THE GAME: The USD Toreros, coming off a hard fought contest with Saint Mary's College, host the University of Redlands tonight at Torero Stadium. Kickoff is slated for 7:00 pm. USD is now 1-1 after Saturday's 30-20 loss to the Gaels, a NCAA Division I-AA scholarship program. Redlands comes to town with a record of 1-0 after last week's 33-25 win over Lewis & Clark.

THE SERIES: The Redlands Bulldogs lead the overall series 10-9, including wins in the last two meetings (16-3 in 1995 and 28-7 in 1992).

HEAD COACH KEVIN MCGARRY: Kevin McGarry (USD, '79) is in his second season as the Torero head coach and his 20th overall on the San Diego football staff. In his first season at the helm of the football program he guided the Toreros to a 4-6 record. The tenth coach to direct the USD football program since its start in 1956, Kevin is the first USD graduate to head the position. Prior to 1996, he was an assistant coach at USD for eighteen years, including the last fourteen as the defensive coordinator and defensive backs coach. Over the past twenty years with Kevin on the coaching staff, USD has accumulated an overall record of 106-82-3, including fourteen seasons with records of .500 or better. Prior to joining the USD staff in 1978, Kevin was a two-year letterwinner on the USD football squad (1976-77), earning co-Defensive Player of the Year honors in 1977. He received both his B.A. in Education (1979), and his Master's in Education Administration (1985) from USD. Kevin and his wife, Mary Ann, reside in Scripps Ranch with their four boys: twins Pat and Mike, Timbo and Matt.

PFL STANDINGS/UPCOMING GAMES: Dayton (2-0), Drake (2-0), SAN DIEGO (1-1), Butler (1-1), Valparaiso (1-1), Evansville (0-1). PFL Schedule for Sept. 20th: Butler at St. Francis, Dayton at Robert Morris, Drake at South Florida, Quincy at Evansville, Valparaiso at Morehead State and Redlands at San Diego.

TORERO TIDBITS: Sophomore QB Mike Stadler, getting the starting nod for the second straight week, put some impressive numbers up against Saint Mary's College this past week ... he tallied personal bests of 23-for-36 in the passing department for 243 yards, including TD passes to Dylan Ching (22 yards) and Jeff Prichard (4 yards) ... Prichard caught a personal best 9 balls for 121 yards ... defensively the Toreros were paced by Brian McLoughlin (7 tackles), Travis Dellinger (6 tackles) and Kevin Hawes (6 tackles) ... the Toreros gave up 370 yards of offense to the Gaels, including 224 yards on the ground ... two-game statistical leaders for USD include Tim Roth (punting, 39.8 average; field goals, 6-for-6; points, 21), Mat Boggs (rushing, 101 yards), Mike Stadler (passing, 24-for-40, 313 yards, 3 TDs), Jeff Prichard (receiving, 11 catches for 139 yards, 1TD), Dylan Ching (9 catches for 171 yards, 2 TDs; punt returns, 23.0 average; 18.0 yards per kickoff return) and defense (Travis Dellinger, 17 tackles; Wade Van Dusen, 14 tackles; Brian McLoughlin, 13 tackles; Buddy Brown, 13 tackles; and Tennyson Tom, 12 tackles).

TIM ROTH PFL SPECIAL TEAMS PLAYER OF THE WEEK, AGAIN! Senior place kicker Tim Roth (Chico, CA) was selected the Pioneer Football League Special Teams Player of the Week for the second straight week ... against Saint Mary's he was a perfect 2-for-2 in field goals with a long of 41; added two PAT kicks; and averaged 39.3 yards on four punts. Combined with last week's 4 straight field goals, Tim is now 6-for-6, tying a USD record for consecutive field goals made. He is currently ranked #1 in NCAA I-AA statistics for field goals made per game at 3.0. In last year's season finale against Dayton, Tim was named the PFL Special Teams Player of the Week for November 9th, giving him three straight honors in three contests.

SCOUTING THE BULLDOGS: The University of Redlands, a NCAA Division III program, return approximately 55 players and 14 starters from last year's squad that finished 7-2 and a perfect 5-0 in the SCIAC ... head coach Mike Maynard owns a career record of 56-27-1 since 1988 ... this past weekend the Bulldogs defeated Lewis & Clark 33-25 ... UR built a 21-3 lead after the first quarter ... senior Damian Delfino, who broke the school record for receptions last season (60 catches for 1,013 yards and 10 TDs), has moved over to the quarterback slot ... against Lewis & Clark, Delfino finished 23-for-40 for 233 yards, 2 TDs and 3 interceptions (2 picks came UR's first two possessions) ... his main targets were junior WR Danny Ragsdale (9 catches for 89 yards, 1 TD) and senior WR Alex Eckert (7 catches for 53 yards, 1 TD) ... UR tallied 331 yards of offense (233 passing, 98 rushing) while giving up 426 to Lewis & Clark (370 passing) ... the biggest strength for the Bulldog defense is their defensive line where they return every starter from last year.

UP NEXT FOR USD: The Toreros are on the road the next two weeks. On Saturday, September 27th they kickoff at California Lutheran at 1:00 p.m. They open up Pioneer Football League play at Evansville on Saturday, October 4th. USD's next home game will be Saturday, October 11th against Butler University.

USD/PFL SPECTATOR CODE OF CONDUCT

Ladies and gentlemen, please be advised of the University of San Diego and Pioneer Football League Conference policy in regard to appropriate spectator conduct at athletic contests at USD.

We appreciate your cooperation in demonstrating positive sportsmanlike conduct toward all student-athletes and coaches, particularly our opponents, the game officials, other spectators and those who administer today's competition.

We are very proud of our student-athletes, coaches and officials. Likewise, we value your contributions as spectators to the overall competitive environment.

USD, the PFL and Torero football thanks you for your support and cooperation. Enjoy the game!

'97 TORERO OUTLOOK

The University of San Diego football program heads into its fifth season at the NCAA Division I-AA level and as a member of the Pioneer Football League (PFL). Head coach Kevin McGarry, entering his 2nd year at the helm of the Torero program, returns approximately fifty-five players and ten starters from last year's 4-6 club that finished 1-4 in the PFL. Seventy newcomers boost the roster total close to 125.

The Toreros will return four offensive starters, five defensive starters and All-PFL kicker Tim Roth on special teams. Offensive starters back include OL Matt Hawkins (6-0, 255, Jr.); FB Jared Keo (5-9, 220, Sr.), TE Frank Brown (6-3, 220, Sr.); and WR Dylan Ching (5-11, 195, So.), a 2nd Team All-PFL pick a year ago after leading the team with 24 catches for 550 yards and 6 touchdowns. Key returning players expected to compete for starting assignments in '97 include QB Matt Doherty (6-3, 180, Sr.), who is John Khamis' projected replacement; and WR Chris Del Santo (6-3, 215, Sr.), second on the team with 15 receptions. TE Randy Weber (6-1, 220, So.) and QB Mike Stadler (6-2, 195, So.) will both push for playing time at their respective positions.

The defense, which returns five starters, should be strong on the line and in the secondary. Starters back include DL Lukas Smart (6-1, 227, Jr.; 36 tackles & 6 sacks); DL Buddy Brown (5-10, 250, Sr.; 2nd Team All-PFL); DL D.J. Walcott (6-2, 265, Jr.); DB Travis Dellinger (6-0, 195, Jr.), third on the team with 55 tackles; and CB Elton Perkins (5-7, 162, Jr.). The defense will get an immediate boost from the return of DB Sal Navarro (5-11, 185, Jr.), a '95 First Team All-PFL performer who sat out last season to concentrate on studies. Others expected to make key contributions include DB Brian McLoughlin (5-10, 195, Jr.; 46 tackles), DB Kaéo Gouveia (5-8, 160, So.), LB Andre Lee (6-1, 238, Sr.), and LB Kevin Hawes (6-2, 228, Sr.).

Senior Tim Roth (6-2, 190, Sr.) will pace the special teams unit after being named First Team All-PFL a year ago and finishing second on the team in points with 43 (8x12 FGs; 19x24 PATs). He will also compete for the open punter's spot left vacant by graduated and PFL 1st-teamer Mike Buhler. Look for senior Elton Perkins and sophomore Kaéo Gouveia to step in for graduated seniors Jeb Dougherty and Evan Hlavacek and handle most of the return duties.

The Toreros, who play their first ever 11-game schedule at the I-AA level, open the 1997 season with three straight nonconference home games (Azusa Pacific, Saint Mary's and Redlands). They complete the month of September with a road tilt at Cal Lutheran on the 27th, followed by five straight PFL contests from October 4th through November 1st. USD will then finish out their regular-season schedule with a road contest at Whittier (Nov. 8th) and with their homecoming game versus Wagner College (Staten Island, NY) on the 15th.

1996 PFL STANDINGS

Team	PFL	Overall
Dayton	5-0	11-0-0
Drake	4-1	8-3-0
Evansville	2-3	5-5-0
Butler	2-3	3-7-0
San Diego	1-4	4-6-0
Valparaiso	1-4	4-6-0

SETTING

The University of San Diego is an independent Catholic institution of higher education. Founded in 1949, USD is located on 180 acres overlooking Mission Bay, San Diego Harbor and the Pacific Ocean. The campus is named Alcalá Park and is located just 10 minutes from downtown San Diego. The campus was named after a Spanish village near Madrid - Alcala de Henares. Founded by the Greeks as Complutum, the village was later renamed Al Kala (the Castle) by the Moslems. Christians recaptured the village centuries later and founded a university whose buildings became the inspiration for USD's architectural style.

THE CAMPUS

The USD campus is regarded as one of the most architecturally unique institutions in the country, featuring 18 major buildings designed in an ornamental 16th century Spanish Renaissance style.

Since 1984, USD has completed nine major construction and expansion projects. A landscaped fountain plaza was finished in the fall of 1995, connecting the entrances of the Immaculata and Hughes Administration Center. In 1992, the university completed the 45,000 square foot Loma Hall, which includes an expanded bookstore, a larger mail center, classrooms and laboratories. In 1990, the renovated Katherine M. and George M. Pardee Jr. Legal Research Center opened, a facility that offers the latest in information technology.

ATHLETICS

The University of San Diego is a member of the West Coast Conference for nearly all sports and competes in 16 intercollegiate sports on the NCAA Division I level. The football team will begin its fifth season in the Pioneer Football League. Women's sports include: basketball, crew, cross country, soccer, softball, swimming, tennis and volleyball. Men's sports include: baseball, basketball, crew, cross country, golf, football, soccer and tennis. Since 1990 USD teams have won four conference championships; made 15 post-season appearances; had twelve Conference Coaches of the Year; ten Conference Players of the Year; ten Conference Freshmen of the Year; three WCC Scholar Athletes of the Year; and 17 NCAA All-Americans. This past year, Heidi Ambrose, a senior on the women's basketball team, was selected the school's Valadictorian after achieving a perfect 4.0 g.p.a. in BioChemistry throughout her four years. She plans to attend Medical School this Fall.

ACADEMICS

USD enrolls more than 6,600 students who have a choice of more than 50 undergraduate and graduate degree programs. The university's academic units include the College of Arts and Sciences, and the Schools of Business Administration, Education, Law and Nursing. Class size generally averages between 18-25 students with the student to teacher ratio being 18:1. Over 97 percent of USD's full-time faculty hold doctorates.

In the annual ratings of the country's colleges and universities, published by U.S. News & World Report, USD moved from the regional to national category in 1994. The university is ranked among the top 100 schools in the nation.

STUDENT LIFE

Student activities include cultural events, dances, boat cruises, beach parties, BBQ's, concerts, comedy nights, symposia and much more. Students participate in a wide range of volunteer projects such as adult literacy tutoring, senior citizen outreach, and house building in Tijuana. The intramural program is also an integral part of student life on campus with over two-thirds of the USD community partaking in intramural sports.

Did You Know?

- The University of San Diego was selected by the John Templeton Foundation for its 1997-98 Honor Roll of Character-Building Colleges. The honor roll recognizes 135 four-year accredited undergraduate institutions that emphasize character building an integral part of the college experience. Foundation officials made special mention of USD's "Ethics Across the Curriculum," a campus-wide initiative funded with a two-year, $138,000 grant from the E.L. Wiegand Foundation. USD is one of eight California colleges and universities named to the honor roll.

KEVIN McGARRY

- 2nd Season as Torero Head Coach
- 20th Season on Coaching Staff

Kevin McGarry enters his second year as head coach of the USD football program. In his first season at the helm of the USD football program he guided the Toreros to a 4-6 record. He took over for Brian Fogarty, who stepped down after 13 seasons to become USD's Associate Director of Athletics for Development. The tenth coach to direct the Torero football program since its start in 1956, Kevin is the first USD graduate to head the position.

McGarry is no stranger to USD football. Prior to his stint as head coach in 1996, he was an assistant coach at the University of San Diego for eighteen seasons, including the last fourteen as the defensive coordinator and defensive backs coach. He became a full-time assistant for football in 1985 -- his first seven years (1978-84) were split between football, women's softball (head coach) and as an elementary school teacher. In addition to his on-the-field duties, Kevin was also responsible for recruiting and as liaison for the USD Football Alumni Club.

"Kevin's years of experience at USD have prepared him well for this position," stated Tom Iannacone, Director of Athletics. "He clearly understands the role of the football program within the mission of the university."

Over the past nineteen seasons with Kevin on the coaching staff, USD has accumulated an overall record of 105-81-3, including fourteen seasons with records of .500 or better. Of the nine USD football players that have been named GTE/CoSIDA Academic All-Americans since 1981, eight have come from the defensive side of the ball, including seven defensive backs. In 1987 the Torero defense set a school record for shutouts in a season with four, and the team gave up just 100 points in ten contests and finished 6-3-1.

