Father Matthews Paid Tribute on 25th Anniversary

SAN BERNARDINO — Twenty-five years in the Sacred Priesthood were noted here Monday, May 19, by the Rev. Thomas A. Matthews, pastor of Holy Rosary church, in which he celebrated a Solemn High Mass Coram Pontifice, at which the Most Reverend Bishop of San Diego delivered the sermon. Monday evening Father Matthews was honored at a banquet attended by many of the clergy of the diocese.

In his sermon, His Excellency praised Father Matthews for his "untiring zeal and ability" which have enabled him, in a comparatively brief time, to accomplish "monumental works"—the formation and building of St. Joseph's parish in Upland, Blessed Sacrament in Alberhill, Our Lady of Guadalupe in Del Rosa, Our Lady of the Lake in Lake Arrowhead, and Our Lady of Guadalupe in Ontario.

University Head Sought

A committee has been appointed to search for a new president of the University of San Diego. It was established by Boards of Trustees of USD and San Diego College for Women, the two corporations represented on the Alcala Park campus.

The president, when appointed, will be the top administrator for the coordinate colleges and School of Law. Currently in these positions are Msgr. John E. Baer as president of the USD College for Men and School of Law, and Sister Nancy Morris, RSCJ, president of the College for Women.

The committee held its first meeting last Sunday and Father William Shipley, chairman of the philosophy department at USD, was elected chairman. "The committee represents all sections of the campus community," said Father Shipley. "It includes trustees, administrators, faculty and students."

Ex officio members are Most Rev. Leo T. Maher, who is chairman of the USD Board of Trustees, and Gilbert R. Fox, vice president, Bank of America, chairman of the College for Women Board of Trustees.

During the past two years unification of the separate institutions on the campus has been achieved in academic and student affairs, and all classes are coeducational.

Since the university received its charter 21 years ago, the campus has grown from literally nothing to an academic community of scholars which includes more than 60 per cent of PhDs among faculty members.

The committee will seek prospective candidates for the presidency and report regularly on progress, according to Father Shipley.

Members of the committee, apart from Bishop Maher, Fox and Father Shipley are Mrs. Roy Fitzgerald (USD trustee), Dr. Anita Figueredo (College for Women trustee), Sister Morris (administrator), Msgr. Baer (administrator), Prof. Joseph Brock (law school administrator), Dr. Ernest Morin (faculty), Prof. Frank Engfeldt (law school faculty), William R. Winship (student bar association), and Deborah Comfort (USD associated students).

BLESSING BY HIS EXCELLENCY — The Most Reverend Bishop, flanked by Sir Lawrence Oliver and Sir William Mahedy, blesses the throng gathered to pay homage to th Holy Father as he moves down the aisle after the Solemn Pontifical Mass in St. Joseph's Cathedral last Monday.

Enrollment High Set At Women's College

Highlighted by a record enrollment, the University of San Diego's College for Women has started its fourth full academic year.

One of the opening-day events was the Mass of the Holy Spirit celebrated by the Most Reverend Bishop. The girls attended the Mass in cap and gowns and afterwards were greeted by His Excellency.

The growth of the college is reflected in the distances many students have traveled to study on the Alcala Park campus. Not only do they come from many states, they also come from Mexico City, and from Colombia and Venezuela in South America, and from the Philippines.

Sixty-five girls have registered for the freshman class—the largest in the school's history. In all, there are some 260 girls registered for the fall semester, with 80 of them resident students.

The college's growth is also seen in the number in the senior class—34 compared with the nine of the first graduating class.

Newest of the eight U. S. colleges conducted by the Religious of the Sacred Heart, the College for Women here also occupies the largest campus. It can accommodate 1,000 students and has facilities for 350 resident students.

The student traveling the farthest in the United States to attend the College for Women is Mary Beth McGurk of Connecticut. Other states represented by students include Georgia, New York, Missouri, Minnesota, Illinois, Washington, Colorado, Arizona, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

Fellowships in chemistry were won by Myrna Stofler, 21, and Judith Thorp, 22. The fellowships are at State University of New York at Syracuse.

