fenderson sparked a last-ditch Whittier rally. The catlike sophomore stole the ball and dribbled the length of the floor and scored with a "dunker." His actions ignited the emotions of the partisan crowd, and his teammates came to life.

Narrow Gap

Fenderson slipped in another field goal, and guard Norm Hayden's field goal narrowed the gap to 55-50. However, with a chance to pull even, Eckmier and Hayden missed free throws on one-and-one situations, and Torero forward Rick Cabrera tossed in a 19-point shot to give USD the impressive lead.

The Poets got more shots than the Toreros, but they just could not get the ball through the hoop at critical times. USD hit on 23 of 59 field goal attempts for a fine 47 per cent. Whittier was 23-for-61 from the floor — a mediocre 37.7 shooting percentage.

Fenderson's 25 points were tops for the game. Eckmier and guard Chip Morvay were the only other Whittier double digit scorers with 11 and 10, respectively.

Field topped USD with 16 markers. Three other Torero starters hit double figures — Allen Fay (16), Bill Sheridan (13), and Cabrera (12).

Whittier returns to Wardman Gym Wednesday night when the Poets host the Pomona College Sagehens in an SCIAC encounter.

WASSER SCORES 25 Westerners Top Toreros, 75-70

By JOHNNY McDONALD

The game of basketball may be for the big guys but University of San Diego might dispute this.

Rich Wasser, a 5-9 junior guard, last night weaved his way through the Torero defenses to pace a second-half attack as Cal Western beat USD, 75-70, and stopped the visitors' victory show in the late stages of the contest.

Wasser, who has been averaging 15 points this season, led the ball twice and dribbled full Westerners with 25 points but court for layups.

USD Law Library Gets U.S. Label

Rep. Lionel Van Derlin, D-San Diego, has designated the library of the University of San Diego School of Law to become the fifth Federal Depository Library in San Diego County.

The designation was requested by Father Alfred J. Geimer, the Law School's head librarian.

Father Geimer wrote the congressman that the federal collection in his library will be intended for use by law students and faculty members from California Western University as well as by USD's own legal scholars.

In addition, depository status for the USD library has been endorsed by the San Diego County Bar Association.

Long-range plans of the USD library call for the development of extensive collections in the fields of oceanography, law, water law and maritime law. All of special significance in a seaport city like San Diego.

As Father Geimer pointed out, a high proportion of the source materials for such areas of study are documents published by the federal government.

As the librarian of a depository library, Father Geimer will be entitled to receive all journals, books and public documents issued by the Government Printing Office.

30,000 Volumes

The USD law library now has about 30,000 volumes and room for another 30,000. All the books are available to the public.

Previously designated as federal depositories were the libraries of the City of San Diego, the County of San Diego, San Diego State College and the University of California at La Jolla.

The USD library will be the first law library in the county to receive the federal designation.

HOMEcoming QUEEN — Miss Kathy Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Patrick Davis of Ontario, was crowned the University of San Diego's Homecoming Queen during halftime ceremonies of the USD-Cal Western basketball game in the USD gym last Saturday night.

Foreign Aid To Give Talk At College

The International Relations Club of San Diego College for Women will host as its guest speaker Richard H. Morefield, a foreign service officer, who has just returned to San Diego from the foreign embassy in Montevideo, Uruguay, at a meeting at 11:30 a.m. this Friday, February 24, in Room 11 on the campus.

According to Patricia Clark, I.R.C. president, Morefield will emphasize opportunities in the foreign service, with special reference to those open for girls from the San Diego area. He also will tell of his experiences in South America as a representative there.

Morefield, a graduate of San Diego High School, attended the University of San Francisco and later obtained his M.A. degree from the University of California at Berkeley. Prior to entering the Foreign Service, he served overseas with the U.S. Army.

In addition to an assignment in Washington, Morefield has served in the consulate in Baranquilla, Colombia, and the embassy in Oslo, Norway.

Following a short period of home leave here in San Diego, Morefield will return to Washington to be re-assigned to duty in Montevideo, Uruguay.

Aztecs Drop Out Of Hoop Spotlight

By RICK SMITH

Evening Tribune Sports Writer

They say it's a short drop from the penthouse to the cellar, a descent that San Diego State College has made in record time.

The Aztecs, who have ruled the roost around here all season, were all but forgotten at the Union-Tribune basketball luncheon in Kings Inn yesterday.

They surrendered their California Collegiate Athletic Association lead over the week and they saw the spotlight turn in another direction yesterday.

It was focused on Bill Sherman and Bob Fierick of the San Francisco Warriors, who met the Lakers in the Sports Arena tonight, and Cal Western and University of San Diego, which meet in Round 2 of their city series in Golden Gym this evening.

Out of Glare

Out of the glare was Aztec coach George Ziegenfuss, who appeared to have recovered from the 76-62 loss to Fresno State Saturday night.

"It was just a bad week-end," said Ziegenfuss. "We had 20 turnovers and shot 12 per cent at Fresno. Then guard (Jim) Waldron was eight for 14 from the floor and scored 27 points. He beat us."

"The Aztecs try to regroup this week in Peterson Gym against San Fernando Valley and Los Angeles State, needing a pair of wins to tie or claim the conference crown."

Playoff Is Probable

If San Diego and Fresno, which is at Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo, both win, a playoff probably will be held on a neutral court to determine the league's postseason tournament representative.

"I hope nobody has the Morefield, a foreign service officer, who has just returned to San Diego from the foreign embassy in Montevideo, Uruguay, at a meeting at 11:30 a.m. this Friday, February 24, in Room 11 on the campus.

According to Patricia Clark, I.R.C. president, Morefield will emphasize opportunities in the foreign service, with special reference to those open for girls from the San Diego area. He also will tell of his experiences in South America as a representative there.

Morefield, a graduate of San Diego High School, attended the University of San Francisco and later obtained his M.A. degree from the University of California at Berkeley. Prior to entering the Foreign Service, he served overseas with the U.S. Army.

In addition to an assignment in Washington, Morefield has served in the consulate in Baranquilla, Colombia, and the embassy in Oslo, Norway.

Following a short period of home leave here in San Diego, Morefield will return to Washington to be re-assigned to duty in Montevideo, Uruguay.

USD Cagers Face Finale

The University of San Diego Toreros will wind up their basketball season with two games this weekend.

The Toreros will meet Cal Poly at Pomona tomorrow (Friday) night and the University of California at Irvine Saturday night.

The USD cagers split two games with crosstown rival Cal Western. They defeated the Westerners, 68-57, in the USD gym last Saturday night, then dropped a 75-70 decision to Cal Western in the Westerners' Golden Gym Tuesday night.

The Tuesday night loss snapped a USD six-game win streak.

Forward Alan Fay, playing his last game on the USD court Saturday night, led the Toreros in scoring with 15 points. Ted Fields, USD junior guard, took scoring honors Tuesday night with 26 points.

The Toreros defeated Cal Poly, Pomona, 59-58, in the season opener in the USD gym. It was the first encounter between the two schools, the Toreros defeated University of California, Irvine, 73-52, last year.

AT SHOW — Attending Saturday's fashion show luncheon at the Grant Hotel sponsored by the American Association of University Women are, from left, Susan Bell, student body president of the University of San Diego College for Women; Mrs. William C. Droege, cochairman of event; and Mrs. Lloyd A. Walker representing the American Association of University Women.

3 Clergymen Talk at USD

By JOHN McPECK
EVENING TRIBUNE Staff Writer

Three clergymen said yesterday the old concept of God may be dead, but many up-to-date concepts of God are alive.

They spoke at an ecumenical convocation at the University of San Diego College for Men.

Man With Beard

The old concept of God as a vengeful grandfather figure with a flowing beard and perched on a cloud may well be dead, the clergymen said during a discussion of "Is God Dead on the College Campus?"

The three were Rabbi Joel Goor of Temple Solel, the Rev. John Huber, pastor of University Lutheran Church in La Jolla, and a chaplain at San Diego and the Rev. John Mort, priest-director of the Catholic Student Center at UCSD.

400 Attend

Nearly 400 students attended and participated in a question-and-answer session after the clergymen presented their views during the meeting in More Hall.

The speakers were introduced by the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese. He welcomed the convocation.

ROBERT J. KEYES
Insurance agent

Ex-USD Grid Star Is Named Aide To Reagan

San Diego Union Staff Dispatch

SACRAMENTO — A former University of San Diego football star yesterday was appointed special assistant to Gov. Reagan.

He is Robert J. (Bobby) Keyes, 30, a San Diego insurance agent. Keyes was captain of the USD football team as a junior. He was graduated in 1962 with a major in business administration.

Later, Keyes played for the San Francisco 49ers and Oakland Raiders professional football teams.

He taught at Marian High School in Imperial Beach and St. Augustine High School in San Diego. In 1963, he joined Continental Assurance Co. in San Diego and was named agent of the year in 1966.

A Bakersfield native, Keyes attended Antelope Valley Junior College, where he was a junior college All America twice and was named student of the year in 1957.

Keyes will replace Theron (Skip) Bell, who is being reassigned. Keyes will head the human relations activities in Reagan's office.

Coach Rates CW Underdogs

By HOWARD HAGEN

Cal Western coach Bob Kloppenburg yesterday claimed the underdog role for his team's intra-city clash with University of San Diego at Western Golden Gym tonight.

"We have been favored most times out this season," Kloppenburg told the Union-Tribune basketball luncheon at Kings Inn, "but at 10:30 p.m. we're underdogs Tuesday night."

That ignores the home-court advantage which USD had going for it in whipping Western, 66-57, on the USD wood Saturday night.

"We feel USD is as good as any (NCAA) college division team we have played," said Kloppenburg, who also lost a one-point, 66-65, college division, San Diego State, "I feel USD could beat Nevada Southern though Nevada Southern probably will get the independent bid in the playoffs."

BETTER PERCENTAGE

Kloppenburg said better USD shooting (42 per cent on goals to 31 per cent) and better board work gave USD the victory.

"It was a game that could have gone either way," said the Western coach. "Momentum is so important in basketball. We'll be ready for them Tuesday night."

The USD coach, Phil Woolpert, indicated his team's main problem tonight will be Western's Al Razutis.

"Razutis did a good job on us," said Woolpert. "We wondered if our Allen Fay was doing a poor job on him defensively but the pictures show the way Razutis was shooting (20 points for the game), nobody could have contained him."

HONORED PLAYERS

Attending the luncheon were Fay named local college player of the week; Steve Haskett, La Jolla High, prep player of the week; and Steve Howe, Grossmont College, honored as the top JC player last week.

Praising Fay, Woolpert said, "He has been a great ballplayer for us three years. He has been the type of player often overlooked. He usually is assigned the other team's top scorer; he is an excellent defensible, good shooter and a good student."

Woolpert also lauded Toreros Jim Wilke and Dorel Carpenter for outstanding board work against Cal Western.

San Diego State coach George Ziegenfuss noted that his team's defensive record didn't hold up in the 76-62 loss at Fresno State Saturday night.

"In 18 of our 23 games, we (Continued on C-3, Col. 3) have held opponents to less than 40 per cent on field goals," he said. "But Fresno shot 46 per cent on us."

He said again that the 20 Aztec ball turnovers and poor shooting (32 per cent) plus Fresno guard Jim Waldon's hot shooting beat the Aztecs at Fresno.

Of this week's two opponents here, said Ziegenfuss, he fears Los Angeles State Saturday night more than San Fernando Valley on Friday.

Bill Gillespie, whose Grossmont College team is 7-5 in the Pacific Southwest Conference and 16-12 overall, praised the all-around play of Howe, his 6-7 pivot, who has bagged about 20 rebounds and 20 points per game.

La Jolla High coach Wayne Townsend, whose players are 6-9 in the league and 14-12 overall, said injuries and illness forced him to start six different lineups this season.

He said, "I'm proud of the whole team for never giving up, and proudest of all of Haskett, who not only is a fine scorer with 20 to 25 points per game but usually comes up with seven or eight assists."

USD Scores Over Chapman In Overtime

University of San Diego turned on the steam when it counted last night and the Toreros stormed to an 86-73 victory over Chapman College in an overtime scrap.

The Toreros, now 11-3 for the season, continue in action tonight by hitting the road for a game at Whittier College.

USD had the game all but won in regulation time, leading 76-72, with only a minute to play. Then Chapman's Panthers closed the gap. Frank Franklin hit a field goal with 33 seconds to play, narrowing it to two points.

Then, after Ted Fields missed a free throw with five seconds on the clock, the Panthers rebounded and Jim Caperton scored on a 25-foot jump shot just as the buzzer sounded, knotting it at 76-all.

That was Chapman's final threat, however, for the Toreros hit four straight points on Rick Cabrera's two jumpers at the start of the overtime session and were in front the rest of the way. The Panthers managed only two points in the extra period, going down to their 16th defeat in 21 outings.

Fields totaled 27 and Cabrera 21 for the Toreros. Franklin netted 23 and Doug Eckert 20 for the Panthers.

two victories and was named college player of the week.

"Here's a guy with not a tremendous amount of physical ability," said Woolpert. "He has an economy of motion, however."

"He's another coach on the court, and heaven knows we need one. This weekend he started to come into his own. He had a cracked bone in his wrist earlier in the year and I know it affected his shooting."

Whittier Plays Here

"He played exceedingly well on defense all year, though, and he knows the game well. He comes from a good basketball family."

USD meets Chapman and Whittier Colleges this week.

Whittier also is the opponent here tonight for San Diego State College, which had its nine-game winning streak severed, 68-64, by Nevada Southern in Las Vegas Friday.

Tried Hard Way

"When you lose, you walk," said Ziegenfuss. "We've got a few of the boys treading their way into Barstow right now."

"I felt like the guy who went to Las Vegas in an $8,000 Cadillac with $3,000 bucks

The Aztecs beat Whittier, 109-70, in December, but the Poets have won their last four and now are 9-12.

Big Game Coming

State plays Long Beach State in conference game here Friday and travels to Cal Poly of Pomona Saturday to meet a team which beat the odds last week, topping Fresno State, 59-56, in Fresno.

Cal Western also has a busy schedule with three games this week, including a contest with Pasadena Friday in Golden Gym which will go a long way toward determining the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics' District 3 winner.

Victory Fortunate

"Pasadena is 12-8," said Kloppenburg. "That will be the test. We were fortunate to beat them 98-84, up there. They have to beat us."

The Westerners split two district games last week, beating Westmont, 88-84, and losing to Cal Lutheran, 79-77.

"We lost, but I was proud of the way we came back," said Kloppenburg. "They led us by 17 points with 10 minutes to go."

Homecoming Activities Set By USD Men

Queen Coronation, Basketball, Bonfire Included in Week

Coronation of a queen, basketball games, dances, a rally and bonfire and a University Ecumenical Day will highlight homecoming activities at the University of San Diego College for Men this week.

The queen will be chosen from seven candidates, all coeds at the USD College for Women. The winner will be crowned during half time at the annual homecoming basketball game with California Western University Saturday in USD gym.

Homecoming activities begin today with a "funeral procession." A coffin containing "The Spirit of Cal Western" was carried from Lark Cafeteria to the College for Women patio. A "eulogy" over the coffin followed.

3 Faiths Take Part

Queen finalists will be presented at a St. Valentine's Day program at noon tomorrow in the cafeteria.

The University Ecumenical Day is scheduled from 9 a.m. until noon Wednesday and will feature round table discussions by representatives of the Jewish, Lutheran and Catholic faiths. The discussion topic will be "Is God Dead on the College Campus?"

College for Women coeds will compete at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in a basketball game in USD gym. A "snowball" fight is scheduled at 8:30 p.m. on the gym parking lot.

Film to Be Shown

The University Film Forum will show "Rocco and His Brothers" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the College for Women theater.

A second "coffin procession" is scheduled at 7 p.m. Friday from the College of Women to a bonfire area across from the Knights of Columbus Library. A bonfire and rally are scheduled at 7:45, at which time USD basketball players will be introduced.

Court Presentation

The homecoming queen will be announced and her court presented at a dance in the cafeteria at 9 p.m. Friday.

The USD Cal Western game will start at 8 p.m. Saturday in USD gym. A freshman game will begin at 6 p.m.

The homecoming dance in the Stardust Room of the Stardust Hotel will follow the basketball game.

New Concepts Of Religion Are Discussed

as a historic day on the university's Alcala Park campus.

The views of the clergymen were not in conflict. As one student later put it, "they took slightly different paths to the same goal." They also indicated agreement as to the belief the God is dead movement is, in effect, strengthening religion.