Prior to joining the USD coaching staff in 1978, Kevin was a two-year letterwinner on the USD football squad (1976-77), earning co-Defensive Player of the Year honors in 1977. He played two years (1974-75) at Saddleback College in Mission Viejo, California, earning Most Valuable Player honors in 1975.

He received both his Bachelor of Arts in Education (1979), and his Master's Degree in Education Administration (1985) from the University of San Diego. He is currently on a leave of absence from USD's Doctoral program in Education.

Kevin and his wife, Mary Ann, reside in Scripps Ranch and have four children: twins Pat and Mike (10 year-olds), Timbo (7- years-old), and Matt (1-year-old).

BILL DOBSON Offensive Coordinator/Offensive Line

Bill is beginning his fourth season as a full-time assistant with USD's coaching staff. After coaching linebackers and directing Special Teams his first two seasons (1993, 1995), Bill moved over to offense last year where he was the Offensive Coordinator and coached the running backs. In 1997 he will again be Offensive Coordinator, and coach the offensive line. In addition to his coaching duties, he plays a major role in USD's recruiting efforts.

A 1981 graduate of Occidental, Bill earned his undergraduate degrees in Physical Education and History - he completed his teaching credential from Oxy in the spring of 1982. Besides USD, his vast coaching experiences include stints at New Mexico State (1982-85); San Francisco State (1986); as Offensive Coordinator and Offensive Line Coach at Occidental (1987-90); Offensive Line Coach at CS Fullerton (1991-92); and Offensive Coordinator/Recruiting Coordinator at Redlands (1994).

MIKE RISH Receivers

Mike is beginning his 14th season on the Torero staff. Mike played for USD from 1979-83 and is the school's all-time career leader in three receiving categories: receptions (101), touchdowns (18) and receiving yardage (1,722 yards).

Mike graduated from USD with an Accounting degree in 1984. He is the Assistant Vice President for Secondary Marketing for Guild Mortgage Company in San Diego.

SHAY McCLURE Special Teams Coordinator/Inverts

Shay begins his first season with the Toreros where he will coach the Inverts on defense and be Special Teams Coordinator.

Shay is a 1994 graduate of Southern Oregon University where he earned his B.S. in Health Promotion & Fitness Management. A four-year letterman in football, Shay was a two-year starter at cornerback. From McCloud, California, Shay was a three-sport letter winner at McCloud High School, earning All-State football honors his senior year.

The past three seasons he was the Head Secondary Coach at Southern Oregon (1994-96). Shay and his wife, Stacey, reside in San Diego.

JONATHAN HYKES Running Backs

Jonathan begins his first season with the Toreros where he will coach the running backs. The past two years he coached at Ithica College in Ithica, New York. Last year he coached running backs and in '95 he was in charge of linebackers. A 1993 graduate of Case Western Reserve University (Cleveland, OH), Jonathan received his B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering. He played four years of football, the last three as a starting outside linebacker. His senior year he was Honorable Mention NCAC and 2nd Team UAA. From Dover, Ohio, he prepped at Indian Valley HS.

University (Cleveland, OH), Jonathan received his B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering. He played four years of football, the last three as a starting outside linebacker. His senior year he was Honorable Mention NCAC and 2nd Team UAA. From Dover, Ohio, he prepped at Indian Valley HS.

MARK MILLER Defensive Assistant

Mark is in his first year with the Toreros program where he will assist on defense. A 1997 graduate of Pacific, he earned his B.A. in Liberal Studies and played three years of baseball. He is currently working on his Teaching Credential at San Diego State. Last year he was assistant coach (linebackers) under his father at Linden High School in Linden, California.

JIM WACHENHEIM Defensive Coordinator/Linebackers

Jim enters his second season with the Torero staff as Defensive Coordinator and Linebackers coach.

Jim came to USD from Occidental College in Los Angeles where for three years (1993-95) he was Defensive Coordinator and Special Teams Coordinator. Prior to Occidental he held coaching positions at Cal State Fullerton (1991-92), ASU (1989-90), Pacific (1985-88) and North Central College (1983-85).

He played football at College of DuPage where he was a NJCAA Region 5 All-State defensive back and finished his playing career at North Central College in Naperville, Illinois. He graduated from North Central in 1978 where he earned a double major in Physical Education and Recreation.

Jim and his wife Kimberly have two daughters, Gretchen (5) and Hannah (2).

BOB THOMPSON Quarterbacks

Bob enters his second year with the USD staff where he will again coach the quarterbacks. Prior to USD he was the Defensive Coordinator and quarterbacks coach at Montclair Prep High School in Van Nuys, California for two seasons. The 1994 squad won the CIF Championship.

Prior to Montclair he held coaching positions at Occidental (1993); head coach at Bishop Montgomery HS (1992); head coach at Pius X (1991); head coach at Daniel Murphy HS (1990); quarterback/wide receiver coach at Occidental (1988, 1989) where they were two-time SCIAC Champs; and wide receiver coach at Nevada (1983-84), where they won the Big Sky title in 1983.

Bob earned his B.S. degree in Physical Education & Health in 1982 from Western Michigan University (he played wingback four years); and more recently earned his M.Ed. (emphasis in P.E.) from Azusa Pacific. Bob and his wife Jeannette have one son, Jamie (age 5), and reside in Bonita.

JASON GELBER Defensive Line

Jason begins his first season with the Toreros where he will coach the defensive line. The past three seasons Jason was a Coaches' Assistant on the Oakland Raiders staff. In 1993 he worked part-time with the Raiders staff and was OL/DL Coach at North Torrance High School in Torrance, California.

A 1993 graduate from USC, Jason earned his B.S. degree in Journalism. While at USC, Jason was Head Football Manager for four years (1989-92) on Larry Smith's teams. From Lincolnwood, Illinois (suburb of Chicago), Jason prepped at Niles West HS and lettered in football and track.

CHRIS CALNON Tight Ends

Chris begins his first season with the Toreros where he will coach the tight ends.

A 1996 graduate of Redlands with a B.S. degree in Business Economics. Chris was a two-time All-SCIAC performer as an offensive center, playing for the Bulldogs during 1994 & 1995. Prior to Redlands, Chris played two years at Citrus Junior College where he was First Team All-State and an Academic All-American.

From San Marino High School, Chris prepped at San Marino High School where he played three years of varsity football as an offensive lineman.

The 1997 football season marks the fifth year for the Pioneer Football League (PFL), a conference committed to operating a quality football program for the benefit of the student-athletes and the university community.

Formed in November of 1991, the Pioneer Football League is comprised of NCAA Division I universities that previously sponsored intercollegiate football at other levels. With the passing of NCAA legislation at the January 1991 convention, Division I institutions were required to conduct all intercollegiate sports at the same level. Therefore, the five charter members, Butler University, University of Dayton, Drake University, University of Evansville and Valparaiso University, joined together, sharing a common academic and athletic philosophy and a common commitment to operate quality football programs. In February, 1992, the University of San Diego joined the PFL for its inaugural season.

The PFL joins the Ivy and the Patriot Leagues as NCAA Division I-AA conferences that provide only need-based financial aid for football players. The conference remains a proponent of NCAA Division I-AAA legislation that would develop a classification for Division I football programs operating with need-based aid and adopted the moniker of Pioneer based on the intent to become one of the first I-AAA leagues.

COACHES COMMENTS

...ON COLLEGE VS. THE PROS

A good coach can coach at any level. It depends on the opportunity. The key is to be in the right environment and have the right owner or athletic director. That dictates a coach's life and success much more than anybody realizes.

One of the main differences between coaching at the pro and college levels is the relationship between the coach and player. Both the college and pro coach take on responsibility for the player's athletic performance, but a college coach also has to be aware of the player's academic progress and take care of his development of personal values and his behavior. You have to have a very close relationship with the athlete.

In professional football, it's more like an employer and employee. In the end, you're either going to trade them or cut them, one or the other. The college game, because of graduation, makes the relationship very different.

One of the biggest problems I had in the NFL was the aging player and knowing when to phase him out. The older a player gets, the better they are mentally, but their body is starting to fall apart. Having a sense of knowing when the player is about to go over the edge is a real skill.

A college coach must also deal with many different constituencies. Sometimes you feel like you're running for office every day because you're trying to deal with so many things, like recruiting, academics, booster groups and the like. In the NFL, you just go in and do the job and there aren't really the same outside problems. For me, the best part of coaching in the pros was after they kicked the ball off. Then you were in a big game against great players.

The NFL is very exciting. But you just can't find anything to compare with all the things that surround intercollegiate athletics and being on a college campus. Particularly if you have a sense of love for the place, as I do with USC.

Your ancestors had to deal with a new country,

the Great Depression,

job shortages and skyrocketing inflation.

Life was so much simpler then.

MATCHUPS TO WATCH

THE TEAMS: Michigan at Michigan State THE DATE: Oct. 25, 1997 LAST MEETING: 1996 — Wolverines 45, Spartans 29

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Paul Bunyan/Governor of Michigan trophy is on the line in this 90th meeting of intrastate rivals. Though the Wolverines have won twice as many games in this series, this annual matchup always provides ample entertainment. Indeed, when these teams last met in East Lansing, two years ago, 4-3-1 MSU knocked off a 7-1 Wolverine squad, 28-25.

THE TEAMS: Virginia Tech at West Virginia THE DATE: Oct. 25, 1997 LAST MEETING: 1996 — Hokies 31, Mountaineers 14

WHAT'S AT STAKE: This Appalachian showdown has gained steam since Tech asserted itself as the Beast of the Big East over the past few seasons. The Hokies pushed West Virginia's nationally ranked defense up and down the field a year ago and ended the Mountaineers' longshot Big East title bid, but with QB Jim Druckenmiller gone to the NFL, will Tech have the same offensive clout?

THE TEAMS: Montana at Northern Arizona THE DATE: Oct. 25, 1997 LAST MEETING: 1996 — Grizzlies 48, Lumberjacks 32

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Almost certainly the Big Sky championship bid and likely the top seed in the Division I-AA playoffs. Montana has ruled the Big Sky roost for years now, but the Lumberjacks — led by QB Travis Brown — are ready to take the final step toward national prominence. This should also be a battle for the Walter Payton Award, between Brown and Montana QB Brian Ah Yat.

THE TEAMS: Oklahoma at Nebraska THE DATE: Nov. 1, 1997 LAST MEETING: 1996 — Cornhuskers 73, Sooners 21

WHAT'S AT STAKE: While the Sooners lead this series, with 39 wins to the Huskers' 35, Nebraska has taken six straight and eight of nine since 1988. Although the Huskers have won the last three matchups by a combined score of 123-24 and won't hesitate to run it up on Oklahoma, the Sooners are usually capable of giving Nebraska fits.

DAYNE

FRESH OFF A STUNNING ROOKIE SEASON, WISCONSIN BATTERING RAM RON DAYNE MAY WELL MUSCLE THE HEISMAN FROM PEYTON MANNING.

What a difference a year makes. Last year, tailback Ron "Great" Dayne was not even listed in the Wisconsin media guide's four-deep depth chart. One year and 2,109 rushing yards later, the 5-foot-10, 261-pound, record-setting battering ram is prominently featured on the cover of the school's spring prospectus.

Dayne is not only the featured back in the Badgers' offset-I offense, he is the best back in college football and the player with the best chance to wrestle the Heisman Trophy away from prohibitive favorite Peyton Manning of Tennessee.

Before anyone quickly dismisses Dayne's chances of overtaking Manning, a little Heisman history is required. Last year the Volunteer signal-caller was the clear-cut favorite to win, but a horrendous first half in the loss to Florida derailed his chances and opened the door for Florida QB Danny Wuerffel.

In 1993, San Diego State's Marshall Faulk was expected to run away with the bronze statue, especially after his second-place Heisman finish in Even Utah's gang-tackling wasn't enough to stop "Great Dayne" from rolling for 246 yards and three touchdowns in last year's Copper Bowl, a 38-10 Wisconsin win.

1992. However, a versatile quarterback with a knack for winning named Charlie Ward from Florida State whisked away the award.

Historically speaking, Alan Ameche is the only Badger to win the Heisman (1954). Nicknamed "The Iron Horse," Ameche rushed for 3,345 yards and 25 touchdowns and helped the Badgers win 26 games from 1951 to 1954. In '54, Ameche rushed for 641 yards in nine games.

Dayne rushed for 628 yards in the club's final two games last year.

Not only does the soft-spoken back have history on his side, he has the credentials to boot. Dayne's 1996 rushing totals established a new Big Ten single-season record, eclipsing such gridiron greats as Lorenzo White (2,066 in 1985), Eddie George (1,927 in '95) and Tim Biakabutuka (1,818 in '95).

On the way, Dayne also set school marks for yards rushing in one game (339), yards rushing in a half (250), 200-yard games in one season (five), attempts in a season (325) and single-season scoring (126 points).

The Big Ten co-Freshman of the Year finished 13th in the Heisman balloting last year with a measly eight votes, but enters the '97 season as the second-leading vote-getter behind, you guessed it, Manning (81).

How and when did the Great One burst onto the scene? Wisconsin running backs coach Brian White pointed to the second half of the third game of the season, versus Stanford.

"We were struggling offensively the whole game," White said. "Carl [McCullough] and Aaron Stecker were playing most of the game and couldn't run the ball very effectively. We put Ron in, in the fourth quarter, and it just changed the complexion of the football game."

Dayne finished the Stanford game with 12 carries for 75 yards. One week later, against a bowl-bound Penn State team, Dayne started the game on the second string but did not stay there for long.