Judy Turley, 21, was granted a research assistantship in cellular physiology at Stanford University and Susan Carrier, 21, received a teaching assistantship in biology at Marquette University.

A one-year internship with the Coro Foundation for political science study was received by Hazel Clifford, 23, president of the college's Science Club.

CAMPAIGN SET — Three religions were represented last night as University of San Diego kicked off a $3,-500,000 fund drive for a science hall. From left, Murray D. Goodrich, Temple Beth Israel; The Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, Bishop of San Diego, and Barry P. Knudson, Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

USD Starts Drive To Raise 3½ Million

A $3,500,000 fund drive for the University of San Diego's new Hall of Science was launched last night at the U. S. Grant Hotel.

Leaders in religion, education, business and industry spoke on behalf of the drive to an audience of more than 200 at the kickoff dinner.

Murray D. Goodrich, chairman of the drive, and president of Temple Beth Israel, introduced the speakers.

Goodrich told the group that providing facilities to educate the growing number of youngsters is America's No. 1 problem.

Dr. Malcom A. Love, president of San Diego State College, said new facilities for college education are needed in the San Diego area with a population of one million and the outlook for two million in 10 years.

Scripps Director Speaks

Each university has a personality that can't be duplicated, and the public and private colleges complement each other, Love said.

Dr. Roger R. Revelle, director, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, said young scientists trained in schools such as the one for which funds are being raised will play a "life and death part in maintaining this country we all love."

Science, he said, is the continual building of a system of knowledge. It has become a humanity, "the art of our time."

Barry P. Knudson, president of the San Diego Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints, spoke for George A. Scott, who is en route to New York and could not be present.

Knudson, vice president of the Walker Scott, Inc., said people in the merchandising fields have come to the realization that they have fallen behind developments in science.

Merchandising needs young men with an understanding of science, he said.

John V. Naish, president of Convair, told the audience that people in industry have become apathetic about college degrees. He said advanced degrees are essential.

He Predicts Success

But people realize that the need for scientists is critical, Naish said, and he predicted success for the fund drive because:

"People will give because of the sanctification of parenthood. They'll give because they'll think of the future of their children. They'll give because they want their children to go out into this world equipped."

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Storm, president of the Men's College, University of San Diego, said support of the university is worthwhile just to bring fine teachers into the community.

All Faiths Welcome

He said teachers and students of all faiths are welcomed.

The Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, Bishop of San Diego and president of the University of San Diego, said "learning and piety go together."

He told of walking over the bare acres 10 years ago where now stands a college and the dream is of a medical school. He said:

"I may as well tell you we aren't depending on human effort only. We have invoked Divine assistance. We pray for this thing many times a day."

USD Drive Tops Goal

A fund drive to build a hall of science at the University of San Diego and other facilities in the San Diego Catholic Diocese has gone beyond the original goal almost twofold, it was reported last night.

Success of the drive was celebrated last night by community leaders of all faiths in the seminary of the university.

So far, $8,104,505 has been raised and more is on the way, the Rt. Rev. James Booth, pastor of Mission San Diego de Alcalá and chancellor of the diocese, reported.

The original goal was $3,500,000 for the hall of science.

Goodrich Gives Report

Murry D. Goodrich, a leader in the San Diego Jewish community, who was chairman of the Greater San Diego Committee, reported the committee raised $1,230,835 for the Science Building Fund.

Parishes in the diocese which includes San Diego, Imperial, San Bernardino, and Riverside counties, raised $6,873,670.

Twenty-eight of the parishes were excused from the drive as being too poor to contribute, but 10 of these insisted upon being permitted to participate, it was reported.

Gift Average Told

More than 22,500 subscribers in the parishes took part, giving an average of $275 each.

The Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, bishop of the diocese, said that "the final word of appreciation belongs to Divine God."

"We can thank God the rest of our days for the success that has come to us."

The bishop said that overnight San Diego has grown into a university town.

Three Schools Cited

He cited California Western University, which has "developed into a fine school," and Scripps University of California at La Jolla, which will be developed, and the University of San Diego.

"The reports we have heard tonight," he added, "are another phase in the development of the university center of the Southwest. San Diego has risen to a stature that demands the very best in education."