"Those who say that God is dead do not say they killed Him; they only say that our contemporary society has become godless," Rabbi Goor said.

Back to Life

"In that sense, if God is dead, we have a duty to bring him back to life," the rabbi said, "but in my sense... God lives."

"Only a straw man has been killed," he explained. "Man's concept of God has always changed throughout history, reflecting the changes in man's understanding of God."

The Rev. Mr. Huber, introducing himself "more as a preserver rather than a tearer-downer," said it is not necessary the reality of God be proved. "God need only be proclaimed," he added.

"Some persons don't feel a need for God any more and when they say that 'God is dead' it can be translated to mean that the church is dead, that the church is losing its grasp on the people," the minister said.

Problem of Semantics

He, too, indicated the God is dead theory is largely a problem of semantics.

"Our terminology must change to meet the times," the Rev. Mr. Huber said. "A new mental concept of God is emerging."

He said new terminology can be derived from analogies in the Bible. It is not necessary to desert the Bible to meet the demands of an evolving religion, he explained.

Father Mort said the God is dead question centers around the problem of relevancy — "how one relates one's self to God."

Basic Truth

"One of the great things given to us by St. Thomas Aquinas is the concept of analogy," the priest said. A false analogy does not change the basic truth from which it was drawn, he added.

"We must bury old images and affirm a more realistic image of God."

The God is dead theory is related to a situation that has existed throughout church history, "and that is the two spheres — the religious sphere and the secular sphere, or the sacred and the profane," Father Mort said.

"In medieval times there was a shifting of the two spheres, but after the Reformation the shift changed toward the secular sphere," he said.

Examine Beliefs

"We must stop and re-examine our beliefs and find new definitions," he said.

Rabbi Goor rephrased the priest's view. "It is time for man to make the 'ideal God' and the real God into one God."

"Contrary to my own earlier view," a freshman said, "this college possesses a tremendous atmosphere of inquiry on the campus and in the classroom. I have found absolutely no restrictions in questioning and questioning for and of religious tenets."

BASEBALLERS GET BUSY

Collegians Face Full Slate

Baseball at the college and junior college level swings into full scale action this week after a sputtering start.

San Diego State College will play the University of San Diego tomorrow at 2:30 on the Montezuma Mesa field. Both schools scored victories over alumni squads over the weekend.

USD employed four pitchers in taking the graduate crew by a 6-2 score. The SDS Aztecs with an eight-run fourth inning swamped its alumni foes, 14-4.

San Diego City College was in action this afternoon against the Marines at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Mesa College will play the Marines there tomorrow, Palomar College will play at San Bernardino tomorrow.

The SDCC team lost, 4-2 Saturday to Mt. San Antonio at San Marcos in the finals of the Palomar baseball tournament. Citrus beat Riverside 7-1, in the consolation round.

Mesa College collected eight home runs, a doubleheader victory and the tournament championship Saturday against the MCRD team. Mesa won by scores of 12-2 and 8-1. The double win gave Mesa a 6-1 mark for honors in the double elimination event.

Grossmont College, which lost to Fullerton Friday, 5-2, will play at Arizona Western Friday.

CCD Plans Open House

An open house will be held Sunday, February 26, in the Chancery of Christian Doctrine in the Chancery on the University of San Diego campus.

CCD personnel and others will have an opportunity to meet the director, supervisors and secretaries. There will be displays of books, charts, maps, records, filmstrips, and other organizational material.

Refreshments will be served from 2 to 5 p.m.

Aztecs Use Big Inning To Top USD

Four hits, five walks and a hit batter produced nine runs in the third inning for San Diego State yesterday, and that was more than enough for the Aztecs as they crushed University of San Diego's baseballers.

The Aztecs jumped off to an 11-0 lead before USD's Fred Diana singled home a run in the ninth inning to give the Toreros their lone score in the 11-1 game.

Jim Rupe of San Diego State hit a bases-empty home run in the eighth inning.

USD Coach Speaks Out On Strategy

By RICK SMITH
EVENING TRIBUNE Sports Writer

Phil Woolpert stalled as long as he could and then spoke up.

The University of San Diego coach came out with fast breaking oratory in defending his slowdown strategy last week in a 69-64 victory over Los Angeles State.

Using the Union-Tribune basketball luncheon in Kings Inn yesterday as his sounding board, Woolpert quickly went on the offensive.

Winning Point Made

He felt he had been criticized in "public print" the morning after the game for stalling in the final minutes against the Diablos.

"I don't see anything in the rules that says you can't stall," he said. "I don't like to stall, and I don't like the word. We call it a withholding game. We'd sit down and lie on the floor to win," he said. "I would insert my wife into the lineup if she were bigger and I thought it would win."

UCLA Game Cited

"There's nothing devious and communistic about it," he said, "and I do resent whatever the inference is, that to stall is bad basketball strategy."

Woolpert also pointed out that UCLA's unbeaten national leaders had to go into overtime Saturday night to beat USC, 40-35, after the Trojans came up with a stall.

Coach on Court

It still is a loss for USD, but it obviously is one away to play the Bruins, who "can" fight contests with the Trojans by scores of 93-39 and 100-74.

Changing the subject, Woolpert praised Bill Sheridan, a 6-foot guard who scored 27 points in the (Cont. on Page C-3, Col. 1)

Summer Grants Economics Professor Gets Two

Gardner received his bachelor's degree from the University of Oklahoma, his master's at USC and has undertaken further work toward his doctorate at that institution.

Prior to studying for his master's, Gardner was in business management with Sears and Roebuck and Company, the Ozark Engineering Company, and Patterson Steel of Oklahoma.

He is a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Holy Names Society, and Atrius, a national economics society.

IMPACT WILL BE SIGNIFICANT

'Moment Of Truth' Is Near For Two Key Trade Matters

By DR. ROBERT E. MILLER

Two related matters that will significantly affect world trade and United States international trade relations soon will be coming to a "moment of truth."

In June, the "Kennedy Round" of international negotiations to reduce world trade barriers will be over. And, before the year is out, Britain will no doubt make a second formal bid to enter the European Economic Community — the Common Market.

Editor's Note: This article was written by a guest columnist, Dr. Robert E. Miller is chairman, division of economics and business, of the University of San Diego.

The outcome of both matters will determine the pattern and direction of world trade for some time to come. And they will particularly affect the continuing problem of U.S. balance-of-payments deficits — and thus indirectly the international monetary system, which itself is on the verge of an "agonizing reappraisal."

The "Kennedy Round" refers to the trade negotiations being conducted under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. GATT was organized by the major trading nations in 1947 to promote a lessening of international trade restrictions. It has some 70 member nations, including the United States, Great Britain, and the EEC nations of France, West Germany, Italy, and the three Benelux nations — Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

'62 EXPANSION ACT

Periodically, since 1947, GATT has conducted such international trade negotiations. The name popularly applied to the current negotiations reflects the importance of the U.S. Trade Expansion Act of 1962 enacted during the Kennedy Administration.

As a means of furthering world trade, the act gives authority to the President — reciprocally with other nations — to reduce tariffs as much as 50 per cent, remove all tariffs on goods having existing duties of 5 per cent or less, and most important, remove all tariffs on goods in which the United States and the EEC nations carry out more than 80 per cent of Free World trade in such goods.

The latter provision as envisioned in the Act would have enormously furthered Free World trade.

MATTERS INTERRELATED

This is where the "Kennedy Round" and the possible entry of Britain into the EEC are interrelated. When the Act was proposed and passed it was expected that Britain — then currently negotiating to join the EEC — would be successful and that her sister members of the European Free Trade Association would similarly join — Austria, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland.

With these 13 nations comprising the EEC, the United States and such an expanded European Common Market would conduct 80 per cent or (Continued on 14, Col. 1)

AT UNIVERSITY OF SAN DIEGO

High Student Officer Speaks About CIA

A high official of the National Student Association will discuss the group's controversial affiliation with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) Tuesday at the University of San Diego's More Hall.

The speaker, Sam Brown, chairman of the NSA's National Supervisory Board, will also discuss the student association's purpose on campus at the 12:15 p.m. session.

The associated student body of California Western University, the University of California at San Diego and San Diego State College have been invited to attend Brown's talk.

Brown is currently touring NSA member colleges and universities on the West Coast. A question and answer period will follow his address. The University of San Diego is the only college in the San Diego area that is a member of the National Student Association.

such ties are uncovered. The board urged the declassification of all information relating to the CIA's involvement with private organizations and announced its intention to cooperate fully with a full public investigation of agency involvement and infiltration of American student and education organizations.

"At no time, for no reason, was the penetration of the CIA into our organization justified," reported the board, "the penetration of the CIA into other organizations must be terminated at once."

Owes Apology

The National Supervisory Board said the government here "owes an enormous apology" to the NSA, its officers and staff, and to an entire generation for using NSA in this manner.

"While the NSA has been and remains anti-Communist," the board stated, "the world now knows the United States has employed many of the same secretive techniques to fight representatives of a closed society that those societies use themselves."

"We hereby issue a call for students on campuses across the country to initiate this discussion and to elicit support from other segments of the university community."

The board said a full dialogue on the matter will be discussed at the next annual National Student Congress in August.

USD Students Debate Champs

KEARNY MESA — Assistant professor of economics at the University of San Diego, College for Men; Paul R. Gardner, has been awarded two General Electric grants for summer institutes in contemporary economics. He has received grants to the University of Virginia and UCLA.

The summer grants include a tuition stipend and housing and transportation allowance. Gardner won a contemporary economics summer institute grant at the University of Chicago last summer.

Gardner joined the economics department of the University of San Diego in 1962. He was previously a teaching assistant at the University of Southern California while obtaining his master's degree. Gardner received his B.S. from the University of Oklahoma, his M.A. at USC and has undertaken further work towards his Ph.D. at that institution. Prior to studying for his master's degree, he was in business management with Sears and Roebuck and Company, the Ozark Engineering Company, and Patterson Steel Company of Oklahoma.

Gardner and his wife Marjorie have five children: Richard, 18, a freshman at USD's College for Men; Jeffrey, 17, Stephen, 14, Mary, 12; and Vincent, 9. Mrs. Gardner holds a master's in teaching degree from the College for Men.

She was the first woman to receive this degree from the college. Mrs. Gardner teaches at Cathedral High School in San Diego and has been offered a teaching position in the special education division of the San Diego Unified School District for the fall of 1967.

USD Professor Wins Grants For Summer

KEARNY MESA — The debate squad of the University of San Diego, College for Men won first place in debate at the Pacific Southwest Spring Championships held at the California Institute of Technology March 10 and 11. USD placed third out of 104 competing schools in overall sweepstakes points.

The College for Men entered a five-man squad in the Pasadena tournament. Entries were placed in oratory, extemporaneous speaking and debate. Senior Tony Sinicco, combined with freshmen Jack Kaufman and Everett Harry, to form a three-man rotating debate squad. Harry also won a first place in extemporaneous speaking. Jerry Dominelli, a junior at the College for Men, was entered in oratory and Frank Beaudine in extemporaneous speaking.

Foreign Trade Negotiations Have Stalled

In effect, the Trade Expansion Act and the expanded European Common Market could have created a free trade area among the entire Atlantic community.

A common market, besides eliminating trade restrictions among its member nations, establishes a common tariff schedule for all other nations whereas a free trade association, although eliminating trade restrictions among its member nations, allows them individually to maintain whatever tariff schedule they elect for other nations.

BROUGHT PROBLEMS

Thus, when Britain was denied entry into the EEC mainly by France's concern about her "Europeanness" and her continuing ties with the Commonwealth and the United States, the "Kennedy Round" was forced back from consideration of 100 per cent reciprocal tariff reduction mainly to only the 50 per cent reciprocal reduction provision.

This is where the negotiations have been stuck. Even this provision is due to end when the President's authority to act under the Trade Expansion Act expires in June.

The problem is that it is more difficult to negotiate a 50 per cent reduction than a 100 per cent reduction. If the whole tariff is reciprocally removed, that is the end of the matter. But a 50 per cent reduction requires more horse-trading on a good-for-good basis in view of the effect of the remaining 50 per cent. For example, although a simple meaningful comparison of the level of U.S. and EEC tariffs is difficult, the United States does have a larger number of high tariff rates than does the EEC — as shown in the accompanying.

QUESTIONS RAISED

The French particularly argue that an "across-the-board" reciprocal 50 per cent reduction of an American 40 per cent tariff to 20 per cent and a 50 per cent reduction of an EEC 20 per cent tariff to 10 per cent moves the situation from two restrictive rates at 40 and 20 per cent to a still restrictive 20 per cent U.S. tariff against a now tolerable 10 per cent EEC tariff.

Thus, the negotiations drag on and time runs out.

However, if the President's authority under the trade expansion act should be extended, and if Britain and other EFTA nations should join the EEC, then the world might see some of the effects described in the table in James C. Ingram's "International Economic Problems."

Student Leader Hits CIA

A high official of the National Student Association will discuss the group's controversial affiliation with the CIA on Tuesday at 12:15 p.m. in More Hall of the University of San Diego, College for Men.

The speaker, Sam Brown, chairman of the NSA's National Supervisory Board, will also discuss the student association's purpose on campus. A question and answer period will follow the address. Brown is currently touring NSA member colleges and universities on the West Coast.

USD's College for Men joined NSA in 1965. Some 350 other colleges and universities comprise the organization. It was recently disclosed that the student association, founded in 1947 has been financially supported by the CIA. Brown's National Supervisory Board said in a statement of Feb. 17 of the CIA's affiliation with the organization, "To dissolve NSA would be an admission not simply that the CIA can penetrate an organization, but that attempts to sever such ties can destroy the organization. We refuse to admit that. We will strengthen the National Student Association as a result of these disclosures."

The Associated Student Body of San Diego State College, California Western University and the University of California at San Diego have been invited to attend Brown's talk. The University of San Diego is the only college in the San Diego area that is a member of the NSA.

The University of San Diego's debate and forensics squad will participate in the chairman of the speech arts department there. He has been selected for the second consecutive year to be a guest judge at the California-Arizona National Debate Tournament at the University of Chicago in April.

The university debate and forensics squad entered the Pacific Southwest Collegiate Forensics Association Tournament at Cal-Tech Friday and Saturday.

The team tied for ninth place at the Desert Invitational Tournament at the University of Arizona last week. Freshman debater Everett Harry and sophomore John Kennedy compiled a 4-2 record in competition with 52 teams.

Schools such as the University of Chicago, Harvard University, the Air Force Academy, and the University of Minnesota were represented in the three-day tournament. USD entered debate, extemporaneous speaking, and original oratory events. Senior Tony Sinicco placed fifth in original oratory.

However, the Poets loaded the bases when Bill Coffman and Tim Heck singled, and Keegan's club tied the score and went ahead on Jim Martin's two-run base hit.

San Diego scratched for the tying and winning runs in the lower ninth on a single, a Poet error, a base on balls and a two-run double off pitching Gary Littel, who had relieved starter Gary McHilton in the seventh.

But the two Poet hurlers permitted only four hits in the contest, and their mates managed nine safeties. The Poets had taken a 1-0 lead in the third when Beller doubled and scored on Guthrie's base hit.

San Diego tied the score in the fifth and went ahead in the seventh on a pair of home runs, leaving the count 2-1 before the Poet uprising in the eighth.

Television is indeed a modern miracle. But the most amazing fact is not that brilliant minds discovered a way to project images into ones homes. The real miracle is that there are images to project.

Last week we accompanied our daughter, Penny, to the Channel 8 television studio for the taping of the "Shane in Wonderland" program. As one of the grand prize winners in the Jack-in-the-Box Art Contest, she was to appear on the program.

The letter announcing this high point in her life directed us to be at the studio promptly at 9:30 a.m. Ominous overtones implied we would be extremely sorry if we were tardy.

Thus promptly at 9:25 we entered the building and took a seat, along with other winners and their parents, in the studio.

At 10:15 we were all seated in the studio waiting for someone to decide on the format for the show. Several ideas were being banded about by half a dozen nonchalant gentlemen, while Shane signed autographs and amused the youngsters.

Finally an offstage echo announced "ready on the set," someone grabbed a broom and tidied up a bit and the spontaneous, unrehearsed show got under way.

And would you believe an hour later they had actually managed to tape three brief segments of the half-hour program?

We were impressed. Nobody had shouted. Nobody had looked worried. Nobody would ever have uttered,

"Hey boss, why don't we 'tape' a few issues ahead and forget this frantic press day rat race?"

