Program for elderly starts again

The University of the Third Age, a special program offered for persons over the age of 55 by the University of San Diego's continuing education division, will convene for its fourth session beginning Jan. 4.

The program will run Monday through Thursday for three weeks, with daily sessions from 8 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. in the Philip Y. Hahn School of Nursing Room 106, on the USD campus, just off Linda Vista Road.

Students must be able to provide their own transportation and be in reasonably good health. The fee is $35.

Persons seeking additional information or registration forms may contact U3A coordinator Sandra Kraemer at 291-6480, extension 4585.

According to continuing education director Malachi Rafferty, the three-week program "is designed to fascinate, stimulate, and re-expose people to a variety of ideas and mental challenges within the university atmosphere, but with no academic tests, exams or expectations."

In addition to several USD professors, instructors for the session include: Donald Bauder, financial editor of the San Diego Union; Dennis Hart, executive director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews; Dr. Thomas Flanagan, president of the Psychiatric Center, San Diego; and Dr. J. Edwin Seegmiller, director of the Human Biochemical Genetic Program, Department of Medicine, UCSD.

Local student honored

Sharon A. Cheever of La Jolla is one of 24 students at the University of San Diego School of Law named to the 1982 Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Selection of recipients of the award is based on academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and future potential.

The USD students join a group from more than 1,300 institutions of higher learning throughout the United States and several foreign countries.
Official to Head Program

Ernest E. Yahnke, senior vice president for Bank of America in San Diego, has been named chairman of the Corporate Associates, a new University of San Diego program that aims to build closer ties with local corporations.

Other officers serving with Yahnke include Bruce R. Hazard, president of Hazard Products, who will be vice chairman of the program, and Richard P. Woltman, vice president of First Affiliated Securities Inc.

USD seminar set

"Effective Project Management — Tools and Techniques for Success," a seminar sponsored by the University of San Diego School of Business Administration and Continuing Education, will be held Jan. 14 and 15 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the BankAmerica Room, School of Business.

The $260 registration fee, payable in advance, includes tuition, course workbook, two lunches and refreshments. A 15 percent discount is available to organizations registering three or more participants. For information and reservations, call 293-4585.

University of Connecticut professor of information management Herbert Spirer will lead the seminar, which is designed to provide tools and techniques for effectively organizing, structuring, scheduling, cost-estimating and controlling projects.

Author of a home-study course in project management that is distributed to over twenty engineering societies, Spirer has served as a consultant to a variety of companies.

DAILY TRANSCRIPT

Dr. Author E. Hughes, president of the University of San Diego, has been elected to the board of directors of the National Assn. of Independent Colleges and Universities. He will take office in February and will serve a two-year term representing Region V, the western arm of the association.
If you know where Melanesia is, go to the head of the class. And if you can identify all the islands comprising Melanesia, you can stay home from work tomorrow. (For those who don't know - they're the Solomon Islands, New Hebrides, the Admiralty and Fiji Islands, New Caledonia, the Bismarck archipelago and New Guinea.)

The University of San Diego is currently offering an exhibition of Melanesian art, and although it isn't as big and diverse as Melanesia, it's big enough.

At first glance it may seem incorrect to refer to Melanesian art as an entity, because each region, tribe and island has developed its own characteristic and unmistakable forms and styles. Nevertheless, after studying the works exhibited it is possible to discern a single, magico-religious source of inspiration, apparent even in objects as diverse as weapons, masks and implements of a purely utilitarian nature. And all Melanesian art is outstanding in its richness of form and color, figural dynamism and elaboration of ornament.

Exhibited are a wide variety of items: masks, spirit totems, cult and ceremonial hooks, orator's chairs, dance hats, bark paintings, canoe splash boards, dance wands, funerary figures, a lizard ledge, ceremonial bowls and ancestral figures, heads and plaques. Created essentially for rituals or events associated with religious expectations, they are by turn haunting, beautiful, ugly, bewildering, frightening, repugnant - and all highly effective.

One of the largest pieces is a mid-20th century war canoe shield, similar to an ornamental boat prow, made out of sago spathe (whatever that is!), dark feathers, wood and cane. The shape of the shield is believed to contain the soul of a deceased warrior or ancestor - placed on the bow, it "hides" and protects the canoe from enemies.

Masks are an integral part of Melanesian culture. Used in dances and religious ceremonies, they vary widely in style, technique and materials. When worn, the wearer loses his identity and embodies the spirit of an ancestor. One of the strangest masks shown in a Baining fire-dance mask from the New Britain Gazelle Peninsula. With its long snout a cross between a pig's nose and a swordfish's beak, its batlike ears, large eyes, embellished with brilliant circles of color, it is meant to ensure the fertility of crops, a good hunt, courage and strength. Worn at night it would frighten the most valiant of men, the purest of women.

Among Melanesian artifacts on exhibit at the University of San Diego, Founders Gallery is this Baining fire-dance mask, which measures 28 inches by 25 inches.

The seatlike projection with bunches of twigs when they want to emphasize a point.

Most of the objects in this show are admirable, although frightening, but the artistic craftsmanship of each object is of an exceptionally high level. This exhibition, from the Charles Ross family collection, was gathered by Mark Lissauer of Melbourne.

The Founder's Gallery, University of San Diego, Alcalá Park, is open Weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.
University art galleries here have become an important forum for unusual art forms in addition to bringing to San Diego some top quality art.

The SDSU gallery under the direction of Dennis Komac has brought in some stunning shows in the past and has plans for potential knock-out exhibits next semester. The gallery will bring in Los Angeles artists as well as the controversial artist Vito Acconci, whose constructions, which involve audience participation, will be part of a planned exhibition at the SDSU gallery next April.

UCSD's Mandeville Gallery, which has also brought in important national and international figures, will reflect the exchange between the dramatic and visual arts with "Artists and the Theater," a show of theater sets and costume designs March 19 to April 25. It comes from the Museum of Modern Art, New York.

Palomar, Mira Costa, Southwestern and Grossmont colleges, among local junior colleges, also have been actively pursuing exhibitions that are of importance and attract many from outside the campuses.

Meanwhile, up above Mission Valley on a hill where the serene campus seems many, more miles removed from the busy valley than it really is, the University of San Diego has been steadily presenting some fine exhibitions in the Founders Gallery.

Continuing through Dec. 9, USD's display of Melanesian art should disprove any speculation that students of this Catholic university are given a cloistered view of the world. Indicating how catholic their tastes really are, gallery organizers are presenting a display of artifacts of the Sepic River people of New Guinea. The show is an excellent view of these people who are known to still practice cannibalism.

The exhibit is flawed only because the gallery doesn't allow more space. This does not mean fewer works should have been exhibited, however. The diversity of the highly stylized masks and ritual objects make it one of the most interesting shows to take in this month. Located in the first building on the left from the Alcala Park entrance, the gallery is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesdays.

While the background ethnic music is so lively that it is distracting, it brings home the fact that these objects were not made for art's sake. Rather, they are a part of a living tradition.

The artifacts are part of the collection of H. Mark Lissauer, a respected anthropologist met by Dr. Charles Ross three years ago. Ross, USD's director of Health Services, owns International Gallery in La Mesa and has purchased many works from the Lissauer collection.

The exhibition was installed by students of Therese Whitcomb, USD art department head.
Boosted by a continuing jump in student enrollment, the University of San Diego last week reported a net increase in its operating fund balance for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1981 of $364,183, up a hefty 175.5 percent over last year's $132,173.

It was the sixth consecutive year in which USD has reported an operating surplus — a far cry from the five straight years of budgetary deficits which plagued the university from 1972 through 1976. At its peak, the deficit reached $415,962.

But under the direction of president AUTHOR HUGHES, USD embarked on planned fundraising and capital formation programs, efforts which have turned the once-financially troubled, once-Catholic Church-operated institution into a solvent, independent university.

Revenues for the fiscal year reached a record $23.2 million, up 19.6 percent over last year, while assets were nearly $57.7 million, up 21.3 percent.

USD is heavily tuition-dependent for its revenues. The tuition-to-revenues ratio is 73.6 percent, slightly below last year's 74.2 ratio.

To soften the burden — and to aid in USD's capital expenditure program — the university launched its "Discovery Campaign," with a $15 million fundraising goal. To date, about $8.7 million in gifts and pledges have been received. Union-Tribune publisher HELEN COLEY is chairwoman of the drive.

USD's enrollment as of Fall, 1981, was 4,791, up 8.2 percent over the year prior.

Finally, USD's operating surplus has lowered its accumulated deficit — once as high as $1.8 million — to $471,795.
USD Has Craft Fair Friday

SAN DIEGO — The first annual holiday craft fair will be held on the campus of the University of San Diego Dec. 11 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A $500,000 contribution to development of the University of San Diego's campus was made Wednesday afternoon by USD trustee Douglas Manchester and his wife, a member of the USD Auxiliary. Manchester, president of Torrey Enterprises, said the couple would "commit our time and resources to build the Manchester Executive Conference Center," a 10,000 square foot facility planned over the past two years. It will be used as a meeting place and conference facility in the University's continuing education programs. USD officials said the gift is the second largest in the institution's history; the first is from an anonymous donor.
$500,000 gift donated for USD building

Construction of a 10,000-square-foot University of San Diego conference center has moved a step closer to reality with a La Jolla couple's contribution of $500,000.

Dr. Author E. Hughes, USD president, today announced that Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Manchester have contributed the money toward construction of a campus Executive Conference Center.

Manchester presented his gift during a visit to the Alcala Park campus.

"My wife and I feel fortunate and blessed and realize how much the city of San Diego means to us and how important the University of San Diego will be to our children and to future generations," Manchester said.

The conference center will house a board of trustees conference room, a 256-seat auditorium, seminar meeting rooms and classrooms for the university's Continuing Education division.

The building, which has been designed by architects Tucker, Sadler and Associates, will bear the Manchester name and will be built adjacent to the Philip Y. Hahn School of Nursing's Muriel Marsh Hahn Pavilion.

University officials did not say when construction of the conference center will begin. The project has been in the planning for two years.

"This is a major step forward in the university's facilities and program development," Hughes said.

"In view of Mr. Manchester's leadership both as a trustee of the university and as an outstanding businessman and community figure, this gift seems a specially fitting tribute."

Manchester has been a USD trustee since 1978. He is vice chairman of the finance committee of the USD board and is president of Torrey Enterprises.

He is a member of the Young Presidents' Organization, the La Jolla Town Council, San Diego Yacht Club, Big Brothers and All Hallows Roman Catholic Church. He was voted one of the San Diego Jaycees' 10 outstanding young men in 1971 and 1976.

Mrs. Manchester is a member of the USD Auxiliary and served as chairman of the 1980 auxiliary fashion show. She is an alumna of Sacred Heart, the religious society which founded the San Diego College for Women, which was the predecessor institution of the University of San Diego.

USD Given $500,000 for Conference Center

The University of San Diego has received a $500,000 donation from a member of its Board of Trustees and his wife to establish a conference center on campus, USD officials announced Wednesday.

Douglas Manchester, president of Torrey Enterprises and a USD trustee since 1970, presented the gift to USD President Author E. Hughes during a visit to the campus. University officials said the money will be used to build a 10,000-square-foot center bearing the Manchester name next to its School of Nursing.

The center, on the planning boards for the two years, will house a board of trustees conference room, 256-seat auditorium, seminar facilities and classrooms for programs operated under the university's division of continuing education.

Manchester, of La Jolla, is vice chairman of the trustee panel's finance committee and has been active in a number of civic and social organizations, including the La Jolla Town Council and Big Brothers. His wife is a member of the USD Auxiliary and an alumna of the Sacred Heart, the religious society that founded the women's college that eventually became USD.

Tucker, Sadler and Associates has been chosen as architect for the center.

2ND LARGEST GIFT IN SCHOOL'S HISTORY

$500,000 Given For USD Building

By MICHAEL SCOTT-BLAIR
Education Writer, The San Diego Union

A $500,000 check for a new conference center at the University of San Diego was presented to campus President Author E. Hughes yesterday by Douglas and Elizabeth Manchester.

The couple's donation is the second largest personal gift in the university's history, second only to an anonymous gift of $1.5 million made to the campus over the past three years.

The new Manchester Executive Conference Center will be a 10,000-square-foot building on the southwest end of the campus, west of the nursing school and east of the site for a proposed new business school.

The total cost of the project will be $1.5 million. Hughes said yesterday he is confident the balance can quickly be raised to complete the center by the end of the 1982-83 academic year.

The building will continue the architectural style of the USD campus and will include a 256-seat auditorium, seminar facilities, a conference room for the campus board of trustees, and classrooms for the university's continuing education programs.

Manchester is a trustee of the university, and is the vice chairman of the board's finance committee.

He is a 1965 graduate of San Diego State University, and his wife graduated from that college a few years later. She is also an alumna of the Sacred Heart, the religious society that founded the San Diego College for Women, a predecessor institution of USD.

At 39, Manchester is one of the city's youngest real estate developers. He launched the Torrey Pines Business Park, has developed the 27-story downtown Commercial Center, which is the city's tallest building, and is the developer for the proposed Intercontinental Hotel and marina on the waterfront.