"We put him in the second series of the game, instead of the end of the game," White said. "He just played a great game against Penn State. Rushed for 130-some yards (24-129, two TD). So we knew at that time he was ready to start."

The rest, as they say, is history.

In six of the next nine games, Dayne rushed for over 100 yards. Even when Dayne was not putting up the eye-popping numbers, he was still impressive. Against Michigan State, Dayne rushed for 81 yards on 15 carries for a 5.4-yard average.

But when he's on, watch out. In the club's final three games, including the Copper Bowl, the Pine Hill, N.J. native rushed for 874 yards and 11 touchdowns on 107 carries. That translates into an average of 291 yards per game and an amazing 8.2 yards per carry.

McCullough, as the number-two back, finished Wisconsin's 8-5 season with a respectable 534 yards and three touchdowns on 117 carries, while Stecker placed third with 36 attempts for 292 yards and three scores.

A quiet man with little to say about his own abilities, Dayne describes his running style in simple terms. "I just go out there and play and then get ready for the next game."

Understandably, the Badgers finished the regular season with the Big Ten's top-rated ground game, averaging 241.1 yards. Wisconsin was ranked 12th nationally in the same category. In 1995 B.D. (Before Dayne), coach Barry Alvarez and Co. ranked 10th in the conference in rushing (128.9 ypg) and needed a road map and an apple to find the top 20 nationally.

There is so much more to Dayne's legacy than just the multiple rushing records. On Nov. 9, Dayne was having his best game of the season to date, versus Minnesota. Alvarez pulled the freshman out of the game after 40 carries and 230 yards. At the time, Wisconsin was comfortably ahead by 28 points. However, the Wisconsin offense ground to a halt and the Gophers rallied, pulling within 14 points. Alvarez reinserted Dayne in order to recapture the momentum.

An ice-cold Dayne returned to the lineup and carried the ball 10 times for 67 yards, including a 24-yard scamper, his second-longest run of the day.

"He was totally cooled down and we had to put him into a relatively difficult situation," White said. "The momentum was on their side and he broke their momentum with first down after first down after first down. It's nice to have someone you can rely on."

Dayne's 261-pound frame and superior speed make him perhaps the toughest running back in the nation to tackle.

After the game, Minnesota head coach Jim Wacker was just as impressed.

"He's the toughest kid in the Big Ten to bring down. He is as hard a runner as I've your nose and go after him the next time."

Syracuse defensive coordinator Norm Gerber is most impressed with Dayne's quickness. "His speed is what makes him an exceptional back," said Gerber.

The Orangemen had the unenviable task of taking on Dayne and the Badgers in this year's Kickoff Classic, held annually at Giants Stadium.

Playing in the Big East has exposed the Orange to quality ball carriers. Last year alone SU ranked second in rushing defense, allowing an average of 101.6 yards per game while facing the likes of Amos Zereoue of West Virginia, Omari Walker of Boston College and non-league foe Antowain Smith of Houston.

Gerber, who has been coaching for 40 years, the last 14 at Syracuse, compares Dayne favorably with former Pitt standout Craig "Ironhead" Heyward. According to Gerber, Dayne has the same size, vision and footwork that the former Falcons and current St. Louis Rams back has, but he feels the bruising Badger has better speed. Heyward finished fifth in the Heisman balloting in 1987.

As a 250-pound back at Overbrook High School in Pine Hill, Dayne earned consensus All-America honors after rushing for 1,785 yards and 24 touchdowns in his senior season. Dayne was also on the track team and broke his own state discus record and captured the Penn Relays shot put title in 1996.

He chose Wisconsin because several former Overbrook players attended the Madison university and had a favorable opinion of the program. Plus, it didn't hurt that Alvarez recruited the two-sport star to play running back rather than fullback, as most schools had.

Skeptics point out that Dayne will no longer benefit from the veteran, mammoth line that he ran behind last year. Wis-

Dayne's big rookie season gave Wisconsin coach Barry Alvarez plenty to clap about in 1996.

"I wouldn't trade him for any other football player in America."

Wisconsin running backs coach Brian White consin, which featured a unit averaging over 300 pounds per player, lost seven fifth-year seniors at the point of attack. Even though the 1997 unit will lack valuable game experience, size and strength will not be an issue. Wisconsin will once again feature an offensive front that resembles a line of major kitchen appliances, tipping the scales at 6-5 and 319 pounds per position. Included in that group is converted tight end Aaron Gibson (6-7, 390).

"They've got a solid group coming back," Gerber said.

This season, instead of Dayne benefiting from his offensive line, it is the line that will benefit from Dayne. Call it a reversal of fortune.

"I think blocking for a guy like Ron will allow our offensive line to mature a lot more quickly than they would if someone else was back there," White said.

"Will Ron achieve the same things he did last year? I don't know, but only time will tell."

Even with all his natural physical talent, Dayne and Wisconsin will benefit this year from a very favorable schedule. After the opener against Syracuse — a team that returns 12 starters from last year's 9-3 squad, including Heisman hopeful QB Donovan McNabb — the Badgers face a list of opponents that had a combined '96 record of 62-66. Even though there are five '96 bowl teams on the slate, there are also six teams that finished with four wins or fewer.

With Northwestern (Oct. 4) facing a rebuilding season, it is conceivable that Wisconsin will be undefeated heading into its Nov. 8 meeting with Iowa.

Dayne is seeking to become the first sophomore to win the Heisman. Only three sophomores in the 62-year history of the award have ever finished second: Notre Dame's Angelo Bertelli, Army's Glenn Davis and Georgia's Herschel Walker. All three eventually won the award.

For a back who has already rewritten so many chapters in the history books, becoming the first sophomore to actually win college football's most prized individual award does not seem that difficult.

"I wouldn't trade him for any other football player in America," said White.

It's tough to argue with that. **□

GOTTA HAVE IT

COLLEGE MERCHANDISING HAS EXPLODED INTO A BILLION-DOLLAR MONEY-MAKER, WITH NO END IN SIGHT.

University of Nebraska director of licensing and sales Chris Bahl remembers his trip to the annual sporting goods manufacturers' "Super Show" a few years back. The Cornhuskers were riding high on the football field, and the college merchandise industry was seeing blue. Talk about your great opportunities.

"We got hot at the right time," Bahl says. "All the top teams at the time were Notre Dame, Michigan, North Carolina and Duke, and their colors were all blue. I told retailers that we had a different look — our main school color is red — and that if they put our stuff on the shelves next to the other schools, it would sell."

Bahl was right. In 1996, Nebraska had a net licensing profit of $3.3 million, quite a boost from its pre-national championship days, when it was lucky to reach $1 million. Although it isn't close to the $6-8 million industry giant Michigan has been raking in during the last five years, it still represents a healthy revenue stream and indicates just how the merchandising industry has boomed in the last decade. Thanks to the ever-growing interest in college athletics, sophisticated marketing techniques and aggressive salesmanship by schools and manufacturers, product lines have blossomed, and distribution channels have become more diverse.

"Ten to 15 years ago, college merchandise was limited to what was available in university bookstores," says Dianne Kopf, public relations director for the Atlanta-based Collegiate Licensing Company, which serves as a licensing rep for more than 160 colleges. "The selection was also limited, as far as design."

CLC estimates that 1983 sales for all products were $250 million. In 1996, that figure hit $2.5 billion. In the early 1980s, colleges had no protection for their logos and trademarks, and much of what was available was unauthorized and generally of poor quality. As a result, they were afraid to enter into agreements with manufacturers, since they couldn't be sure whether how they would be represented. Compounding the problem was the reticence of university bookstore owners, who feared that any increase in distribution would hurt their own sales. It added up to a problem for consumers. Even though they demanded merchandise, they couldn't find it.

—Chris Bahl, Nebraska director of licensing and sales

CLC played a big role in breaking the logjam. In the late 1970s, Bill Battle, who played at Alabama under Bear Bryant and later coached at Tennessee, worked for a company that handled licensing of all products bearing Bryant's name or likeness. In order to do that, it also had to represent Alabama. Battle helped arrange agreements between the two parties and various manufacturers, ensuring high-quality merchandise and a steady stream of revenues. In 1983, he signed nine more schools in the Southeastern and Atlantic Coast conferences and formed CLC. Although the company doesn't represent all of the nation's big-name colleges, it has certainly impacted the industry in general and serves as a barometer for what schools are popular.

According to CLC, the sales leader among its clients for fiscal year 1997 was Michigan, followed by North Carolina, Kentucky, Florida, Penn State and Nebraska. One can imagine that schools like Notre Dame and Ohio State, which aren't represented by CLC, also have hefty licensing revenues.

"Licensing is a way to sell your school's success and make big money, without owing people favors or perks like you do in other marketing programs," Bahl says. "It used to be that athletic departments relied on donors, but if a guy gave $10,000, the school probably had to give him $12,000 in favors. Sponsorship packages are similar, because schools have to give their sponsors tickets, advertisements and other perks."

CLC reports that the manufacturer scoreboard is also topped by some familiar names. Leading the apparel side is Nike, with Starter second and Champion third. The non-apparel sales leader is video-game titan EA Sports, followed by Commemorative Brands/Artcarved, which makes school rings and like items, and Sony, another video game industry magnate. Kopf forecasts big growth for companies like EA Sports, which has been a player for only three years but is already at the top.

Bahl, meanwhile is bullish on licensing's potential, particularly at Nebraska. The school is opening a retail store in Memorial Stadium this year in the hopes of keeping its revenue stream flowing.

"We're staying aggressive," he says. And successful.

UP, UP AND AWAY

Since colleges took control over the licensing of their logos and trademarks in the early 1980s, retail sales of college merchandise have hit the ceiling. Below are the estimated sales, in billions of dollars, of college merchandise since 1983.

HOP ACROSS THE BORDER TO CANADA AND YOU'LL FIND A DIFFERENT BRAND OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL.

By Mike Fazioli

American sports fans tend not to think of their neighbors to the north as a foreign country. After all, there are Canadian franchises in the NBA and in Major League Baseball. The NHL, though now predominantly an American league, still has strong, deep Canadian roots. The cultures are similar and, with the exception of Quebec, the language is the same.

But Canada, as many of its citizens are quick to point out, is not the U.S. In case you forget, check out Canada's distinct version of college football.

Yes, Virginia, they play college football in Canada. But Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union football, whose rules are the same as those of the professional Canadian Football League, is not the same as our NCAA brand. The biggest differences are the 110-yard-long, 65-yard-wide field, three downs instead of four, and 12 players on the field instead of 11.

Based on talent, level of play and fan support, CIAU ball comes nowhere close to the Yanks' Division I football. The schools — all 24 of them — are far smaller and there are no athletic scholarships offered. Big money, which Division I schools depend on in the form of attendance, merchandising, television and bowl bids, is nonexistent.

"We're Division III," said Gordon Grace, first-year head coach at Mount Allison University of Sackville, New Brunswick. "There are a lot of similarities that way. Non-scholarship, fairly similar in terms of overall talent, we fit closest with Division III football. Financially, we just don't get the attendance to be able to justify giving scholarships. We don't have the dollars to compete in that way."

Grace can make the comparison first hand. Born in Chatham, Ontario — only a couple of hours from Ann Arbor and the Michigan Wolverines — Grace followed both NCAA and CIAU football growing up. His coaching career began at Wilfrid Laurier University (Waterloo, Ontario), but headed south when he was hired as a graduate assistant at Michigan.

Grace spent two seasons with the Wolverines before returning to Laurier as offensive coordinator in 1996. He was hired by Mount Allison in January. The differences he found crossing the border were, to say the least, like night and day. For starters, he has gone from being a member of Michigan's huge staff to being the top man of a full-time staff of one.

"I'm the only full-time coach," Grace said. "Sometimes I play secretary, sometimes I copy tapes, draw up new plays, call recruits...you wear all the hats here. Most of our assistants are volunteers.

"In the States there are so many resources. Ten full-time coaches, full-time strength coaches, full-time video

QUICK FACTS

- The CIAU consists of 24 schools, all in one division and broken down into four conferences: Canada West Universities Athletic Association, Ontario Universities Athletic Association, Ontario-Quebec Interuniversity Football Conference and Atlantic Universities Athletic Association.
- The national championship is decided by a playoff system in which each conference holds a title game and sends the winner to the national semifinal games: the Churchill Bowl and the Atlantic Bowl. Those winners advance to the Vanier Cup, played annually at Toronto's SkyDome.
- The CIAU's version of the Heisman Trophy, the Hec Creighton Trophy, is named after one of Canadian college football's pioneers and author of the official rule book of Canadian football.

staff, therapists, all that. They develop the athletes much more than we're able to."

Mind you, Grace isn't complaining. CIAU fans and administrators aren't expecting their teams to challenge the Michigans and Notre Dames south of the border. With no scholarships on the table, the student-athletes choose their universities as much by academic reputation as by athletic reputation, if not more so. There are no cutthroat recruiting wars, no hard-core wooing of athletes.

"For the quality of coaching life, it's much better up here for me," Grace said. "There's not nearly as much pressure. What you give up here is the big money, TV, big crowds. But I still get a lot of satisfaction here. It's fun, and that's important."

There is some competition for players, however, coming from the American schools. Mainly in western and southern Ontario and the Toronto area, a number of Canadian high school players are recruited by U.S. schools, with Michigan, Ohio State and Syracuse the main recruiters. Florida has gotten into the act, grabbing quarterback Jesse Palmer from Ottawa.

"That's really more of an Eastern phenomenon," said Saskatchewan head coach Brian Towriss, a two-time national championship winner and four-time Canada West Coach of the Year. "Out here, we get one kid every three or four years who goes Division I. Aside from that, most of the kids who go south end up in Division II or NAIA."