Mmes. Louis Racy and Frank Parker of Chula Vista, members of the San Diego Symphony Chorus, were among those participating in the presentation of the Verdi Requiem by the San Diego Symphony in Brawley.

The production was under the direction of Zoltan Rozsnyai.

While in Imperial Valley, the two ladies were houseguests of Mrs. Niel Horne of El Centro, the first out-of-county board member of the San Diego Symphony Assn.

South Bay women are among those assisting with preparations for a performance of the Yale Russian Chorus of Yale University School of Music. It is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the University of San Diego College for Women.

The chorus, now making a nationwide tour, will arrive Saturday morning and will visit the Caliente Race Track in Tijuana as guests of John Alessio. They will also give a free performance at the San Diego Naval Station and perform at an Easter Sunday military mass aboard ship in San Diego harbor.

Proceeds from their appearance at the University of San Diego College for Women are earmarked for the music and arts departments of the college, according to Mrs. Pat Reneau of Chula Vista, publicity coordinator.

Area women assisting include Mmes. Cecil Cotton, publicity chairman, Robert Casey and Robert Radcliffe, area chairman.

USD EXCEPTION TO RULE

Toreros Beat Odds in Vegas

Most people return from Las Vegas as losers but the University of San Diego baseball team is an exception.

The Toreros swept a Southern California Athletic Conference doubleheader from Nevada Southern there over the weekend, 6-4 and 5-4.

Shortstop Tommy Thompson and catcher Rich Baker provided the power as Thompson rapped out four hits, including two doubles in seven trips while Baker went five for eight in the two games.

USD, which was to meet Fullerton today and remain on the road against Los Angeles State tomorrow, now is 2-1 in league play and 8-8 overall.

Cal Western had similar results at home, dropping Utah University, 5-2. Shortstop Ron Pietela drove in three runs with a single and double in three trips to pace the Westerners at the plate while Bob Shriver scattered six hits in going the distance for the win. The Westerners play host to Cal Lutheran tomorrow.

The Marine Corps Recruit

Depots upped its season record to 13-16 with a 3-1 nod over Fullerton State at MCRD's Beeson Field. Right-hander John Faeth spaced six hits in going the distance for the win.

In a Pacific Southwest Conference make-up doubleheader, Southwestern College pounded out 29 hits to win a pair from host MiraCosta, 8-4 and 11-1. Right-handers Tom Fledderjohn and Dirk Van Dyke pitched three and four-hitters, respectively, to pace the Apaches.

Van Dyke and Duane Bazzel collected five hits each for the winners while Apache Allan Assay clouted two homers, one a three-run blast.

Academic Cooperation

Joint Courses Are Planned by USD Colleges

Plans for closer academic cooperation between faculty and students at the University of San Diego's two colleges were announced here by Bishop Francis J. Furey of San Diego, chancellor of the university.

Mother Nancy Morris, president of the San Diego College for Women, and Father John P. Cadden, president of the College for Men, signed the agreement which put into effect plans for reciprocal courses.

Bishop Furey said each school will continue to administer its own programs, admit, educate, counsel and graduate its own students.

More Fruitful Cooperation Made Possible

Mother Morris explained that the new plan is expected to provide the opportunity for a wider and more fruitful cooperation between the two colleges.

Father Cadden said that the aim of both administrators and faculty at the two colleges is to retain the special function and character of each college, while sharing facilities for the improvement of both.

"We want to see how we can better coordinate our efforts on behalf of the young men and women whom we serve," the presidents said.

Program Involves 120 Courses

The initial stage of the co-instructional program will involve 120 courses, known as "reciprocal courses" which will be open to students of both colleges. This is less than half the total number of courses now offered by both colleges, they said.

When, for example, the new program is launched in September, all courses in music, art, drama and French will be given at the College for Women. Courses in business administration, accounting, psychology, economics, and mathematics will be open to both men and women at the College for Men.

Now Maintain Separate Facilities

The colleges now maintain separate facilities, including separate libraries and laboratories for men and women students. Bishop Furey said the new system will be more economical.

He said the old system required "duplication of faculty that was both unnecessary and uneconomical."

Father Cadden said the new system also would allow the university to hire teachers for full-time teaching loads. Previously, each college hired its own teachers and sometimes could not provide full-time work within its own system.

He also said that industry today is seeking students with a broader base in education and the new system would provide this. Previously, some men students were allowed to take music courses in the College for Women but were not given credits for their work.

The San Diego College for Women will hold its first Parents' Weekend this Saturday and Sunday, April 15 and 16. The purpose of the event is to acquaint parents of day and resident students with the curriculum and activities on the women's college campus.

USD Retains Night Classes In Law School

A decision to continue night classes at the University of San Diego School of Law was announced yesterday following a faculty study into their possible elimination.

Dean Joseph A. Sineltico Jr., who announced the decision, also said the school's first year day division will be divided into two sections to take care of an anticipated student increase.

Although evening division classes will be conducted next year, Sineltico noted that a number of law schools in various parts of the country are phasing out their night programs.

Sineltico said a faculty committee reported a night program offers a valuable community service and that its elimination would prevent many students from receiving a legal education.

"It was pointed out during the discussion that some of the most creditable law school graduates have come from the evening division," the committee said.

Sineltico also announced the Law School Admission Test, conducted four times annually, will be administered at the school April 10. Applications are due to be submitted to the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J., by March 31.

A passing grade on the test is a requirement for entering any accredited law school, including day and evening divisions at USD, Sineltico said.

Faculty committee members recommending continuance of evening law classes were Rev. Alfred F. Geipier and Prof. Gerald M. Dawson. Prof. Frank A. Engfelt, Prof. John M. Winters and Prof. Joseph S. Brock.

that's what happened to them a couple weeks ago."

USD concluded its season with a 14-11 record, but it dropped its final three games last week.

"Cal Western (a 75-70 loss) played great," he said. "At Cal Poly of Pomona (83-65), we had a 12-point lead and then went scoreless for six and a half minutes."

Takes Blame in Loss

"We couldn't keep the basketball long enough to get it downcourt."

"I lost the game at (UC) Irvine (70-64 in overtime)," he said. "I had a technical called on me, late in the game, and that hurt."

"I left some things undone this year," he said. "It was my fault. I can't blame the players. We'll just have to correct some of the coaching deficiencies that cropped up this year."

"We would rather play Nevada Southern in the regionals than USD," said Ziegenfuss.

Better Coach Now

"Phil can get his team ready, and it plays defense. He shouldn't criticize himself like that. Phil probably is a better coach now than when he won 60 games in a row and two national championships (at University of San Francisco)."

College player of the week was Aztec guard Rick Eveleth, and Eric Mariensen, a former Chula Vista High forward, was named college freshman player of the year. He averaged nearly 24 points a game for the Aztec yearlings.

"I knew one thing at the start of the year," said Ziegenfuss. "I had to play Eveleth. I had to find a spot for him somewhere. He's a tough player, a competitor. He gives us character."

Fresno Defeat Helps

Eveleth had 29 points over the weekend as the Aztecs claimed their first outright California Collegiate Athletic Association title in 10 years (they tied with Fresno in 1959).

Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo gave the Aztecs a lift when it beat Fresno, saving them from a trip to Fresno Thursday to determine the conference representative in the playoffs.

USD Sets Coed Plans

Mother Morris endorsed the principle of maintaining separate college identities and commented, "I believe in women's colleges for women's education because women withdraw when they are on equal ground with men and they meet with unfair competition."

Ineligible for the reciprocal courses will be freshmen and sophomores, unless they receive special approval from their college, students on academic probation and seminarians in the College for Men.

The agreement dates from April 7, 1967 to June 10, 1969. It "shall be extended from academic year to academic year" subject to the approval of officials.

The women's college has an enrollment of 680 students, and the men's college has 497 students. The agreement will not affect the university's School of Law, which is open to both men and women.

Paulist Theologian To Give Talks Here

Father Harry McSorley, CSP, a Paulist theologian, will give two lectures here next week.

Father McSorley will be in residence at the University of California at San Diego. He will lecture at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 18, at the College for Women, Alcala Park, on "Converging Protestant and Catholic Theologies." He will lecture at the University of California's Humanities Library at 4 p.m. Wednesday, April 19, on "Luther and the Reformation: a Catholic Re-assessment after 450 years."

Father McSorley holds a doctorate in Protestant theology from the University of Munich, Germany.

The Paulist priest believes that to a large extent Martin Luther was misunderstood by Catholics in the Reformation dispute.

After five years of research in Protestant theology at the universities of Heidelberg and Tubingen and at Adam-Moehler Institute of Paderborn, Father McSorley concludes that the major dispute between Luther and Catholicism was not over the questions of indulgences, purgatory, or the papacy. It arose instead, he says, from a Roman Catholic misunderstanding of the meaning of Luther's original position on human freedom and divine grace.

This position, according to Father McSorley, is actually in agreement with the oldest Catholic tradition.

Arizona Regatta, Junior Events Top Boating Program

By HARRY MONAHAN

An invasion of Arizona and a scramble for titles by Southern California's top junior sailors will highlight a busy local boating program this weekend.

The proposed San Diego-to-Mazatlan predicted log race for powercaters, which was scheduled to start this weekend, has been canceled. Art DeFever, race chairman for the sponsoring San Diego Yacht Club, announced yesterday. Lack of entries was cited as the reason for the cancellation.

EX-NATIONAL CHAMPS

Former national champions Norm Marchmont of Malibu and Bill Buck Sr. of Westchester will head the Malibu Outrigger contenders challenging incumbent national king, Jim Harp of Canoga Park.

The regatta sponsors anticipate 30 Pacific Cats, 20 Snipes, and 16 Malibu Outriggers will be on hand.

The Southern California Yachting Association's junior championships will be decided at MBYC Saturday and Sunday. Competition will be divided into two age brackets, under 13 and 13-and-over. Ten classes of boats have been proposed.

The juniors will have three races Saturday and two Sunday. On Sunday, San Diego Yacht Club has action slated for the Snipe class; Coronado Yacht Club will open its three-race Wellington Trophy race under 13-and-over. Southwestern will stage its Spring ocean race, also under SDHRP ratings.

Students Set For Parley

Six students from San Diego College for Women will attend the Pomona College Conference of "Urban America" February 22-25. The students Misses Christine Brooke, Jean Gear, Lorraine Havier, Carol Qualin, Diane Ruhland, and Mary Stuart Walker, are sociology majors at the College for Women or have special interests in current social problems.

This year's conference at Pomona College is sponsored by the students at Claremont and is the third annual conference to deal with a topic of pertinent and general interest. In 1964, a conference on civil rights was held; in 1966, the topic centered on "Communist China and the World Order."

The title of this year's meeting is "Urban America: Crisis and Opportunity," a subject of current interest and timeliness throughout the country. As the congressional hearings on the "crisis of the cities" showed, the Claremont Conference has a distinguished line-up of speakers for its three-day meet. Vice-President Hubert Humphrey will open the conference February 23 with a talk on "The Metropolis and the Human Element."

"The conference should prove to be an invaluable learning experience for the students attending," Mother Irene Lawrence, chairman of the Sociology Department at the College for Women, said, "for at Pomona there will be for those few days a unique concentration of erudition, expertise, and experience."

Guide-Dog Means Safety For Blind Student At UCSD

By DON SEVRENS

One of the students on the Dean's List at the University of San Diego College for Men will never see his name printed there. He is F. David Helkenn Jr., and he is blind.

Helkenn entered his world of darkness Feb. 22, 1964. By then, a condition called congenital myopia had taken its toll. It is a disease in which the eyeball grows progressively elongated until the retina can no longer remain attached.

A series of operations was unsuccessful in Helkenn's case. He is a sophomore economics major at USD. He and Loreen, his German shepherd guide-dog, are familiar sights on campus.

Helkenn, 20, who lives with his parents at 4224 Feather Ave., was a junior at Clairemont High School when he went blind. He had known for years that it could happen.

"I was sort of prepared, but not really," he said. "It's a matter of trying to find other solutions to everyday tasks. Just getting around was a problem."

Animal Trained For One Month

At first he used a cane for walking, swinging it in front of him.

"Those canes get stuck in so many places," he said. Also, "It doesn't tell you when there are overhangs."

Guide-Dogs for the Blind Inc. gave him the German shepherd in the summer of 1965. He and the animal trained together for a month at the Guide-Dog center in San Rafael. One day Loreen saved his life.

Helkenn and Loreen were waiting at an intersection for a traffic signal to change. When it did, they started to cross the street. Suddenly the big dog stopped, jerking Helkenn to a halt. An auto had gone through a red light and passed only a foot away.

Maybe that explains why Helkenn is happy to feed Loreen two pounds of meat a day, in addition to dry dog-food.

He likes to go cycling (on a tandem bike), play the banjo, guitar and harmonica, and date girls. He also likes to read.

Other Students Read His Homework

Helkenn's 15-unit school load includes mathematics, theology, U.S. history and economics. He also is taking a correspondence course in real estate.

His favorite study method is to have other USD students read his homework aloud, since they can discuss any problems or questions he has.

"I don't like to read braille," he said. Running his hands across the raised dots makes him too nervous, he explained.

Helkenn has six sisters and two brothers. His father is a welder at a steel fabricating plant.

F. David Helkenn Jr. and his guide-dog, Loreen, cross street on campus.

After college Helkenn would like to work with the Peace Corps, or teach. But because of his blindness, he believes the Peace Corps would not accept him.

He does not think of his blindness as a handicap, however, because: "It is little, compared to the big problems in many foreign countries."

Steve Crosby Develops Show Business Talent

By DICK BOWMAN

Steve Crosby, 20, sings like his Uncle Bing, so to avoid sounding like a copy cat he confines his warbling to the shower.

"Otherwise, people would think I was putting them on," says the youngest son of singer and bandleader Bob Crosby. "When I sing, it just comes out that way, naturally. I play the piano, too, but only at home, and I'll never go into the entertainment side of show business. I'd rather stay behind the scenes and run things. That's where the money is."

And that's where Steve Crosby is these days. A junior at the University of San Diego, he sometimes makes up to $1,000 a night as producer of a local rock 'n' roll dance band called Sharon and the Impalas, despite the fact that he personally dislikes R&B.

"I prefer show tunes and popular music," he says candidly.

Young Crosby is a shrewd businessman who saved up enough money to launch the Impalas into the "big time" dance field by working as a teller in a family-owned First National Bank of Holbrook, Arizona.

Last December, Crosby and a fellow USD student, Dick Donoghue, who was a part-time janitor at the university, teamed up to handle the Impalas' business affairs. Donoghue had founded the sextet three years before, but their efforts had been confined to small high school dances and parties.

Each Put Up $1,000 For Dance
"Dick and I put up $1,000 each to rent the Community Concourse's Exhibit Hall and pay for handbills and media advertising to get the kids out. We really put it on the line and if that dance had bombed, we'd have taken a bath. But 3,600 kids showed up — and this was the Monday after Christmas."

an off night. We were on our way."

The Impalas are so hot right now, they are booked up for 27 dances through March of 1968, he said. "They have built up their popularity by playing all over for three years, but it took a big dance to put them over the top. No, they are not capitalizing on the Crosby name. In fact, not one kid at these dances knows there's a Crosby behind it." The next dance is next Saturday at the Exhibit Hall.

One indication of the Impalas' popularity is that 2,500 kids showed up at one of their dances several months ago at Sea World — held outdoors in the fog and rain. That's success.

"The Impalas try to give the impression that they just happened to get together to have a party. They are very informal and their program seems impromptu. You know, the kids somehow prefer this. And they don't like a fancy place with atmosphere. They prefer going to someplace like a barn or a gym, or just a big, bare hall."

Dick and Steve pay cash in advance for everything the band needs — outfits, a hall, advertising, the works. "If anyone loses, it is Dick and I. But then we stand to make a lot, too."

Steve Crosby is a tall, slender young man with blue-green eyes, brown hair worn in a pompadour, and a very casual, relaxed manner. Maybe he gets this from his father, or Bing, with whom he fishes and plays golf ("I'm erratic, shooting scores ranging from 72 to 130. Bing and Dad, are scratch players.")

Family Brings Ambivalent Reactions

Being a Crosby has its advantages and disadvantages, Steve admits. One advantage was it helped him into Gonzaga in Spokane, Wash., Bing's alma mater. "My high school grades were about a D-plus average and frankly, Gonzaga was about the only college that would take me. But I got tired of walking past the Bing Crosby Library and having people ask me if I charged admission."