In presenting the check yesterday, the Manchesters said they saw their gift as a tribute to the educational benefits and quality of life they have received from and enjoyed in San Diego.

"We have been involved in some large projects and buildings in San Diego which we believe have been completed with a lot of class and style. But we are especially pleased with this addition to the university because it is going to serve so many people in the future," Manchester said.
Douglas Manchester makes $500,000 gift to USD

A leadership gift for the University of San Diego's campus development effort has been made by Douglas and Betsy Manchester of La Jolla, Author E. Hughes, USD president, announced yesterday.

Manchester presented his gift, described by Hughes as "major and significant," during a personal visit to the Alcala Park campus. According to the university, the $500,000 contribution will be used for the construction of the Executive Conference Center, which will bear the Manchester name.

The center, on the planning boards for the past two years, will be the university's premier conference facility, housing a board of trustees conference room, a 256-seat auditorium, seminar settings, and classrooms for many of the programs of the university's Continuing Education division.

The 10,000-square-foot facility will be constructed on a site adjacent to the Philip Y. Hahn School of Nursing's Muriel Marsh Hahn Pavilion.

Manchester, a USD trustee since 1978, vice chairman of the finance committee of the board, and president of Torrey Enterprises, has been active in numerous civic and social groups, including the Young Presidents' Organization, the La Jolla Town Council, San Diego Yacht Club, Big Brothers, and All Hallows Church. Voted one of the 10 most outstanding young men in San Diego in 1971 and again in 1976 by the San Diego Jaycees, he is a lifetime member of the Million Dollar Round Table.

Betsy Manchester is a member of the USD Auxiliary and served as chairman of the 1980 Auxiliary Fashion Show. She is also an alumnus of the Sacred Heart, the religious society which founded the San Diego College for Women, a predecessor institution of the University of San Diego.

In presenting their gift, Manchester said, "My wife and I feel fortunate and blessed, and realize how much the city of San Diego means to us and how important the University of San Diego will be to our children and to future generations. We want to be considered among the citizens who will be recalled as having made the university great.

"Therefore, it is with much pride that we commit our time and resources to build the Manchester Executive Conference Center, which we pray will be used for years to come as a meeting place for important professional and business groups, shaping ideas and finding solutions to problems which will build a better life for us all."

Architects for the Center are Tucker, Sadler, and Associates.

Seminary units being built

Framing has been completed on an apartment building being built by the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Diego, according to architect John R. Mock, planner and designer of the project.

"Construction is more than half complete, and Tony Garczynski Development Co., the general contractor, is ahead of schedule," Mock said.

The $325,000 project is to be complete in the spring.

The six-unit apartment complex, which will house seminarians and the seminary director, is being built on a 17,400-square-foot site at 6104 San Pedro Ave.

The two-story building will include an assembly room for meetings and retreats of the Priest Council of the diocese.

The wooden frame will soon be enclosed with walls with a stucco finish. A composition shingle roof will complete the exterior. Mock is a partner in the firm of Hendrick & Moci Architects.

Archeologist Unearths

SAN DIEGO - Raymond Brandes has watched San Diego grow since the 1920s, from 5th and Broadway to Hillcrest, to North Park and to Talmadge Heights and beyond.

"It grew following the mesas," he said, "along fingers of land that grew to the east."

And Brandes sees a potentially expensive mistake in the commercial development of Mission Valley.

The flood of February, 1980, when shopping centers were inundated, was nothing, he said, adding,

"The next one could be a lot worse."

If the city fathers had only read the letters of Father Junipero Serra, as Brandes often has, they would realize the potential for devastating floods in Mission Valley.

"He and the Indians would plant crops," Brandes said, "only to have them ruined. One environmental tragedy of San Diego is the building of a freeway in Mission Valley, a hotel-motel complex, shopping centers... It could have been one of the great outdoor recreational areas anywhere in the world, with campgrounds, swimming and boating areas. The river there runs year round."

Man of the Past

One gets the feeling Brandes has traveled the river. And his intimate knowledge of the city's history makes it easy to believe he was around during the time of Father Serra, or a first-hand witness to the growth of San Diego beyond its downtown settlements.

Brandes is a native of Coronado. He researched the book on archeological digs over a 17-year period. He has sifted the earth near Old Town, the Gaslamp Quarter, Mission de Alcala and Presidio Park, with help from his students. As dean of the School of Graduate and Continuing Studies at the University of San Diego, Brandes has been a teacher for more than 25 years.

"When a book such as this is put together with the help of others," he said, "the author gets a paternalistic feeling about the project. Not all of my students became archeologists, not by any means. Some have become bankers, corporation presidents, public relations executives."

Brandes gathered about 800 photographs for use in the book and that number, finally, was pared to about 450.

Among the things he learned along the way was the talent of the Mexican and Spanish officials at preserving records.

Brandes also learned that the Mexicans of 1821 were extremely jealous about who would live in San Diego, their pearl on the Pacific. They enacted strong immigration laws, which, ironically, were much like the ones that make many Mexicans outcasts or "aliens" today.

Brandes had learned to love San Diego long before he began researching his book. He and his wife, Irma Montijo, live on Bankers Hill and have seven children, five of them still at home.

Some have become bankers, corporation presidents, public relations executives. Branded gathered about 800 photographs for use in the book and that number, finally, was pared to about 450.

Among the things he learned along the way was the talent of the Mexican and Spanish officials at preserving records.

Brandes also learned that the Mexicans of 1821 were extremely jealous about who would live in San Diego, their pearl on the Pacific. They enacted strong immigration laws, which, ironically, were much like the ones that make many Mexicans outcasts or "aliens" today.

Brandes had learned to love San Diego long before he began researching his book. He and his wife, Irma Montijo, live on Bankers Hill and have seven children, five of them still at home.
The Brandeses have developed a pride about their city, which the author considers one of the most beautiful he has seen. And he has visited many — Barcelona, Paris, London, San Francisco. California’s oldest settlement, San Diego, remains his favorite.

He sees problems, but he also sees a city, for the most part, that has been fortunate and favored by both nature and man.

"People like John D. Spreckels were brilliant," he said of an early San Diego pioneer. "He saw the relation of our harbor to transportation — and to the environment as well. He believed you could have all kinds of things and not harm the environment."

"George Marston and John Nolan, two of our earliest city planners, were unique. Nolan, whose plan of 1908 is still regarded as a workable model by today’s city powers, was a remarkable man."

L.A.’s Growth a Blessing

Brandes has heard the comparisons of San Diego to Los Angeles, how this city was "blessed" by the port moving north, and by the railroad. San Diego may not have known it at the time, he conceded, but it did benefit. And the evidence, he said, is all around us today.

"We’ve done a remarkable job of preserving the past," Brandes said. "From the Gaslamp Quarter to the Wild Animal Park and the zoo, even Seaport Village, we seem to have a sense of where we’ve come from."

"San Diego has done an awfully good job of keeping itself clean. Imagine what the steel and coal industry would have done to our city — have, in fact, done to other cities. The kinds of businesses we have, have benefited us."

Brandes has heard the talk of San Diego’s having an "inferiority complex" toward its neighbor, Los Angeles.

"It’s a myth," he said, "that papers in both cities started — feuding papers. The Chambers of Commerce have feuded. A game of one-upmanship has been played. But San Diego has no inferiority complex. It doesn’t have the same attributes as Los Angeles, and vice versa. They’re different cities, with different landscapes. Both are cosmopolitan, with a wide variance of cultural and ethnic groups."

One of San Diego’s — and the nation’s — strengths, Brandes believes, is its cultural diversity.

"You can’t walk down the street."

UNIVERSITY OF THE THIRD AGE: A special program will be offered by the University of San Diego's Continuing Education for persons 55 or older, starting Jan. 4 and running through Jan. 21. Held during the university's intersession, the University of the Third Age project "is designed to fascinate, stimulate and re-expose people to a variety of ideas and mental challenges within the university atmosphere but with no academic tests, exams, or expectations" said Malachi Rafferty, director of Continuing Education for USD. Course topics include depression, equal rights, paramedical services, medical quackery, finances, music, cults, jazz, estate and tax planning and others.

Classes will be held from 8 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Monday through Thursday in the Philip Y. Hahn School of Nursing, Room 106, on the USD campus on Linda Vista Road. The cost is $35. For more information call 291-6480, ext. 4585.

USD Offers Courses For Those 55, Older

Persons 55 years of age or older may register for a special University of the Third Age series of courses to be held beginning Monday at the University of San Diego's Alcala Park campus.

The three-week courses cover a variety of topics of interest and are designed to re-expose people to a variety of ideas within the university atmosphere. There are no exams or academic tests. The fee is $30. More information and registration may be obtained by calling Mal Rafferty at 293-4585.
University Of Third Age
To Begin In San Diego

SAN DIEGO — The University of the Third Age, a special program offered by the University of San Diego's Continuing Education division for persons over the age of 55, will convene for its fourth session beginning January 4, 1982.

The program will run for three weeks, Jan. 4-21, Monday through Thursday, with daily sessions from 8 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. in the Philip Y. Hahn School of Nursing, room 106, at the USD campus just off Linda Vista Road.

Students must be able to provide their own transportation and be in reasonably good health. The fee is $35. Persons seeking additional information or registration forms may contact U3A coordinator Sandra Kraemer at the USC campus, 714/291-6480, extension 4585.

A three-week program which opens the campus to U3A students during the University's intersession, the U3A project is "designed to fascinate, stimulate, and re-expose people to a variety of ideas and mental challenges within the University atmosphere but with no academic tests, exams or expectations," explains Malachi Rafferty, director of Continuing Education.

Course topics in the upcoming sessions include dealing with depression, equal rights, paramedical services, medical quackery, finances, music, cults, jazz, estate and tax planning, and many other subjects.

Among the faculty, in addition to several University of San Diego professors, are Donald Bauder, financial editor of the San Diego Union; Dennis Hart, executive director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews; Dr. Thomas Flanagan, president of the Psychiatric Center, San Diego; and Dr. J. Edwin Seegmiller, director of the Human Biochemical Genetic Program, Department of Medicine, University of California at San Diego.

Commenting on the program, James Gordon, alumnus of the U3A and president of its alumni association, said "in these days of high costs, so difficult for persons with fixed incomes, to be able to participate in this worthwhile, invigorating course for just $35 is a real boon. It is a gift of the University to the community."

Gordon, who will join USD president Dr. Author E. Hughes in welcoming students at the Jan. 4 convocation, went on to say he would recommend the program to "virtually anyone. Mal Rafferty and his staff have lined up a roster of experts — all of whom serve on a volunteer basis — who will speak on about twenty topics covering a broad spectrum of interests. And I know from my own experience that the U3A faculty really make their subjects come alive."
More than 50 persons have enrolled in the University of the Third Age, which opens Monday for three weeks at the University of San Diego. Courses are designed to re-expose people to a variety of ideas within the university atmosphere. Persons 55 or older may register. The fee for the entire course is $35.

Classes will be held from 8 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Monday through Thursday in the Philip Y. Hahn School of Nursing, room 106, on the USD campus off of Linda Vista Road. The cost is $35. For more information call 291-6480, extension 4585.
USD offers religious leaders special courses next spring

The University of San Diego's Office of Continuing Education will offer a comprehensive program in the spring of 1982 based on a survey to assess the current educational needs of clergy and other religious leaders.

The office reports that "the immediate response and volume of replies to the survey shows the following to be of greatest interest: pastoral counseling and crisis intervention, pastoral theology, prayer and spirituality, the adult spiritual journey, scripture and the arts, and preaching."

With the cooperation and sponsorship of several community and religious agencies, USD will offer such courses as: Making Peace in the Global Village, Women's Spiritual Journey Through Storytelling, Fifth Annual Symposium on the Holocaust, and Scripture Institute: Pauline Biblical Themes. Others include The Spiritual Journey: Stories of Adult Faith, and The Use of Storytelling in Ministry and Preaching.

For dates and other information please contact: USD Continuing Education, Alcala Park, San Diego, 92110.
USD Intersession offers concentrated education plan

Intersession 1982, three weeks of concentrated studies, will open at the University of San Diego on Monday, Jan. 4 and run through Friday, Jan. 22.

Tuition ranges from $155 - $170 per unit, with a 50 percent reduction for clergymen and religious women of all faiths whose principal support is from the ministry. Room and board are available.

It is possible to register for classes on the first class day. For further information, interested persons may call 714-293-4800 or visit the Office of the Registrar, Founders Hall, at the Linda Vista Road campus.

According to Dr. Raymond S. Brandes, dean of USD's School of Graduate and Continuing Education, the intersession curriculum is "drawn from fourteen areas of study in order to provide our students with a wide range of educational opportunities."

All courses, Brandes said, earn full academic credit "and are not to be confused with continuing education classes. Intersession provides an excellent opportunity for students to accumulate additional credit hours in a short period of time."

