USD'S THEME FOR 1986-1987

"In Pursuit of Economic Justice" is the theme chosen by the Faculty Social Issues Committee for the 1986-1987 school year. This theme is a natural sequence to the "Experience of Peace" theme which we are promoting this semester. It is also timely to adopt this theme for next year since the final draft of the Bishops' Pastoral on the U.S. economy will be completed in the fall.

Central to the theme of economic justice is the dignity of every human being. The Bishops' Pastoral writes: "The economy is a human reality, formed by human decisions and actions. It is men and women working together, developing the gifts of God's creation and building a world more fit for human living." The theme would address issues of resources allocation, including issues of income and wealth distribution among people and among nations. We invite faculty to begin thinking of ways to incorporate issues of economic justice into their courses in 1986-1987. Some issues to consider are: poverty, employment, discrimination in the market place, aging, access to education and medical care, trade and tariffs, migration policies, agricultural policies, care of the environment, types of social and economic systems that promote human dignity and economic well being, the economic and social costs of allocating resources to weaponry, and U.S. policies toward Third World countries.

Two or three team-taught courses on some aspect of economic justice will be offered in the spring semester, 1987. The courses can be inter-disciplinary or offered within the same college, school or department. As in the case of the Peace courses in spring, 1986, the departments will be reimbursed for the faculty who participate, and stipends will be available for joint January preparation. Faculty members interested in offering such courses should send brief proposals to the Provost's Office before September 15, 1986. The Social Issues Committee (or a sub-committee thereof) will review the proposals and choose the courses. Proposals should develop as fully as feasible both the general concept and the way it will be implemented. Please indicate in the proposal whether the course is under an existing rubric or whether it needs Curriculum Committee action.

In addition to the spring, 1987, courses, there will be in both fall, 1986, and spring, 1987, outside speakers, films, internships and other activities based on the Pursuit of Economic Justice.

OFFICE OF UNIVERSITY RELATIONS

Invisible University:

The Invisible University Program, managed by the Office of Trusts and Estates, is aimed at interesting and involving older friends of USD. The program features faculty speaking in their areas of expertise to groups in seven different regions in the San Diego area: Coronado, La Jolla, Oceanside, Point Loma, Rancho Bernardo, Rancho La Costa, and Rancho Santa Fe. There are 550 to 600 members. Once a month, September through May, these programs are presented in volunteers' homes in the seven areas. Programs usually run from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. These programs are enthusiastically received and very well attended. The object is to bring some of the University to these individuals and to begin to make them feel closer and perhaps more responsible for the University.

Over the last eight years, the following faculty, administrators and friends of the University have generously contributed their efforts to the Invisible University by making presentations:

Public Relations:

'Twas four days before Christmas and all through the campus, workers were sorting, wrapping and labeling. It was the Fourth Annual Food-Clothing-Toy Drive for USD's neighbors, co-sponsored by the Public Relations Neighborhood Committee and ASB Community Services. A pick-up truck loaded with contributions collected over a ten-day period was used to deliver items tagged for select families identified through the Linda Vista Health Care Center and Holy Family School. In addition, USD's business fraternity, Alpha Kappa Psi, adopted a four-member family from Holy Family School, providing them with food, clothing, toys, books and a Christmas tree.

UNIVERSITY SENATE

The following items are being discussed in the Senate during the remainder of the academic year:

- 1) revisions of the rank and tenure document of four schools: Arts and Sciences, Business, Education and Nursing;
- 2) the possibility of periodic evaluation of tenured faculty separate from merit pay (see report of University Senate ad hoc ARRT Committee - Dr. Valois, Chair - dated January 7, 1986 and distributed to faculty);
- 3) salary differentials between academic ranks and the perception that they are too small; and
- 4) the difficulties associated with faculty parking and measures to address the problems.