He transferred to USD two years ago and now has a B-plus average, "which has surprised my father considerably."

Steve said he had his fill of entertaining when he used to sing on the Bob Crosby TV Show on CBS "when I was 8 years old. Later, I decided that to be an entertainer would put me in competition with the rest of the Crosbys. So I'm majoring in history and hope to be a criminal lawyer. However," he blushed, "all I know about it is what I've seen on the Perry-Mason Show."

3 Clergymen at Convocation Agree That God Still Lives

Three clergymen of different faiths, who recently conducted an ecumenical convocation at the College for Men, University of San Diego, agreed that old concepts of God may be dead but that God still lives in the updated, enlightened and vibrant concepts of Him held today.

Discussing the question, "Is God Dead on the College Campus?", the clergymen said the image of God as a vengeful grandfather no longer is acceptable to most believers.

The three were Rabbi Joel Goor of Temple Solel, the Rev. John Huber, pastor of University Lutheran Church in La Jolla and a chaplain at the University Lutheran Church in La Jolla and a chaplain at the University of California at San Diego, and the Rev. John Mort, priest-director of the Catholic Student Center at UCSD.

400 Attended

More than 400 students attended the convocation and participated in a question-and-answer session after the clergymen's presentation of their beliefs.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey introduced the speakers at the meeting in More Hall. He welcomed the convocation as an historic event on the Alcala Park campus.

"Those who say that God is dead do not say they killed Him; they only say that our contemporary society has become godless," Rabbi Goor said.

"In that sense, if God is dead, we have a duty to bring him back to life," the rabbi said, "but in my sense, God lives."

Rev. John Huber said the claim that God is dead is largely a problem of semantics.

New Concept Emerging

"Our terminology must change to meet the times," he added. "A new mental concept of God is emerging."

Father Mort said the question involves a problem of relevancy — "how one relates one's self to God."

"One of the great things given to us by St. Thomas Aquinas is the concept of analogy," the priest said. A false analogy does not change the basic truth from which it was drawn, he added.

"We must bury old images and affirm a more realistic image of God."

The God is dead theory is related to a situation that has existed throughout church history, "and that is the two spheres — the religious sphere and the secular sphere, or the sacred and the profane," Father Mort said.

Trend to Secular

"In medieval times there was a shifting of the two but after the Reformation the shift changed toward the secular sphere," he said.

"We must stop and re-examine our beliefs and find new definitions," he said.

Rabbi Goor rephrased the priest's view: "It is time for

Men's College Will Conduct More Activity

The University of San Diego's College for Men has announced an expanded program of course offerings for the 1967 Summer session.

Thomas R. Pearson, director of student and educational services, said courses will be offered in all divisions of the college and that a major increase in the enrollment of the education department is expected. "The last four years have shown a marked growth in both faculty and courses offered," he said. "Indications are that total enrollment will double what it was last year."

Registration for the second session will be June 15 and 16. First session classes will convene July 19 and end July 28. Registration for the second session will be held on the last day of the first session. The second session will run from July 31 to Aug. 25.

A total of 37 courses in business administration, history, philosophy, political science, English, education, math and economics will be offered. Emphasis will be placed on small classes and a close student-faculty relationship. All classes will be open to men and women.

The maximum course load for each session will be two courses. Housing in the College for Men's student apartments and boarding in the Lark Cafeteria will be provided for the first session only. A fee of $150 will be charged for room and board.

In first coeducational class at University of San Diego, both boys and girls use language lab at College for Women. Program is to be expanded.

All-Girl College Is Not Any More

By NANCY STANFORD

What happens when boys invade an all-girl school?

Nothing. "It didn't even faze them," said Maria Valle, a teacher's assistant who operates the language lab at the University of San Diego for Women, which recently announced plans to hold educational classes with the College for Men.

The lab is the first coed project, but the program will be expanded next year to include about 120 courses that will be open to upperclassmen of both colleges.

Student opinion of the combined classes ranges from some who think it should have started long ago, to others who would rather limit contact with the opposite sex to after-class hours.

"I'm used to girls' schools and prefer them," said sophomore Elizabeth Coleman. "It's probably psychological, but I'm more at a loss when boys are around."

But Sandra Ashcraft, a Kearny High graduate, finds competition beneficial. "It's the only chance you get to be around boys, and I think it's about time the school got around to it. There's more competition against boys. If the boys are smarter, you have to work harder to keep up with them."

Jeff Conine, a freshman from San Francisco, agreed that the new system should prove "very stimulating and competitive." He's withholding final judgment until the system gets into full swing but says now, "I suppose I would prefer it."

Classes that will be offered on a coed basis are those taught as a specialty by one of the schools, but freshmen Harriet Higgins of Arcadia believes the system will give the students more opportunity to shop around for the best teachers.

Freshman Jerry Sochowski of Norfolk, Va., said he is disappointed the program is intended primarily for upperclassmen. Freshmen and sophomores of both schools are using the language lab to supplement their studies, but enrollment in actual classes will be limited.

"It would be good for the university if all classes were together, particularly because students expect more from a university than a college," he said. "But this is at least a start of our ecumenical movement."

Girls and boys go to college for different reasons, though, and the individual students aren't all stoked on the combination classes, he said.

The boys, naturally, believe the College for Men is the better of the two schools. "It's the men's school for studies," said Richard Lavelle of San Francisco. "The women aren't as strict."

But the coed system, Lavelle said, should result in better teaching, and profit the school in public relations.

From a girl's point of view, Miss Valle, a graduate student in French, found the boys "more studious than I thought. And the boys are well behaved. But maybe it's because it's still new."

Miss Valle runs the lab for about 100 girls Monday through Friday and about 70 boys Monday and Wednesday.

"I still can't get used to it, and I thought there would be more reaction from them, too," she said.

USD Men's College To Graduate 75

Seventy-five baccalaureate degrees will be conferred in the 10th annual commencement of the University of San Diego's College for Men at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Honorary degrees will be presented to John V. Naish, former president of General Dynamics-Convair, and Graydon Hoffman, a former senior vice president of the Bank of America.

Naish, who will deliver the commencement address, will receive an honorary doctor of science degree. Hoffman will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Alexander Araiza and Pietro F. Gumina will complete five years of preparation for secondary education teaching credentials.

The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, will preside at ceremonies in the university's outdoor theater. Also participating will be the Marine Corps Recruit Depot Band and the college's glee club.

Commencement will be preceded by a baccalaureate mass at 10 a.m. today in Immaculate Chapel. Participants will include Bishop Furey and the Rev. Joseph N. Stadler, a member of the diocesan school board.

USD Graduates Hear Appeal For Leadership

Picture — Page 8
By HOMER CLANCE
"Never in its long history has the world had such a desperate hunger for decision-making leadership."

This is what John V. Naish, a retired business and civic leader, told 75 graduates of the University of San Diego's College for Men yesterday.

Naish, speaking at the 10th annual commencement ceremonies at the outdoor theatre on the Alcala Park campus, urged the graduating men to take positions of leadership in their fields.

HONORARY DEGREES

Naish, former president of Convair and senior vice president of General Dynamics-Convair until his retirement in 1960, and Graydon Hoffman, retired banker, were presented honorary degrees by the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the Catholic diocese of San Diego, who presided at the ceremonies.

Citations honoring both men were read by the Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, president of the College for Men. Then Bishop Furey presented an honorary doctor of science degree to Naish and an honorary doctor of laws degree to Hoffman.

Naish, the principal speaker, told the graduates that historians will mark this as the "century of achievement."

'DIZZING HEIGHTS'
He said man has reached "dizzing heights in the conquest of his own environment." He cited the increase in living standards, "and medical advances which have doubled life expectancy."

"Man has freed himself of his earth-bound existence, and is exploring beyond the earth and beneath the sea," he said.

"Man now holds in his mortal hands the power to eliminate human poverty," Naish said, quoting the late President Kennedy.

With all these advances, he questioned, "why is the world beset with problems, in desperate need of leadership?"

'GREATER NEED'
"Further problems will create an even greater need for leadership," he continued.

Naish spoke of the angry grumble among nations, and the words of protest from the youth of the world.

Youth is dissatisfied, he told the graduates, because their parents boast of progress in the realm of material things, yet gloss over the great recession in spiritual things.

"They (the parents) pay only perfunctory lip service to the commandment of Love Thy Neighbor," he said.

Naish said the drop in spiritual values is evidenced by the divorce rate, the crime rate, and racial violence. Protests are not local, not national, but world-wide, he added.

"It is ironic," he said, that "there is a grave danger we are hearing the first terrifying notes of another World War where the Prince of Peace clearly enunciated the commandment of brotherly love."

REBELLING YOUTH
He told the graduates that youth is rebelling against "world-wide hypocrisy" which preaches one thing and practices another.

Youth's fight for social justice hopefully will narrow the gap between moral and material values, he added.

'ENJOYING ASSIGNMENT'

S.D. Peace Corps Teacher Describes Life In Tanzania

By DON SEVRENS

What is life like in the Peace Corps?

One Peace Corps volunteer, James Shultz, 21, a 1966 graduate of the University of San Diego College for Men, described his experiences recently in a letter to the Rev. I. Brent Eagan of USD.

Shultz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shultz of 1149 S. Hill St., Fallbrook.

He trained for 13 weeks at Syracuse University, New York, before leaving for Tanzania.

Shultz received instruction in Swahili, Tanzanian history and culture, U.S. history and world affairs.

'OUTSTANDING' STUDENT

At USD, Shultz was named the "Outstanding Graduating Senior" in 1966. He was student body treasurer in his senior year and received a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship nomination in political science.

His letter follows:

"Dear Father,

"I'm teaching at a boarding school about a million miles from nowhere. A couple of weeks ago I took our school troop on a hike up into the surrounding mountains, and sure enough, from a summit we could see the edge of the world about 20 miles distant.

"The nearest city is Arusha, 120 miles away, over eight and one-half hours away by the dirt road."

"Our little school of Mbulu has no electricity, no running water, no telephones, no town has nothing but a couple of general stores, a gas pump and a post office."

"In spite of the isolation, I'm enjoying my assignment. The little village of Mbulu is three miles from our school, and in walking to town once a week I meet some pretty interesting people.

DESCRIBES PEOPLE
"The indigenous people are Wadragui. They migrated from Somalia a few hundred years ago and they speak a click language. Swahili is seldom used except in school, but as it is now the official language of the country, the students must learn to speak it. Few of them speak Swahili any better than myself.

"The Ministry of Education has made mincemeat of our teaching schedule. In this term they have initiated four major changes in the program."

"At present I'm teaching two classes of English, six classes of physical education, nine classes of general science, three classes of agricultural techniques and four classes of geography. I'm also scoutmaster of our scout troop and I've been organizing all-day hikes once a month and campsouts every other weekend.

"As I'm teaching agriculture, I'm also in charge of the school farm, an 80-acre tract that has not been farmed since the British left in 1961. So far, we've cleared and planted two acres of cabbage and built a 50-foot-by-50-foot fishpond."

WOMEN WORK
"In the tribal society, the men disdain any physical work, leaving that to the women. The young boys herd the cattle and the men sleep and drink beer all day. Every time I go to town I see several men passed out on the side of the road from drinking too much beer.

"The most interesting aspect of their culture is their attitude concerning death and puberty. A person never dies from natural causes; evil spirits have entered his body. Thus, when a person dies, his corpse is left where it is found and nobody dares to touch it or bury it. If a man dies in a house, everything except the body is moved out and the house is abandoned.

"When a very old person becomes ill, he is carried to the forest and left to die.

"When a girl reaches puberty, she is said to be polluted and for two years she is locked up in a separate room and food is pushed under the door. After two years of this, her body has cleansed itself and she is allowed to become a part of her society once more.

"They keep cattle for status and for bride price, but they do not kill or eat a cow. The condition of their cattle matters not at all, just as long as the cow can walk. They practice no management, and as a result, the cattle are literally 300-pound bags of bones."

NOT ENOUGH RANGE

"Each 'farmer' keeps 30 to 50 cattle, and as there are no fences, the entire countryside is open range. This area does not have sufficient rain or feed for the large number of grazing animals, and the result is erosion on every hill."

"The worst is that the schools here are orientated toward liberal arts in a country that desperately needs farmers, mechanics, carpenters, masons and engineers."

"Our school is run for the benefit of the five per cent who will go to secondary schools. The government is beginning to realize the importance of basic nation-building skills and that is why they have introduced woodshop and agriculture to our curriculum."

"The picture is not all gloom, however. The people are gregarious, once they overcome their shyness toward an outsider. Many of the students are acutely aware of the limitations of their tribal society and they are eager to learn."

"It's amusing to see the things they adopt and adapt from Western culture. Elvis Presley, Rick Nelson and Jim Reeves are very popular and Radio Tanzania plays their songs everyday."

"The people idolize cowboys and are fascinated with 'showdowns'. Once a month, a government sound truck comes around to show a movie at the soccer field. John Wayne and Audie Murphy walk away with top honors, followed by Randolph Scott."

"Mbulu is a great place to be to see the struggle of a tribal society toward the 20th Century."

College For Men President Chosen

The Very Rev. John E. Baer, 37, yesterday was named president of the College for Men of the University of San Diego by the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the San Diego Catholic diocese and chancellor of the university.

Father Baer, the college's fourth president, succeeds the Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, president since 1961, who resigned because of ill health.

Appointment of Father Baer was announced at a reception at the college attended by several hundred persons.

The reception, said Bishop Furey in a statement, was "another opportunity" to restate the philosophy of USD — "that the sacred and the secular are intermingled in every life, and that a study of one without the other would lead to a distorted understanding of reality."

He reiterated that USD "is a community undertaking for men and women of all faiths."

"Father Baer," the bishop added, "brings to his new assignment youthful enthusiasm tempered by mature judgment and profound scholarship."

Father Baer, a native of Streator, Ill., was educated in Elsinore, attended San Diego State, and studied for the priesthood at St. Francis College, then in El Cajon, and at the North American College and Gregorian University in Rome, where he took a doctorate. His dissertation was on "Fundamentalism in American Protestantism."

Ordained in 1956, he served as an assistant pastor and taught high school in San Bernardino. He was the first principal of Marian High School in Imperial Beach, and later became president of St. Francis College, now part of the School of Theology on the Alcala Park campus.

It is from this post that he moves to the College for Men, which will have an enrollment of 500 in September.

Bishop Welcomes New College President

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the Catholic diocese of San Diego and chancellor of the University of San Diego, spoke at a reception last weekend honoring past presidents of the College for Men and the new president, Very Rev. John E. Baer.

Bishop Furey made the following announcement: During the tenth commencement exercises of the College for Men, I took the liberty of restating the philosophy of our church-related institution. We believe that the "sacred" and the "secular" are intermingled in every life and that a study of one without the other would lead to a distorted understanding of reality. I also made it clear that our University is a Community undertaking, that it is for men and women of all faiths.

Today's reception gives me another opportunity to express these thoughts and at the same time to thank Father Wilson, Monsignor Storm and Father Cadden for their devoted contribution to the development of the College for Men.

In the name of the Board of Trustees, the Faculty, Alumni and Student Body I extend a warm welcome to the fourth President of the College, Father Baer. Father Baer brings to his new assignment an abundance of youthful enthusiasm, tempered by mature judgment and profound scholarship.

Banner Years As Bishop of San Diego and chancellor of the University I predict many banner years for the College for Men under the inspiring leadership and able guidance of Father Baer.

Catholic Alumni Club Is Told Of New Trends in Ecumenism

Estes Park, Colo. — The next phase of the ecumenical movement will be "from the church to the world... toward the work that we face together," Protestant theologian Robert McAfee Brown told the National Association of Catholic Alumni clubs here (Aug. 17).

Dr. Brown, professor of theology at Stanford University in California, also told the 600 delegates this phase may test ecumenism "before we are quite ready to cope with it," in the challenge of Vietnam.

He said his prediction of a new emphasis on common action or "secular ecumenism" does not mean a lessening of concern for common dialogue and common worship.

"But what I think will happen is that our attention will be turned more and more away from ourselves," he added.

DR. BROWN'S remarks were contained in one of three major discussion papers read at the convention. Others were submitted by Sister Mary William, I.M.H., president of Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles, and Archbishop Rembert Weakland, O.S.B., of St. Vincent's Archabbey in Latrobe, Pa.

Dr. Brown, an outspoken critic of the U.S. military effort in Vietnam, said he felt that "real test of secular ecumenism" is already present in the Vietnam situation. "We have got to explore our similarities and differences on this matter together. We must make common cause together across confessional boundaries and must not wait for a convenient time to do so," he said.