Classes during intersession meet either five mornings or four nights a week. Courses are as follows:

Mornings:
- Photography
- Life and Health
- Computer Literacy
- Music Appreciation
- Ethics
- Introductory Psychology
- Contemporary Judaism and Its Historical Background
- Fundamental Issues in Physical Science
- Social Class in America
- Intermediate Spanish
- Principles of Accounting and Computer Principles and Applications

Evenings:
- American Poetry to 1914
- Immigration and the American Scene
- Ethics
- Comparative Political Ideology
- The Christian Vision of C. S. Lewis
- Financial Management
- Production Management
- Organizational Behavior
- Group Dynamics and Leadership
MYSTICAL MASKS

Hundreds of lips and eyes frighten and inspire the viewer

"Viejitos," traditional Mexican masks, were included in the exhibition "Faces of Fiesta: Mexican Masks in Context," at the University Gallery at San Diego State University.

At the foot of a grave beside the Sepik River in New Guinea rests the horrifying head of Nambugi, a "witch face" placed there as a deterrent to grave-robbing sorcerers. The mouth is broad and grimacing, the nose long and deformed. Boar tusks protrude from cheeks composed of mud and plant fiber plastered down and spotted with rusty orange coloration. A phallic helmet completes the repellent, ghoulish image. Yet within the same culture, elegant geometric and curvilinear sculptures serve other, vastly different purposes.

The Founders' Gallery at the University of San Diego is presenting a rare exhibition of Melanesian sculptural objects, "Face and Form of New Guinea," through Dec. 9, while across town at San Diego State University's University Gallery, devils, clowns, saints and spooks were among the rich offering extended in the exhibition, "Faces of Fiesta: Mexican Masks in Context," which just closed.

Neither of these exhibits could boast of the antiquity of their works, since no object dated from earlier than the late 19th century. But both displays were tributes to the fantastically varied exercise of imagination that is possible even when artists are restricted by the demands of ritual and traditional artistic formulas.

The energy behind the impressive gathering of 125 Mexican masks, amplified with photo blowups and texts, was SDSU Associate Professor of Art History Janet Brody Esser, who spent five years in Mexico living among the people and learning from them the meanings of festival traditions and rituals. Virtually nothing had been written about the elaborate festival "dances" (actually dramas and dances) for which the varieties of masks are used. Esser has spent the last two years gathering the masks, which were on loan from private and public collections, including the Lowie Museum of Anthropology in Berkeley, the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History, the San Diego Museum of Man, the UCLA Museum of Cultural History and the Museo de Artes e Industrias Populares in Mexico City.

Although Esser focused on the Tarascan people (an Indian linguistic and ethnic group in Western Mexico), the masks represented people from many other Mexican locales, villages and ranchos where festival masquerades are still popular.

If you came to the mask exhibit expecting New Testament images lined up for a traditional passion play, you were in for a surprise. The masks epitomize the power of art to draw people into the framework of society, to engage them emotionally in a social game plan.

The word "Faces" in the exhibit's title referred to the full spectrum of the population, to its cross-cultural heritage (Indian, European and African)—a tremendous slave population was introduced by Europeans, and to its historical antecedents (the Spanish conquest of the Moors, the Christian conquest of paganism in the Americas).

The major function of the dances, performed at ceremonial seasons such as Christmas, Holy Week or village patron saints' days, is to define human roles in society. Proper and improper behavior within specified roles is acted out and expressed in masks and costumes. Color, humor, melodrama and mime bring home the message, which divides the beautiful, splendid, orderly and participatory from the ugly, disorderly and destructive. Categories of masks include "Viejitos" (old men) and other elders, women, black men, conquest dances, animals and the "forces of inversion"—negative role models.

"Viejitos" are among the most idealized of the faces, yet so lifelike they project an eerie presence in the community. Leather skin, taut, smoothed to perfection and tinted in healthy skin tones, is formed over lean, strong-jawed facial structures. Hair and beard are carved and painted, or cow hair or bleached human hair are utilized. Dancers are able to open and close focused glass eyes by pulling a string, further heightening the illusion of reality.

Roles of women—matronly figures of power, models of correct behavior, or tawdry, buffoon-like "Ugly Women"—are performed by men.

"Black men" wear splendid finery and represent power and wealth. The Indian population perceived black African slaves as having control over people and goods.

Splendidly costumed "Viejitos" go from house to house in Tarascan villages, solemnly performing stylized and repetitious dances. Accompanying them and contrasting with them are grotesque clowns. Men costumed as both men and women get into the act as "Ugly Ones," the negative role models which frighten and harass onlookers, tease children, burlesque "respectable" citizens and sometimes police the crowds while carrying out their tomfoolery. One of the downright homeliest masks had long wisps of hair jutting out all over its face, bulging eyes, crumpled cardboard teeth, green skin and a bound leather scroll for a nose. Certainly this fellow must command the attention, if not the love, of the crowds.

Notwithstanding the vast geographical separation between the homelands of the Mexican masks and the Melanesian masks and sculpture on view at USD, the source of their fascination for Western eyes, and of their power over their own people, is the same. Emotional intensity, in both the bad and the beautiful, is the result of the individual artist's will pushing out from within the confines of traditional formulas. The formula is like a sack that stretches, shifts, and changes shape, yet never fails to contain and limit. The individual talent stretches the sack, but never bursts through. The tension of creating from within holds human behavior under its spell.

Entering an otherwise sterile gallery space arrayed with demonry and finery, and hundreds of lips and eyes in every conceivable expression, can both frighten and inspire the onlooker. The variety of colors and materials is magnificent—painted wood, leather, raffia, ceramic, ribbons, metal, beads, sheepskin and wool, glass, and human and animal hair.

New Guinean objects rely on the power of design and repeated tribal traditions to convey values. A protective Welanshauaung is preserved through objectification.

About 40 pieces were up at USD, ranging from 6 inches to 5 feet in height, which revealed the many ways the face and figure could be stylized by one group of people. Masks, fetishes, ancestral and cult figures, containers, lecterns, and even flute stoppers were carved in wood with a shell tool or volcanic rock adze and embellished with paint, rattan, raffia, clay, cowrie shells and beads.

Besides the ogre-like Nambuigi form, other stylistic classifications exist. Within each group, artists have altered and expanded features without overstepping traditional boundaries.

A Korwar figure, inspired by Mongoloid migrations, always has short, straight hair, a close-fitting cap, a broad mouth and a crouching pose. Forms are quite angular and geometric and orange and white highlights project volume and depth onto the shallow carved brown wood board. The white is made from the lime of shells and the orange from earth substances; a black-gray color, in other works, is made from charcoal.

A curvilinear style features a richly patterned surface, also heightened with white or color.

Originally thought to represent birds, "beak style" figures are derived from fig-} ures of Ganesha, the elephant god of India, and the "beak" is the elephant's trunk.

The primary stylization is a rudimentary human configuration used in the inland areas of New Guinea. Tribes populating areas close to the Sepik River, who have contact with other cultures, employ more complicated design and media with a greater degree of both personal and traditional invention.

Here in one tiny geographic location are both simple and complex forms, geometric and curvilinear styles and faces which inspire calm, respect and fear. Sculpture is placed outside houses, on graves, or—as in Mexico—is used during ceremonies.

But in New Guinea the societal models pass through the sieve of magic, mystery and spirituality which shields the fragile river world. Objects summon spirits and powers of harvest and fertility. They frighten enemies and the uninitiated, and this maintains the power of the initiated and, in turn, the social edifice.

There is much to be learned from exhibits which reveal belief systems more cohesive than our own. The art of these cultures is intertwined with values and rituals which grow out of and feed directly back into the daily life of the people. Both exhibits did a thorough and engaging job of gathering rare and exciting materials, and of explaining the connections which contemporary Westerners are not used to making.

Tempers Flare as Aztecs Ease by USD, 41-36

By HOWARD STUTZ, Times Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO—College baseball contests between San Diego State and the University of San Diego are becoming pretty emotional events.

In Tuesday night’s game between the crosstown rivals, a USD player was ejected after a scuffle between him and a member of the Aztecs. Fans engaged in shouting matches and USD supporters carried banners around the Sports Arena saying unkind things about “Aztec Fever.”

But in the end, one thing remained the same, San Diego State finished on top, 41-36, the Aztecs’ lowest point total this season.

San Diego State leads the series between the two schools, 11-5, and won the match for the third year in a row.

Leonard Allen, the Aztecs’ freshman center, played the entire 40 minutes, leading the team in scoring with 13 points and blocking six shots to raise his season total to 24.

But the story was the way San Diego State won, by playing an unfamiliar slow-down offense.

From the 5:51 mark in the final half, there was no scoring by either side until San Diego State’s junior point guard Keith Smith hit two free throws in the final 14 seconds to ice the game.

Aztec Head Coach Smokey Gaines didn’t like not being able to play his run-and-shoot offense, but he’ll take a win any way possible.

“We took shots that we should have made,” Gaines said. “The way the game progressed, we knew we were going to be able to run with them, we knew we had to slow it down.”

The Toreros tried the same offense the Aztecs did. USD had a chance to make the score closer with 2:30 left when the Toreros forced Smith to turn the ball over.

The Toreros called timeout at 2:21, but Eddie Morris of the Aztecs stole the ball on the inbound pass.

“If there was a key play in the game, that was it,” USD coach Jim Brovelli said. “I’m disappointed, but we played them close. This game is going to help us later on in the year from what we learned.”

A major incident nearly took place at 8:58 in the first half when USD point guard Rich Davis had to be restrained from going after the Aztecs’ Zack Jones, after Jones allegedly hit Davis.

Davis was ejected, but the whole thing bothered both Gaines and Brovelli.

“It’s unfortunate this thing happened,” Gaines said. “That is not a characteristic of a Jim Brovelli team. But things got emotional.”

“Rich got hit, but his emotions just took over,” Brovelli said. “I’m sorry it happened.”

In the first half, the Aztecs led 24-20 at its conclusion, but not until USD broke out to a 10-2 lead with 1:46 left...
San Diego State
vs. USD Tonight

It's Not UCLA and Notre Dame, but the Rivalry Certainly Exists

By HOWARD STUTZ, Times Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO—The rivalry has yet to receive the stature a college basketball game between UCLA and Notre Dame would have but the people from San Diego State and the University of San Diego might look at tonight's 7:35 match at the Sports Arena as the NCAA Championship.

The Aztecs and USD have faced each other 15 times, with San Diego State winning 10 of them.

Going into tonight's game, San Diego State, 3-2 this season, is coming off a 99-60 beating of Cal State Los Angeles. USD, 2-1, will be trying to rebound from a 78-66 loss to UC Irvine.

Torero Coach Jim Brovelli said there is always an extra incentive when his team faces San Diego State. But this season, it's just another game in what is being called USD's toughest schedule ever.

"Playing teams as good as San Diego State is great preparation for the WCAA games," Brovelli said. "Anytime we can play a good nonconference game, we'll welcome it."

USD has four players averaging in double figures for the three games this season. Senior center Dave Heppell is the leading scorer with 13.6 points a game, while guard Rusty Whitmarsh is averaging 13 a game.

Another starter, Gerald Jones, is averaging 11.3 points. Rich Davis has come off the bench to average the same.

Brovelli said this shows the team-oriented play of the Toreros, who he said seem to be improving with every game.

"I thought we played a great game against Boise State, which is a really good club," Brovelli said. "We did what we could to contain Kevin Magee (of UC Irvine), but he's an All-American.

"San Diego State is really loaded with talent and they've improved depth-wise. I'm looking for a close game."

RIVALRY: San Diego St. vs. USD Tonight

Aztec Coach Smokey Gaines made one change in his lineup Tuesday night when the Aztecs beat Cal State Los Angeles. He moved junior Don Plummer into the small forward spot, replacing Eddy Gordon.

Gaines said he did this because he wanted to get more scoring punch in the lineup. Plummer responded with 16 points while Gordon came off the bench to score 20. Gaines said he will probably start Plummer tonight.

"We want to get Eddy pounding the boards more," Gaines said. "He did that Tuesday. We also don't want to take Leonard Allen out of there. We want to give him a lot of playing time before the WAC season rolls around."

Allen, a 6-10 freshman center who has averaged only 5.4 points, has blocked 18 shots and grabbed 26 rebounds.

The leading scorer on the Aztecs is senior guard Zack Jones, averaging 15.4 a game.

Gaines said he likes the crosstown rivalry aspect of the game and he respects the USD team.

"They've got a good team," Gaines said. "A crosstown rivalry gets the people excited. These nonconference games help us get ready for the WAC."

In last year's game, the Aztecs won 60-52. The two teams play annually for the Mayor's Cup, an award which originated two years ago.
USD's Gerald Jones is in no position to stop this basketball by San Diego State's Zack Jones. The Aztecs won the crosstown rivalry 41-36 Thursday night as freshman Leonard Allen scored 13 points, had six rebounds and blocked six shots. The Aztecs, 3-2, hosted Oregon last night, while the Toreros, now 2-2, are idle until Thursday when they entertain Bethel College.
Aztecs' Slowdown Stops USD

By BILL FINLEY
Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

Secretly, deep down, San Diego State is convinced it is in a different league than the University of San Diego and maybe, just maybe, the Aztecs should consider themselves fortunate today.

Year after year the Aztecs are expected to run the Toreros off the floor, up the tunnel, and into the frozen food section of the FedMart across the street.