Then there is the unavoidable fact that football in Canada competes head-to-head for the best young athletes with the national passion: hockey.

"The best athletes here still grow up with skates on their feet," Towriss said. "They're going to play hockey until they're 15 or 16, when Midget hockey ends. They find out by then if they have a shot at going pro. Some of them who don't then will gravitate toward football. We get a lot of those kids."

To understand just how great the differences between the CIAU and NCAA are, it's helpful to keep a few facts in mind. The biggest source of disparity undoubtedly lies in sheer numbers: Population-wise, Canada is but a tenth the size of the U.S. (29,857,369 in 1996, compared to the States' 1990 Census total of 265,089,998). That's a staggering difference in size of talent pool.

Football also evolved differently and more slowly in Canada than in the U.S. Prior to World War II, most Canadian teams were still playing a hybrid of football and rugby. The forward pass wasn't adopted until 1931 (35 years later than in the U.S.) and a touchdown was not set at six points until 1956.

American college football in the 1920s, playing with virtually the same rules as today, was already drawing crowds in excess of 100,000, when Canadian football was still in its infancy.

The record crowd for the CIAU championship game, the Vanier Cup, is 32,877, set in 1989 — the first year the game was played at Toronto's Sky-

"All we see are the huge programs, like Notre Dame with 80,000 fans or Michigan with 100,000. We see that and say, 'Holy cow.'"

Saskatchewan head coach Brian Towriss

THE FEW, THE PROUD

The comparisons between CIAU and lower-division U.S. football also extend to the NFL. Players making the pros from Canadian schools are rare, but they do exist. Former Eagles lineman Mike Shad (Queen's), Bills fullback Tim Tindale (Western Ontario) and Chargers defensive back Mike Montreuil (Concordia) are some of the recent notables who made the jump.

"It's a remarkable story when a CIAU player can make it in the NFL," Mount Allison University coach Gordon Grace said. "If you have the talent, there's a way to get there. But it's not like hockey. Here everyone knows someone who's made it in the NHL. Almost nobody knows anyone who's made it in the NFL."

Perhaps the biggest CIAU success story in the NFL has been wide receiver Tyrone Williams, a Halifax native and Western Ontario grad who won two Super Bowl rings with the Dallas Cowboys in 1992 and '93. After a stint in the CFL, Williams is back in the NFL with the Miami Dolphins.

An All-Canada pick in his junior and senior seasons and Most Valuable Player of the 1989 Vanier Cup, Williams was selected by the Phoenix Cardinals in the ninth round of the '92 NFL Draft...and that was just the start of his rough adjustment.

"I was nine days late to camp because I was having visa problems," he said. "That put me back even further. But it was a blessing in disguise, because the Cardinals released me and I was signed to Dallas' practice squad. Spending a year on the practice squad was the best thing for me. I definitely needed that time to make the adjustment to U.S. football."

His story can be an example for other CIAU players casting an eye on the longshot prize of playing in the NFL. "I tell them to practice diligently, get in as much preparation as possible and to be ready when that chance comes. Because when it does, it can come and go very quickly. You have to be ready."

Tyrone Williams parlayed his All-Canada collegiate career at Western Ontario into two Super Bowl rings with the Dallas Cowboys.

Dome. The game usually draws around 25,000. On the whole, CIAU schools have attendance figures that fit somewhere between Division II and III programs: in the neighborhood of 4,000 to 5,000 fans per game.

"You don't have the same kind of thing [in Canada] where people live and breathe for weekend sports," Towriss said. "People are more interested in the outdoor things, like going to the lake and things like that."

"All we see for [U.S.] college football is what's on TV on Saturday afternoons...the huge programs, like Notre Dame with 80,000 fans or Michigan with 100,000. We see that and say, 'Holy cow.'"

Saskatchewan's 10,000-fan games are definitely on the high end of the CIAU's attendance chart. Schools in the Eastern and Pacific parts of the country, Towriss said, have to compete for fans with CFL, NFL and Division I teams. Western Ontario is full of Buffalo Bills fans, along with Michigan, Ohio State and Syracuse fans. Vancouver-area fans gravitate toward Washington and Oregon college teams and the NFL's Seattle Seahawks.

In Saskatoon, a two-day drive from Minneapolis, home of the closest major U.S. teams, the CFL's Roughriders and Towriss'

Huskies are the only game in town.

But the competition is there, as are the rivalries. Western Ontario — the "Michigan of the North," as it is called by some Canadian fans — is more like the Notre Dame of the North. Western is the standard-bearer of football success in Canada, much like the Fighting Irish are in the States. Everyone, it seems, wants a piece of Western. Acadia and St. Mary's have the biggest grudge in the Maritimes, and Calgary and defending Vanier Cup champion Saskatchewan have been Western Canada's version of Florida and Florida State in the 1990s.

"When you strip it all down, it's the same: 18- and 19-year-old athletes, meeting challenges in the classroom and on the field," Grace said. "There are a lot of similarities. You're still coaching young athletes and dealing with personalities and all that."

"But down in the States it's a business. When you have that level of commitment and that much money involved, it means the expectations are that much higher. Here it varies from program to program. You won't get fired if you go 2-6 one year, where in the States you just may." □

Rulebook Headaches

YOU BE THE REF!

The rare play, quirky bounce or bizarre situation can give college football referees instant headaches, especially since they are expected to make immediate decisions during the heat of battle. Under the gun, could you make the right call? Touchdown Illustrated gives you the whistle. Below are rulebook headaches designed to test your knowledge of the game. YOU BE THE REF!

Headache #3

Texas vs. Nebraska. Facing fourth down and eight on the Nebraska 40-yard line, Texas decides to attempt a long field goal. Unfortunately, kicker Phil Dawson's try comes up just short, hitting the ground in the end zone. The ball then bounces out to the Cornhusker 3-yard line, where it is touched by Nebraska defensive back Ralph Brown.

You're the ref: Whose ball is it and where should it be spotted?

Answer:

It is Nebraska's ball at its own 40-yard line. Rule 6, Section 3, Article 9 states: "The ball becomes dead and belongs to the team defending its goal line when a scrimmage kick is untouched by Team B beyond the neutral zone before touching the ground on or behind Team B's goal line."

Headache #1

Auburn vs. Louisiana State. Auburn is forced to punt and LSU's dangerous return tandem of Rondell Mealey and Kevin Faulk are back to receive. Faulk, after signaling for a fair catch on his 20-yard line, intentionally lets the ball hit the ground. Mealey then grabs the ball on the 22 and runs until he is tackled on the LSU 35-yard line.

You're the ref: Where is the ball spotted?

Answer:

The ball is dead at the spot of recovery and cannot be advanced, according to Rule 6, Section 5, Article 2, which prohibits any player from carrying "a caught or recovered ball more than two steps in any direction after a valid, invalid or illegal fair catch signal by" one of his teammates. Hence LSU takes possession, first and 10, at its own 17-yard line after a five-yard penalty is assessed because of the illegal fair-catch advance.

Headache #2

Syracuse vs. Miami. Syracuse free safety Donovan Darius intercepts a pass intended for Miami receiver Magic Benton on the Orangemen's 10-yard line. Blocking for Darius during the runback, linebacker Antwaune Ponds pushes Benton in the back at the Syracuse 24-yard line. Meanwhile, Darius is finally tackled at the 50-yard line.

You're the ref: Whose ball is it and where is it spotted?

Answer:

It is Syracuse's ball because the interception took place before the penalty. After Syracuse gets penalized 10 yards for an illegal block in the back, in accordance with Rule 9, Section 3, Article 3-c, it takes possession, first and 10, on its own 14-yard line.

Headache #4

Notre Dame vs. Penn State. On a key fourth down and five play from the Notre Dame 20-yard line, Penn State tailback Curtis Enis rushes to the 16-yard line, where he fumbles after being hit. The ball is still loose at the 10-yard line when Fighting Irish linebacker Kory Minor bats the ball backward and out of bounds at the 5-yard line.

You're the ref: Whose ball is it and where should it be spotted?

Answer:

Because the ball is batted backward, the bat is legal and it is Notre Dame's ball at its own 16-yard line since Penn State failed to make a first down. Rule 9, Section 4, Article 1-c prohibits any player from batting loose balls forward when they are in the field of play or in any direction when they are in the end zone.

MIDDLE MARCH

THE PAC-10 IS STILL THE CRADLE OF GREAT QUARTERBACKS, BUT PARITY HAS MADE THE CONFERENCE A NON-FACTOR IN THE NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP RACE.

When Arizona State's Jake Plummer was the first quarterback chosen in the 1997 NFL Draft, the Pacific-10's reputation as the preeminent producer of college passers was once again reinforced. Pac-10 alums John Elway, Troy Aikman and Drew Bledsoe were among the conference's seven NFL starters last season.

By Jack Magruder

Yet when Plummer brought ASU within 19 seconds of an undefeated season and what might have been a national championship in the Rose Bowl last season, the Pac-10 was on foreign turf, at least lately. While the conference continues to develop stellar players, its teams have not been as prevalent on the national scene as in the days of the USC-UCLA-Washington axis.

"We had one formation that we used maybe 10 percent of the time each game," ASU coach and former Southern California assistant Bruce Snyder said last spring, remembering his time at USC in 1974-75.

"One day I'm standing next to [legendary USC coach John] McKay and we are practicing that formation. McKay said, 'We could stay in that formation all season long and go undefeated.' At USC, it was almost arrogance."

No Pac-10 school can afford such cheek these days. When ASU ran the conference table at 8-0 last season, it was the first unbeaten league champion since Washington went 12-0 and was voted half of the national title in 1991. ASU, 11-1 and

No. 4 in both polls last year, was the first Pac-10 school to finish in the top eight of either national ranking since 1991, when Cal (No. 7) joined Washington.

The conference has become a textbook study in parity. Five teams — ASU, USC, Oregon, UCLA and Washington — have represented the Pac-10 in the Rose Bowl the past five years. Only three teams have won 10 games in that span, and two did not even win the league. Meanwhile, every team but Oregon State has won nine games or more at least once since 1991, but only three have done it twice. In the same period, every team except Washington has suffered at least one sub-.500 league record.

"It really makes it fun. You have a chance every year. So much of the time, it has not been predictable," said Arizona coach Dick Tomey.

But one man's fun is another's fumble. "The thing I fear is that we are not producing many great teams, but that the conference is shrinking toward the middle," said USC coach John Robinson, who won three Rose Bowls from 1977 to '80, and turned the trick again in 1996 after returning from a stint with the NFL's Los Angeles Rams (1983-91). A lot of things changed while he was gone.

"The normal cycles are involved, but other things have enhanced that process," Robinson said. "Certainly

Last season, Arizona State, the fifth Pac-10 team to play in the Rose Bowl in five years, was the first to make a serious run at the national championship since 1991.

the amount of recruiting that is done on the West Coast has accelerated every year from teams outside the state.

"I think the general emphasis on high school sports has dropped in California. So there is more invasion of the talent pool, and maybe the talent pool is not quite as good as it was. There seem to be more players from the West Coast interested in getting away."

But Washington head coach Jim Lambright, whose Huskies have been the league's most successful team in recent years, knows that in order to keep up with the elite teams of Division I, the bottom line is being able to produce a consistent winner.

"When recruiting is your lifeline, certainly the program's stability has to be the most impressive," he said "It allows you to sell history. It allows you to use success as a tool for building more success."

In the Pac-10's case, such success can come none too soon. EJ

Be ready

Nothing ignites the spirit of athletes like a serious challenge.

And nothing helps them rise to it like a low-fat, highly nutritious

PowerBar® energy bar.

Its unique formulation gives your body

the energy it needs to reach and sustain its optimal level of performance.

So next time you have a challenge to meet, rely on a PowerBar®.

Want to help San Diego win?

“Winning” at San Diego is not just scoring more points than the opposition. It’s about adherence to academic standards and NCAA rules regarding recruitment and enrollment of student-athletes. So how can you help San Diego win? Follow the rules. By USD’s definition, you’re a representative of San Diego just by being an alumnus/a, parent or fan. Therefore, the following pertains to you.

San Diego has a long tradition of winning on the field as well as off the field.

NCAA BYLAW 13.01.5.1

In Division I, representatives of an institution’s interests are prohibited from making in-person, or on- or off-campus recruiting contacts, or written or telephonic communications with a prospect or the prospect’s relatives or legal guardians. A prospect is any student athlete who has started class for the ninth grade.

- Even a phone call congratulating a prospect on signing to attend San Diego is a violation and could make that prospect ineligible.
- If you know of a high school student-athlete that might be considering San Diego DO NOT contact that prospect, their coach, parents, relatives or high school coaches/administrators.
- If you wish, it is permissible to call the Department of Athletics and notify the appropriate coach about a prospect; only the coach may initiate communication with a prospect.

Additionally ...

a representative may not provide any extra benefit to an enrolled student-athlete or their family. An “extra benefit” would include provision of any transportation, meals, clothes, entertainment, preferential loan terms or other benefits to a student-athlete unavailable to the general student population. Simply put, you may not treat student-athletes any differently than other students.

- If you have a question about what you can or cannot do, please ASK before you ACT. Call the USD Athletic Department at (619) 260-4803.

TOREROS

What Is A Torero?

A Torero is a Mexican Bullfighter. Prior to 1963, the University of San Diego's nickname was the "Pioneers."

The origin of the university's Torero nickname is unknown, but the founding father of the University of San Diego, Bishop Buddy, was quite fascinated with Mexican history and it is believed that the unique nickname is a result of his influence.

HEISMAN TROPHY QUIZ

1 1970 winner Jim Plunkett of Stanford went on to have a successful NFL career. What two other longtime NFL quarterbacks finished second and third in the 1970 Heisman balloting?