Sister Mary William told the delegates the future of Catholic higher education "is very much under a cloud. It is faced with the old military choice: up or out."

"I would venture to say that the official church will lose influence if not power, to a rapidly increasing degree if it does not find some way soon of reconciling its own legitimate stabilizing and conservative interests with the critical and progressive interests of the Catholic academic community."

Archabbot Weakland discussed the liturgical movement and said renewal stands "at a confused crossroads." He said the problem involved the need to relate the liturgy to modern culture.

RAY LANG OF Chicago was elected president of the Association. Other new officers are John Fagan of Cleveland, men's vice president; Carol Hammond of Baltimore, women's vice president; and Sue Dunne of San Diego, treasurer.

The 1968 convention will be held in Honolulu.

Bishop Furey Honors New Men's College

KEARNY MESA—The Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego and chancellor of the University of San Diego, spoke at a reception recently honoring past presidents of the College for Men and the new president, the Very Rev. John E. Baer.

Bishop Furey said "During the 10th commencement exercises of the College for Men, I took the liberty of restating the philosophy of our church-related institution. We believe that the sacred and the secular are intermingled in every life and that a study of one without the other would lead to a distorted understanding of reality. I also made it clear that our university is a community undertaking, that it is for men and women of all faiths."

"Today's reception gives me another opportunity to express these thoughts and at the same time to thank Father Wilson, Msgr. Storm and Father Cadden for their devoted contribution to the development of the College for Men."

Several hundred honored guests, friends and faculty of the University of San Diego's College for Men, College for Women, School of Law and School of Theology attended the reception. Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Storm, first president of the College for Men and now pastor of All Hallows Church in La Jolla, was out of town and unable to attend. Very Rev. Russell Wilson, second president, and Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, third president, were also honored.

Skills Go Up Support Down

John Cunningham, baseball coach at the University of San Diego said "Although I personally have never been directly involved in the Little League program I have come to several conclusions concerning its operation."

"I feel the people in charge have done a tremendous job of selling their program to starts with the best of everything, financially speaking, (which is a compliment to the program) and proceeds to less lucrative programs.

"As his skills and interest increase his financial support decreases. I think this is backwards. Recognizing that there is only so much money to be given the various programs I feel the older kids—those 15-20 year olds who, because of their age and experience, really appreciate and are interested in the game of baseball, would benefit more than do the Little Leaguers from the generosity of well-intentioned donors."

"I would not like to see the abolition of the Little League program but I am definitely in favor of shifting the emphasis of financial support to the upper age groups. This can only be done by securing the parental and commercial interest now given to the Little League program."

the general public and, in the process, have generated substantial financial support, as witnessed by the equipment and playing facilities provided for the players.

"If this was the only form of organized youth baseball I could justify the amount of money being spent. Since this is not the case, however, I feel the money would be better spent if some of it could be channeled into other programs such as the Colt League, American Legion or the collegians, where it is badly needed."

"For the past two summers I have coached the 17-20 age groups in organized competition but have been unable to find adequate sponsorship on this level. Invariably, the answer is always given by merchants and establishments that they are already sponsoring Little League teams and cannot give more. Fair enough."

"Parental interest and enthusiasm is probably the dominant factor in Little League success but I wonder if the Little Leaguers themselves can really appreciate what is being done for them. May it not even be hurting them in the long run?"

"As things now stand the further a kid advances in the various youth programs the less outside support he receives. In other words, he starts with the best of everything, financially speaking, (which is a compliment to the program) and proceeds to less lucrative programs.

Both Camps See Ill In The Bill

By D. D. MILLER

Legislators in Sacramento heaved a sigh of relief recently when a bill liberalizing the state's century-old abortion law finally cleared the Assembly and was signed into law by Governor Reagan.

On one side, there are citizens who are against abortion under any conditions. Opposing them are organizations who are against any restrictions on abortion and who believe the matter should be left to individual choice.

Abortion Is Private Matter

The ink had hardly dried on the recently-enacted abortion bill, sponsored by Democratic Senator Anthony Beilenson and Republican Assemblyman Craig Biddle, before both anti- and pro-abortionists were labeling it a bad compromise.

Two statewide groups, the Society for Humane Abortion, and the California Committee to Legalize Abortion, intend to launch an attack on abortion control laws next year through the initiative and referendum process.

Mrs. Cynthia Matthews, of La Jolla, a member of both organizations, said petitions will be circulated starting in January to gather the signatures of 300,000 registered voters to place a measure on the ballot in the state's 1968 elections that would repeal all of California's abortion laws.

"The matter of an abortion should be between the individual patient and her doctor," Mrs. Matthews said.

"The Beilenson-Biddle bill will affect only a very small percentage of the illegal abortions performed in California every year. Beilenson himself said that with a clause permitting abortion in cases where there is a possibility of a deformed baby being born, the bill would affect only two to five percent of the abortions performed in the state. With that clause removed, the percentage is even lower."

Public Has Misconception

"Studies show that 60 to 70 per cent of the women who get abortions are older, married women who already have children. These are women, who for one reason or another, just do not want another child. The present bill will not eliminate these illegal abortions."

Mrs. Matthews said the general public has a misconception that the majority of abortions are performed on promiscuous, single young women and teenage girls.

The organizations seeking voter repeal of all anti-abortion laws will circulate petitions for a proposed ballot measure without paid help, Mrs. Matthews said, but expects to gather the necessary signatures.

Similar moves are now being organized by those who oppose abortion. Although local legislators received many letters threatening retaliation at the polls if they voted for the Beilenson-Biddle bill, no organized drive has started to recall or defeat any of the office holders on this ground.

One of the most active organizations to oppose the new abortion bill is the Right to Life Committee, affiliated with the statewide Right to Life League.

The Rev. William Shipley, a Catholic priest on the staff at the University of San Diego, serves on the Right to Life Committee.

"Although the Beilenson bill is a poor piece of legislation, we have no intention of conducting a referendum against it or the legislators who voted for it," Rev. Shipley said.

"The issue is too emotional and would cost too much in good will. A referendum against the abortion bill also would not be practical since polls actually show that a majority of the voters favor an abortion law with such limited provisions."

Husband Need Not Be Told

Rev. Shipley said, however, that "polls also show that voters do not favor unlimited abortion, indicating a measure to repeal abortion laws will face a tough campaign."

The abortion bill signed by Governor Reagan was criticized by Rev. Shipley on several counts. He said it is not based on sound research.

"The provisions permitting abortion for statutory rape involving girls 14 and younger is not consistent with state laws on statutory rape which set a different age," he said.

"The bill also has a mental health provision which would eventually lead to an abortion on demand. Mental health has been defined to involve total mental and physical well-being."

"A husband's permission also is not necessary for a wife to get an abortion, even though he may want to have a child. Doctors are not required to notify the parents of minor girls who seek an abortion."

"The bill raises several legal questions as well as moral."

Although Rev. Shipley said he doubts that organized campaigns will be conducted against lawmakers who voted for the recent abortion bill, he conceded that some voters undoubtedly will remember how their local office holders voted.

Regardless of whether voters seek retaliation against legislators, if petitioners seeking repeal of abortion are successful the matter will be a campaign issue next year.

Co-ordinated courses between the College for Women and the College for Men provide the advantages of co-education. Separate student governments and faculties afford development and training unique to men and to women.

The College for Men is one of 12 diocesan colleges and universities in the nation.

The College for Women is part of the world-wide educational system of the Society of the Sacred Heart.

The School of Law is co-educational and staffed by full-time law professors and practicing attorneys and judges. There is a full-time day division (3-year program) and a part-time evening division (4-year program) leading to a Juris Doctor degree.

Trip Made For Study Of Yearbook

Joining forces this year for the production of one university yearbook, College for Men and College for Women staff members drove to Visalia, Saturday, October 28. Visalia was chosen by the American Yearbook Company for its western headquarters. Here the USD staff hoped to learn more about yearbook production.

From noon to 4 p.m. the five students, led by editors Dennis Vice, a CM graduate student, and Nancy Jane Sample, a CW senior, gathered information on production details. Also making the 350 mile trip were Pat Monte and Pat Bassett of the women's college and Rick Callahan and Pat McCartney from the College for Men.

The party decided to stay overnight in Los Angeles, at the home of Pat Bassett. They toured the San Fernando Mission, observed the "wild-life" on Sunset Blvd., and went sight-seeing through Bel-Air, UCLA, and the beach towns. On the way back, they stopped at Disneyland. That evening they returned, full of ideas for a promising yearbook.

The Toreros will play basketball this season on a brand new floor. Work has just been completed on the $4,500 project, enabling the team to start practice this week.

The Associated Student Body is sponsoring an old-fashioned hay ride tomorrow night. Although the time and place of departure are not set, interested students are urged to call the student body office and join the fun.

Father George Hardy, the university's new chaplain, says Mass every day at noon in the Immaculate. Students are encouraged to attend and sing along. It's a folk mass, and the "participation is enriching."

A note on Father Hardy: The new chaplain is a surfer and is trying to form a USD guitar as well as being skilled in basketball. Father Hardy played for a first USD basketball team.

Students at the College for Women will honor the president of the college, Mother Nancy Morris, this Friday, October 20, when they will gather for a student-sung Mass in Immaculate Church at 11:30 a.m. The music for the ceremony has been composed by faculty and students of the College for Women. ## Yarbrough Show Slated On Campus

As part of a planned entertainment program, the Associated Students of the University of San Diego will present The Glenn Yarbrough Show at 8 p.m. Saturday, November 11, at the main gymnasium on campus.

Glenn Yarbrough, formerly of the Limeliters, has performed before capacity crowds on college campuses throughout the country. He is probably best remembered for his biggest pop hit, "Baby the Rain Must Fall," which rose to the top of national record surveys.

Of his last performance here, J. D. Lily of the San Diego Evening Tribune said, "To say his music 'gets to you' is a pitiful understatement. Two spontaneous standing ovations attested to this."

Describing his voice, Lily said, "His voice is so uniquely tender. It almost hurts to hear him sing anything but a soft, blue, funny, bouncy and painful kind of poetry that, at the same time, makes your feet stamp and turns your emotions inside out."

Not a Folk Singer
Glenn doesn't like to be branded as a folk singer. "I just try to do good songs. I don't care where they came from. The melody isn't important. It's got to be so good that it stays in the background. What is important is the words. It's like singing poetry."

Appearing with Yarbrough on the two-hour show will be The Fred Ramirez Trio. The group, which travels with Glenn on his concert tours, plays a variety of music and will share the first half of the show with the musical comedy team of Maffitt and Davis.

Special lighting, a concert sound system, and seating will be installed in the gymnasium for the show.

The concert is being produced by the James C. Pagni Company of San Diego as a service to the Associated Students. For further information, call John Bradley, 291-070.

AT UNIVERSITY OF SAN DIEGO

Graduate Studies Are Being Extended

Student population is bringing widespread changes in the University of San Diego's graduate school curriculum.

Formerly a small group, the graduate students' number has now grown to the point where expansion is required. Along with expansion will come changes guaranteed to alter the nature of the classes offered.

A Master of Arts program will be one of the first results of the new expansion. The graduate program had been limited to a teachers program.

Dr. John F. McGeever, chairman of the Teacher Education program, commented, "We have hopes for an M.A. program in the future because the student demand is so heavy."

The expansion of the graduate division will be required because of marked increase in enrollment of students in the College for Men Education Department.

The increase is credited to extensive recruiting efforts, improvement in faculty and larger course offerings, raising the total enrollment from 26 to 80 students.

The Master of Arts in Teaching degree is granted in English, history, biology, economics, interdepartmental social sciences, psychology, and political science.

The future expansion of the Masters program will allow a broader curriculum.

McGeever also noted plans for expansion of the Education Department's summer program, as part of a further improvement of the department.

"We are considering expansion into two sessions to accommodate people now in the teaching field in parochial schools, and those seeking their teaching credential."

One Year's Time

"A teacher could conceivably begin working towards a teaching credential in the Summer of 1968 and finish in the Summer of 1969," he continued.

The department offers instruction leading to a California state teaching credential and a Master of Arts in Teaching degree. The credential is granted after the successful completion of 30 additional units beyond the undergraduate bachelor's degree.

The M.A.T. requires the completion of 30 additional units after fulfilling the requirements for the teaching credential.

IN THE CLUB WORLD

15 Women Of Valor Are Honored At Luncheon

By ELAINE HUBBARD

A revision to the adage that "woman's place is in the home" was made yesterday during the 10th annual "Women of Valor" awards presented by Temple Beth Israel Sisterhood. It should now read "in the home and in the community."

The enormous impact by San Diego area women on almost every aspect of community life was symbolized by the specific deeds of 15 women honored at the luncheon at El Cotez Hotel. A tragic note was added this year to the awards presentations in a verbal and silent tribute to one of this year's women — the late Mrs. Theodore Geisel who died last month in her La Jolla home. Mrs. David Garfield, a past Woman of Valor and this year's awards commentator, paid a posthumous tribute to Mrs. Geisel for her outstanding contributions to the field of education and "for creating a literary world in which we have all spent many happy hours."

An estimated 600 women and men attended the luncheon which included a listing of each woman's contributions to San Diego and its residents, presentation of the traditional bouquet of red carnations by Rabbi Joel Goor, spiritual leader of Temple Beth Israel, a personal tribute by Mayor Frank Curran, and presentation of Woman of Valor

There will be no admittance charge for any university student. The public is invited.

On November 26, an "Inter-racial Dialogue" will be held at the College for Women. Participants include students and members of the university faculties, as well as those from other local campuses. Community groups, such as the Citizen's Interracial Committee, will form the nucleus of the discussion, under the general chairmanship of Mother Irene Lawrence, Sociology Department head.

"The Little Foxes" by Lillian Hellman and the annual boat dance will fill this weekend. The play at the College for Women theater will be staged at 8 p.m. November 17 and November 18. Children from Project Uplift will be taken to the performance.

Glenn Yarbrough generated so much enthusiasm around town last week that the USD student body had to schedule a 10:30 p.m. show last Saturday after the first show was sold out.

Approximately 2,500 people packed the gymnasium for an early show and responded loudly to Yarbrough's relaxed show of popular music. More than 1,000 people attended the later show, the last on Yarbrough's tour.

At the request of Thomas R. Pearson, director of Student and Educational Services, the college has granted him a one-year leave of absence, effective January 31, 1968, to pursue further studies.

The Political Science department will present the following speakers on campus during November. Today, Consul Moshe Yegar of Israel will address the political science majors at noon. On November 28, Mark Mann will be the guest at the 8:30 class on governments of the Near and Middle East, and Basil Khalife will present the Arab viewpoint at the same class on November 30.

Dale Burton, a sophomore English major at the college, is playing one of the lead roles in the current Actor's Quarter Theater production "Of Mice and Men." Burton is a graduate of University High and received the Best Actor award in 1965 and the Aquinas Poetry Award in 1966.

USD Student Wins Award

Richard Maxwell, a junior at the University of San Diego, was awarded a $75 scholarship yesterday by the San Diego Public Relations Club.

The club awards a scholarship each year to a junior or senior student at one of the local four-year colleges who shows an interest in public relations and maintains above average grades. The scholarship is intended to encourage students to consider public relations as a possible professional goal.

Maxwell, a business administration major, lives at 1129 Fresno St.

U.S. Policy In Viet Hit

The United States' involvement in Vietnam is comparable to Nazi and Japanese aggression in the 1930s and 40s, Ralph Schoenman, personal secretary to Philosopher Bertrand Russell, said here yesterday.

"The war in Vietnam is a colonial effort in which an industrial power is trying to crush a national liberation movement," said Schoenman.

Schoenman, who spoke twice at the University of San Diego and is due back on campus at 10 a.m. today, claimed America is interested in Vietnam's natural resources and not its national welfare.

Schoenman's appearance at USD was sponsored by the San Diego Intercollegiate Speakers' Council. He will return to the campus in the College for Men's Lark Cafeteria. At noon he is scheduled to address a Students for Responsible Freedom Rally in front of the College for Men. Schoenman spoke Wednesday night at California Western University.

Auxiliary Bishop Named

Pope Picks Father Quinn To Assist Furey

By BEVERLY BEYETTE

The Very Rev. John R. Quinn, 38, rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary, Alcala Park, yesterday was named a bishop by Pope Paul VI and appointed auxiliary bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego.