Year after year the game between these schools instead goes down to the closing seconds. And so it went again last night.

This time, Aztec guard Keith Smith calmly netted two free throws with 14 seconds to play, and with them San Diego State held on to defeat USD 41-36 in a basketball game played before 3,612 fans in the Sports Arena.

It would be convenient to say the Toreros kept it close by holding the ball. In truth, however, their matchup zone was so effective the 4-2 Aztecs spent minutes on end trying to find an opening.

Late in the game, while nursing a lead of 39-36, the Aztecs held the ball for five minutes without launching a shot.

An errant pass by Smith and a missed free throw by Aztec forward Eddy Gordon gave the Toreros two opportunities to win in the final minute.

The first ended when a pass by Steve Rocha was intercepted by Aztec swingman Eddie Morris, a player far better known for his shooting than for his defense. Next, with 20 seconds to go, USD guard John Prunty missed a 20-footer that became the possession of Aztec center Leonard Allen.

This positioned Smith for his game-clinching free throws and, for the first time all evening, Aztec Coach Smokey Gaines was able to untwist his fingers.

"We'll take 'em any way we can," Gaines said. "It's always tough when you're playing your crosstown rival, anything can happen, and we're happy any time we can get a 'W' against USD. They're tough any time, and they're always tough against us."

For a time, it appeared the Toreros might well be plotting an upset. USD bolted to a 10-2 lead in the first seven minutes of the game.

At this point, however, the Aztecs rattled off a string of their own. In the next seven minutes, San Diego State outscored USD 16-2. This left the Aztecs ahead 18-12 and they held narrow margins the rest of the evening.

The difference on this occasion was probably the play of Allen, the 6-foot-10 freshman from Port Arthur, Texas. He scored 13 points, collected 6 rebounds and blocked 6 shots, all quite impressive figures when given the paucity of points, and shots, in the game.

"I didn't go out there looking to score, I never do," Allen insisted. "My role is to play some defense and block some shots. If I'm doing any scoring, I figure that's just icing on the cake."

Torero Coach Jim Brovelli, whose 2-2 team lost its second straight game, suggested Allen had much to do with the outcome. "It wasn't his (Continued on D-8, Col. 1)
Allen, Smith Help Aztecs Edge USD 41-36

Gaines suspected his club's slow start came from a lack of patience against the USD zone. "You're not going to beat a Jim Brovelli team by rushing anything," he said. It may also have had something to do with the fact the Aztecs did not start guard Zack Jones. He was late for practice Wednesday. When he finally took the floor, six minutes into the game, order soon was restored.

Jones concluded with 8 points, Smith with 9. Senior forward Gerald Jones led USD with 11 points and the other Toro cornerman, Robby Roberts, had 12 rebounds.

USD outrebounded SDSU 27-21 but, for a second consecutive year, had its hopes for an upset foiled by poor shooting. This time the Toreros shot just 37 per cent, compared with 50 per cent by the Aztecs. What's more, San Diego State was 11 for 21 from the foul line. USD was 2 of 3.

"I thought we played pretty well, especially with our defense," Brovellli said. "We did just about everything we'd hoped to do; we just couldn't put the ball in the net from the floor."

Unfortunately, a negative note was provided by USD guard Rich Davis, who charged Jones after contact between them occurred away from the ball in the first half. Davis was ejected from the game, and on his way to the dressing room raised the middle fingers of both hands toward the crowd. Brovelli, who did not see the incident which triggered the flareup, would not comment on what had occurred.
MORE BASKETBALL — The University of San Diego Toreros step up in class to tackle the University of California (Berkeley) Golden Bears in the Sports Arena Monday night at 7:35. The Toreros are coming off a loss to Santa Barbara University which caused their season record to slip to 4-3.

USD Seeks Fourth Victory Tonight

From a Times Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO—The University of San Diego basketball team will shoot for its fourth victory in six games at 7:30 tonight against Illinois Wesleyan in the USD Sports Center.

San Diego Notepad

Meanwhile, the University of San Diego Toreros face undefeated Bethel College (9-0) at 7:35 tonight at the USD Sports Center. The Bethel Wildcats from Mishawaka, Ind., are considered a power in the small college ranks. The Toreros are 3-2, their last game being a loss to San Diego State last week. Gerald Jones will lead the Toreros, averaging 11.3 points and 5.3 rebounds a game.

University of San Diego Will Play Bethel Tonight

From a Times Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO—The University of San Diego basketball team, idle for the past week, will play host to Bethel College of Indiana at 7:30 tonight in the USD Sports Center.

USD, 2-2, has been led in scoring by Gerald Jones, who averages 11.3 points a game. Rusty Whitmarsh and Dave Heppell are both averaging 10.8 points for the Toreros.
AN AWARD FOR HERBERT — USD's Dan Herbert was named to the College Division II Kodak All-America team and the small college All-Academic second team. Herbert attended Patrick Henry High. He led the Toreros with eight interceptions this season, setting a school record. The Kodak All-Americans are picked by the American Football Coaches Association.

TOREROS' HERBERT ALL-AMERICAN

Dan Herbert of University of San Diego was honored today with selection as a defensive back on the College Division II All-America team as selected by the American Football Coaches Association.

Machurek, USD’s Herbert Selected For Gold Bowl

Former Madison High and San Diego City College quarterback Dave Machurek of Idaho State and USD safety Dan Herbert were added yesterday to the squads that will play in the Olympia Gold Bowl on Jan. 16 at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium.

Machurek, a 6-foot-2, 203-pounder, completed 253 of 426 passes this year for 3,764 yards and 29 touchdowns in leading Idaho State to a 12-1 record, including a 34-23 victory last Saturday over Eastern Kentucky.

He is the second quarterback signed by Team National. The first was Matt Kofler of San Diego State.

Herbert is a Division III All-American, and he was selected by Team American.
TORERAS SCUTTLE TRITONS

The University of San Diego women's basketball team, the Toreras, led by Laura Thomas and Martha Nelson, who scored 14 points each, swamped the UCSD Triton women 80-64 last night. Oddly enough, two of the UCSD women — Paulette Parker and Mary Egan — also hit for 14 each.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL: The University of San Diego Toreras face the UCSD Triton women's team Wednesday night at 7:30. The Toreras opened their season against the Tritons this year and came away with a 76-47 win.

USD women bounce back

The University of San Diego women's basketball team got back on the right track with a triumph over the visiting USIU Gulls this past weekend, using a team effort in the second half to come from behind.

USIU jumped out to a 44-34 first half lead behind the outside shooting of Jamie Glassford (14 points) and Kathy Bryans (12). USD stayed close with the fine performance of senior Debbie Weinreis who totaled 21 points in the half.

After intermission the Lady Toreras battled back with some tough defense and rebounding to take the lead for the first time, 53-52, with eight minutes to go. Junior center Martha Nelson came off the bench to spark the comeback with 10 points, 11 rebounds and four blocked shots. Weinreis led all scorers with 28 points. Sophomore guard Laura Thomas added nine points and four rebounds to aid the winners.

USIU was paced by Glassford, a sophomore from Madison High, with 16 points and six rebounds. Sophomores Kathy Bryans and Lisa Miranda followed with 12 and 8 points respectively. The Gulls shot 51 percent (20-39) in the opening half but cooled off in the second totaling just 15 points. USD's height advantage helped them to control the boards at both ends of the floor, grabbing a total of 54 rebounds to USIU's 21.

"We showed the kind of defense we are capable of playing in the second half," said coach Kathy Marpe.
USD LOSES/ UC Santa Barbara parlayed 27 Torero turnovers into a 72-57 victory over the University of San Diego Tuesday night in Santa Barbara. Guard Rusty Whitmarsh led the Toreros in scoring with 17 points. The senior hit seven of 10 floor shots. USD connected on 24 of 51 shots for 47 percent. But the mistakes killed the team. The Toreros' record dropped to 4-3. USD will play the California Bears Monday at 7:35 p.m. in the Sports Arena.

USD LOSES/ Kevin Magee and his UC Irvine teammates proved to be too much for the University of San Diego basketball team Saturday night as the Anteaters scored a 78-66 decision over the Toreros at the USD Sports Center. The 6-foot-9 Magee, a preseason All-America pick, scored 29 points to pace UC Irvine to its fourth win without a loss this year. USD fell to 2-1. The Toreros kept the game close in the first half with torrid outside shooting, but a stingy defense and 17 second-half points by Magee paved the way for the Anteater win. David Heppell led the Toreros with 19 points, while teammates Rusty Whitmarsh, John Prunty, Don Capener and Rich Davis each had 10. USD will next be in action Thursday night vs. San Diego State at the Sports Arena.

Gauchos lasso Toreros;

TOREROS GOUGED BY GAUCHOS — Junior guard Michael Russell scored a career-high 25 points to lead host UC-Santa Barbara to a convincing 72-57 non-conference victory last night over the University of San Diego. The Gauchos held a precarious 24-23 lead at halftime, but sparked by Russell's 21 second-half points, the Gauchos dominated the second half 48-34. USD was led by guard Rusty Whitmarsh with 17 points while teammate Don Capener scored 12. The Toreros shot 47 percent from the floor, and fell to 4-3 for the season. The only USD lead was at 18-16 on a Whitmarsh jumper with 5:49 to play in the first half.

MACHUREK AN ALL-AMERICAN — Former Madison High and San Diego City College quarterback Mike Machurek, who capped Idaho State's rags-to-riches saga by leading the Bengals to the NCAA Division I-AA national championship, was named today to The Associated Press College Division 1981 All-America football team. During the regular season, Machurek led Division I-AA in passing efficiency, completing 188 of 313 attempts for 2,752 yards and 22 touchdowns. Idaho State won its first Big Sky Conference title in 18 years after going 0-11 just two years ago.
Gauchos Take Advantage Of Torero Turnovers 72-57

By BILL CENTER
Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

SANTA BARBARA — Jim Brovelli preaches team basketball at the University of San Diego. Individuals do not win games, teams do.

Teams also lose them, as the Toreros proved last night.

With guards Michael Russell and Mario Gaines combining for 31 points in the second half, the University of California at Santa Barbara blitzed USD 72-57 in the Toreros' first game outside of San Diego this season.

"This was our worst game of the year, no doubt about it," Brovelli said. "We were a full step behind all game ... totally in a daze.

"I hadn't seen that poor an effort on our part at any time this season, either in practice or a game. Usually you might have one or two players come up with poor games. Tonight it was an entire team effort."

If it was an embarrassing loss, Brovelli also hoped it might serve as a lesson for his club.

"I think we have a little better idea of how we have to perform on the road," Brovelli said. "If anything, you have to put out a little more effort on the road than you do at home."

The Toreros shot well, 47 percent from the floor on 24-of-51 shooting. They shot well enough to defeat a team that came into the match with a 2-6 record.

But USD turned the ball over 27 times.

For the first 10 minutes of the second half, Russell and Gaines took turns picking the pockets of USD's guards. Russell and Gaines, who averaged 19.5 points between them coming into the game, scored 21 of UCSB's first 23 points in the second half.

From a 24-23 halftime lead, the Gauchos jumped to a 39-29 advantage in 5:26 of the second half. USD turned the ball over on four of its first six trips down floor after intermission.

The only USD lead was at 18-16 on a Rusty Whitmarsh jumper in the lane with 5:49 to play in the first half.

Throughout the first half — with the advantage not more than a basket — the Toreros always seemed ready to break the game open. But turnovers, 13 of them, stymied USD, which got off just 17 shots in the first half, compared to UCSB's 30.

"You just can't play that way and expect to win, or stay close," Brovelli said. His club proved him right.

Guard John Prunty had six turnovers in 15 minutes for USD. His back-up, Rich Davis, and center Dave Heppell were guilty of five turnovers each in 25 minutes, and Gerald Jones had four, and John Bate-man and Robby Roberts had three apiece.

UCSB, playing without second-leading scorer York Gross, got a career-high 25 points from Russell and 14 from Gaines.

Six-foot-10 center Richard Anderson had 12 points.

Whitmarsh paced USD with 17 points on 7-for-10 shooting. Don Capener came off the bench to hit for 12. Heppell didn't score a field goal until there was 8:39 to play. At that time, starting forwards Gerald Jones and Robby Roberts had a basket apiece.

USD (4-3) returns to action Monday night when it plays host to California of the Pac 10 at 7:35 in Sports Arena.
One good half not enough for USD to get job done against California

By Dennis Wynne
of The Daily Californian

"In the second half we played as well as we have all year," said a depressed Jim Brovelli. "I wish we could play 40 minutes of basketball the way we played those 20 minutes of basketball. But we haven't been able to put together a good 40-minute game yet." Brovelli's University of San Diego team did indeed play 20 minutes of good basketball in the second half Monday night against the University of California at the Sports Arena. The Torero team that took the court for the second half of Monday's game bore little resemblance to the way USD had played in the first 20 minutes.

USD out-rebounded, out-shot and out-hustled the Golden Bears during the second half. Unfortunately for the Toreros, there was one area of the game at which Cal excelled. And that made the difference in the contest.