2 Archie Griffin is the only two-time Heisman winner. What player won the award as a junior and finished second in the balloting as a senior?

- a) O.J. Simpson
- b) Roger Staubach
- c) Billy Sims
- d) Herschel Walker

3 Aside from Ohio State, what are the only two schools to produce back-to-back Heisman winners?

- a) Army and Yale
- b) Notre Dame and Southern Cal
- c) Southern Cal and Oklahoma
- d) Army and Notre Dame

4 Alcorn State QB Steve McNair's third-place finish in the 1994 balloting was only the second time a non-Division I-A player finished in the top three. Who was the other player to finish third?

- a) Jerry Rice, Mississippi Valley State, 1984
- b) Gordie Lockbaum, Holy Cross, 1987
- c) Doug Williams, Grambling, 1977
- d) Neil Lomax, Portland State, 1980

5 1991 winner Desmond Howard was named the Most Valuable Player of Super Bowl XXXI. Who are the three other Heisman winners to win the Super Bowl MVP award?

6 How many linemen have won the Heisman Trophy?

- a) 3
- b) 2
- c) 1
- d) none

7 This player (pictured right) edged out Iowa quarterback Chuck Long in the closest Heisman vote ever to win the award in 1985. Who is he?

8 What quarterback ended an 11-year streak of running backs winning the Heisman Trophy?

- a) Pat Sullivan, Auburn, 1971
- b) Andre Ware, Houston, 1989
- c) Roger Staubach, Navy, 1963
- d) Doug Flutie, Boston College, 1984

9 Glenn Davis of Army finished second in the Heisman voting in both 1944 and 1945 before winning in 1946. Who is the only other player to finish in the top three of the Heisman vote three times?

- a) O.J. Simpson, Southern Cal
- b) Earl Campbell, Texas
- c) Herschel Walker, Georgia
- d) Archie Griffin, Ohio State

10 True or False: Jim Brown never finished in the top three of the Heisman Trophy vote.

ANSWERS

1. Joe Theismann (Notre Dame) and Archie Manning (Mississippi); 2. c) Billy Sims; 3. a) Army (Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis, 1945-46) and Yale (Larry Kelley and Clint Frank, 1936-37); 4. b) Gordie Lockbaum, third in 1987 behind Tim Brown and Don McPherson; 5. Roger Staubach (Super Bowl VI) and Jim Plunkett (Super Bowl XV) and Marcus Allen (Super Bowl XVIII); 6. b) Larry Kelley (1936) and Leon Hart (1949); 7. Bo Jackson; 8. d) Doug Flutie, 1984; 9. c) Herschel Walker (third in 1980, second in 1981 and winner in 1982); 10. True — he was fifth in 1956, behind winner Paul Hornung, Johnny Majors, Tommy McDonald and Jerry Tubbs.

SIMPLY GREAT HEISMAN MOMENTS

The long and storied history of the Heisman Trophy is filled with tales of great athletes overcoming great odds. For courage, character and sheer determination in the face of adversity, however, perhaps no story can match that of 1970 winner Jim Plunkett.

Plunkett's background could have come straight from a Horatio Alger story. His parents were poor and uneducated, and blind as well. His father supported his wife and three children by running a newspaper stand at a post office in San Jose, Calif. Jim delivered papers and worked as a gas station attendant and grocery clerk to supplement the family's meager income.

Throwing a football would be Jim's ticket out of poverty. He reached his full height of 6-foot-3 early on, and developed a throwing arm powerful and accurate enough to earn him a scholarship to Stanford. It took less than a year for another formidable obstacle to be thrown in his way, though, as a tumor was discovered on his thyroid gland. It proved to be benign, but the operation to remove it weakened him. He played three lackluster games at quarterback for Stanford as a freshman in 1966 — so lackluster that coach John Ralston thought Plunkett's 203-pound frame was better suited for defensive end. Plunkett resisted the move, and took a redshirt in 1967 to develop his quarterbacking skills.

He returned in 1968 and quickly established himself as Stanford's starter. He threw for 2,156 yards and 14 touchdowns that season, then came back with even bigger numbers in 1969, rolling up 2,673 yards and 20 touchdowns through the air.

Because of his redshirt season, Plunkett was eligible to enter the NFL Draft following the 1969 season. He was already a highly touted pro prospect and stood to cash in on a lucrative contract. But he opted to stay. Not only did he want to come back in 1970 for one more crack at the Pacific-8 Conference championship and a Rose Bowl berth, but, he said at the time, he also wanted to set an example for other minority students (Plunkett is Mexican-American) by staying in school and earning his degree.

By the time the 1970 season was over, Plunkett had accomplished all his goals. He completed 191 of 358 passes for 2,715 yards, and finished with 2,898 yards of total offense (breaking the Pac-8 record), including a 275-yard effort in Stanford's 24-14 win over Southern Cal and a 22-of-36, 268-yard, four-TD performance in a 29-22 win over Washington.

Plunkett had plenty of Heisman competition. The 1970 college football class was full of star quarterbacks who would go on to NFL: Notre Dame's Joe Theismann and Mississippi's Archie Manning were the prime competition, along with Lynn Dickey, Dan Pastorini and Ken Anderson. In the end, however, it was the humble and soft-spoken Plunkett who stepped up to the dais at New York's Downtown Athletic Club to accept the trophy.

Soon after, as if to prove his Heisman worthiness, Plunkett took the field for his final collegiate game — the 1971 Rose Bowl against unbeaten and top-ranked Ohio State — and completed 20-of-30 passes for 265 yards in Stanford's 27-17 shocker over the Buckeyes, capping a college career in which he tallied a then-NCAA-record 7,544 passing yards.

Chosen first overall in the 1971 NFL Draft by the New England, Plunkett's Cinderella story continued. After suffering numerous injuries and setbacks, his career rebounded with the Oakland/L.A. Raiders, whom he led to Super Bowl victories in 1980 and '83, winning MVP honors in Super Bowl XV. Plunkett played 17 seasons before retiring — yet another testament to the unyielding will of one of the great underdog Heisman winners in history.

A CONVERSATION WITH... MARV LEVY

THE FOUR-TIME SUPER BOWL COACH OF THE BUFFALO BILLS HAS NOT FORGOTTEN THAT HE GOT HIS START AS A PLAYER AND COACH AT DIVISION III COE COLLEGE.

By Dan Herbst

Having led the Buffalo Bills to a record four consecutive Super Bowls, two-time United Press International NFL Coach of the Year Marvin Daniel Levy is now in his 12th season at the Bills' helm. One of the most well-rounded men in professional sports, the former Phi Beta Kappa at Division III Coe College holds a master's degree in English History from Harvard. Touchdown Illustrated recently caught up Levy, whose coaching career has spanned five decades.

TOUCHDOWN ILLUSTRATED: You were a three-sport athlete at Coe.

LEVY: I played football and track. In my senior year six or seven kids got caught drinking after a game and they were kicked off of the basketball team. They recruited some of the better players out of the intramural league. I wound up starting and did letter.

TDI: What's the best thing you got from playing college football?

LEVY: The associations in a hard, concerted effort with teammates and with the coaches I had. I was fortunate to have had some unbelievable individuals as my coaches at Coe, Harris Lamb and Dick Clausen, who eventually hired me back at Coe. Mostly, it's the association with teammates with whom I still communicate and look forward to seeing when we get back on the campus.

TDI: What are the substantive differences between today's athletes and previous generations?

LEVY: Coaches have become more educated in how to deal with people. Coaching isn't as dictatorial as it used to be. I'm not as dictatorial as I was when I started. People, whether now or then, whatever size, shape, color, or age, are pretty much the same. The difference is that the pressures on athletics are even greater now. I wonder if it's as much fun now as it was when I played. There was a tremendous recognition that the athlete was there for an education first. I don't know if that still prevails.

TDI: Your Bills roster always seems to include players from non-traditional football schools. Did those athletes sacrifice anything by not attending a so-called football factory?

LEVY: I went that route and I don't feel I hindered myself. Each individual has different needs and ought to assess them. I regret those who assess where they're going to school based primarily on the athletic program. More and more in big college programs, the choices being made have nothing to do with education.

Don't get me wrong. We have a lot of guys here who came out of big-time programs who are very concerned about their education and who do have values which go beyond the athletic field. But I think that number is diminishing.

TDI: Did (all-time Division III rushing leader) Carey Bender lose anything athletically by going to Coe instead of a Division I school?

LEVY: In my opinion, no. He certainly had a great career. He loved it there. He got a good education. He graduated. He met his wife there. Carey could have gone to Iowa State or some other place. Would he have gotten as much of a chance? I don't know. They might have looked at him and said he's too small. At least at a smaller school you get the chance quickly if you've got ability.

TDI: There is a certain charm to a Saturday afternoon in Grinnell, Iowa or Beloit, Wisconsin.

LEVY: During the NFL strike they televised a small-college game. They showed players pulling in on rickety school buses and eating pregame meals out of brown paper bags in the stands. It was like somebody was doing a Forrest Gump movie or something.

A few years ago our bye week came during Coe's homecoming. My wife and I went back. She was just so taken by the scene. We could see the little neighborhood houses off in the background and some kids way down in the end zone were playing with Frisbees during the game. There is a charm to it.

TDI: Why is that level of the game not as revered or respected as the other levels?

LEVY: It depends on what you revere and respect. I certainly do. And I hope there are others who do. I coached for a while in the Canadian Football League. One of the reasons that the CFL is struggling is because of how the NFL games on TV have been so glamorized. The same thing prevails in college. A young kid sees Ohio State versus Michigan and there's where the glitter lies. It doesn't lie in going to Denison or Heidelberg or Grinnell.

TDI: What would you say to the 20-year-old kid who really looks like he's a big-time pro star in the making?

LEVY: He's an injury away from his career being over in a game where injuries occur. Very few players do earn that kind of money. And three or four years after all first-round draft choices are picked, only 30 percent of them are still in the league.

TDI: What's your perception of the priorities of today's "typical" college football coach?

LEVY: Most are well-intentioned.

Most would love to be in an environment where they're helpful and meaningful in the lives of the young players they're coaching. They'd like to teach good values. Sure, they are people with a high competitive bent to their personalities. There are extremely few coaches I've ever known or competed against whom I've disliked. Most of those I've gotten to know, I've liked 'em and had admiration for their qualities. And I feel good around them. One of the finer people in coaching right now is Tom Osborne. And yet he's had five or six or 10 situations where players have gotten in trouble. The impression in many areas with people who don't know him is that he doesn't give a damn. He cares greatly. It's a shame that he's gotten himself in a funny mix there.

TDI: Speaking of perspectives, Rowan College has gotten to three of the last four Division III title games without winning once. Why do we as a society say that a team like that loses the big one instead of admiring what they've accomplished?

LEVY: I can relate to that, of course. We've gone four times to the Super Bowl and haven't won one of them. I don't know who the coach is (at Rowan), or if it's the same coach, but he's done a hell of a job if he's gotten them that far that many times. And I think that other coaches recognize that. A person who has not been in the competitive arena in some way or another — and I don't mean that he has to be athletically competitive, it could be whatever field he's in — finds it easier to call other people "losers." The guy who hasn't laid it on the line very often is more likely to find flaws in others.

Levy (16) as a track star at Coe College in the 1950s. He also played football and basketball at the small Iowa school before launching his coaching career.

TDI: We see fewer kids who want to play youth football. If you were to talk to parents of a young kid about what football can give to that child, what would you tell them?

LEVY: You're treading on difficult ground when you try to take over parenting. I don't think a coach ought to meddle in the parent-child relationship. I would never urge anyone to play the game. You have to gravitate to it. Football caught my fancy when I was young. But it's a hard game. I see a lot of coaches now who played pro football who are walking around with hip and knee transplants and bad arthritis.

TDI: Looking at the state of college football today, what is there about the game that makes you feel good?

LEVY: The same things that attracted me initially. It's exciting and that's why you participate in sports. There's a lot of fun associated with it. Not just the players on the field but the students in the stands. It does help create a bond with alumni. It's a rallying point. There are a lot of good things about it. □

NORMAN CONQUEST

OKLAHOMA'S 47-GAME WINNING STREAK, BORN AFTER A 1953 LOSS TO NOTRE DAME, WAS STOPPED BY THE IRISH MIDWAY THROUGH THE '57 SEASON.

By Jack Clary

November 16, 1957: A most improbable day that ended in a most implausible way in Norman, Oklahoma. With 63,170 fans at Owen Field staring in disbelief and tens of thousands more watching on their black-and-white television sets, Notre Dame stunned the top-ranked Oklahoma Sooners 7-0 and ended college football's longest winning streak ever at 47 games.

The streak had begun in the third game of the 1953 season and wound its way through the first seven games of the '57 season. At both ends of the streak was Notre Dame.

The last time the Sooners had lost was to the top-ranked Irish, 28-21, in the opening game of the 1953 season. After a 7-7 tie against Pitt the following week of that season, Oklahoma reeled off 47 straight victories and was an 18-point favorite to make it 48. The game had even been declared the centerpiece of the state's 50th anniversary celebration that year.

The '50s were the heyday of Oklahoma football. Coach Bud Wilkinson served up a split-T formation offense that had terrorized opponents for almost a decade with a combination of speed and deception. Entering the game, the Sooners had compiled a 94-6-2 record since 1947, won national titles in 1950, '55 and '56, and appeared headed for an unprecedented third straight crown.

The Irish, under fourth-year coach Terry Brennan, were struggling to regain their football identity after a dismal 2-8 season the previous year, which included a 40-0 lacing by the Sooners. They were a young, gritty, hard-working team that included halfback Dick Lynch, a six-foot, 185-pound New Jersey native and the only senior on the starting unit. Compared to the Sooners, though, they were slow afoot, but on this day, gritty toughness and determination overcame athletic skill.