He will serve as right-hand man to the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of San Diego.

Bishop-elect Quinn is the first "native son" to be named a bishop of the diocese (he was born in Riverside, which is in the San Diego diocese) and, according to Bishop Furey, is one of the youngest, possibly the youngest, bishop in the United States.

The announcement was made by the Pope yesterday morning in Rome — and by Bishop Furey at breakfast in the dining room of Immaculate Heart Seminary, where young seminarians responded with a 10-minute ovation for Father Quinn.

Bishop Furey Makes Presentation

Bishop Furey then presented to the bishop-elect the small fascia skullcap worn by bishops (the zucchetto) and a gold, amethyst and pearl cross that had belonged to the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, former diocesan bishop, who died in 1966.

The bishop-elect will be the second auxiliary bishop to serve the San Diego Diocese, which takes in San Diego, Riverside, San Bernardino and Imperial Counties and serves 400,000 communicants. There are 330 priests in the diocese.

The Most Rev. Richard H. Ackerman, now bishop of Covington, Ky., served here as auxiliary bishop to Bishop Buddy from 1956 to 1960. There has been no auxiliary bishop since.

Bishop Furey said appointment of auxiliary bishops is based largely on the size of the diocese and the number of Catholic institutions within the diocese. The San Diego diocese is the second largest in California, second to that of Sacramento.

No date has been set for Bishop-elect Quinn's consecration. Bishop Furey said it will take place in St. Joseph's Cathedral and that the chief consecrator will be Archbishop Luigi Raimondi, apostolic delegate to the United States.

Other California Bishops Named

Noting that the Pope yesterday also named The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph Hurley as auxiliary to San Francisco Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken, Bishop Furey added, "We're hoping he will be consecrated before Bishop Hurley."

In addition to naming the two auxiliary bishops for California dioceses, the Pope also accepted the resignation of Most Rev. Aloysius Joseph Willinger, 61, as bishop of Monterey and Fresno and split that diocese.

With the split, the Most Rev. Timothy Manning, now an auxiliary bishop in Los Angeles, was made bishop of the Fresno diocese and the Most Rev. Harry Anselm Clinch, now Bishop-elect John R. Quinn, right, is shown yesterday with the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of San Diego, after Father Quinn's appointment as auxiliary bishop of the San Diego Diocese.

An auxiliary to Bishop Willinger, was made bishop of Monterey.

As auxiliary bishop, Bishop Furey explained, Bishop-elect Quinn's duties will include presiding at confirmations and graduations.

Bishop Furey made him a vicar general, which gives him authority to grant most of the permissions granted by the bishop.

He will remain indefinitely in his present post as rector of

University Activities Revealed

November is a month of assorted collegiate activities for students at San Diego College for Women, according to a school spokesman.

Preparations are underway for a student government workshop to be held on the campus, Nov. 10-12, for student body officers of six Catholic women's colleges in California.

Connie Salovitch, Associated Student Body president, and originator of the workshop, reports enthusiastic response from the participating colleges.

Students will welcome San Diego high school seniors to College Day, Nov. 16. Visitors will attend college classes and discuss extracurricular activities.

Moira Lees, who initiated a student-help program for deaf children last year, announced that a religious instruction course for deaf youngsters will begin Nov. 11 and continue each Saturday from 10-11 p.m.

The USD students' Community Service Program, Project Uplift, plans to bring 20 Negro students from Lincoln High School to the Alcala Park Players production of "The Little Foxes" Nov. 17. Students and faculty are attempting to provide a pre-play meeting that would enable the visiting students to discuss the play and meet the actors.

Poli-Sci Prof Returns From Eastern Meet

Dr. D. H. Reed, associate professor of political science at the University of San Diego, has attended a meeting of the Joint Committee of the American Legion and the National Education Association in Boston, Mass.

The meeting was held in conjunction with the National Convention of the American Legion.

The members of the joint committee, which has been in existence since 1921, meet twice a year for the purpose of interpreting, promoting and coordinating mutual programs and objectives of the National Education Association and the American Legion.

Principal areas of interest considered on the agenda were an evaluation of the progress being made in teaching about Communism in the junior and senior high schools throughout the United States; American Education Week, adult education, school dropouts, and a review of financial resources now available to assist students to further their education beyond high school.

NAMED BY POPE

S.D. Auxiliary Bishop Named

Immaculate Heart Seminary. As auxiliary bishop, he will also have the title, "Titular Bishop of Thiduo."

Bishop Furey, obviously pleased with Father Quinn's selection, hailed it as keeping with the trend in the church to have as leaders "young people hep to what's going on — with it."

He added that the young bishop-elect "represents the modern trend. He's not a dyed-in-the-wool traditionalist. I'm not a dyed-in-the-wool traditionalist, either."

And it was with notable pride that Bishop Furey pointed out that the bishop-elect will be the first alumnus of a local seminary, St. Francis College and Immaculate Heart Seminary of El Cajon, to be named a bishop of the San Diego diocese.

Bishop-elect Quinn said he rejects the idea of labeling Catholics by their brands of Catholicism, but advocates "bringing the church up to date in keeping with the times."

He said, "I don't consider myself avant garde — and I wouldn't like to consider myself behind garde." He sees his appointment as a reflection of the trend in the church to "make way for younger men, men more equal to the demands."

Bishop-elect Quinn said he "wholeheartedly and enthusiastically supports" the policies set down at the Ecumenical Council. These policies included streamlining of worship services, decentralization of church power and a new spirit of cooperation with other religions.

On the currently controversial question of lifting of celibacy bans for priests, Bishop-elect Quinn said, "I feel the Pope has settled the question by his recent encyclical. I wholeheartedly agree."

Most Time In Education

Like his bishop, Father Quinn has spent much of his time as an educator since he was ordained in Rome in 1953. He was professor of dogmatic theology at Immaculate Heart Seminary College Seminary. He was named rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary in 1964.

(Bishop Furey was president of Immaculate College of Philadelphia from 1936 to 1946 and later became rector of his alma mater, St. Charles Borromeo Seminary of Philadelphia.) Father Quinn completed his philosophical and theological studies at the North American College and Gregorian University in Rome. His widowed mother, Mrs. Ralph J. Quinn, lives in La Mesa.

Bishop Furey would not speculate on whether Father Quinn is being groomed as a future Bishop of San Diego. "Only the Pope can say," he said, but he added that there is a trend to place a bishop with several years' experience in the top spot of a diocese. (Bishop Furey was auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia before coming here.)

Father Quinn had kept his appointment a well-guarded secret for two weeks. He received the news in a letter from the apostolic delegate.

One of the bishop-elect's seminarians said Father Quinn told the seminarians he had been so nervous since he "couldn't eat, sleep or even pray."

Father Quinn, asked if this were true, grinned and said, "Don't quote me."

A Big Sense Of Humor

The bishop-elect is a small, slight man with brush-cut salt-and-pepper hair, brown eyes and a big sense of humor.

One of the seminarians summed him up this way: "He's not very big, but, when he walks up to you, you think he's 10 feet tall."

As Bishop Furey and his new auxiliary met the press yesterday in the lobby of the seminary at Alcala Park, a group of young seminarians clustered around to wish Father Quinn well.

One, a deacon named Robert Buchanan, seemed to sum up their feelings about Father Quinn, calling him "the greatest — forward looking, a very holy man, conscientious and understanding. He goes to the people. He isn't sitting in an office by himself."

Another said Father Quinn has "the closest thing to universal appeal that can be expected of a human being."

Then a third-year theology student named Don Kimball spoke up.

He wanted to tell about the seminary's baseball game recently against the team from St. John's seminary in Los Angeles.

"Would you believe it? Father Quinn got a triple! Of course, we had to help him around the bases . . ."

USD Fraternities In Friendly Tussle

Greek Week at University of San Diego winds up with tug-of-war championship, pitting members of

Alpha Gamma Delta, top, against Tau Kappa Epsilon. AGD too

USD Group To Advise S.D. Bishop

A new University of San Diego Executive Committee has been organized by the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego.

The group will advise the bishop on operation of the university.

At its first meeting, the committee decided all colleges on the campus would hold a single joint graduation ceremony June 1.

Committee members are the Very Rev. Mother Frances Danz, superior of the College for Women; Mother Nancy Morris, president of the college; the Very Rev. John E. Baer, president of the College for Men; the Very Rev. John R. Quinn, rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary; and Joseph A. Sinclitt, dean of the School of Law.

Greek Week Staged On Alcala Campus

University of San Diego "Greek Week" extends through this Saturday, November 19.

"Greek Week," which is the annual inter-fraternity week of competition, is sponsored by three national fraternities at USD, Alpha Delta Gamma, Tau Kappa Epsilon, and Phi Kappa Theta.

Jim Wilke is president of the Interfraternity Council and fraternity presidents are Bob Brower, Phi Kappa Theta;

Steve Jacobacci, Tau Kappa Epsilon, and Bill Gore, Alpha Delta Gamma.

During the week, fraternities are meeting in basketball, volleyball, and football competition to determine winners in each sport.

Each fraternity presented a Greek skit in the College for Women Theater last night.

The Greek lettermen will hold their traditional chariot races and tug-of-war at 1 p.m. Saturday in USD's stadium on Linda Vista Road.

A boat dance, which will be held Saturday night on San Diego Bay, will climax the week.

CONVENTION ART—The Rev. Michael Alcazar, member of the planning commission of the Alcala Park liturgical convention, shows paintings and chalices to the Most Rev.

Francis J. Furey, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese. Art works will be used in demonstrations of how various arts can best be used to serve the liturgy.

S.D. Catholics Plan Liturgical Parley

A four-day liturgical convention of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego will begin Thursday at 9 a.m. at the Immaculate Heart Seminary, Alcala Park.

"Liturgy — the Art of Worship" will be the theme of the convention, which will feature major speakers, conferences, panels, and demonstrations of the arts and how they can serve the liturgy. Art, music, sculpture, literature, architecture and stained glass windows will be used in the demonstrations.

Five architectural firms have submitted photographs, plans and models of 20 local churches which will be displayed. Among the churches to be studied will be First Lutheran Church of Vista; the Convent Chapel of the Sacred Heart, El Cajon; University City United Church of Christ; St. Catharine Labouré Catholic Church; Mt. Soledad Presbyterian Church; and the national award-winning St. Leo's Catholic Church in Solana Beach.

Effort Is Explained

According to the Rev. Charles Dollen, pastor of St. Louise Catholic Church, Crest, the convention will be a major effort to explain and demonstrate the reform and renewal initiated by Vatican II and apply it at the parish level.

Among guest speakers will be Dr. C. Alexander Pelouquin, a member of the faculty of music of Boston College and director of music for the Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul in Providence, R.I.

Dr. Pelouquin will conduct the liturgical music workshop, give a talk on "Music For Those Who Don't Like Music," and rehearse a choir to present his "Mass of Joy" on the final day of the convention.

Paper to Be Read

Also scheduled to speak are the Rev. Warren Rouse, O.F.M., and of the San Luis Rey Mission; Lou N. Bollen, president of a Dutch ecclesiastical art firm, who will read a paper on the remodeling of churches in view of the liturgical changes enacted by Vatican II.

In addition to an original stained-glass window created for the convention, there also will be a display or works by Dutch, Belgian and American artists.

The main foyer at Immaculate Heart Seminary will be turned into a model sanctuary for the convention. The floor will be covered with Norman bricks embedded in sand, and art panels, measuring 4-by-8 feet, in coral, white and brown, will divide this area from the rest of the foyer.

Suggestions Are Followed
In addition, there will be an altar designed to conform with the liturgical suggestions made by the Vatican Council.

The convention will be open to all denominations. Its first two days will have special appeal for priests and ministers, the last two for religious and laity.

In conjunction with the convention, the University of San Diego will host a one-day interreligious conference on Thursday. It will deal with religious teaching materials, according to the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese and chancellor of the university.

Sponsors Are Told
The conference will be jointly sponsored by the San Diego office of the National Conference of Christians and Jews and the San Diego chapter of the American Jewish Committee, in cooperation with the San Diego Bureau of Jewish Education, Catholic Diocese of San Diego and San Diego County Council of Churches.

Purpose of the conference, according to Bishop Furey, is to provide an opportunity for clergy, religious educators and lay people of various faiths to meet and discuss the materials being used in their religious schools.

It will focus on three studies sponsored by the American Jewish Committee, which investigated the nature of prejudice found in religious schools with a view toward eventually eliminating negative references about other religious groups.

Dr. William Rusk, president of United States International University, will be the conference chairman.

Department chairman and coordinator of the dialogue, Mother Lawrence explained that the group will really be discussing "inter-ethnic" problems.

Panel members, group leaders, and others who attend will meet for a general discussion in the College for Women lounge at 2 p.m. The program will begin with a panel discussion, three "dialogues" among panelists.

The first will be "Mexican-American Family Life" with Fred J. Closson, assistant professor of sociology at the Women's College and San Diego State, and Israel Cosco, director of the Anti-Poverty Project at Otay.

"Negro-American Family Life" will be discussed by Dr. William Lee, professor of Social Work at San Diego State, and Carroll Waymon, director of the Citizens Inter-racial Committee.

Rabbi Joel S. Goor of Temple Beth Israel and Yehiel Schwartz, assistant professor of sociology at the women's college, will talk on "Jewish-American Family Life."

The other participants, who will include the general public, Mother Lawrence hopes, as well as college students, will be divided into several small groups. Dialogue facilitators for these groups will be Cmdr. Dan Child, Dr. Dan Brown, Edgar Hays, Mrs. Esther Walker, Ruben Dominguez, Bill Saleceby.

Students participating as recorders will include Miss Laurel Pugh, Mrs. Frances Slavey, Miss Dorothy Tibus, Mrs. Florence Downs, Miss Arleen Wagner and Miss Margaret Albright.

On December 1 the College for Women and College for Men chemistry departments will sponsor their second lecture. The speaker will be from San Diego State College.

Richard Carter of the San Diego Ballet Company will give a lecture demonstration in the College for Women theater at 8 p.m. December 4.

The Political Science Department will host the Southern California Political Science Association at a dinner on December 1. ## Spellman Reaffirms GI Support in Viet

By MIKE RICHMOND

EVENING TRIBUNE Staff Writer

Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of New York and military vicar of the U.S. Armed Forces, reaffirmed his support here yesterday of American fighting men in Vietnam.

The prelate, who has visited American servicemen in trouble spots around the world each Christmas, addressed the annual convention banquet of the Military Order of World Wars. About 400 delegates and their wives attended.

He received the organization's Distinguished Service Award. Then, the 78-year-old cardinal pledged to continue serving and supporting American servicemen "as long as life remains within me."

Cardinal Spellman, who has served as military vicar to the Armed Forces since 1939, has spoken out fearlessly in support of the war in Vietnam in the past.

Hails GI Dedication
At last night's banquet, he said: "My relationship with members of the Armed Forces has been that of any parish priest to his people."

He said he returned last year from his holiday visit to servicemen in Vietnam, impressed "with their dedication of spirit and their sacrifice."

He added: "Their dedication does not mean they want war. They are dedicated to bringing to their fellow man the freedom necessary for a wholesome life."

Founded in 1920
During the banquet, Lt. Col. Thomas S. Clayton, USA, ret., of the La Jolla Chapter of the MOWW, was installed as the new commander in chief of the national organization. He succeeds Brig. Gen. Louis J. Fortier, USA, ret.

MOWW was founded in 1920 and its membership is com-

Manner Calm, Quiet

Student Rally Restrained

By PATRICK MC CARTNEY

The University of San Diego is no Berkeley. The students proved this last week when they held a Students for Responsible Freedom rally.

More than 100 students and faculty attended the midday rally, and listened to the five speakers: Dan McLinden, Tom LaPuzza, Eric Johnson, Cary Reid, and John Mackey. Absent were the emotional eruptions of the crowds that are so prevalent on other campuses — and for a sound reason, too.

Speaking into a microphone and oblivious of the crisp wind, the speakers presented their views with an intellectual detachment that raised the rally far above the level of a demonstration.

Calmly Urged Support
Concerned with the limitations of the new clothing regulations, the three leaders calmly urged student support of a petition for complete dress freedom. The petition was presented later to the Student Advisory Council for consideration.

Recognizing the need of administration cooperation, LaPuzza stressed the fact that the SRF sought changes only through the existing legal channels. This stand is enough to merit their standing as a mature group.

A Major Asset
Radicalism is a weakness of which USD possesses very little. Responsibility is one of the major assets of the student body. The calm, quiet manner in which the students have expressed their discontent is a reflection of their common sense and sober-mindedness.