George A. Scott stressed the importance of the main religious faiths, Catholic, Jewish, and Protestant, learning to work together in this drive.

Interfaith Action Lauded

"As former president of the San Diego County Council of Protestant Churches," Scott said, "I can testify that here, indeed, was interfaith in action."

Other speakers included J. V. Naish, Convair president; Graydon Hoffman, vice president of the Bank of America; the Rt. Rev. Thomas Matthews, pastor of Holy Rosary Parish, San Bernardino, and one of the vicar generals of the diocese; the Rt. Rev. James P. O'Shea, editor of The Southern Cross, official diocesan newspaper, and George Hill, of the fund-raising organizations.

Redlands Slates New Series of Traffic Classes

Driver Institute Will Be Conducted At Hall of Justice

The second of four weekly sessions of the Redlands Drivers institute will begin at 7 tomorrow night at the Hall of Justice featuring talks on local, state and national problems and on the spot demonstrations by traffic experts.

Highlight of the program will be the return of Sgt. Ted. Smith of the Pasadena police force with his demonstration of a drunkometer, a device used by law enforcement officers to determine the alcoholic content of the breath of a suspected driver.

SECOND SERIES

The first four sessions of the institute were concluded last Monday night with nearly a score of persons receiving certificates for completion of the classes.

The institute is conducted under the auspices of the Redlands 20-30 club in cooperation with the adult education division of the high school.

Speakers at tomorrow night's session will be Dale Pence, California Highway patrolman; Everett Dawes of the Redlands police force, and Dr. Sidney Milbank chairman of the Redlands traffic and safety council. Officer Pence will speak on the California vehicle code, Officer Dawes on local traffic regulations and problems, and Dr. Milbank will talk on first aid.

phasized, however, that "while the towering character of Father Matthews is reflected in the long list of edifices, churches he has built wisely and well, we honor the jubilarian today not so much for his magnificent achievements as for what he is—the ardent, fearless, resolute priest of Jesus Christ."

Father Matthews was called "a loyal co-worker, a devoted and prudent consultant," by His Excellency, who pointed out that "as a chairman of the diocesan building committee we have called upon his ready knowledge of construction and architecture which has designed many churches and rectories for this far-flung diocese."

The esteem and honor in which Father Matthews is held by the non-Catholics of San Bernardino was noted by the San Diego Ordinary who added that the jubilarian's chief joy is found "in his devoted parishioners — thoughtful, considerate, generous in every response."

Officers of the anniversary Mass at which the Holy Rosary choir sang, were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Laurence Forristal, arch-priest; the Rev. Thomas Lehane, deacon; the Rev. Daniel Ryan, sub-deacon; and the Rev. Michael J. Cooney and the Rev. Andrew Hanley, masters of ceremonies. The Rev. John Moclair and the Rev. Thomas King were deacons of honor to His Excellency, the Most Reverend Bishop.

Speakers at the dinner honoring Father Matthews included Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas McNamara, chancellor, who spoke for the diocese, the Rev. Christopher Bradley of Santa Ana, who represented the Los Angeles archdiocese, the Rev. John Purcell, representing the priests of the diocese, and the Rev. Patrick McGuinness of Los Angeles, who spoke in behalf of Father Matthews' alma mater, the major seminary at Maynooth, Ireland.

Other speakers were the Rev. Father Gerard, OFM, who spoke for the religious of the diocese, and the Rev. Jose Valencia of Colton who gave an impromptu address. His Excellency the Most Reverend Bishop concluded the affair with further words of praise for the jubilarian.

Oddo Will Explore Graduate Program

By Ellen Curtin

Dr. Gilbert L. Oddo, College for Women professor of political science, has been appointed chairman of the CW graduate division.

Sister Nancy Morris, CW president, recently announced that Oddo will explore the possibilities of expanding the graduate divisions at both colleges in a University-wide graduate program accessible and attractive to all USD students as well as to others interested in an M.A. program.

Courses Listed

If the expansion is finally approved, the University, rather than the separate institutions, will confer a Master's degree in French, Spanish, history, English, political science, and also an M.S. in education or special education. The latter would not replace the CM's existing M.A.T. program.