During a six-minute stretch the University of California had its best free-throw shooting performance of the year. The Golden Bears hit 13 of 14 free throws during the final 5:40, and that allowed Cal to escape with a 66-60 non-conference victory.

"We got ourselves in a hole in the first half," Brovelli said. "We made some mistakes and they (Golden Bears) were able to take advantage of them. We were playing their game. In the second half we started playing our game and played much better."

In the first half it was Cal making the Toreros' evening miserable as the Golden Bears were stealing passes and forcing other turnovers all over the court. Cal was also controlling the boards and forcing USD to shoot from the outside without much luck.

But in the second half, things changed. The Toreros began to control the tempo of the game. USD which trailed by 10 points at halftime, came back to take the lead, 50-49, with 6:38 unplayed. It was the first lead the Toreros had enjoyed against Cal.

With 6:02 unplayed the Toreros led 52-51, but that's when the roof fell in. USD suddenly went cold from the floor and was forced to foul the Golden Bears. Cal responded with a clinic in free throw shooting. The win allowed Cal to raise its record to 5-3. USD fell to 4-4.

The Bears had a variety of players contribute down the stretch as every player who went to the free throw line found the bottom of the net. Sam Potter rang up five of his 11 points at the free throw line the game's final minutes. Butch Hayes had four of his 16 markers on free throws late in the contest, and Mark McNamara iced the Cal victory with a pair of charity shots with five seconds unplayed to give him a game-high 22 markers on the night.

"I guess it was just the road blues," said McNamara of his team's second-half performance. "It took us 10 minutes to realize if we kept playing like this we would lose the ball game. The first 10 minutes of the second half, is when we should have been concentrating on putting the game away instead of letting it get away."

McNamara, the Bears' 6-foot-11 center, played a big part in helping Cal build its early lead. He dominated the middle for most of the contest, pulling down 17 rebounds, also a game high. He hit eight of 11 shots from the floor and six of 10 free throws on the evening.
Irvine, Magee Set Back USD

By JOHN WEYLER, Times Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO—Kevin Magee didn't get to be an All-American because he's humble. He was so honored because of his uncanny ability to score. He has been slowed, but seldom stopped.

"Sooner or later, I always bust loose," Magee says. "You can't keep a good man down."

Saturday night, the University of San Diego came as close to shutting down the Magee Scoring Co. as anyone has in the senior's two-year career at UC Irvine. Unfortunately, as Magee would have gladly informed you, the Toreros could only accomplish the feat for one half, and the result was 78-66 Irvine victory before 2,500 at USD gym.

The win gave the Anteaters a 4-0 record and matched the best start ever for an Irvine basketball team. Magee, who took only six shots (and made them all) in the first half, finished with 29 points.

"He's So Doggone Strong"

"We played very sound defense in the first half," USD Coach Jim Brovelli said, "and we contained their transition game all night. We played our usual defense (a matchup zone), and of course we keyed on Magee. But he's so doggone strong."

Magee, like the rest of the Anteaters, was also very accurate. He didn't get the ball often, but when he did, he made it count, hitting 12 of 13 shots from the floor.

As Brovelli was quick to point out, however, Irvine is far from a one-man team. UCI showed some uncanny shooting, hitting 71% from the floor. The Anteaters only missed 12 shots all night.

Randy Whieldon was 8 of 12 from the floor for 18 points, Ben McDonald was 6 of 8 for 15 points and Rainer Wulf hit 2 of 3 and all 6 at the free throw line for 10. "Irvine has a lot more than Magee," Brovelli said, shaking his head, "I wouldn't be surprised to see them in the NCAAs."

Pointing Toward 5-0 Mark

That's something UCI Coach Bill Mulligan isn't thinking about right now. The Irvine coach wants his team to be 5-0 (UCI plays Hawaii-Hilo at home Thursday) when the Anteaters meet University of Nevada-Las Vegas in a nationally televised (ESPN) game Saturday at the Anaheim Convention Center.

"We played really well," Mulligan said. "They hit us with a defense we've never seen and we stayed very poised. They played Kevin very tough early, but if we have patience like we did tonight, eventually things will open up."

Unlike the Anteaters, the Toreros lived—and eventually died—with the outside shot. Center David Heppell was casting off from deep in the corner all night and finished with 19. Guards Randy Whitmarsh and Rich Davis didn't shot from inside 20 feet all night and both scored 10 points as USD's record dropped to 2-1.
Magee & Co. Too Much For Toreros

By PETER RICHMOND
Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

Unable to defense All-American center Kevin Magee in the second half, the University of San Diego basketball team lost its first game of the season last night, 78-66, to undefeated University of California-Irvine before a near-capacity crowd of 2,400 at the USD Sports Center.

USD’s record is now 2-1. UC-Irvine is unbeaten in four games. And if Magee and his supporting cast continue to play up to their obvious potential, their first loss may be a long time coming.

“I wouldn’t be surprised to see that team in the NCAAs,” said USD coach Jim Brovelli. “When you help out in one area, defending Magee, they kill you in another.”

Magee scored 29 points, 17 in the second half, as UC-Irvine, taller and stronger on the front line, turned a close and highly entertaining contest into a mismatch. USD’s remarkable accuracy from the outer reaches kept them close. If Division I had a three-point line, USD would have coasted.

“USD is a solid, well-coached team,” said winning coach Bill Mulligan. “I’ve never played against a team that shot that well from outside. I’ve always said you can’t win from the outside, but my philosophy was starting to crack.”

San Diego was the better team for one half — more composed in handling the ball and more patient in shot selection. Magee was held to 12 points and seldom managed to work himself free of the defense of USD center Dave Heppell, who led USD with 19 points. With four minutes left in the half, and leading, 26-23, USD’s defense brought its opponent to a virtual standstill, forcing UC-Irvine to pass around and around the perimeter. The partisan crowd began to cheer, then cheer loudly, and Mulligan was forced to call a timeout.

It was USD’s apex. UC-Irvine took a 33-32 lead at the half and decided to look for Magee and Magee alone in the final 20 minutes. It worked. Lob passes described graceful arcs, all of which ended in Magee’s hands. The highlight: with four minutes left, forward Ben McDonald fed Magee with a David Thompson pass that the center caught and laid in while sliding in midair between two USD defenders.

There is no defense for pure talent, not with capable players in support.

“I only took six shots in the first half, but I made them all,” said Magee. Of course, all six were within three feet of the basket. In the second half, he drifted out and began to convert turnaround jump shots with no effort at all. When he missed, McDonald didn’t. When the inside was closed, Randy Wheldon converted from the outside. And with the loose balls, the turnovers, the important rebounds, UC-Irvine seemed to always have the extra step.

USD led for the first 16 minutes. Heppell, Rusty Whitmarsh and John Prunty seldom missed from the outside and Irvine, worried by USD’s accuracy, was pressing. But in one stretch midway through the half, after a long set shot by Prunty, UC-Irvine outscored USD 16-5, with Magee scoring eight of those points on a layup, two turnaround jumps and a convincing stuff.

After that, USD never drew closer than seven.
Toreros Are Beaten

By GLAE THIEN, Times Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO—When not rushed, the University of San Diego proved it could hold its own against a Pac-10 team in basketball Monday night.

The Toreros held California to four field goals in the second half but dropped a 66-60 decision at the Sports Arena. USD overcame a 40-30 deficit at halftime and took a one-point lead twice. But in the end, the Golden Bears survived, thanks to a 20-4 advantage made at the free-throw line.

“We got in a hole, and that eventually cost us because we played the second half as well both ways as we have all season,” said USD coach Jim Brovelli. “We need to put 40 minutes together like that.”

The Toreros, known for their disciplined style of play, got in a race with Cal in the opening half and fell behind 20-10. The Toreros’ defense then took control, particularly in the second half.

“We came out more aggressively in the second half,” said USD guard Rusty Whitmarsh, who scored all eight of his points in the second half to lead the surge. “And the real key was defense. That got us going.”

With 13:27 remaining, the Toreros tied the score, 41-41, on a jump shot by John Prunty. At that point, Cal had missed on its first four shots from the field in the half and had only managed a free throw.

The lead didn’t change, though, until six minutes later when Don Capener put USD ahead, 50-49, with a long range shot typical of Torero shooting in the half. The teams traded baskets, and then the Bears took a lead that they never lost on two free throws by Michael Chavez.

USD’s best chance to regain the edge came when Whitmarsh connected on a 25-foot jumper with three minutes to go. A foul was also called on the play and the Toreros received the ball out of bounds, but another long attempt missed and USD foul on the rebound sent Cal’s Sam Potter to the line, where he sank two attempts.

Mark MacNamera, a 6-10 center for Cal, finished as the game’s leading scorer with 22 points despite usually drawing the attention of two defenders in the Toreros’ 2-3 zone.

The victory lifted Cal’s record to 5-3 while USD dropped to 4-4. The Toreros were coming off a 72-57 loss to UC Santa Barbara in which they committed 27 turnovers, and Brovelli wondered if there wasn’t some effect from that contest at the start Monday night.

At the top—U. San Diego’s Robby Roberts (44) is fouled as he tries to lay the ball up over the intended block of California’s forward Mark McNamara Monday night. The Bears won the game, 66-60. (See Story on Page 6)
“Basketball is not a game of halves,” lamented University of San Diego Coach Jim Brovelli.

“You’ve got to put 40 minutes together. That’s particularly true in our case where we don’t have the super talent. We’ve got to play good, steady ball.”

USD did play an excellent half last night against the University of California in the Sports Arena. It was the second one. Unfortunately for the Toreros, their first half was dreadful and the Golden Bears held on to win by a 66-60 count before a disappointing turnout of 551.

“We just dug ourselves a hole,” said Brovelli. “A deep hole. We just can’t do that.”

The 4-4 Toreros were coming off a bad game — a 72-57 pre-Christmas loss at UC Santa Barbara.

“The mistakes carried over,” said Brovelli. “We opened the game as poorly as we played at Santa Barbara.”

Try as they might after intermission, USD’s first half was too much to overcome. Not that the Toreros were getting any help.

Totaling fouls and violations, the officials blew the whistle 34 times on USD against 13 for California. USD was called for 24 fouls against nine for a Bear team that had averaged 21 personals a game. California went to the free throw line 29 times as opposed to eight times for the hosts.

“You can’t control the officials,” was all Brovelli said. “They’re part of the game. There’s nothing you can do about it.”

But it was two calls that weren’t made that upset the Toreros most.

The first came in the first half. After Jim Bateman hit four of his five first-half jumpers to bring USD back from 25-10 to 24-18, the officials failed to call a technical on California for a clear rim infraction. Added to that, 6-foot-11 Bear center Mark McNamara followed the blown stuff attempt with a tip-in — a four- or five-point swing that carried the Pac 10 club to a 40-30 halftime lead.

Then late in the second half, with USD shooting for the lead, McNamara went above the rim to swat a Dave Heppell shot from the air. Goaltending? The officials said “no.” Brovelli had no comment.

Paced by a defense that held Cal scoreless for nearly four minutes of the second half and yielded a lone field goal in 11½ minutes, USD climbed back and twice held a point lead at 50-49 and 52-51 on baskets by Don Capener and Heppell.

But California went to the line for eight straight free throws, jumped out to a 59-54 edge with 1:22 to go and never looked back while improving to 5-3.

McNamara paced California with 22 points (8-for-11 from the floor) and 17 rebounds. But the Bears’ catalyst was guard Butch Hays, who scored 16 points. Reserves Capener (12) and Bateman (16 plus five rebounds) paced USD, hitting 18-of-27 shots from the floor between them when no other Torero was getting off a shot.

Neither Heppell nor Rusty Whitmarsh scored in the first half and the pair finished the night a collective 6-for-19 from the floor. Forward Gerald Jones also had an off night with four points and three rebounds.

California scored just four field goals in the second half on 15 shots. But the Bears went to the foul line 25 times, sinking 18.

Aztecs attempt to add 49ers to list of victims

The San Diego State Aztec basketball team resumes action tonight in the Sports Arena against Long Beach State, a 49er team coming into this contest with a deceiving 2-4 record, having lost a tough game earlier to the Southern California Trojans and last night to an up-and-coming Texas Tech team 83-71.

The Aztecs are 5-2, having won their last three games, the last being over the University of Oregon.

Also tonight, the University of San Diego Toreros, 4-2 on the season, face the University of Santa Barbara in Santa Barbara. The Torero foes have won only two of eight starts this season. Santa Barbara's only victories came over winless Loyola-Marymount and Northridge State, but Santa Barbara's Gauchos do have a formidable weapon in York Gross, a 6-6 forward averaging 14.1 points per game. The Gauchos also have a big center in 6-10 Richard Anderson.

The Aztecs will be led by Don Plummer, averaging 13.3 points a game, Zack Jones with 12.7 per game and Keith Smith with 11.7.

The Toreros, on the other hand, will look to Rusty Whitmarsh (11.9 points per game), David Heppell (11.8), and Gerald Jones (9.6).
Toreros to test Aztecs in arena

If the San Diego State and University of San Diego basketball teams met any later in the year, Torero coach Jim Brovelli would have probably been one of the Aztecs' season ticket holders.