Other matters than the clothing restrictions were brought up at the meeting, the most important being the library hours complaint. Again, the students were urged to sign a petition requesting an extension of library hours. The library now limits the student to library work before 9 p.m. during the week, and 1 p.m. on Saturdays. The library is closed on Sunday.

The requests and speeches were greeted with restrained enthusiasm. The students clapped, but did not scream, shout, or yell, and dispersed quickly. A few of the university's pseudo-hippies appeared disappointed, but still welcomed the message.

The faculty members present talked among themselves and went back to their lounge. The speakers packed up the microphone and departed. Within 15 minutes the campus was back to normal. Only the enthusiasm remained.

All students find injustices and discover issues which arouse their idealistic intellects. It's a credit to USD that its students have the maturity to press their complaints with restraint and taste.

USD Is Host To Seniors

Nearly 600 high school seniors from San Diego and the Los Angeles area attended classes yesterday at the University of San Diego to get a taste of higher education.

The students sat in on coeducational classes at the College for Men and the College for Women, toured the campus and lunched at the College for Women dining hall.

A Folk Mass was presented in the Immaculata Chapel for those who wished to attend.

A financial aid counseling session also was on the agenda and the visitors were addressed by student officers at a general assembly in the College for Women theater.

The students had their choice of attending classes in 20 subjects ranging from anthropology and languages to Shakespeare, and art.

USD Invites Prep Seniors

Open house for high school seniors will be held at the University of San Diego Nov. 16, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The seniors will be able to attend classes at the College for Men and the College for Women and tour the campus.

Financial aid officers will be available to discuss scholarships, grants, loans and work opportunities.

A special folk Mass will be offered in the Immaculata at 11:30 a.m.

REPORT CARD

School and Youth Notes

Dr. Patricia S. Traylor, assistant professor of chemistry at the University of San Diego College for Men, has received a research grant of $5,000 for a two-year individual research project. The funds are provided by the American Chemical Society, Petroleum Research Fund.

Mrs. Traylor will have a senior honor student in chemistry assist her in a study of the effect of viscosity on ion-pair behavior. Part of the funds will be used toward establishment of an undergraduate research program for advanced chemistry majors.

She is the wife of Dr. T. G. Traylor, associate professor of chemistry at the University of California at San Diego, where she was a post-doctoral fellow before joining the College for Men.

In another research grant at the College for Men, Dr. Maurice Schiff, staff member at Scripps Memorial Hospital, and Enoch N. Rowland, doctoral candidate from UCLA, are research associates in a study of estrogenic effects on enzymes in connective tissues in man. A grant from San Diego Bio-Medical Research Institute is helping finance the study.

Students Put Names Into 'Who' Book

Twelve students at San Diego College for Women will be listed in this year's "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Students are nominated for membership in the organization by representatives of the faculty and administration.

Named this year from the College for Women are Jennifer Allen, Christine Brooks, Kathleen Brown, Mary Ellen Dennison, Deborah Duggan, Teresa Graves, Patricia Hughes, Patricia Kiernan, Karen McCaffrey, Mary Jo Monka, Sandra Nardolillo, and Constance Salovitch.

Students are judged for this distinction on the basis of their scholarship, leadership and participation in collegiate affairs, an active interest in community affairs. Their names will be listed in the "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, 1967-68." A short biographical sketch of each student as well as an account of the college attended are also included.

CYO WORKSHOP LEADERS — Approximately 300 teen club officers and committee chairmen from throughout the diocese joined in discussions on the organization and structure of the Catholic Youth Organization at a diocesan CYO Teen Club workshop at University High School last Sunday, marking National Catholic Youth Week. ## College Welcomes Changes in Dress

By Patrick McCartney

Last Thursday Father John Baer, President of the College for Men, University of San Diego released a revision of the student dress regulations. Reaction was immediately favorable among the faculty and student body, although some divergent opinions were expressed.

The new regulations permit students for the first time to wear blue jeans, white T-shirts, and bermudas on campus. Specifically prohibited were students wearing swim trunks, gym shorts, cut-off trousers, or wearing no socks.

Petition Submitted
A petition was first submitted a month ago to student representatives, requesting complete freedom of choice concerning dress standards. The petition was gradually altered as it passed through the various councils that worked on it, including the ad-hoc committee on clothing changes, the Legi-Council, and the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

Student reaction was favorable. However, some students felt more changes are necessary before the code can be acceptable. A common sentiment was expressed by sophomore Rick Valdez when he said, "We should be mature enough to pick our own clothes. We shouldn't have restrictions. Clothing regulations are of a trivial nature in other schools, it seems to me they should be here too."

A Beginning
Some felt the code is a possible beginning of a more liberal atmosphere at the University, and welcomed it only as a start. Jim Wheeler, assistant professor of English, held such an opinion. "It's a start. I think there should be a greater relaxation of the code. I would like to see a generally more liberal attitude taken by the school towards student conduct on and off the campus."

Most of the students viewed the change as a welcome relief. John Downs, senior class president, indicated the relief felt when he said, "Rationality is now returning in USD to the proper emphasis on scholarship, now showmanship." Rick Marquie, a sophomore, possibly expressed the student body's attitude best when he said: "It's the first major victory in student appeals. Now the students have an incentive, and we feel we can work for more."

Reasons for the changes were many, but perhaps the most honest was Sam Contino's freshman: "You don't have to iron bermudas or T-shirts."

Reflects Power
The new code reflects the power the student now has in the University of San Diego. It marks one of the first times that the students have acted through the proper channels in obtaining a long-sought-after privilege.

Stage Groups In Four Schools To Get Serious

Four area schools get serious this week with productions of plays notable for their somberness.

California Western University's speech and drama department opens the week with Arthur Miller's "All My Sons" Tuesday; MiraCosta College in Oceanside follows Wednesday with Miller's adaptation of Henrik Ibsen's "The Enemy of the People"; Boland's "The Prisoner" opens Thursday at Cal Western's School of Performing Arts; and the University of San Diego opens Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes" Friday.

Though there's hardly a laugh among them, the four plays all represent important steps in 20th Century drama. Ibsen, of course, helped lead the theater into the 20th Century with his early naturalism and Arthur Miller's adaptation adds power for contemporary Americans. "Sons" is Miller's first important play, including clues to his later work, and "Foxes" is one of the best American playwrights dealing with a native subject.

"The Prisoner" is an interesting oddity that many theatrical observers believe has never had a decent hearing anywhere.

"All My Sons" has been called a modern morality play. Set in post-World War II United States, it examines the conscience of a manufacturer who has unknowingly endangered his own son's life through faulty standards in government contract work.

Donald J. Barbe has directed the Cal Western production, which will open at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Salomon Little Theater on the Point Loma Campus for performances at that time nightly through Saturday.

BISHOP-ELECT JOHN R. QUINN

USD Cagers Start Drills, 20 Report

By Patrick McCartney

Twenty varsity basketball candidates were greeted with conditioning and fundamentals drills October 16 as the Toreros of USD started preparing for their roughest schedule ever.

USD has added five new teams to its schedule, with only one team owning a losing record last year. The Westmont Warriors (Jan. 12) had a 9-15 record last year.

Other new teams the Toreros play include University of Idaho, (Jan. 26) with a 14-12 record last year; Gonzaga (Jan. 27) accumulated 21 wins last year against only six losses; Redlands (Feb. 8) collected 16 wins in 23 contests, and Nevada Southern (Feb. 10) closed last season with a 21-7 record.

"Gonzaga and Idaho will certainly be our roughest opponents; and, of course, Nevada Southern will be rough. San Diego State figures to be real tough," Coach Phil Woolpert said. "And Cal Western is always a dog-eat-dog game."

In preparing for the new season, Coach Woolpert is stressing conditioning and fundamentals. A new addition to training methods this year is the use of exer-genies, conditioning devices that allow the athlete to use both isometric (static) and isotonic (active) stress. The use of the exer-genie will permit the team to eliminate the traditional calisthenics which are time-wasting and not as effective.

The college team, like the high school team, does not concentrate on polish during early workouts.

"Every year we finally get to the same thing, fundamentals," Coach Woolpert said. "Of course, we'd like to start right out on patterns, but we have to start with the basics first. The name of the game is 'team sport,' so we're stressing cohesiveness. We're always looking for groups of players who work best together."

In assessing last year's Torero squad, which was 14-11, Coach Woolpert stated, "Our strong point last year was definitely that we were a good shooting team; and, overall, we were a little better rebounding team than we've been in the past."

"Our major weakness last year was inconsistency, a fault I hope to work on this year. One game we'd be great, and the next — well, not so great."

USD will have a Junior Varsity team for the first time this season, rather than the Frosh team they've had in the past. The reason for this move is a superabundance of varsity material. The Toreros only graduated three members of last year's varsity team, and with nine candidates up from last year's Frosh, Coach Woolpert is starting with an unwieldy 20 varsity candidates.

Woolpert decided to form the JV team in order to alleviate the awkward number of varsity personnel and to give some of the players an opportunity to play and gain experience.

USD Will Open Cage Season With Cal Poly

Coach Phil Woolpert's University of San Diego basketball team, fortified with eight lettermen, will launch its season tonight against Cal Poly of Pomona in USD gymnasium.

Four of last year's starting club will be ready to go again. They include forward Rick Cabrera, a 6-3 senior, 6-6 junior center Gus Magee and seniors Bill Sheridan (6-0) and Ted Fields (6-2).

Jim Wilke, a 6-6 junior forward, replaces Alan Fay, who has graduated.

Ready to fit into the lineup are Durrel Carpenter, a 6-5 junior who was the top rebounder last season; Jim Allen, a 6-1 senior guard, and Dan Wightman, a 6-5 junior center who was a letterman two years ago before leaving school for a season.

Greg Long, a 6-3 senior, and Bob McCloskey, a 6-2 junior, round out the club along with ex-freshmen Jeff Filzenger, 6-4; Mike Pradels, 6-1; Jim Usher, 6-6; and Neal Schram, 5-11. They played for a Frosh team which finished with a 19-6 record.

Last year, when the Toreros had a 14-11 record they split with Cal Poly, winning 59-58 and losing 65-83. The Broncos hold a 11-5 series advantage.

USD will travel to Los Angeles tomorrow night to oppose Pepperdine College.

These games begin a 25-game schedule that includes participation in two tournaments, the Holiday at Cal Western and University of California at Irvine, both slated this month.

Pope's Delegate Will Consecrate Seminary Rector

Very Rev. John R. Quinn, rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary here, has been named by his Holiness Pope Paul VI Auxiliary Bishop of San Diego.

Announcement of the appointment was made Wednesday by His Excellency, the Most Rev. Luigi Raimondi, Apostolic Delegate in the United States. Archbishop Raimondi will consecrate the new bishop on a date to be fixed later.

"The appointment of Bishop-elect Quinn pays tribute to the Diocese of San Diego, to its priests and people, and to the seminary of which he is rector," Most Rev. Francis J. Furey said.

"His many admirable qualities of mind and heart assure us that he will wear well the episcopal dignity and discharge competently its responsibilities."

Hopes to Lighten Heavy Burden
The Bishop-elect said, "I hope my assistance may lighten the heavy burden borne by Bishop Furey in his pastoral 'concern for all the churches' of this rapidly growing diocese."

A native Californian, Bishop-elect Quinn was born in Riverside on March 28, 1929, the son of the late Ralph J. Quinn and Elizabeth Carroll Quinn presently residing in La Mesa. He is the first native to be raised to the episcopal dignity in this jurisdiction and the second auxiliary named to serve it.

Most Rev. Richard H. Ackerman, CSSP, served here from 1956 to 1960. He is now Bishop of Covington, Kentucky. While here, he was auxiliary to the late Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy.

Bishop-elect Quinn attended St. Francis de Sales elementary school in Riverside, Sacred Heart Preparatory High School in Watertown, Wis., and entered St. Francis College, El Cajon, to study for the priesthood.

Completes Studies in Rome
The Bishop-elect completed his philosophical and theological studies at the North American College and Gregorian University in Rome. He was ordained in Rome on July 19, 1953.

After a term as assistant pastor in St. George's parish, Ontario, he was appointed professor of dogmatic theology at Immaculate Heart Seminary.

The new bishop also is a diocesan consultant, chairman of the Music Commission of the Diocese of San Diego and a member of the Diocesan Liturgical Commission. He holds membership in the Canon Law Society of America and in the Catholic Theological Society of America.

As soon as his appointment was announced, Bishop Furey also named him vicar general. This is in accord with the directives of the Second Vatican Council in its Decree on the Pastoral Office of Bishops. Until now there has been only one vicar general in the San Diego Diocese, Right Rev. Msgr. John F. Purcell, PA, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Coronado. Msgr. Purcell will continue to serve as vicar general, Bishop Furey said.

Other members of the new bishop's immediate family are Anthony G. Quinn, brother, of Studio City, Mrs. William Bush of Riverside and Mrs. Noel DeJarnett of Victorville, sisters.

When notified of his new appointment, the bishop-elect issued the following statement:

"I am deeply grateful to His Holiness, Pope Paul VI, for the unmerited honor he has bestowed on me."

To Serve Bishop, Priests, People
I eagerly look forward to assisting Bishop Furey in serving the priests and people of the San Diego Diocese. I pray that my appointment may bring glory to God and His Church, grace and blessing to His people.

And in some small way, I hope my assistance may lighten the heavy burden borne by Bishop Furey in his pastoral 'concern for all the churches' of this rapidly growing Diocese.

I welcome the challenge of sharing under Bishop Furey's leadership in the vast, far reaching program of renewal inaugurated by the Second Vatican Council.

It is a great grace to live in these times, when, as Pope John told the bishops of the world as he opened the council, "Our duty is not only to guard the precious heritage of the past, as if we were concerned only with antiquity, but to dedicate ourselves with an earnest will and without fear to that work which our era demands of us."

A pectoral cross will be to the Diocese of San Diego by Bishop Buddy and released only Tuesday by the executors were presented to the new Bishop by Bishop Furey.

Expresses Heartfelt Gratitude
Expressing his heartfelt gratitude to Pope Paul for the assistance and support of an auxiliary bishop, Bishop Furey said: "Because of the great number of souls to be saved in our vast territory, our Holy Father has seen fit to send another bishop to assist in caring for the People of God in the Diocese of San Diego. I assure the clergy and laity of our diocese join with me in an expression of appreciation and thanks."

"In a letter to me, announcing the appointment of Bishop-elect Quinn, His Excellency, Most Rev. Luigi Raimondi, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, wrote: 'May he be blessed as he works more intimately with Your Excellency for the good of souls in San Diego.' On this happy occasion, we make these sentiments our very own. God bless and prosper our new Auxiliary Bishop."

Cabrera Sparks USD To Victory

The University of San Diego jumped off to an early lead and was never headed in winning its basketball opener in a 65-56 conquest of Cal Poly of Pomona last night at the Toreros' gym.

About 1,500 fans watched as Rick Cabrera led the Toreros attack with 22 points. Jim Wilke added 12 despite getting into foul trouble and having to sit out much of the game.

USD led by 10 points most of the way before Charlie Buchanan, a former La Jolla High and San Diego City College star, hit five straight points for Cal Poly to cut its deficit to 55-50 with 3½ minutes to play.

But that was the last of the scoring for the visitors as Cabrera and his teammates added the final 10 points of the game. Cabrera hit 17 of 17 total in the second half.

Buchanan led Cal Poly's attack with 16 points.

USD travels to Los Angeles for a game tonight with Pepperdine College.

'Cocktail Party' At The Globe

to town, I have been cornered at parties by women, and men, who seem intent on making me say what I think "The Cocktail Party" means, so they can cry, "Great God how naive!"

On the surface, Eliot seems naive, indeed. His setting is a simple drawing room in a London flat with some typical Noel Coward sorts, well-bred and well-heeled, embarking on a small hash. The host, Edward Chamberlayne, is handsome, personable, a successful barrister approaching middle age, somehow more droll than a perfect cocktail host should allow himself to appear, since he is trying to hide from his friends the fact that his wife, Lavinia, has just left him. His guests include Julia Shuttlewaite, a happy old woman; Celia Copplestone, an attractive girl; Peter Quilpe, a young writer, and Alexander MacColgie, a man-about-the-world, and a mysterious, unidentified stranger.