Oddo, a graduate of Union College in New York, received his doctorate in political science at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. He has taught at various eastern colleges and universities and came to CM in September, 1966, direct from a three-year assignment as a Fulbright lecturer in political science at the Jesuit University in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Summer Director

He assumed his current position at the CW last September. Oddo also directs the USD six-week summer school in Guadalajara.

Women's Colleges Seen Thing of Past

The historical reason for women's colleges is no longer valid, says Sister Sally Furay, academic dean of the USD College for Women.

In an interview this week, she said, "Women's colleges in the United States were begun because women were not allowed into the regularly established institutions, with rare exceptions.

"I think — though men may not accept this — that whether in education or industry women are not fully accepted as the intellectual and administrative equals of men.

"But in an era when all colleges — even the famous Ivy League and Seven Sisters — are recognizing that the original reason for women's colleges (the unavailability of women's education) is no longer a reason, there seems less necessity to continue the rather expensive operation separately."

The college, now coordinate with the University of San Diego, is in the process of merging with USD to create a new and distinct institution.

Asked what changes have been brought about at women's colleges, such as the College for Women, by accepting male students, Sister Furay said, "Academically there has been great enrichment in the interplay of men's and women's minds. I've found this in my own classrooms, and other teachers have said the same thing. And this has been an enrichment for the men as well as for the women."

There are social influences as well, she said. "The atmosphere is more natural. The type of social atmosphere separate education creates is not a healthy atmosphere."

Point of View

However, the difference in the general atmosphere of the college, she said, can be regarded as either an improvement or a deterioration, dependent on the point of view. "Those who put high priority on neatness and having everything in its place are going to call it a deterioration.

"I personally don't look upon it quite like that, because of the social and academic enrichment. But there have been shocks for some people."

The college is conducted by the Religious of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, an international order with educational institutions in Africa, Asia, and Latin America as well as Europe and the United States.

The Religious themselves have been undergoing a change of dress. Many of the Sisters have given up their habits for contemporary garb.

Something Deeper

Asked if the change in dress was symptomatic of something deeper within the order, Sister Furay stated she thought it was. "Religious women and Religious men in the 1970s have had to look very deeply at the real meaning of why they entered Religious life, why they stayed in it, of what it is for and what it is doing.

"Perhaps many of us in previous years concentrated too much on external forms and perhaps didn't go deep enough."

She added that the Religious and lay people in the Church are tending to examine meanings. "We have to look at fundamentals, we have to look at why; we have to come face to face with the meaning of the kind of life we have chosen to live, whether it is a Religious life or the life of a lay person in the Church."

Sister Furay will be a delegate to the General Chapter of the society in Rome later this year. The general chapter follows a special meeting called by the religious order in 1967, following Vatican II.

The special chapter inaugurated a three-year period of experimentation with forms of apostolate, forms of Religious life, different ways of prayer, and greater activity in the day-to-day society, she said.

"This 1970 general chapter is going to look at the period of experimentation, evaluate it, ascertain where we are going wrong, where the experimentation has given us a deeper and more viable apostolate and Religious life," Sister Furay said.

About 90 nuns will represent the 6,500 nuns of the society at the general chapter. Sister Furay will be one of 13 delegates from the United States and Canada.

She will accompany the provincial of the western province to the Rome meeting, visiting en route other houses of the society in Korea, Taiwan, Bombay, Uganda, Cairo, Germany, France, England and Ireland.

"We wish to see as many of the society's houses as possible," Sister Furay said, "particularly the mission houses. It seems only fair that as many as possible of those at the general chapter, involved in the deliberations, will have seen other parts of the society, other ways of life, other viewpoints on fundamental questions. I think the result will be richer."

'College Day' at Alcala Park Set for High School Seniors

"College Day" for San Diego Catholic high school seniors will be observed Tuesday, March 13, on the University of San Diego's Alcala Park campus.

The "College Day" activities will help acquaint high school seniors with the advantages of their own university at Alcala Park. Seniors from St. Augustine High School, Cathedral Girls and Rosary High Schools, Academy of Our Lady of Peace, and Regina Coeli Academy will be entertained.

The program will open with a general assembly at 1:30 p.m., with Father John L. Storm, president of the College for Men, welcoming the students.