Early on, the Sooners moved the ball easily until they got deep into ND territory, where the Irish stopped them on three occasions. But Oklahoma was just as tough, stuffing the Irish at OU's 3-yard line and later at the six.

At halftime Brennan told his team, "Just slant, gap and blow. Forget the several bad breaks and just bear down for 30 minutes. Change the plays and keep mixing them up. This is the big half."

The standoff continued until late in the fourth quarter, when Notre Dame relentlessly marched to Oklahoma's 8-yard line. Fullback Nick Pietrosante got four yards on first down, Lynch was stopped without a gain on second, then quarterback Bob Williams added one on a sneak. Brennan considered attempting a field goal on fourth down, but he didn't like the windy conditions, so he let everything hang on one running play — a pitchout to Lynch running around right end. Oklahoma's linebackers were so conscious of Pietrosante's running that they converged on him at the slightest movement, so Williams faked an inside handoff to his big fullback, then pitched the ball to Lynch, who had a clear path to the end zone for the winning score.

"I could have run 95 yards with that kind of blocking," said Lynch, adding with a smile, "It might have taken a while, but the way we blocked the play, there was nothing in front of me."

The next day, columnist John Cronley in the Daily Oklahoman expressed local reaction: "Russia's two Sputniks collided in mid-air. The sun set in the east. Hitler was discovered alive in Washington, D.C. And almost as incredibly, Oklahoma University lost a football game."

In South Bend, the reaction obviously was more pleasant, as Notre Dame's administration declared a school holiday the following Monday. □

A LONG-DISTANCE VICTORY

A last-play Brett Favre "Hail Mary" lifted the Golden Eagles of Southern Mississippi past Louisville.

Long before Green Bay Packers quarterback Brett Favre was producing "Merriwell Finishes" in the NFL, he was working miracles for the Golden Eagles of Southern Mississippi.

The Louisville Cardinals and their faithful found that out the hard way on Oct. 14, 1989.

Coach Howard Schnellenberger's Cardinals, led by junior quarterback Browning Nagle, entertained bowl hopes. The Golden Eagles were 2-4, but also were dangerous and unpredictable. They proved that in their opener when they upset highly ranked Florida State, 30-26.

A crowd of 34,484, then the second-largest in Cardinals history, saw what should have been an air duel instead become a defensive struggle. Eddie Ray Jackson completed a 45-yard, eight-play drive with a 5-yard run to give Southern Miss a 7-0 lead.

But Louisville responded. After a Southern Miss punt backed up the Cards to their own 8, Nagle and the offense marched 92 yards in 14 plays, using 6:32. Carwell Gardner went the final two yards to tie the game at 7. The score remained tied at halftime.

Southern Miss took a 10-7 lead on its opening drive of the second half. The key was an 11-yard Favre scramble on fourth-and-two at the Louisville 34.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Cardinals again tied the game. Ron Bell hit a field goal from 26 yards, completing a 62-yard, 10-play drive.

After the teams traded interceptions, the Cardinals forced Southern Miss to punt, and took the ball at their own 20 with 2:30 remaining.

Nagle ran the two-minute offense to perfection, moving the Cards to the Golden Eagles' 26 with 23 seconds remaining. But a go-ahead field goal attempt was blocked.

Southern Miss had the ball at its own 33 with 13 seconds remaining. The Golden Eagles also had Brett Favre, who would not settle for a tie.

On first down, Favre was sacked for a 5-yard loss. With time for one more play and the goal line 79 yards away, he dropped back to pass. But this time the elusive Favre escaped the Cardinals' furious pass rush and hurled the ball toward a crowd downfield.

The ball deflected off Southern Miss receiver Michael Jackson and into the hands of teammate Darryl Tillman, who ran the final 16 yards into end zone. Southern Miss had pulled out an improbable 16-10 victory.

"We had it covered and I just remember that someone tipped it, but I didn't see who. Their guy just happened to be there," said Louisville DB John Gainey, fumbling for an explanation of the game-ending play. Gainey was not alone in disbelief. The coaches were just as shocked.

"I've never been in a situation where the ball is thrown exactly like that. It was exactly where you want it to be," gleamed winning coach Curley Hallman.

"It's a very tough loss. It was a very frustrating loss for the football team," said a surlier-than-usual Schnellenberger.

USM would win three of its next four games, while Louisville, perhaps a bit shell-shocked by Favre's heroics, would lose its next two and stumble to a 6-5 finish.

The next year, Nagle would lead Louisville to a school-best 10-1-1 record, including a 31-7 torching of Alabama in the Fiesta Bowl. Ironically, their only loss came against Favre and Southern Miss.

Long before he was winning MVP awards and Super Bowls for Green Bay, Brett Favre was fashioning miracle finishes for the Golden Eagles of Southern Miss.

Brett Favre has raised his game to an even higher level in the NFL. He has earned back-to-back Most Valuable Player awards, and, thanks to a long-distance hookup with Andre Rison, led the Packers to victory in Super Bowl XXXI.

Favre also continues make last-minute believers out of opposing players and coaches, having authored 15 fourth-quarter comebacks as field general for Green Bay.

It is no coincidence that fans in Green Bay don't leave early to "beat the traffic."

FEEDING SUCCESS

WHEN IT COMES TO NUTRITION, THE OLD STEAK-AND-EGGS MEAL NO LONGER EXISTS ON TODAY'S PREGAME FOOD CHART.

By Dan Herbst

To play well, one must eat well. That's the unofficial mantra of head trainers from coast to coast. Which is why ample thought and planning is given to the offerings on Indiana University's training table.

The man in charge of counting calories in Bloomington is Walter "Kip" Smith. After serving the University of Pittsburgh from 1974 to '83, Smith became a Hoosier. Over the past quarter of a century he has noticed "a lot of change in our approach to nutrition. The traditional pregame meal used to be steak and eggs. Coaches have learned the value of carbohydrates, fruits and fluids before a game. A player needs something that he's able to digest fairly easily. Even though they're eating three to four hours before kickoff they will still be carrying that meal in their stomachs, so we don't want anything that will sit heavy."

While steak may taste good, it doesn't digest easily and even lean cuts have fat. The result, said Smith, is to "inhibit fluid absorption that you really need on a game day."

An even more important meal is served the night before a game. Smith prescribes that it be "well-rounded. It's what goes through their digestive cycle. That food goes to the cellular level and helps fuel the muscles for the game activity. It's also important because a lot of guys have pregame jitters and consequently they aren't able to eat a good pregame meal."

Among the likely offerings: "A small lean steak, pasta, baked potato, different types of breads, a couple of types of vegetables, salad, three or four types of fluids, and a dessert that could be an apple pie to an ice cream of some sort. We monitor the meat portion but we don't restrict their pasta or vegetable intake."

Steak? "It's still somewhat traditional," he offered. "It's also fulfilling, yet with a six-ounce portion it's not so big that it could hamper their performance."

There are no blanket standards that apply to the entire Hoosier roster. Some players need to add bulk while others are going the Richard Simmons route. Thus, the smorgasbord offers both a chicken breast and roast beef with desserts ranging from light (Jell-O) to a German chocolate cake. "Typically, we have 12 to 15 kids that are trying to put on weight throughout the year and anywhere from five to 10 who are trying to lose," Smith said.

Vitamins are not to be found, however. "We feel that if they're getting a well-rounded meal they don't really need supplements."

Working closely with the school's dietitians, Smith maps out five-week food cycles. He acknowledged that he's also part salesman. "It isn't always easy to convince all of these guys what's good for them. Many athletes were brought up to believe that steak and potatoes are needed to make you big and strong."

The need to educate is underscored by conference rules which limit IU to providing five meals a week out-of-season. After the last whistle sounds freshmen face the biggest adjustment. "All of a sudden they have to eat on their own and it's not what Mom puts on the table," Smith chuckled. "The dorm food might not be what they like or they're living in an apartment and they have to fend for themselves. They have to learn how to fix a meal so that they aren't out eating fast food too often. A big burger and large fries has 50 to 55 grams of fat, which is more than they should have for an entire day. These kids don't always realize that. Fortunately, they have high metabolisms, but over a period of time the takeout window isn't a very nutritionally sound way to go.

"People who eat better foods and balanced meals will be able to perform better than people who eat greasy foods. We do nutritional logs with them. I can get a complete readout and show them why they might have had too much protein or not enough carbohydrates."

To be sure, with more schools instituting nutrition programs, the onus ultimately is on the athlete to commit to a healthy "way of life" in order to keep up with the competition. ☐

PANASONIC INTRODUCES DVD. IT WILL DO FOR MOVIES WHAT THE CD DID FOR MUSIC.

Remember the first time you heard a CD? You didn't just hear the difference, you felt it. That's what Panasonic DVD will do for movies. A DIGITAL PICTURE THAT'S TWICE AS SHARP. You know what most rental movies look like. Now imagine one that's twice as sharp. That's the difference DVD can make. DVD is capable of 500 lines of horizontal resolution*, more than twice that of the industry standard for most rental movies.

5.1 CHANNEL DIGITAL SURROUND SOUND. You can tell you're watching a movie on DVD with your eyes closed. Its Dolby Digital (AC-3)† surround sound has 6 channels, including one for a sub-woofer, for theater-like sound at home.

MOVIES ARE JUST THE BEGINNING. DVD is more than just the ultimate entertainment machine playing movies and music CDs. One DVD disc can hold the equivalent of 11,500 floppy discs. That means for computers, video games and business the possibilities are endless. And that's just the beginning. For more information call toll free 1-888 PANADVD. For an informative fax call 1-888-329-4872. Or see us on the web at www.panasonic.com. Once you know all that DVD can do, there's no looking back.

RETURNETH

THE TWO-WAY PLAYER, A FOND MEMORY FROM A BYGONE ERA,
IS MAKING SOMETHING OF A COMEBACK
AS A RESULT OF NCAA NUMBER-CRUNCHING.

By Michael Bradley

A sly smile starts to crease Charles Woodson's face when the topic of playing both ways comes up. After spending a half-hour in a room filled with Big Ten trophies and trying to explain why he and his Michigan Wolverine teammates haven't won one for a while, Woodson is happy to tackle a topic that he enjoys.

"I'm going to be doing more on offense this year," he said. "They're working on some things for me."

Woodson wouldn't elaborate, but his message was clear. The Wolverines may not have too many answers for their recent four-year string of four-loss seasons, but they will certainly have plenty of options available for their outstanding junior cornerback-cum-wideout. Woodson, who merely dabbled on offense last year while solidifying his reputation as one of the nation's finest coverage men, should play a more featured role when Michigan has the ball this fall.

Blessed with blinding speed and the kind of intangibles that separate the great ones from the pack, Woodson tantalized fans and Michigan coaches in 1996 with the occasional pass reception or reverse. Now he wants more. And the Wolverine staff is prepared to give it to him.

He won't be alone. What was a curious phenomenon throughout the country last year has become a full-fledged trend in 1997. With the 85-scholarship limit compressing the amount of talent a school can carry on its roster, coaches are looking for creative ways to get more from their players. When Michigan was faced with a largely inexperienced corps of receivers last year, it turned to Woodson, who was a two-way standout in high school. Kansas State did the same thing with its excellent cornerback, Chris Canty, and Louisville used corner Sam Madison as a wideout, too.

"If you have a stud, you have to use him," said Ohio State coach John Cooper.

He's right. That's why you'll find Buckeye sophomore Andy Katzenmoyer, one of the nation's top inside linebackers, taking some snaps at fullback in '97. At 6-foot-4, 260 pounds and blessed with tremendous speed for his size, Katzenmoyer could be a devastating blocker.

"He's just too good an athlete to keep off the field," Cooper said. The Buckeyes could also use fleet receiver Daryl Boston at safety and Michael Wiley at cornerback. It just makes sense.

That's why you'll see an abundance of two-way performers throughout the country. Notre Dame cornerback Allen Rossum took some turns at wide receiver during the spring, and new head coach Bob Davie has said he will use some of his receivers in the secondary to thwart "Hail Mary" passes by opponents. Look for North Carolina soph Dre' Bly, who pilfered 13 enemy passes last year, to play some wideout, and don't expect to find Florida's Elijah Williams, who led the team in rushing last year, at his customary spot in the offensive backfield. He's a cornerback now — unless, of course, the Gators need him to run the ball. At Southern California, Chad Morton remains a safety, but Trojan coaches won't hesitate to call upon him if their running-back ranks get too thin. Last year, he rushed for 143 yards in a game when called upon for emergency duty. He also is one of the Pac-10's top return men. Talk about your versatility.

Michigan's Charles Woodson, one of the best defensive backs in the nation, lined up on both sides of the ball last season and is enjoying an expanded role on offense for the Wolverines in 1997.

Two-way play is hardly revolutionary. Before the 1950s, every player performed on offense and defense. But it is evolutionary. As the NCAA hacked away at scholarship numbers, coaches found themselves with depth problems. Any rash of injuries, academic problems or recruiting miscalculations created huge problems.

"The only losing season I had in 31 years here came when I lost three quarterbacks to injury," Penn State coach Joe Paterno said about the 1988 campaign.

With thinner margins than ever at practically every position, coaches are looking for creative ways to cover themselves against disaster. Using standouts at two different positions is one natural solution to a manpower problem.