The cast at the Globe, directed by William Roesch, will include William Irish as Edward, Jean MacKenzie as Julia, Cassia Besson as Celia, Dennis G. Turner as the stranger, Lee Chmelik as Lavinia, Burt B. Belant as Alex and Jim Brock as Peter.

Through their chatter at the party we learn that Edward and Celia are lovers but Edward does not want to divorce his wife because the stranger has warned him that it will set in motion events he may not be able to control. Lavinia returns. The couple visits a psychiatrist (who turns out to be the stranger at the party) and is reconciled. Two years later the identical characters, minus Celia, who has been married on a tropical island, convene for another cocktail party.

But, of course, no one let Eliot get away with anything quite that neat, anything so unmistakable West End.

"The cocktail party can be the secular counterpart of the Communion Service if given in the right spirit, the tidbits and the short drinks the equivalent of the bread and wine," says David E. Jones, professor of literature at the University of Minnesota. "The play is almost a piece of metaphysical wit in its discovery of analogy in unlikely places."

One of the most popular analogies is the comparison of the psychiatrist to God and the old woman to a guardian angel figure putting forth Eliot's Christian point of view. There are two kinds of life, the psychiatrist tells Edward and Lavinia, the one of ordinary day-to-day duties such as they choose, and the ideal one of self-dedication and self-sacrifice which Celia chooses as a martyr on a tropical island. St. Thomas Aquinas himself could hardly have been more high-flown.

But just as these sort of religious meanings may be read into "Cocktail Party" so, too, may the rest of Eliot's familiar hang-ups: The emotional impoverishment, boredom and spiritual emptiness he depicted in "Prufrock," "The Waste Land," the Sweeney poems, "The Hollow Men" fairly shout at us in the inane party chatter.

How far is the drawing room from Prufrock's haunt where "the women come and go talking of Michaelangelo"? How far are the conversational charades and singing of "One Eyed Riley" from "Here we go round the prickly pear"? Not very.

The evening of Eliot's character's, too, is "spread out against the sky like a patient etherised upon a table," even if they may be measuring out their lives in jiggers instead of coffee spoons.

"I should have been a pair of ragged claws scuttling across the floors of silent seas," mourns Prufrock.

"There is nothing to escape from and nothing to escape to," the stranger tells Edward at the cocktail party.

It is the same old mysterious Eliot painting that same old dehydrated nowhere scene. He gives you the tinkertoys and you have to do your own thing with the construction.

"The Cocktail Party," a three-act comedy by T. S. Eliot, will open at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Old Globe Theater's Falstaff Tavern Arena stage. It is directed by William Roesch with sets and costumes by Peggy Kellner.

Pepperdine Foul Shots Beat USD

LOS ANGELES—Pepperdine College capitalized on accurate shooting from the free throw line, sharp-shooting Steve Ebey and defensive work by Al Grant to beat University of San Diego 81-73, last night in the victor's gymnasium.

The Waves were outscored from the floor, 33 field goals to 29, but cashed in on 23 of 28 free throws to settle the issue.

Ebey, enjoying one of his finest games, dropped in 10 field goals and nine of 11 charity tosses to pace the winners with 29 points. The 6-8 Grant, who blocked several USD shots, contributed with 21.

The Toreros, whose record was evened at 1-1, had three players with three fouls by the half. They were Bill Sheridan, Jim Wilke and Gus Magee. Sheridan and Magee fouled out in the second half.

Sheridan guided with Toreros with 17 markers while Rick Cabrera collected 14. Ted Fields had 11 while Durel Carpenter and Wilke collected 11 each.

USD grabbed a six-point lead, 61-55, midway of the second half but Pepperdine caught up at 61-61. After that the Waves went on top to stay.

A CATHOLIC SCHOOL

USD Residents Run Into Rules

Editor's Note—A student entering college often runs into new experiences that change his way of life. This is the third in a series of four articles on dorm life in the area's universities and state college.

By OSCAR RODRIGUEZ and BELITA TAYLOR
Special to EVENING TRIBUNE

Even in a Catholic school like the University of San Diego, once strict regulations governing a student's life in the dorms are being liberalized... but slowly.

This year, junior and senior coeds can stay out until 11 p.m. on week nights and 1:30 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Last year it was 9:30 p.m. if one had a 3.0 grade average. If not, pumpkin time was at 6 p.m.

Freshman girls still have to be in at 6 p.m. but sophs with good grades get a late night pass to be in by 7 p.m.

Campus rules also say that anyone under 21 not living at home must live in the dorms and if a student leaves the dorm for the weekend he must fill out a check-out card which is sent to the parents.

Still students say the rules are no worse than the ones they would face at home. "It's not that strict," said math major Thomas Richter, of La Mesa, and history major Tom Ronco, also 18, echoed his words: "No, it's no worse than at home."

Rules Designed to Help Students

The idea behind the hour restrictions is that they are designed to develop responsible living, good study habits, and the true Christian, school officials said.

"We had to liberalize our previous rules to be on the same level as other colleges," said Mother Helen Lorch, sophomore counselor at the college for women.

She said that Mother Nancy Morris, president of the college, made tours to other schools to check out dorm regulations there and that changes came after a joint student-administration vote.

Most of the freshmen girls are happy with the situation, and say they enjoy the companionship and good cheer of having about 75 classmates to keep them company.

"It's really great here," said Marlena Ciaio, 18, from Pennsylvania. "We all feel very close. Everybody is real friendly."

Marlena has already carved a niche at the school by the way she sings and strums guitar at folk masses every day at 11:30 a.m.

Girls Say They Like Dorm Life

The sophomore girls agree with Marlena pretty much, according to Bonnie Burke, 19, of Sierra Madre, and roommate Mary Sidenfaden, 19, of Arcadia.

"I really love the dorm life," said Bennie. "I didn't think I would, but the facilities are really nice."

The two girls pointed out their comfortable wood furnishings and something they call "Johnny Squares." Each has a stall with her own sink, cabinet and towel racks reserved for her use alone.

The only objection Bonnie and Mary have, they said, is that their room is right next to the bank of telephones which ring constantly while they are trying to talk or study.

Two sophs, Holly Hollander and Kathie Karas, said the noise sometimes got to them, but otherwise, they found life there "exciting and warm."

Across a quadrangle is the dorm where juniors and seniors reside. They were less happy with the rules, especially the 12 seniors.

Seniors Seek More Privileges

They said they want more privileges like smoking in their rooms, less restriction on where they can go and the freedom to live off campus in their senior year. Rules forbid women students residing off campus unless they live with relatives.

"It's like a reformatory sometimes," said senior Katie Driskell of San Gabriel. "We get fined if we're late and can't watch television in only one place."

"It seems especially ridiculous that you can't wear slacks on campus when you can go around in mini-skirts that are way above the knee."

Over on the boys' side, there is one of the most unique dormitory set-ups of any college in the nation. The dorms there are actual, full-sized, completely equipped apartment units for four men.

Each unit has a kitchen with refrigerator, stove and sink, a living room, two bathrooms and two bedrooms. To add to this gracious living, each unit is provided with a roof patio.

Guys Live in Complete Apartments

"It's exceptional," said Tom Richter. "In fact the study area is almost too big. It's hard to clean up."

Though the accommodations are plush, there are still regulations that go along with them.

No women, no alcohol and no pets are ever allowed in an apartment. And they are inspected for cleanliness every Monday, and can be raided to check for violations at any time.

This brings complaints from many of the guys who think young men shouldn't have to keep hours or stand inspection. And, they also like to grumble about the food.

But, on the whole, the guys say that they are very happy with life in the dorms at USD and admit that if regulations weren't their favorite complaint something else would be.

Actually, they say, rules help build esprit de corps which helps make this part of campus life just that much more rewarding.

NIGHT LIFE—Since regulations at USD require younger students to be in early at night, many, like Susie Garlow, bottom right, and Maureen Torpey, use the time to study. At left, Oscar Rodriguez, front, and Tom Ronco hit the books.

University To Host Student Symposium

A college symposium for high school students on admission requirements, financial aid and choice of college will be presented by University of San Diego Nov. 20.

As the first such symposium for USD, it will be sponsored with four other Catholic colleges including Loyola of Los Angeles, Immaculate Heart College, Marymount College and Mount St. Mary's.

More than 2,000 students and their parents from 13 private schools in San Diego County will participate.

Public school counselors, parents and students are most welcome, according to Rev. I. Brent Eagen, University of San Diego College for Men.

The program will include a panel by representatives of the four colleges. They will be available for questions after the session.

Mitchell L'Heureux, director of school relations at Loyola will speak on "Why a Catholic College?"

Gilbert Swift, director of admissions at Immaculate Heart will discuss admission requirements.

Mrs. Irene Kelley, director of financial aid at Marymount College, will explain financial aid programs.

Sister Joseph Adele, director of admissions at Mount

St. Mary's will speak on selecting a college.

Private schools invited to participate are: San Miguel Boys School, Boyden School, Bishop's School, La Jolla Country Day School, San Diego Christian Academy School, Academy of Our Lady of Peace High School, University High School, Convent of the Sacred Heart, Marian High School and San Luis Rey Academy.

A reception and dinner will be held following the program to enable school officials to meet college representatives.

Togetherness Introduced At University

Coeducational classes from art to oceanography have been introduced at the University of San Diego for the first time in the school's history.

Men and women will get together to study music, drama, sociology, education, archaeology, business administration, economics and psychology. The school year at the College for Men and the College for Women began with a record class enrollment of 1,700 students including 300 freshmen.

This is a 50 per cent increase over last year's enrollment figures.

A further addition at the College for Men is an educational development center with facilities for reading improvement, review or intensive study of a particular subject area, career counseling and guidance in proper study methods. The center will be operated under the direction of Dr. Gerald S. Razzo, chairman of the psychology department.

Foreign Students
Enrolled at the University of San Diego are foreign students from the Philippines, Libya, Mexico, Liberia, Thailand, Jamaica and Hong Kong. Degrees conferred by the University now include Bachelor of Arts, Sciences, Master of Arts and Juris Doctor. Pre-professional programs in medicine, pharmacy and law are among the school's academic offerings.

Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of San Diego and chancellor of the University of San Diego opened the academic year with a celebration of the Mass of the Holy Spirit in Immaculate Chapel. More than 1,000 students and faculty members from the Colleges of Men and Women, the School of Theology and School of Law heard the bishop urge "continued commitment to the pursuit of truth."

Christmas An Act Of God's Love

Editor's Note: This is another in a series of Christmas messages written for The San Diego Union by area religious leaders.

By THE VERY REV. JOHN E. BAER
President, University of San Diego, College for Men

"O come all ye faithful, joyful and triumphant!" These words, an exhortation in song and faith to adoration of God, reach us as the world prepares to celebrate again the coming of the Christ.

The coming of God to man, the revelation of the Divine in human form, is certainly the greatest wonder of the world as known. And the continuance of His presence: "I will be with you all days..." brings to each Christmas more than a mere remembrance of a completed, historical event. Emmanuel, God-with-us, is an abiding fact of His revelation.

The Incarnation is an act of God's love; and in human understanding, a significant part of the mystery is that the Son of Man then chose the poor, the weak, the outcasts, as the special audience for His message.

Men were amazed at this, and accepted it as a sign of Divine intervention, that "the poor had the gospel preached to them." And herein lies a significant part of the message for us in our current celebration. The example of Jesus is a model as well as an inspiration.

In our uncertain times, the man who follows the teaching of Christ must find in the poor, the defenseless, and the outcast, his opportunity of witnessing to his faith in the Redeemer, and of making his response to the love of God for all men. St. Paul's prayer that we may live in harmony with one another according to the example of Christ Jesus is a compelling goal in our celebration.

Without such an understanding, the "faith, joy, and triumph" of the Christmas hymn seem hollow and a mockery; with it, our hymn of praise becomes a meaningful witness to the abiding presence of the Savior, and a sincere prayer of adoration as we again celebrate His incarnation.

USD Takes Talk Honors

The men of the University of San Diego never talked better.

That was the consensus of judges in the Pacific Southwest Speech Championships last weekend and they gave the USD College for Men 14 awards—the best talking jag in the school's history.

Sophomores Brian Thompson and Everett Harry led the way with Thompson taking third in lower division oratory, and Harry gathering a second in impromptu speaking and fourth in extemporaneous speaking.

Freshmen Jim Staunton and Rick Walton were crowned Pacific Southwest champions in novice debate. Also taking part in their first tournament were Bill Sink, Barry Swyers, Mike Gordon and John Miller.

Catholic University Plans New Approach

Rev. I. Brent Eagen, University of San Diego public information officer, told a group of planners Monday that the University is considering changing its main entrance to the proposed Tecolote Canyon Road which will join Genesee in the early 1970's.

He told representatives from the Kearny Vista Community Planners and the City Planning Department, that University plans called for extensive landscaping and beautification at the new approach.

Rev. Eagen stated that the proposed entrance would provide better access to the University from Interstate 5 than Linda Vista Road.

When asked if the University would maintain the Linda Vista entrance if the road is improved, Rev. Eagen stated that it would depend on "how much and when."

Mrs. Ruby Zellman, a Kearny Vista planner, stated the road is "one of the main gateways into Linda Vista and Kearny Mesa, and we intend to see the road widened and landscaped, making it one of the prettiest streets in San Diego."

Development
Rev. Eagen gave the group a brief sketch of the University's future development plans.

He said the University's enrollment will increase from the present 1700 students to 2500 in the next ten years. He said that the largest growth will come from residents which comprise 50 per cent of the freshman class.

According to Rev. Eagen the current University policy of requiring non-resident students under 21 to live on campus is undergoing study. If it is changed, "it will probably require freshmen to remain on campus, permitting the male students to live off campus, if they choose, he said.

"Linda Vista is close and if some of the housing were improved, some of our students would undoubtedly consider the area."

"Most off-campus students have favored the beach area in the past, however," he stated.

Cultural
Mrs. Zellman pointed out that a recent survey showed less than one per cent housing vacancies existed in the area.

Rev. Eagen stressed the need for public awareness of the cultural opportunities available to area residents at the University.

He pointed out that the school's swimming pool was open to the public last summer, and that library art exhibits, chapel services, and films and lectures were open to residents.

Philosophy Takes On New Look

Dec 7, 1967
Independent

KEARNY MESA—The philosophy department at the University of San Diego, College for Men, has accomplished a major change in its traditional course offerings. Father Shipley, chairman of the college's humanities division and philosophy department, is offering a philosophy of man course in which professors from seven other departments of the college present guest lectures on topics concerning man.

The course is founded upon Shipley's belief that "Philosophy is not an ivory tower science of conclusions." According to Shipley, philosophy's value is that it provides the opportunity to ask basic questions about man's existence.

In an attempt to broaden the students' exposure to the possible answers to these questions, members of the biology, psychology, anthropology, sociology, political science, economics and history departments conduct the class on Monday and Wednesday of every other week.

Fridays are reserved for a question and answer period concerning topics discussed during the week.

Each guest lecturer prepares a brief outline of the topics and questions to be discussed during their lecture. A minimum of three easily accessible library sources are also given to allow the student a quick reference for additional information.

The course has initiated extensive discussion and interaction between students and faculty of the college's various departments according to college spokesmen. Dr. Curt Spanis' lecture produced the conclusion that the biologist can not say what life is but can only tell what it does. As part of his lecture, Spanis wheeled in a cadaver to establish what the biologist meant by death.

Shipley commented that the extensive cooperation of the faculty and the College for Men's status as a small liberal arts college makes the development of such a course possible. He has hopes of expanding the course next year to include the aesthetic pursuits of art, music and literature.

Doctor Appointed Professor

William E. Pincus, M.D., D.Sc., has been appointed by the Department of Biology of the University of San Diego, College for Men as associate professor of biology in residence.

Pincus obtained his B.A. at Temple University, his M.D. at Hahnemann Medical College and his D.Sc. at the University of Pennsylvania. He interned at Albert Einstein Medical Center and did post-doctoral work at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Pincus was a research associate at the Salk Institute for Biological Studies and is currently director of laboratories at the San Diego Bio-Medical Research Institute.

Pincus' research at the college will be concerned with the mechanism of tissue destruction in chronic inflammatory diseases such as rheumatoid arthritis.

He has isolated a material from white blood cells which is toxic for animals and human tissues. He currently has $100,000 in grant disposals for this work. Pincus will direct a group of select students at the college in assisting in his research.

Pincus' appointment to the college's biology department is part of a continuing expansion of the research program of the department. Dr. Maurice Schiff, surgeon at Scripps Memorial Hospital, joined the staff as a research associate earlier this year.