After the general assembly, orientation sessions will be held, with Mother Catherine Parks, RSCJ, president of the College for Women, directing the girls assembly, and Father John C. Desmond, assistant to the president of the College for Men, conducting the assembly for the boys.

Classrooms will be reserved for the 11 major subject fields of the colleges, with members of the respective departments in charge. Through these orientation sessions, prospective students will have the opportunity to receive complete information on the fields of study in which they are most interested.

The program will conclude with a two-hour period of entertainment and refreshments.

Father Storm Named Press Contest Head

Father John L. Storm, president of the University of San Diego's College for Men, has been named chairman of the Press Awards Contest and toastmaster of the Awards Banquet sponsored by the San Diego Chamber of Commerce.

A May 1 deadline has been set for the submitting of entries in four contests with the Chamber's publicity department. The contests are open to publishers of San Diego County daily and weekly newspapers.

Winners will be announced at the sixth annual banquet scheduled for the latter part of May.

The contests are:

The San Diego Union contest for community service.

The Henry C. Reed contest for the best editorial.

The San Diego Public Relations Club's contest for youth service.

The Evening Tribune's contest for the best news story.

Noted Nuns Visit Campus

Distinguished visitors to the Chancery recently were Sister Mary Madeleva, president of St. Mary's College, Notre Dame and Sister Agnes Claudia, superior of St. Mary's community of Holy Cross nuns.

Nationally known educator, Sister M. Madeleva is also an author of several books of poems, essays and theses on education.

Sister Agnes Claudia is a sister of Mr. Daniel Redmond, bookkeeper and accountant at the Chancery office.

While on a visit to western houses of their congregation, the famous educators were entertained at a reception by the University of Southern California, Los Angeles.

BEAUTIFUL NEW SEMINARY BUILDING—Rapidly rising to its impressive height on the Alcala Park campus is the beautiful Immaculate Heart Seminary Building. The framework is nearing completion on the top floors, and workmen have started the task of laying the flooring throughout the building, which is expected to be ready for occupancy late this year. The Fourth Sunday collections in the churches of the diocese are paying for the structure.

Bishop Buddy Presides at Mass Marking Matthews Anniversary

A solemn high mass coram pontifice marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to priesthood for the Rev. Fr. Thomas A. Matthews, pastor of Holy Rosary Catholic church, yesterday morning.

Hundreds of parishioners and others crowded the church to hear the silver jubilee ceremony, at which the Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, bishop of the San Diego diocese, presided.

Participating in the solemn high mass were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Laurence Forristal of San Diego, who served as arch priest; the Rev. Fr. Thomas Lehane of LaMesa, as deacon, and the Rev. Fr. Daniel Ryan of Oceanside, sub-deacon. The Rev. Fr. Michael F. Cooney of Fallbrook was master of ceremonies. Deacons of honor to Bishop Buddy were the Rev. Fr. John Moclair of Monrovia, and the Rev. Fr. Thomas King of Fontana.

Bishop Buddy also delivered the sermon and praised the Rev. Father Matthews for his extraordinary success as a builder of churches, schools and rectories during his 25 years in the priesthood. Holy Rosary choir, directed by Mrs. William Boland, sang for the mass.

A luncheon for clergy of the diocese, with the Rev. Father Matthews as guest of honor, was held at Arrowhead Springs hotel following the mass.

Father Matthews' record of service to the church has been established despite recurring illnesses that hampered his theological studies and later his career since his youth in Ireland.

Born in Killimor, County Galway in February, 1898, he came to the United States after studying at St. Patrick's college, Maynooth. Ill health forced him to leave St. Patrick's seminary in Menlo Park, and he was ordained by Archbishop John J. Cantwell at St. Mary academy in Los Angeles after studying privately during his residence with the Rev. Fr. Thomas O'Shea in Riverside.

Following appointments to several churches in the Southern California area, he came to the Holy Rosary parish in 1933. He has been the force behind the recent expansion of Holy Rosary facilities—the building of the rectory, school and convent. He is a member of the bishop's board of diocesan consultors and director of the San Bernardino Catholic welfare board.