Woodson and his two-way peers aren't in on every play of every game, particularly in September, when the heat can sap them of their strength. Coaches want them to be at their best in the fourth quarter, so they'll keep their double duty to a minimum until the temperatures chill somewhat. But judicious use of their skills doesn't minimize their impact. Woodson was Michigan's third-leading rusher last year (152 yards) and caught 10 passes. One can only imagine what Bly, an all-state receiver in high school who possesses blinding speed and perhaps the best hands of any defensive back in the country, will do when he runs a fly pattern against some overmatched nickel back, or how difficult it will be to tackle Katzenmoyer on a quick-hitting trap play.

Two-way play is just one by-product of the 85-scholarship limit's impact. Among the other concerns are motivation, the need to use younger players earlier than coaches would prefer, the reduced margin for error on the recruiting trails and the difficulty of determining whether top-notch athletes belong on offense, defense or both sides. Despite all that, there are still those who call for greater cuts in the number of scholarships given out, arguing that NFL teams exist with 53-man rosters.

Texas Christian star Sammy Baugh was the epitome of the two-way player both in college and the NFL: He was a consensus All-American quarterback, a standout defensive back and one of the finest punters of his era.

"You don't have 85 scholarships; you have 85 bodies," Cooper said. "This is not an exact science. People who get caught up in the numbers in the NFL don't realize that we don't draft and trade players, and we don't know enough about these kids when they come in here. We're teaching and developing players. We've cut football as far as we can cut it, if we want to maintain programs at their current levels.

"Don't kill the goose that laid the golden egg. You wouldn't have many of the men's and women's athletic programs without football."

Many coaches maintain that the numbers cuts have had an adverse effect on the quality of the game. Because schools have fewer players than ever at each position, there isn't the competition that there used to be. Back in the early and mid-1970s, schools like Pittsburgh and Southern California would begin summer camp with as many as 200 players and let them slug it out for the right to play. Now, a coach is lucky if he has a good backup at every position. With the possible exception of Nebraska, which boasts the nation's most sophisticated and successful walk-on program, college teams don't have the numbers to stage the kind of daily competition that fosters constant improvement. As a result, some coaches find themselves with players who have little incentive to work hard in practice. They don't have to. Nobody is around to take their jobs.

"I think you have to understand that you have to motivate a little differently," Michigan coach Lloyd Carr said. "Certainly it has changed coaching in that you know and (the player) knows that there aren't a lot of guys behind him. That goes back to the guys you recruit. You want to recruit guys who love the game, that love to compete. When you get those guys, you don't have as big a problem. But human nature is that the less competition, a lot of guys don't compete as hard. There isn't any question that it has changed coaching."

It has also changed how coaches decide who will play where. When he was the defensive coordinator at Notre Dame, Davie remembers arguing with the program's offensive staff about which side would win the services of a particularly talented athlete. When Autry Denson came to Notre Dame in 1995, he was a cornerback, but a shortage of tailbacks during summer camp forced then-ND coach Lou Holtz to shift him to the offensive backfield. Although Denson responded by rushing for 695 yards and eight touchdowns and has subsequently developed into one of the nation's finest players at that position, Davie still could have used Denson in his depleted secondary. Of course, now that he's the boss, Davie will be the arbitrator in such disputes, rather than a participant.

The 85-scholarship limit has forced coaches to play freshmen and sophomores with increased frequency. Although every coach would love to red-shirt each new recruiting class, many don't have that luxury. If a player is talented, he may be needed right away. Although the growing exodus of underclassmen to the NFL plays a role in that (coaches want to get as much out of their personnel as possible, especially if some are leaving after three years on campus), so does depleted reserves.

"It's like the NFL," Louisiana State coach Gerry DiNardo said. "You have to blend good, stable veterans with young talent. Kids want to play early, and they pick schools where they can play early."

USC safety Chad Morton rushed for 143 yards in emergency duty as a running back in a game last season.

assure continuity in their programs. Loading up on linemen may help in the short run, but that may cause trouble three years down the line when all of a team's backs or receivers have graduated or succumbed to injury. It's hard enough for established coaches to maintain a consistent level of recruiting success — "You can't afford to have a bad recruiting class," Cooper said — but newcomers must fortify bad teams quickly and with no margin for error. It makes for plenty of pressure on coaches but often benefits players, especially highly talented ones. When a certain position gets thin, a coach will look for an answer. Today, that solution may be to use a player both ways.

No wonder guys like Woodson are smiling. ☐

Coaches, in turn, have to recruit enough players at enough positions to make sure they can

WHEN THINGS ARE AT THEIR WORST, YOU'LL FIND AMERICANS AT THEIR BEST.

Heroes aren't born, they're made. Every day in the National Guard, Americans are going beyond the call — training as citizen-soldiers to be at their best when America needs them the most. Every National Guard mission starts at home where members are your friends, neighbors and co-workers. In your community, they respond to natural disasters and local emergencies. They even play a direct role in helping America's kids stay in school, out of trouble and drug-free.

But the Guard's work at home is only half the story. Since the days of the Colonial minutemen, the National Guard has worked to protect our nation. Today, that tradition continues with the National Guard as a full partner with America's active military forces.

In today's efficient military, the citizen-soldiers and airmen of the National Guard are more important than ever. Just ask one of the Guard members currently in Bosnia, or those who served in Haiti and Desert Storm — chances are some of these members are right in your community. They are the most visible example of how Guard units are woven into our nation's military capability.

Those who volunteer for the National Guard are trained, equipped and tested to be their best. The biggest test, however, is nowhere near the training ground. It's in a world where danger and disaster are ever-present. A world where the men and women of the National Guard are putting their talents on the line every day.

Americans At Their Best.

GORDIE LOCKBAUM

THE HOLY CROSS IRON MAN AND MINI-LEGEND STILL TURNS HEADS IN WORCESTER.

By Graham Howes

He was a throwback to the era of the leather helmet, a two-way player in the age of specialization. Equal parts rusher, receiver, returner and defensive back, Gordie Lockbaum did it all for the Holy Cross Crusaders during the mid-1980s.

Check out the stat line he posted against Army his junior year: 22 tackles and 113 rushing and receiving yards. Or consider the game against Massachusetts when he rushed for 74 yards, caught five passes for 140 yards, scored three touchdowns, forced a fumble and returned two kickoffs for 46 yards.

By the time Lockbaum graduated with a 3.1 grade-point average and an economics degree, he had rewritten the school's record books and finished third (behind Notre Dame's Tim Brown and Syracuse's Don McPherson) in the 1987 Heisman race.

"It was an exciting time because Holy Cross was obviously not a football powerhouse and suddenly we were getting a lot of attention from the national media," recalled Lockbaum, now 31. "Playing both ways was really unique then because it hadn't been done for so long. We really didn't have a blueprint, so we just had to wing it. But we made it work in part because we had a run-and-shoot offense. After the games I'd be dead tired, but it's amazing how far adrenaline and enthusiasm can take you."

But after getting in on as many as 140 plays a game for the Crusaders, Lockbaum never played another official down of organized football. Ironically, Lockbaum's preternatural versatility may have been his biggest drawback in the eyes of NFL scouts, who were unsure what position he could play in the pros. And his relatively slight stature — he was neither six feet tall nor 200 pounds — didn't help matters, either.

"I tried out with the Steelers and the Bills and played in some preseason games, but it never panned out," he said. "It was a disappointing time and I gave it awhile, but then I decided it was time to get on with my life."

Now a vice-president with the Sullivan Insurance Group, Lockbaum lives with his wife, Denise, and their eight-year-old son in Worcester, Mass., the same town where he starred for Holy Cross.

"I've been back here for eight years already and I've built up a business that I'm proud of," Lockbaum said. "Selling insurance takes a lot of the same energies and competitive instincts as football."

Otherwise, Lockbaum spends the balance of his time with his family and tries to stay as active as he can by playing golf, racquetball and baseball.

Not that football is completely out of his system. In addition to coaching his son's flag football team, Lockbaum provides radio commentary for Holy Cross games and still accepts invitations for public-speaking engagements. And he continues to enjoy a certain cult status around town from fans who recall how a strapping, otherwise unassuming, kid from the Colonial League took the college football world by storm a decade ago.

"People still remember me, but I've discovered that the older I get, the more the details fade," he said with a chuckle. "People used to come up to me and start talking about stats and particular plays. Now they hear my name and pause awhile before saying, 'Didn't you used to be that two-way guy?'" □

USD ACADEMIC SUPPORT

Sara Hickmann enters her first year as Coordinator of Academic Support at the University of San Diego. She has a B.S. degree in psychology from UCLA and a M.S. Degree in sport psychology from San Diego State. She has experience as a tutor/supervisor in athletics and as a teaching assistant in the EOP program at UCLA. She also worked as an academic counselor at San Diego State. Additionally, Sara has published several articles in her field.

The USD Athletic Academic Support Program is designed to assist and motivate student-athletes in their journey and progress towards their academic goals, and ultimately graduation. The primary objective is to improve the student-athletes' study skills, support them in their academic work, and encourage scholastic achievement. It is essential that student-athletes receive the necessary academic assistance to continue normal progress toward a degree while participating in athletics.

USD student-athletes receive assistance through advising, progress reports, academic tutors, campus learning centers, such as the Logic, Math, and Writing Centers, and the Accelerated Study Program. The Accelerated Study Program provides a monitored, quiet area open only to the student-athletes to ensure quality study time. These services are available to all USD student-athletes.

USD STRENGTH & CONDITIONING

The USD strength and conditioning program is under the direction of Steve Brown who is entering his second year. It has been designed to develop functional strength, speed, power and endurance. The development of these physical attributes is useless to the athletes unless it can be carried onto the playing field. Therefore, adhering to a properly designed program of strength training, conditioning and nutrition can enable our men and women to become the best possible athletes they can be, while simultaneously reducing the incidence of injury.

USD student-athletes receive intensive instruction on proper weight training technique; speed, power and agility development; and sport-specific conditioning. Their strength and conditioning programs will be specific to the nature of their sport or position. Each athlete will be individually monitored throughout their program to ensure the greatest chance of athletic progress.

Both coaches and student-athletes had very positive reviews from the 1996-97 season.

"I look forward to training all USD student-athletes and hope to establish a new sense of pride and commitment to the strength and conditioning program. The area of strength and conditioning has become increasingly more scientific in recent years. I plan to utilize the latest research in this field to fully cultivate the athletic potential of our athletes."

San Diego is truly "America's Finest City." A modern metropolis (second largest in California) and a popular year-round resort, San Diego spreads from the coast to the desert, including cliffs, mesas, hills, canyons and valleys. San Diego also surrounds one of California's greatest natural harbors which has been a dominant factor in determining the city's history, economy and development.

Meteorologists claim San Diego as the country's only area with perfect climate. This ideal year-round environment posts an average daytime temperature of 70 degrees, with an annual rainfall average of less than 10 inches. Most days are sunny, with humidity generally low, even in the summer. The climate, attractive setting and recreational facilities make San Diego "America's Finest City."

According to Sports Illustrated, "For sheer numbers of participants, diversity of pursuits of involvement, San Diego must rank as the sports fitness capital of the U.S." Sports are a major feature of the San Diego lifestyle. One can sail, swim, surf, scuba dive, snorkel, wind-surf on 70 miles of public beach or golf at any of the over 80 golf courses throughout the county. Balboa Park, a 1,158-acre recreation and cultural center, offers 25 tennis courts, two gymnasiums, two municipal golf courses, and one of the nation's finest zoos. Mission Bay Park is a 4,600-acre playground for jogging, fishing, bicycling, tennis, golf, jet skiing and kite flying.

As well as participating in recreational activities, San Diego supports their professional teams -- the NFL Chargers and the National League Padres play at Qualcomm Stadium. During college football bowl week, San Diego annually hosts the Plymouth Holiday Bowl in late December. On January 25th, 1998 the NFL Super Bowl will be played at San Diego's Qualcomm Stadium. Whatever sporting activity there is, it's here in San Diego -- the sports capital of the U.S.A.

A Message From President Hayes

As the president of the University of San Diego, this is my third Torero season. I am proud of the USD Football Team and pleased that the university supports the program in every way possible, including emphasis on academic excellence, and promotion of intercollegiate athletics.

Our student-athletes are winners on and off the field. They demonstrate the values that characterize a USD education - commitment, integrity, teamwork, discipline, and respect for the dignity of all human beings. These are qualities that will help them throughout their lives.

I am looking forward to the coming season and hope that you will join me in supporting our team. It's an exciting schedule and promises to be a great year.

TOM IANNAZONE

Director Of Athletics

Tom Iannacone begins his tenth year as Director of Athletics at the University of San Diego. He was named Director of Athletics on September 1, 1988 after holding the same position the previous four years at St. Francis College of Pennsylvania.

At USD, Iannacone directs an Athletic Department that includes sixteen NCAA Division I intercollegiate varsity teams, eight men's and eight women's, plus intramurals and recreation.

In the last nine years behind his direction and leadership, Torero Athletics has enjoyed successes both on and off the playing field. His accomplishments at USD include an internal reorganization of the athletic department, plus improvements in the major areas of personnel, scholarship assistance, facilities, promotions and marketing, fund raising, drug education, academic support, and a university approved plan for scholarship support and sports sponsorship. In addition, he was instrumental in USD gaining membership to the Pioneer Football League, which began play in 1993. He is a member of the I-AA Athletic Directors Association

Executive Committee; and is past Chairman of the West Coast Conference Athletics Directors Committee.

During Iannacone's tenure, facilities at the USD Sports Center, along with all athletic fields, have seen vast improvements. Improvements at the Sports Center include complete renovations of both the north and south wings that added offices for administrators and coaches; additional locker rooms for women's basketball, volleyball and women's soccer; an athletic department conference room; and an academic support room. Torero Stadium, where football, men's and women's soccer compete, was widened to accommodate soccer, and added a state-of-the-art lighting system and scoreboard. The Softball Complex has benefitted with a scoreboard, new dugouts and batting cages. Additionally, The Canyon Field received lighting for intercollegiate practices and intramural use. This fall the university will kickoff its Capital Campaign for the Jenny Craig Pavilion, a new 5,000 seat multi-purpose facility that will be home for USD basketball and volleyball, and benefit the entire university community.