The Aztecs have played three home games this year and Brovelli has been at every one. Brovelli will raise that total to four tonight, although in a different capacity. San Diego State will host the University of San Diego in a game for the county bragging rights at 7:30 at the Sports Arena. The game will be preceded at 5:15 by a contest between the Aztec and Torero women's teams.

There are several good reasons why Brovelli has been spending so much time in the Aztec gym. San Diego State boasts more height than the Toreros, and probably more speed. Plus SDSU has won the last two meetings between the two teams, 60-52 last year and 67-58 two seasons ago. Overall the Aztecs have won 10 of 15 games against their crosstown rivals.

San Diego State owns a 3-2 record this year with both losses coming on the road against nationally ranked opponents. At home the Aztecs have averaged 99.6 points a contest. USD comes into the clash with a 2-1 mark, the lone loss coming against UC Irvine over the weekend.

The game will feature a radical difference in styles. The Aztecs are a run-and-gun team that hits the boards hard when it misses. The Toreros play basically a pattern offense and try to control the tempo of the game. They are not as strong on the boards so a high shooting percentage is the key to their attack.

Individually there figure to be several interesting matchups. At big guard, the Aztecs will have the team's leading scorer in Zack Jones (15.4 points a game) going against the Toreros' top defender in former Monte Vista standout Rusty Whitmarsh. Whitmarsh is no slouch offensively either, averaging 13 points a contest.

Center could prove another key as USD's Dave Heppell will have to have a good game if the Toreros hope to win. Heppell could end up opposing Leonard Allen, Chris Holden or Michael Cage in the pivot.

USD BASKETBALL/ The USD basketball team will be in action twice this week, hosting Bethel College of Indiana Thursday and Illinois Wesleyan Sunday at the Toreros’ Sports Center. Both games are at 7:35 p.m. USD has a 2-2 record. Thursday’s game. The Toreros will be without guard Rich Davis for the two contests. Davis has been suspended indefinitely by coach Jim Brovelli for his actions against the Aztecs. Davis tried to start a fight after being knocked down, was kicked out of the game, and made an obscene gesture to the crowd as he exited the floor.

UNBEATEN BETHEL TO TEST TOREROS TONIGHT

A week after losing a 41-36 game to crosstown rival San Diego State, the University of San Diego returns to basketball action tonight against unbeaten NAIA power Bethel College (9-0) of Indiana at 7:35 in the USD Sports Center.

Forward Gerald Jones leads 3-2 USD with 11.3 points per game and is ranked 10th among West Coast Athletic Conference rebounders with a 5.3 average. Guard Rusty Whitmarsh and center David Heppell are both averaging 10.8 points per game, guard John Frunty is at 8.8 and forward Robby Roberts is averaging 5.5 points, ranking third on the WCAC rebounding charts with a 8.9 average.

The Toreros will be playing without guard Rich Davis (8.9 points a game), who has been suspended indefinitely for his conduct during the San Diego State game.
USD Awaits Boise St., Irvine Invasion

By BILL CENTER
Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

Jim Brovelli should have a good idea Sunday of just where his University of San Diego basketball team fits in.

The next two nights bring to Alcala Park two of the more interesting college basketball teams in the West — Boise State and UC-Irvine.

One is up-and-coming and the other is there, complete with an All-American.

Although the weekend's highlight is tomorrow night's appearance of UCI and All-American forward Kevin Magee, Brovelli is concerned equally with both games.

The Toreros, coming off a 90-64 season-opening romp over Pacific, have a chance to step up in competition. Boise State will be at the USD Sports Center tonight at 7:35. UC-Irvine follows.

Dave Leach, who had been Ralph Miller's assistant at Oregon State, cleaned house at Boise State after going 7-19 last season in his coaching debut and is starting only one holdover in 6-6 forward Eric Bailey (17.3 points a game). The balance of the starting lineup is recruits — 6-7 freshman forward Bruce Bolden, 6-8 junior college center Jim Maldonado, 6-4 junior college guard Terry Lee and junior college point guard Tyrone Scott.

The Toreros should counter with the same lineup that dominated Pacific — 6-8 Dave Heppell at center, flanked by 6-7 Robby Roberts and 6-5 Gerald Jones at the forwards with Rusty Whitmarsh and John Prunty or Rich Davis at the guards.

Magee, at 6-foot-8 and 230 pounds, is one of the top players ever to visit Alcala Park. He was a first-team Associated Press All-American last year after becoming the first player in NCAA history to place in the top four of three different statistical categories — scoring (third, 27.5 points a game), field goal percentage (second, .671) and rebounding (fourth, 12.5).

The Anteaters, coming off a victory over Oregon, were 17-10 last year in their first season under Bill Mulligan. The season before Mulligan had been 34-1 at Saddleback College with Magee and guard Randy Whieldon as the leading players. Whieldon was UCI's second-leading scorer last year with a 16.1 average.

Mulligan has surrounded his two prizes with a strong supporting cast. Forward Ben McDonald (6-8) was the Pacific Coast Athletic Association's freshman of the year last season.

Toreros (4-2) Play Santa Barbara (2-6)

SANTA BARBARA — The University of San Diego takes to the road tonight for the first time this season, traveling to the University of Santa Barbara.

The Toreros, 4-1 at home and a five-point loser to San Diego State at Sports Arena in their only other venture from Alcala Park, take on a 2-6 Santa Barbara club that has beaten Northridge State and winless Loyola-Marymount.

But the Gauchos do present problems for USD.

UCSB's 6-foot-10 center Richard Anderson will be a tall test for USD's 6-foot-8 David Heppell. Anderson leads UCSB in scoring and rebounding average with 16.3 points and 13.0 rebounds per game.

UCSB also has a dangerous forward in 6-foot-6 York Gross, who is averaging 14.1 points a game, and a backcourt standout in 6-foot-3 Mike Russell, who has a 13.1 average.

Coming off 68-34 (Bethel) and 78-48 (Illinois Wesleyan) victories over NAIA powers, USD's balanced attack is led by guard Rusty Whitmarsh (11.9 points a game), Heppell (11.8), and forward Gerald Jones (9.6).
USD Toreros will play 3 more games before they leave for the Christmas Holidays. Tonight, the Pilots of Bethel College come to the USD Sports Center for a 7:35 contest.

Bethel is 9-0 and are led by Wendall Troyer (13 ppg-4.0 assists) and center Don Zawlocki (14 ppg-2 rpg).

Illinois Wesleyan comes to the USD Sports Center on Sunday for the 7:35 p.m. game. The Titans sport a 4-1 record and are led by senior captain Greg Yes, who is averaging 20 points and 10 rebounds a game.

On Tuesday, the Toreros travel to UC Santa Barbara for a 7:30 p.m. contest. The Gauchos are 2-4 and are led by center Richard Anderson, who has a 16.3 ppg and 13 rpg average.

USD is 2-2 after a 41-36 defeat at the hands of crosstown rival San Diego State. In that game the Toreros played great defense, but could muster a mere 37% completion rate from the floor.

Head Coach Jim Brovelli has suspended 6'0" point guard Rich Davis indefinitely for disciplinary reasons stemming from actions in the San Diego State game on Dec. 10. Brovelli gave no indication as to when Davis would be reinstated on the team.
USD Home To Cal Team That Is Definitely Not The Pitts

By BILL CENTER
Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

Just signed with the Golden Bears, and Brovelli envisioned playing Cal as the second half of a double-header, after the high school Kiwanis Tournament finals.

"Just shows what can happen," Brovelli says now. "It didn't work out as we planned it, and it's still a great game."

California is red-shirting the 6-foot-11 Pitts. The most intensively recruited basketball player in Cal history, Pitts is sitting out what would have been his junior year after undergoing surgery last summer to correct a bone growth problem in his knee. Cal thus is without the drawing card who averaged 28.6 points and 17.1 rebounds as a high school senior and is averaging 11 points a game for two full seasons at Cal.

And the Kiwanis finals were played Saturday night. All that USD is left with — on the eve of the Cabrillo Classic — is a darn good basketball team featuring the leading scorer and rebounder in the Pac 10 and a team that can rise to the occasion any time it plays its game.

The athlete in question is Cal's Mark McNamara, a 6-11, 235-pound center. McNamara is averaging 22.9 points (on 66 percent shooting from the floor) and 13.3 rebounds (No. 3 in the NCAA). A transfer from Santa Clara where he twice was given the nod in head-to-head matchups with USF's Bill Cartwright (now of the New York Knicks), McNamara has averaged 12.1, 15.2 and 17.2 points in his first three collegiate seasons.

"To beat Cal, you have got to contend with McNamara," Brovelli said. "He's active and versatile. And he's a fine rebounder. The problem is, they have a lot of talent around him."

Five-foot-9 point guard Michael Chavez is averaging 11.9 points a game and 6-7 forward Sam Potter (11.3 points) and 6-3 guard Butch Hays (11.3) both played on the West team that last summer won the National Sports Festival basketball title, though neither has shot well this season (40 and 42 percent, respectively).

And, despite McNamara's presence, California (4-3) is getting out-rebounded by six per game.

USD also is 4-3 after an embarrassing 72-57 loss at Santa Barbara last Tuesday. Uncharacteristically, the Toreros turned the ball over 27 times in that game; the guards giving the ball up a total of 16 times.

"It was a bad game all the way around," Brovelli said. "I think we were tired; the players had been going every day even during finals week. It's not like us to do that."

When University of San Diego Coach Jim Brovelli signed the contract two years ago, he had big plans for tonight's (7:30) game between California and the Toreros at Sports Arena.

The most intensively recruited basketball player in Cal history, Pitts is sitting out what would have been his junior year after undergoing surgery last summer to correct a bone growth problem in his knee. Cal thus is without the drawing card who averaged 28.6 points and 17.1 rebounds as a high school senior and is averaging 11 points a game for two full seasons at Cal.

And the Kiwanis finals were played Saturday night. All that USD is left with — on the eve of the Cabrillo Classic — is a darn good basketball team featuring the leading scorer and rebounder in the Pac 10 and a team that can rise to the occasion any time it plays its game.

The athlete in question is Cal's Mark McNamara, a 6-11, 235-pound center. McNamara is averaging 22.9 points (on 66 percent shooting from the floor) and 13.3 rebounds (No. 3 in the NCAA). A transfer from Santa Clara where he twice was given the nod in head-to-head matchups with USF's Bill Cartwright (now of the New York Knicks), McNamara has averaged 12.1, 15.2 and 17.2 points in his first three collegiate seasons.

"To beat Cal, you have got to contend with McNamara," Brovelli said. "He's active and versatile. And he's a fine rebounder. The problem is, they have a lot of talent around him."

Five-foot-9 point guard Michael Chavez is averaging 11.9 points a game and 6-7 forward Sam Potter (11.3 points) and 6-3 guard Butch Hays (11.3) both played on the West team that last summer won the National Sports Festival basketball title, though neither has shot well this season (40 and 42 percent, respectively).

And, despite McNamara's presence, California (4-3) is getting out-rebounded by six per game.

USD also is 4-3 after an embarrassing 72-57 loss at Santa Barbara last Tuesday. Uncharacteristically, the Toreros turned the ball over 27 times in that game; the guards giving the ball up a total of 16 times.

"It was a bad game all the way around," Brovelli said. "I think we were tired; the players had been going every day even during finals week. It's not like us to do that."
Toreros-Bears: Biggest game in town

The biggest basketball game in town tonight features the California Golden Bears against the University of San Diego Toreros at the Sports Arena. Time: 7:35.

Coach Jim Brovelli's Toreros know they're in for a rough evening as Cal comes in with sharpshooting Mark McNamara, a 6-11 center, who is currently leading the Pac-10 in scoring (22.9 points per game), rebounding (13.3) and field-goal percentage (66 percent). As of last week, he was the leading rebounder in major college basketball.

However, Cal and USD are both 4-3 on the year, the Toreros coming off a disappointing loss to UC-Santa Barbara. The Bears' top win of the season to date was over Wyoming 77-75 in the Volunteer Classic in Tennessee earlier this month. Despite McNamara's efforts, the team as a whole is being outrebounded by all its foes this season. That's why they miss Michael Pitts, a 6-11 forward out of Sweetwater High so badly.

Pitts underwent surgery for a growth disturbance in his right knee in the off-season and doctors felt it was in his best interest to sit out the year. He's redshirting this season and will be back next year as a junior.

Cal beat the Santa Barbara team that handed the Toreros their last loss.

Last year, Cal edged the Toreros in Berkeley 60-56.

Key players to watch on the Toreros' squad are Rusty Whitmarsh, the 6-3 guard out of Monte Vista High who is having a good scoring year, along with former Torry Pines High star Don Capener, the other guard at 6-6. In the middle is 6-8 Dave Heppell and Gerald Jones(6-5) is at forward.
TOREROS BLAST BOISE — The University of San Diego Toreros easily outgunned a visiting team from Boise State last night 75-61 and entertain UC-Irvine and the celebrated Kevin Magee tonight at the USD Sports Center at 7:30. The Toreros used accurate free-throw shooting to gain their second win of the year against no defeats. Rusty Whitmarsh hit 11 of 13 from the charity line and Rich Davis was a perfect 6 for 6. Whitmarsh only had one tally from the floor, yet he was USD's leading scorer.

