ARCHIE MOORE TO RECAP BLACK VOTE IN SPEECH AT USD

SAN DIEGO, Calif. -- Archie Moore, former world light-heavyweight boxing champion and nationally famous for founding the Any Boy Can program, will speak at the University of San Diego Nov. 12.

Moore will give a post-election analysis of the national black vote, and will discuss the black people's position regarding election results, according to James Murphy, chairman of the USD political science club. The talk is part of the current semester's series of political speakers at USD.

"We hope that one or more of the presidential contenders will be able to accept invitations to speak," said Murphy yesterday. "We are negotiating with Governor George Wallace and former Vice President Richard Nixon. We have also invited Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.) to address us."

Other scheduled speeches include Sen. Jack Schrade (R-San Diego), who will speak in USD's More Hall at noon Oct. 9. Rep. Wadie P. Deddeh (D-77th District) will speak Oct. 14 and Rep. Pete Wilson (R-76 District), Oct. 23.