On the playing fields, USD has sent nineteen teams to NCAA Tournaments since Iannacone's arrival in the Fall of 1988. Additionally, the school has captured five conference championships; nineteen NCAA All-Americans; fifteen CoSIDA/GTE Academic All-Americans; eleven conference Coaches of the Year; ten conference Players of the Year; and three West Coast Conference Scholar-Athletes of the Year. Since '88 the university has been the host site for NCAA Tournament events for women's volleyball, men's soccer and women's tennis.

Prior to USD, Iannacone built an impressive list of credentials at St. Francis College as Director of Athletics between 1984-87. His major contributions included the expansion of sports offerings and scholarships for both men and women, improved budgets, renovation of athletic facilities, the hiring of additional staff, and the establishment of a master plan for the future and continual development of athletics. He served on several committees, most notably the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) Infractions committee and the Northeast Conference committee on conference development.

He served as assistant Director of Athletics at Fordham University between 1977-84. Along with his administrative duties, he was assistant football coach for the Rams. Between 1975-78, he acted as offensive coordinator and backfield coach as Fordham captured 19 victories in their final 24 games during this span. The '77 squad was and remains the highest scoring team in Fordham history, averaging 34 points per game. In 1983 he was presented the prestigious Jack Coffey Award by the Alumni Association for his outstanding contributions to Fordham athletics. He also served on various Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference committees.

Prior to Fordham, Iannacone taught physical education and coached track and field, and football in Connecticut Public School Districts from 1964-76. He made his collegiate football coaching debut as an offensive backfield coach at Western Connecticut State University in 1974. A 1964 graduate of the University of Connecticut, Iannacone received his master of science degree in physical education from Southern Connecticut State University in 1973.

Tom and his wife, Cynthia, have three children: Tom Jr., Jennifer and Eric. All three are graduates of the University of San Diego.

Dan Yourg
Associate Director of Athletics

Associate Director of Athletics Dan Yourg has been a member of the USD Athletics Department since the fall of 1985.

Yourg oversees football, baseball, men's basketball, golf, men's soccer, and men's and women's tennis. Yourg serves as the NCAA compliance coordinator for the entire USD athletic program. In addition, he is the department liaison to the University's Financial Aid Office.

Yourg received his Bachelor's (Sociology, 1980) and Master's (Social Work, 1986) degrees from the University of Wisconsin, where he was a nose guard on the Badgers' football team.

Dan and his wife Virginia, a USD alumna, are the parents of two sons, John and Thomas.

Brian Fogarty
Associate Director of Athletics for Athletic Development

Brian Fogarty enters his second year as USD's Associate Director of Athletics for Athletic Development. He took over this post after spending thirteen years as USD's head football coach. He directed USD's football program to eleven seasons of .500 or better records and guided their move from the Division III ranks to the NCAA I-AA level in 1993.

His primary responsibilities are with fund raising, and marketing and promotions for the athletic department. Brian and his wife Vicki, who reside in the Scripps Ranch area of San Diego, have four children: Bridget (a senior at USD), Joe, Colleen and Megan.

Wendy Guthrie
Assistant Director of Athletics/Senior Woman Administrator

Wendy enters her second year on the USD staff, her first as the Assistant Director of Athletics and Senior Woman Administrator.

Guthrie is a 1991 graduate of Whittier College (B.A. in Business Administration) where she was a member of the cross country and track team. Upon graduation she worked as an admissions counselor and Assistant Director of Admissions at Whittier. She earned her Master's in Physical Education with a concentration in Athletic Administration at Springfield College in Massachusetts while working a fellowship for two years. After Springfield she held the position of Assistant Director of Athletics at St. Francis College in Pennsylvania for one year. In 1995 she interned one year with the U.S. Olympic Festival.

Ted Gosen
Director of Sports Information

Ted Gosen is in his 16th year serving as USD's Director of Sports Information. His responsibilities include publicity of all 16 USD men's and women's sports, through press releases, publications and game day programs. He also is in charge of gathering game and cumulative statistics, and hosting media at USD home athletic functions. He is assisted by Mike Daniels, who is in his third year.

In 1981 Ted received his Master's of Science degree in Sports Administration from St. Thomas University in Miami, Florida. A 1979 graduate of San Jose State University, he earned his Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration. In addition to his SID duties, Ted is a member of the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA); assists the USD Hall of Fame Committee; is editor of Torero Sports Line; and teaches a bowling class each semester through the recreation department.

Ted and his wife Terri, a 1983 USD graduate, reside in Poway with their four daughters: Katie, Colleen, Claire and Erin.

Carolyn Greer, M.A., A.T.C.
Head Athletic Trainer

Carolyn Greer enters her twentieth year as the Head Certified Athletic Trainer for the University of San Diego athletic department.

A 1975 graduate of San Diego State University with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Physical Education, Carolyn went on to earn her Master's degree in Sports Medicine at the same institution in 1978.

Over the years she has taught classes in Sports Medicine and had numerous articles published in a variety of journals. She oversees sixteen intercollegiate teams and approximately 350 USD student-athletes on a yearly basis. The Sports Medicine staff provides injury prevention, immediate care, and rehabilitation for USD's intercollegiate athletes.

Carolyn, and her husband Jeff, reside in the Pacific Beach area of San Diego with their two boys, David and Jason.

Sara Hickmann
Academic Support Coordinator

Sara begins her first year as USD's Academic Support Coordinator. She has a B.S. degree in psychology from UCLA and a M.S. Degree in sport psychology from San Diego State. She has experience as a tutor/supervisor in athletics and as a teaching assistant in the EOP program at UCLA. Sara, who has published several articles in her field, also worked as an academic counselor at San Diego State.

Steve Brown
Strength & Conditioning Coach

Steve begins his third year as the University of San Diego Strength and Conditioning Coach. He came to San Diego from Temple University in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where he was the Assistant Strength and Conditioning Coach since 1991.

A 1983 graduate of Brown University (Biology), Steve was a two-sport letterman in football (defensive back) and track (long jumper). He earned his Master's degree in Human Kinetics in 1991 from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. From 1983-90 he was an assistant football coach at Wauwatosa East High School in Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, and assisted in track in 1988. He is currently working on his Ph.D in Physical Education (focus of studies in Exercise Physiology).

The NCAA—Common Ground of College Athletics

By Debbie Harmison Byrne, Assistant Athletics Director, Old Dominion University

It was the flying wedge, football's major offense in 1905, that spurred the formation of the NCAA in December 1905. Numerous sport-related injuries and deaths had prompted many institutions to discontinue the sport. Others were urging that football be reformed or abolished completely from intercollegiate athletics.

So in 1905, President Theodore Roosevelt summoned college athletics leaders to two White House conferences to encourage such reforms. The Intercollegiate Athletic Association of the United States was officially constituted on March 31, 1906. There were 62 charter members. In 1910, it took its present name of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and, for several years, served primarily as a discussion group and rules-making body.

Now, more than 1,150 colleges, universities, conferences and related organizations count on the NCAA to be the organization through which they speak. It is a voluntary association devoted to the sound administration of intercollegiate athletics.

Through the NCAA, member institutions consider an athletics problem that has crossed regional or conference lines and has become national in scope. The Association, through its members, strives to maintain intercollegiate athletics as an integral part of the educational program and the athletes as an integral part of the student body. The NCAA also stands for good conduct in intercollegiate athletics and serves as the colleges' national athletics accreditation agency.

The organization and its members recognize that creating an equitable college environment for its student-athletes is among their highest priorities. Working together to enact rules, policies, procedures and organizational goals, its members strive for the common goal of academic integrity for their programs.

Just as integrity is key for the academic process, it is also a component in the competition between NCAA institutions. The NCAA and its staff are charged with enforcing the rules and regulations that the institutions vote and impose on themselves.

While enforcement proceedings involving member schools seem to grab most of the headlines, they represent only a small part of the NCAA's total program.

The NCAA administered its first national championship in 1921—the National Collegiate Track and Field Championships. Today, the NCAA administers 81 championships in 22 sports for its member institutions, involving nearly 24,000 men and women student-athletes. There are 24 championships on the Division I level, 23 on the Division II level and 24 for Division III members, along with 10 sports that have National Collegiate Championships for which all divisions are eligible.

Beyond its annual championships, the NCAA also places a high priority on honoring its members and student-athletes, evident in its honors program and postgraduate scholarships program. The honors program recognizes accomplishments of current and former outstanding student-athletes, while the post-graduate scholarship program annually honors 154 high-ranking college student-athletes who are in their last year of intercollegiate competition by providing them scholarships of $5,000 each. The NCAA also recognizes the need to assist its members in career development in collegiate athletics and has addressed this area through its women's and ethnic minority enhancement programs.

The NCAA Hall of Champions opened in the fall of 1990. It presents a photographic and video salute to intercollegiate athletics both past and present in a 12,000-square foot facility at the Association's national office building. Visitors to the hall are treated to specially prepared multimedia presentations in a spacious and modern theater and can feel the excitement of center court at the Final Four and the kickoff of college football games in uniquely designed photo displays.

The NCAA's members form a diverse group ranging from large state institutions to small, privately funded colleges. Their common goal, however, is the same—working for the advancement and achievement of the student-athlete and for the common good of higher education. ■

CoSIDA/GTE Academic All-Americans

The CoSIDA/GTE Academic All-America Football Team, selected annually by members of the College Sports Information Directors of America, honors the nation's best student-athletes. Just as the balancing of football and academics is difficult, the standards for nomination and selection to the team are rigorous. To be nominated, a varsity starter or key reserve player must have a minimum 3.200 cumulative grade-point average (on a 4.000 scale).

The program began in the 1950s with honorees in football; later, basketball and baseball all-academic teams were added. Academic and athletics biographical data of nominees are prepared in ballot form and mailed to the CoSIDA membership, who vote in each of eight districts. From the eight district teams comes a national ballot, distributed to the 1,400 members for the final all-academic team.

"The achievements of these young men should truly be commended," said NBC sportscaster Dick Enberg, spokesperson for the GTE academic all-America team. "I often wonder where college students find the time and energy to play a demanding sport like football, excel in the classroom and be active on campus and in their communities. To me, these are truly all-Americans."

Below is a look at USD's football GTE Academic All-Americans:

Dan Herbert

Herbert was a four-year letterwinner (1978-81) and in his senior campaign set a school record for interceptions in a season with 8 (still the current mark) ... the 1981 squad finished 9-1 ... besides earning GTE Academic All-America honors, Dan earned Kodak College Division II All-America honors, was selected to the National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame (San Diego Chapter) and participated in the 1981 Blue-Gray All-Star game. Dan is an attorney in San Diego.

Jeff Mansukhani

Jeff played four years between 1984-1987 as a wide receiver and kick returner ... he was selected 2nd Team GTE/Academic All-American after his junior season when he hauled in a team-best 49 receptions for 811 yards (16.6 average) and 7 touchdowns ... he also averaged 15.6 yards on 9 punt returns and 23.3 yards on 18 kickoff returns ... his senior year (1987) he caught 17 receptions for 338 yards (19.9 average) and 3 touchdowns ... he was a two-time USD Offensive Player of the Year. Jeff is an attorney at law.

Bryan Day

Bryan played four years between 1985-88 as a defensive back ... he was the school's first two-time First Team GTE Academic All-American (1987 & 1988) ... he lead the Toreros' in tackles both his junior and senior campaigns and was a two-time USD Defensive Player of the Year ... in 1988 he tallied 88 tackles to go with 3 quarterback sacks (-17 yards), 2 forced fumbles, 4 fumble recoveries, 8 pass deflections and 2 interceptions ... in 1987 he totaled 91 tackles and 6 interceptions ... he carried a 3.78 grade point average in Business/Economics. He currently resides in Las Vegas, Nevada where he is an attorney.

John Gomez

John played four years at USD (1985-88) and earned 2nd Team GTE/Academic All-America honors his senior year (1988) as a defensive lineman ... he started his career at USD as a linebacker before moving to the line for his final two seasons ... he started 7 games in 1987 when the team recorded four shutouts on their way to a 6-3-1 season ... in 1988 he totaled 34 tackles in 9 starts with 1 quarterback sack and 8 quarterback hurries. John resides in Orange County where he is an attorney.

Doug Popovich

Doug became the school's second student-athlete to be selected twice as a First Team GTE/Academic All-American (1994, 1995) ... a two-time USD Defensive Player of the Year, Doug lead the team in tackles both his junior (142) and senior (125) campaigns ... three times he was selected the team's James B. Orwig Scholar Athlete of the Year ... he was named a $25,000 Burger King Scholar-Athlete of the Week (Oct. 7, 1996) and earned a $5,000 NCAA Post-Graduate Scholarship ... an Ocean Studies major at USD with a 3.88 grade-point-average, Doug was accepted into Yale University's Graduate School.

Jeb Dougherty

In 1996 Jeb was selected First Team GTE/Academic All-America after leading the Toreros in tackles (113) and averaging 28.0 yards per kickoff return ... in addition, he was named Associated Press I-AA Third Team All-America; First Team All-PFL; PFL All-Academic; a $10,000 Burger King Scholar-Athlete of the Week; and the team's Defensive Player of the Year ... during his junior campaign he earned 2nd Team GTE/Academic All-America honors as a defensive back ... a two-sport star, he was a Third Team GTE Academic All-America selection in baseball his senior year in 1997 ... he was drafted in the June major league draft by the Anaheim Angels.