TORERO CAGERS WIN BIG — The University of San Diego basketball team ran its season record to 4-2 by completely dominating Bethel College 68-34 last night at Alcala Park. Bethel came into town with a perfect 9-0 record this season. Rusty Whitmarsh was the Toreros' leading scorer with 16 points while Gerald Jones chipped in 11. No Bethel player was in double figures.

USD WINS/ Former Monte Vista High standout Rusty Whitmarsh netted a team-high 15 points to lead the undefeated University of San Diego basketball team to a 75-61 win over Boise State Friday night in the Torero gym. USD trailed the Broncos 27-25 at halftime, but an 11-for-13 effort by Whitmarsh at the free throw line helped the Toreros overcome the deficit and win the game going away. USD is 2-0 on the year. The Toreros meet UC Irvine tonight at 7:35 at the USD Sports Complex.

USD A WINNER/ Former Monte Vista High star Rusty Whitmarsh scored 16 points Thursday night, leading the University of San Diego to an easy 68-34 non-conference college basketball victory over previously unbeaten Bethel College of Indiana. Bethel had won nine straight. The Toreros, now 3-2, host Illinois Wesleyan Sunday at 7:35 p.m.
USD Beats Boise State, 75-61

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Rusty Whitmarsh scored 15 points and was 11 of 13 from the free-throw line in leading the University of San Diego to a 75-61 victory over Boise State in a nonconference game Friday night.

Gerald Jones and Rich Davis both scored 12 points and Dave Heppell scored 10 for USD (2-0), which plays lost to UC Irvine tonight.

Eric Bailey on Boise State (1-4) was the game's top scorer with 20 points.

Boise State held a 27-25 halftime lead, but San Diego ran off 14 points to the Broncos' four in the first 12 minutes of the second half to put the game out of reach.

With 8:30 left in the game, the Broncos never came closer than eight points to the Terreros.

USD A WINNER/ Guard Rusty Whitmarsh and center David Heppell scored 12 points each Sunday night, leading the University of San Diego to an easy 78-48 non-conference college basketball victory over visiting Illinois Wesleyan. Forward Greg Yess paced Illinois Wesleyan with 15 points and six rebounds. Forward Jeff Clements added 12 points for the Titans, who dropped to 4-3. The Toreros have a 4-2 record. Whitmarsh, a former Monte Vista High standout, scored the game's first six points as the Toreros led all the way. It was 37-18 at halftime and Illinois Wesleyan didn't threaten after that. The Toreros made 63 percent of their field goal attempts while the Titans connected on only 38 percent of their floor shots. San Diego outrebounded Illinois Wesleyan 34-26. USD will next be in action Tuesday playing at UC Santa Barbara.

San Diego Starts Fast, Rolls Past Bethel, 68-34

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Rusty Whitmarsh hit seven of eight shots and scored 16 points Thursday night to lead the University of San Diego to a 68-34 non-conference victory over Bethel College.

The Toreros, who raised their record to 3-2, jumped away from an early 4-4 tie to a 27-13 first half lead.

They never relinquished it.

USD's Gerald Jones scored 11 points and led the team in rebounds with five.

Greg Thomas led Bethel with eight points.

Most of the Toreros' bench saw action after the third period when San Diego outscored Bethel 16-2.
USD Thrashes Illinois Wesleyan

By HANK WESCH
Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

Following his team’s 78-48 thrashing of Illinois Wesleyan last night at Alcalá Park, University of San Diego basketball Coach Jim Brovelli proved as adept a euphemizer as he is an organizer.

“Our first four games of the year — Pacific, Boise State, Irvine and San Diego State — were tough,” Brovelli said. “You have to have a blend of scheduling ... you like a game or two where you can play everybody on your team.”

Thus did Brovelli avoid using the term “breather” to describe the second team his 4-2 Toreros had beaten by 30 points or more in the past four nights. On Thursday, USD blasted Bethel College 63-34.

“I think they (Illinois Wesleyan) are better than we made them look tonight,” said Brovelli.

The visiting Titans came into the contest 4-2 and ranked in the NAIA top 20. Their only prior defeats were to NCAA Division I schools Northwestern (by 14 points) and Arizona (by 25). “We heard they were very patient against Arizona, and they were only down by seven at the half, so it was important to get an early lead,” said Brovelli.

His team did, and the question of how difficult a challenge Illinois Wesleyan would provide was quickly answered.

The Toreros scored the first six points of the game, all by senior guard Rusty Whitmarsh, and were ahead by 15 (24-9) before IWU managed to reach double figures, with 8:16 to play in the half. When Whitmarsh canned a short jumper to lift the score to 26-11, USD had connected on 14 of its first 15 field goal attempts.

The Toreros built a 35-12 advantage, their largest lead of a first half in which they shot 64 percent (18 for 28) from the floor, and settled for a 37-18 advantage at intermission.

“It might have been our best first half of the year,” said Whitmarsh. “Everything fell into place. We don’t have the size to dominate many teams we play, but the last two games we’ve had them outmanned.”

Generally quite deliberate in their playing style, USD managed several well-executed fast breaks. And the Toreros’ front line of 6-foot-8 center Dave Heppell and forwards Robby Roberts (6-7) and Gerald Jones (6-5) dominated their Titan counterparts, who were from one to three inches shorter.

After Whitmarsh scored the first six points, Heppell put in the next six, once deflecting a Titan pass to a teammate and racing downcourt ahead of everyone to take a return pass for a layup. USD pressured the Titan guards and was rewarded with four turnovers in the first eight minutes, which they used to build a lead.

“We don’t run (fast break) too often, but when it’s there we can be a good running team,” said Whitmarsh.

Brovelli’s scouting report was that the Titans employed strictly a man-for-man defense, but surprisingly the visitors were in a 1-2-2 zone off the opening tap. Used to facing zone defenses in their first four games, USD picked the Titan alignment apart.

Conversely, the Toreros’ 2-3 match-up zone proved effective. IWU made only one of its first eight shots, and was shut off from offensive rebounds by Heppell, Roberts and Jones with help from Whitmarsh.

“It’s the first year we’ve played the match-up and it creates problems for teams,” said Brovelli. “The important thing, though, is we’re gaining confidence in it. They’re starting to believe in it themselves, and that means a lot.”

The second half was similar to the first, although Brovelli made ample use of his bench. USD shot 62 percent (18 of 29) to wind up with a 63 percent (36 of 57) night. IWU improved to 12 of 25 in the second half to finish with 19 of 50 from the field (38 percent).

Whitmarsh and Heppell topped USD in scoring with 12 points apiece. Reserve forward Don Capener was impressive in the second half, contributing nine points. Thirteen Toreros scored. Heppell and Whitmarsh led USD with four rebounds apiece.

Illinois Wesleyan’s 6-6 forward Greg Yess scored 15 points, 10 of them on free throws, and 6-2 forward Jeff Clements added 12.

USD travels to Santa Barbara to take on UCSB’s Gauchos tomorrow night and faces California a week from tonight at the Sports Arena.

In USD’s blended schedule, the next two games are on opposite poles from the last two.
After losing back-to-back contests against two of the West Coast's better basketball teams (San Diego State and UC-Irvine), the University of San Diego last night stepped down a class to step its record up to 4-2.

The Toreros dominated Bethel College 68-34 at Alcala Park. But it was not that close; or that far apart.

"Had that club ever gotten ahead of us, we'd have been in serious trouble," said USD Coach Jim Brovelli. "Bethel was very well organized, very disciplined. Our scouting report on them made mention of a game where they went into a four corners with 12 minutes to go and played it flawlessly."

Bethel is an NAIA team that last year placed second in the National Christian College Athletics Association and set an Indiana record with 27 wins in a season. The Pilots came into last night's game with a 9-0 record against the likes of Fort Wayne Bible, Concordia Lutheran and IUPU-Fort Wayne.

And Bethel ran a patterned offense that rivaled USD's own passing game. Trouble was, Bethel was totally overwhelmed physically.

"That is a good lesson for us," said Bethel Coach Homer Drew, who quizzed Brovelli after the game about USD's 2-3 zone defense.

"USD's defensive pressure was too much. Their guards hounded the ball and the three guys in back covered all the options," said Brovelli.

Bethel didn't break into double figures until the game was nearly 17 minutes old and trailed 50-19 with 11½ minutes to play before running off eight straight points. The Pilots rarely got the ball inside against the Toreros and came away with just 15 rebounds.

No USD starter played more than 28 minutes and Brovelli employed everyone available, including freshmen Anthony Reuss ("He's going to be another Bob Bartholomew) and Jon Freeman and — for the first time — senior forward Paul Appleby (who lost his first two seasons with the Toreros by twice fracturing a kneecap).

Rusty Whitmarsh led the Toreros with 16 points and Gerald Jones scored 11. Ten Toreros scored. No Bethel player broke into double figures.

The contest was the first of four the Toreros — as a NCAA Division I team — are allowed to play against non-Division I competition. They will host No. 17-ranked NAIA power Illinois Wesleyan Saturday and Fresno-Pacific and Nebraska Wesleyan next month.

USD deserves some breaks, though. Their West Coast Athletic Conference is developing into the toughest in the west with USF and St. Mary's still unbeaten.
USD Uses Free Shots, Rolls 75-61

By BILL CENTER
Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

Rusty Whitmarsh was at a loss to explain what happened.
"Strange game," said the University of San Diego's unflappable guard.
"I can't explain it... other than we won."

On the eve of one of their more attractive games of the season — tonight's 7:30 match at Alcala Park against UC Irvine and All-America forward Kevin Magee — the Toreros last night ran their record to 2-0 by burying Boise State 75-61 under a barrage of second-half free throws at USD Sports Center.

Down by two at intermission after a spotty first half, the Toreros played their way into the lead early in the second half — then stepped to the line for 18 free throw points in the last 5½ minutes.

It was a driving layin at the first-half buzzer by reserve forward Jim Bateman that seemed to get the Toreros moving, though.
They quickly pulled even in the second half and took the lead to stay at 37-35 when guard John Prunty hit a layin off something that could best be described as a reverse tuck position.

Forward Gerald Jones then hit two straight baskets — the first off a slick set of passes from David Heppell and Bateman, and the second on a turn-around jumper from the key — to trigger a 20-4 Torero run that broke it open.
USD was leading 55-43 when the fouling began. The Broncos drew to within 63-57 with 1:10 to go, before the Toreros nailed down the victory by hitting 10 straight free throws before Robby Roberts finished the scoring with a field goal.

Boise State outscored USD 54-52 from the floor. But the Toreros had a 23-7 edge from the line — 22 of those points coming in the second half.

Boise State's biggest mistake might have been in the selection of whom they fouled.
The Broncos picked on guards Whitmarsh (11 of 13 from the line) and Rich Davis (6 for 6).

"There are two schools in coaching about fouling intentionally to get the ball back," USD Coach Jim Brovelli said. "The first says, 'foul the other team's weakest shooter.' The second says, 'foul the first man you come to.'"

Boise State chose the latter course and were attacking Whitmarsh and Davis as soon as the ball was inbounded.

"I wasn't trying to hog the line," Whitmarsh said. "It was my intention to get the ball moving. I was trying to get rid of it. But they kept fouling me before I could get the ball away."

After a tightly played first 30 minutes, the game slipped into poor comedy.

Only 28 of USD's 50 second-half points came from the field. Boise State drew 19 of its 25 fouls after intermission, not that Bronco Coach Dave Leach was always in agreement with the officiating. He propelled one of the two chairs that made their way from the Bronco bench to the wall behind it during the course of the second half.
Cal Takes Advantage
Of USD's Errors 66-60

Dug Too Deep A Hole, Laments Brovelli;
McNamara (22), Hays (16) Pace Victors

By BILL CENTER
Staff Writer, The San Diego Union

"Basketball is not a game of halves," lamented University of San Diego Coach Jim Brovelli. "You've got to put 40 minutes together. That's particularly true in our case where we don't have the super talent. We've got to play good, steady ball."

USD did play an excellent half last night against the University of California in the Sports Arena. It was the second one. Unfortunately for the Toreros, their first half was dreadful and the Golden Bears held on to win by a 66-60 count before a disappointing turnout of 551.

"We just dug ourselves a hole," said Brovelli. "A deep hole. We just can't do that."

The 4-4 Toreros were coming off a bad game—a 72-57 pre-Christmas loss at UC Santa Barbara.

"The mistakes carried over," said Brovelli. "We opened the game as poorly as we played at Santa Barbara."

Try as they might after intermission, USD's first half was too much to overcome. Not that the Toreros were getting any help.

Totaling fouls and violations, the officials blew the whistle 34 times on USD against 13 for California. USD was called for 24 fouls against nine for a Bear team that had averaged 21 personals a game. California went to the free throw line 29 times as opposed to eight times for the hosts.

"You can't control the officials," was all Brovelli said. "They're part of the game. There's nothing you can do about it."

But it was two calls that weren't made that upset the Toreros most.

