Campus Briefs

President's Convocation

Don't miss President Author E. Hughes' Oct. 4 annual address to employees at 4 p.m. in the Hahn University Center Forum. You can say hello to Dr. Hughes and his wife, Marge, at the reception following the address in the University Center Grille.

New Program on Campus

The university is launching the "Catholic Perspectives Forum" this fall, an annual series of lectures that will bring nationally recognized speakers to campus to present their ideas about moral, educational, spiritual, ethical and social issues of interest in contemporary Catholic life.

The first lecture in the series will be "Catholic Charities: Can They Survive in a Secular Society?" presented by Reverend Thomas J.

Harvey, president of Catholic Charities. The lecture will be at 7 p.m. Oct. 1 in the Manchester Executive Conference Center. All lectures will be free and open to the public. For more information call Marcia Rathfon at ext. 4817.

Parking Crunch

If your department is hosting a meeting or event with 10 or more guests, Gene Trebes of Parking Services asks that you advise those visitors to park at the Field House or Sports Center and take the shuttle.

"Just let me know the time of your event, and the number of guests, and I'll arrange to have a shuttle at the parking area to transport your guests to the meeting location," Trebes explains. For more information call ext. 4518.

"Mom" Vallejo Still Cooking After 35 Years

By Jacqueline Genovese

Guillermina "Willie" Vallejo is known as "Mom" to a lot of people. Not just to her 12 children, but to countless USD students who have consumed the meals she has served during her 35 years as assistant cook in Food Services.

"When I see students in the stores in Linda Vista, they put their arm around me and say 'Hi, Mom!'" Vallejo says with a smile. "I like that. The students are perfect for me."

The grandmother of 17 was honored at the July 1991 Staff Employee Appreciation Picnic for her 35 years of service to the university — the first such honor in USD's history. Provost Sr. Sally Furay, RSCJ, called Vallejo an "institution within an institution" when presenting her award. "Since Willie first came to USD in 1956 as assistant cook at the college for Women, she has served up a lot of meals — and a lot of tender loving care — to two generations of USD students."

The tiny Vallejo calls her coming to Alcalá Park in 1956, "a miracle." Her husband, Jesus, had been the gardener for the College for Women for a year, and the Sacred Heart nuns at the college had helped him obtain immigration papers for himself and his family. The nuns also provided housing for the family in Casa Maria, which is now the Public Safety building. "The nuns — Reverend Mother Hill, Mother Redman, Mother DeLeon, Sr. Saare, Sr. Mapa, Sr. Lorch — they were more to me than family," Vallejo says, covering her heart with her hand.

The nuns helped the Vallejos obtain a Catholic education, clothing and toys for their children, and made sure they always had enough to eat. Rosa Elena (Vallejo '70) Clark, the oldest Vallejo, remembers Sr. O'Brien taking her and her brother Angel to Founders courtyard to teach them English. "We had lessons every day, and then after the lesson, Sr. O'Brien gave us graham crackers and milk. I'll never forget that," she says.

The nuns were such a big part of the Vallejos' life that they named three of the couple's children. "Sophia Madalena, Genoveva and Susana were named by the nuns," Vallejo relates with a smile. "The nuns were also my baby-sitters, they helped me with the children."

The 61-year-old Vallejo says it was the worst day of her life when she moved off-campus to a house in Linda Vista in 1975. "All day I cried and cried," she says. "I didn't want to go." Vallejo's husband had died one year earlier, leaving her with 11 children ranging in age from 3 to 22 still at home. She remembers Sr. Furay and Sr. Flagerty helping her when she went to the bank to obtain a mortgage. "I was so thankful to them, because who was going to give a widow with 11 children a loan?" she says.

Vallejo closes her eyes and shakes her head when asked if she could imagine her life without USD. "I'd still be in Mexico. My children would not have had the opportunity to grow up in America. I cannot think about what my life would have been like."

Vallejo and her husband, Jesus, were 16 and 22 years old, respectively, when they married in San Gaspar de los Reyes, Jalisco, Mexico.

Campaign Reminder

As USD moves into the final months of its $47.5 million "Education for a New Age" capital campaign, the campaign staff extends an invitation to any employees who have not contributed to the effort to do so.

The campaign staff did not contact every employee to seek a contribution because it did not want employees to feel obligated to contribute. However, any gift amount is welcome. Contributions to student financial aid, additions to the library collection or any academic program are among the possibilities.

For more information, please call ext. 4773. Contributions may be sent directly to the capital campaign office through intercampus mail. Your help will send a powerful message to university alumni and friends about employee support of the campaign.