The first came in the first half. After Jim Bateman hit four of his five first-half jumpers to bring USD back from 20-10 to 24-18, the officials failed to call a technical on California for a clear rim infraction. Added to that, 6-foot-11 Bear center Mark McNamara followed the blown stuff attempt with a tip-in—a four- or five-point swing that carried the Pac 10 club to a 40-30 halftime lead.

Then late in the second half, with USD shooting for the lead, McNamara went above the rim to swat a Dave Heppell shot from the air. Goal-tending? The officials said "no." Brovelli had no comment.

Paced by a defense that held Cal scoreless for nearly four minutes of the second half and yielded a lone field goal in 11½ minutes, USD climbed back and twice held a one-point lead at 50-49 and 52-51 on baskets by Don Capener and Heppell.

But California went to the line for eight straight free throws, jumped out to a 59-54 edge with 1:22 to go and never looked back while improving to 5-3.

McNamara paced California with 22 points (8-for-11 from the floor) and 17 rebounds. But the Bears' catalyst was guard Butch Hays, who scored 16 points.

Reserves Capener (12) and Bateman (10 plus five rebounds) paced USD, hitting 10-of-17 shots from the floor between them when no other Torero was getting off a shot.

Neither Heppell nor Rusty Whitmarsh scored in the first half and the pair finished the night a collective 6-for-19 from the floor. Forward Gerald Jones also had an off night with four points and three rebounds.

California scored just four field goals in the second half on 15 shots. But the Bears went to the foul line 25 times, sinking 18.
Rusty Whitmarsh
old man in the back

By Dennis Wynne
of The Daily Californian

There aren't any gray hairs on his head. And he still moves as well as he has in the past. But when it comes to the University of San Diego basketball program, Rusty Whitmarsh is an old man.

A 21-year-old isn't usually considered to be over the hill, and Whitmarsh still has lots of good years of basketball left in him. But his days as a member of the Torero team are numbered. Whitmarsh is beginning his fourth, and final, season with coach Jim Brovelli's team.

USD won its season opener against University of the Pacific, 90-84, over the weekend. Whitmarsh and teammates will be in action again this weekend when they host Boise State Friday and UC Irvine Saturday at the Torero Sport Center on the USD campus. Both games begin at 7:35 p.m.

Whitmarsh is the only member of the squad who has been there for four seasons. He came to USD for the 1978-79 season after a stellar career at Monte Vista High.

At the time the 6-foot-3 Whitmarsh joined the team the Toreros were playing in the NCAA's Division II. They were a national power in that division. In Whitmarsh's freshman season the team earned a berth in the national post-season tournament.

In Whitmarsh's sophomore year the Toreros moved up to Division I and into the tough West Coast Athletic Conference. USD has taken its lumps in the WCAC. The team has had a losing record the past two seasons, but it looks as if the Toreros might be turning the corner this year. Whitmarsh has helped the Toreros improve more and more every season.

"We started off well this year," said Whitmarsh. "We're starting to get better talent in here, but it's going to take time. Last year we lost nine games by five points or less (on the way to a 10-16 record), but we should do better than that this year."

When Whitmarsh signed his letter of intent to attend USD it represented the start of a new era. Along with the graduated Bob Bartholomew and Mike Stockalper, Whitmarsh was the first wave of the Toreros' new era.

Whitmarsh was a two-time All-CIF pick in high school and both WAC teams - as a senior.

In Whitmarsh's beginning season, the team worked hard to gain a conference victory, and the Toreros were leading by three with only seconds to play. "It was a tough loss. We were down by four, but we came back to take the lead. We just couldn't hold on," said Whitmarsh.

The Toreros have a new senior leader this year. With Bob and Mike gone, Whitmarsh is expected to take more of a leadership role. "He's been a great leader on and off the court," said coach Jim Brovelli.

Whitmarsh's leadership is expected to help the team improve this season. "We should be better than we were last year," said Whitmarsh.

"We're working hard to improve our defense," said Whitmarsh. "We want to be a strong defensive team."
"I like the challenge of playing defense," said Whitmarsh. "A player like Quintin Dailey you just aren't going to stop. He's going to get his 20 points a game. But if you don't play well against him he might get 40."

Whitmarsh can also contribute at the other end of the floor. Last year he averaged 11 points a game, shot 57 percent from the floor, and 82 percent from the free throw line. He was one of four USD starters who averaged in double figures.

"We run a tempo offense," said Whitmarsh. "We know where our shots are and we know when we are supposed to take them. The shots are equally distributed so you won't get more than eight or 10 shots a game. You won't have a lot of high scorers, but if we can shoot 50 percent — and we usually do — most of us will be in double figures."

Although he has more experience than other USD players, Whitmarsh said he has no extra leadership role on the team. He says leadership is an assumed responsibility rather than an assigned responsibility.

"Basically we are all role players," he says. "We don't have the best talent in the conference, so we have to beat people by playing as a team. Any success we have will be as a team rather than as individuals. Once we get together and start thinking as a team — we're not yet — we should be pretty good."

"Rusty is the kind of player we like to have here," said Brovelli. "The players we want must have: (1) good grades; and (2) be a solid, consistent performer. A lot of our kids, I think, are overachievers.

"I'd like to have five Whitmarshes — three 6-9 Whitmarshes on the front line and two 6-3 guards just like Rusty."
Toreros prove a tough bunch

Patient Aztecs forced all-out to score 41-36 victory

By T.R. Reinman
Tribune Sportswriter

Jim Brovelli's team might have been undermanned last night, but it certainly was undaunted. The University of San Diego Toreros might have been outmatched, but they certainly weren't overwhelmed. They might have taken some small kind of victory, but they certainly scored fewer points, and they lost 41-36 to San Diego State before all of 3,612 spectators at the Sports Arena.

"They're a good team," said USD guard John Plunty, "but they're no Top 20 team. They'll beat some of those teams in the WAC. But I thought we'd beat them. I'm disappointed."

The crowd, the gathering, the few faithful who saw this thing shouldn't have been disappointed. They saw USD, which on paper should have taken the evening off, take the game to State all night long. What they almost saw was a major upset, because USD was trailing by just three points with 2:19 left in the game when it lost the ball.

And the crowd also got to see the Aztecs come of age a little bit. Used to running and gunning and preferring that way, they were forced to play the opposition's game, a patient, waiting game, and in the end, like during the last 5:50, they played it better than USD.

After a layup by USD's Steve Rocha made it 39-36 with 5:51 left, State controlled the ball for all but 11 seconds of the next 4:45.

"You're not going to beat a Jim Brovelli team if you don't take your time," said State coach Smokey Gaines afterward. "Everybody thinks we can't be patient. We showed tonight we can be."

USD showed them last night they had to be.

"We should never schedule these guys again," said Eddie Morris, whose steal amounted to a save at the 2:19 mark. "They don't play the right kind of ball. We like to run and they don't. They took this game like it was the NCAA championship."

All of which is true and that is exactly why State should probably schedule guys like these more often. State will not beat any team in the WAC by 35 points this season, and it's good it got an early-season chance to win a game it was in imminent danger of losing.

"I wasn't surprised at how it went," said State's Zack Jones, who apparently elbowed USD guard Rich Davis midway through the first half, a move which prompted Davis to completely lose his balance. So completely, in fact, that he went after Jones while the latter was standing in his team's huddle. That happened about three seconds before Davis was ejected from the game.

"I thought that was very unclassy," said the 6-foot-5, 205-pound Jones of the move by the 6-4, 165-pound Davis. And, he might have added, not too smart.

"We knew they'd come out playing hard," said Jones. "They've got a good team, a good coach. Unfortunately we didn't come out with much intensity."

"We just didn't get our offense untracked," said State center Leonard Allen, who was the game's high scorer with 13 points and the Aztecs' top rebounder with six.

"They don't have tough inside people. Their front line doesn't match up with ours. Coach Gaines said we should go inside and when we did we were effective."

Before the game Brovelli acknowledged how tough he thought the Aztecs were inside, and cited that as his main area of concern. As it turned out, the favorites outscored the guys who didn't match up well by 26-24, and outrebounded them by 15-12. Overall, however, USD, smaller at every position, outrebounded State 27-21. But then as Gaines pointed out, State outrebounded Georgetown last week and lost that game.

One thing Gaines should have been happy with was his foul shooting opportunities. Through the first four games this year the opposition had taken almost twice as many free throws as did the Aztecs. Last night State, now 4-2, made 11 of 21. USD made two of three.

"We like other teams to have to play our game," said Brovelli, whose team is now 2-2. "If you play good, sound, consistent defense, you can stay in the game. Defensively we did a pretty good job on the inside. I think we played well overall."

Well enough to hold San Diego State to its lowest point total since it lost to Southern Illinois 64-35 in 1965. But not well enough to win. And not well enough to prevent a doubleheader sweep because the Aztec women's team defeated that of the Toreros in the preliminary contest 78-57.
Starting center Dave Heppel of the University of San Diego will be yielding three inches to the man he will be facing tonight in the San Diego Sports Arena.

So will Torero forward Robby Roberts and Torero guard Rusty Whitmarsh. But it probably would be a mistake to think USD will be in over its head against San Diego State.

Basketball in Alcala Park is a game of five-on-five, and for just that reason the Linda Vistans are convinced they can upset the Aztecs in a 7:30 game that could attract 5,000 fans.

"They're bigger than us, and I think you could say they probably have more good players, but if you say they have a better team you might be making a mistake," Whitmarsh said yesterday. "Two years ago, we were on the line with a chance to beat them in the last few seconds. We were right there again last year. Our styles are completely different but if we can play our game tomorrow night, and if we can hit a reasonable percentage of our shots, we can win."

Since the series resumed two years ago, the Aztecs have had difficulty subduing USD.

In December 1979, they saw the Toreros miss a possible game-winning free throw in the second half before winning by nine in overtime. Last year they prevailed 60-52.

Again, San Diego State (3-2) is considered the favorite, but USD (2-1) is able.

The words you hear over and over, from both sides, are our game.

"When you have two teams with styles so radically different, it's pretty important you make the other guy play your kind of game," Torero Coach Jim Brovelli said.
Rivalry With Aztecs At Arena

"Obviously, State wants to run. They have a big front line, they hit the boards hard and they run every chance they get. If they are able to run tomorrow night, we're in trouble, but if we can control the pace of the game and play sound defense — if we can play the way we play — there's no reason at all we can't win the game."

San Diego State is expected to open with Michael Cage (6-10) and Don Plummer (6-7) at forwards, Leonard Allen (6-10) at center, and Zack Jones (6-5) with Keith Smith (6-0) at guard.

USD will counter with Roberts (6-7) and Gerald Jones (6-6) in the corners, Heppel (6-7) at center, with Whitmarsh (6-2) and John Prunty (6-0) out front.

Cage, who was the nation's third-leading rebounder last year as a freshman, is off to a surprisingly slow start this season. He may be feeling his way along after moving from center to forward. "He has yet to assert himself in the fashion he did a year ago."

For the Toreros, Gerald Jones — who is averaging 11.3 points and 5.3 rebounds a game — is the club's most effective player inside. If USD is to compete with the Aztecs inside, Jones must do most of the work.

Whitmarsh, a native of San Diego and a graduate of Monte Vista High, knows better than most the importance attached to this particular basketball game.

"It's turned into a pretty good rivalry," the senior said of a series the Aztecs lead 10-5. "It's not the biggest game on our schedule anymore — we're still trying to get ready for our league — but it's obviously one to get excited about. I have a lot of friends who go to San Diego State, most of us do, and if we beat State the whole city will know about it. We've played them twice since I've been here and lost two close games. I'd definitely like to beat 'em once before I leave."
Don Capener: A trip from notoriety to obscurity

By GARY GREENBERG

SAN DIEGO — Don Capener has been a giant among men twice in the recent past.

In 1978, he led a darkhorse Torrey Pines High School basketball team to the CIF championship. Then, after his freshman year at college, he transported his 6-6 frame to Japan, where he tended to stand out in a crowd for a different reason.

Now, Capener is just another one of the guys on the University of San Diego basketball team. He's gone from athletic and ethnic notoriety to relative obscurity as a part time player for the Toreros.

But the sophomore forward from Del Mar doesn't plan on riding out his full scholarship on the USD bench. He sees his emergence as a solid college starter as only being a matter of time.

"I'm still making a comeback," Capener said in a recent telephone interview. "The waiting period is really the hard part." He played the role of the sixth man for the Toreros as a freshman, averaging about five points a game.

Capener would have been entering his last college basketball season this year had he not gone to Japan. He spent two years overseas as a missionary for the Mormon church.

Although his time for recreation was limited, Capener kept his cage skills sharp by participating in an industrial league. He also helped to coach the Aoyama University squad.

His decision to go to Japan disappointed Brovelli, but Capener said that he'll probably be a better ballplayer due to the experience.

"I don't know how much of an asset my travels were," he explained, "but I don't have any fear or worry about failing or not being accepted. I think that it'll help my concentration and I'll be able to put forth an all-out effort."

As a 21-year-old sophomore, Capener will have other advantages on his contemporaries.

"I'm only a sophomore, but I'm more mature and stronger than I would have been two years ago," he figured. "I'm also more mentally tough, which is very important in basketball."
