USD Buys 1959 51 U.S. Acres For Athletics

The University of San Diego has purchased 51 acres of land to add to its campus, the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, announced yesterday.

The land adjoins the east side of the campus, north of Linda Vista road. It brings the total campus acreage to 291 acres.

It was purchased from the federal government for an undisclosed price.

Bishop Buddy said the agreement concluded between the university and the government stipulated that the land is to be used for athletic purposes and activities. The facilities must be constructed within 18 months.

The bishop said that an athletic clubhouse with basketball facilities, a swimming pool, baseball diamond, football field, and tennis courts will be constructed on the land.

He said the purchase of the land was made possible by the financial campaign that the university conducted last year.

Grading of the land will start immediately, he said.

When Brenha returned at 9:35 p.m. he found the paint can out, the railing broken and Franklin's hat floating in the water beside the boat.

Glenn Orr, the Harbor Department's diver, recovered the body in 22 feet of water, five feet from the boat, opposite the broken rail.

a great university, it is an important part of our great community," said Vice Mayor Ross Tharp, representing the city. "It provides an educational and cultural climate to our city."

The Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, told the audience that Msgr. Storm had seen the rugged ways at the university "but nothing daunted him and he pressed forward."

"I offer my tribute to Msgr. John Storm as man and friend," said Rabbi Morton Cohn of Temple Beth Israel. "In my own humble opinion he is the man who fulfills the highest qualities of his profession. San Diego is fortunate in having a dedicated soul like John Storm."

J. V. Naish, president of Convair's division of General Dynamics, said he had made a survey to see what his fellow men thought of Msgr. Storm.

"Most of them replied — Well, he's my best friend," said Naish. "What a wonderful tribute in this world where most of us walk with few friends."

Others, Naish said, spoke of the priest's quiet dignity and unstudied poise. And three were those who said he is the embodiment of tolerance for all creeds.

A unique plaque, fashioned from a stained glass panel, was presented to Msgr. Storm by Murray Goodrich from the people of San Diego in acknowledgement for his service and leadership.

Sandy Loubat A Real Champ

NO WONDER tennistar Sandra Loubat received "the Outstanding Athlete Award" Thursday at New Orleans Athletic Club.

She has everything of which a champion is made; skill in her particular endeavor; brains (she's an honor roll student at the U. of San Diego, Calif., College for Women); sincerity; a sense of humor; humility; a deep sense of appreciation for those who have helped her become a champion.

"Sandy" Loubat returns to San Diego next Sunday to begin her second semester as a college sophomore. Before semester examinations the entire school gave her a surprise banquet; her class presented her with its own outstanding athlete trophy and the nuns who run the college gave her a set of books.

When the congratulatory wire from the NOAC's George Gorrondona was received at the college "Sandy" was a few miles away taking a lesson from professional Les Stofen at the La Jolla Beach and Tennis Club.

When she returned to the campus and was informed of a telegram for her she believed it was news from her sick roommate. "I never dreamed it was about the award. I had been nominated but I didn't think I'd possibly get it," the 19-year-old tennis player said.

WHILE here this week "Sandy" Loubat will work out with Tulane tennis coach Emmett Pare whom she described as "the best I've ever seen."

"He'll work and work with you to smooth out a weakness or make certain you get a certain fine point.

"Other pros," she said, "are just anxious to get their fee and when time is up that's all—not Pare, he'll work with you until you understand what he's trying to get you to do."

Immediate tennis plans: On Sunday, February 7, she'll team with Karen Hantze (the San Diego high school student who ranks sixth in the national women's ratings) to play off the finals of the San Diego March of Dimes tournament.

In June she'll play the Southern in Atlanta; the College Girls' in St. Louis; come home for the Louisiana Closed championships.

As to what Eastern events she'll play the brown-eyed New Orleanian said, "That will depend on whether or not I make the Junior Wightman Cup team again." (She's been on the cup two years.)

Future plans: Finish college and get a BA degree; play the European tennis circuit; then maybe enter Tulane and study civil law.

For despite quick fame as a big-time tennis player, standing athlete trophy and the name gave her a set of books.

Alcala Masquers Plan Passion Play

The Alcala Masquers made two important announcements at their dinner meeting Monday night. They will stage a three-act drama of the Passion on Palm Sunday, April 14, at the Balboa Park Organ Pavillion. They voted unanimously to make this production an annual tradition. Also, the previously planned spring comedy has been set definitely for May 11 and 12 at the Balboa Park Puppet Theater.

The vast stage and beautiful background of the Organ Pavillion will make an excellent setting for the effective staging of a Passion Play stated Father Leo F. Lanphier, drama director. Brilliant costumes and colorful set-pieces are planned for a cast of at least 50. "THE BETRAYAL," by Rev. Geoffrey N. Dowcett, OMI, and "BARTER" by Rev. Urban I. Nagle, OP, are the scripts under consideration for production. Both offer large casts with highly dramatic speaking roles. There will be only one performance and that will be at 4 p.m. Tryouts will be held during the first week in February at Mercy Hospital auditorium, President Tom Faherty announced.

The final selection for the spring comedy will be made within the week. Scripts are still being searched for a fast-moving piece that will keep an audience laughing from curtain to curtain. "JENNY KISSED ME" by Jean Kerr of Catholic University fame thus far has the nod. It has been overwhelmingly popular with both Catholic and commercial theater groups throughout the country and has not yet been presented in San Diego.

Miss Shoda, who will one day be Japan's first commoner empress in nearly 3,000 years, was graduated from Catholic College and served as student body president during her senior year. En route to Japan from Europe she stopped in San Francisco to visit San Francisco's College for Women.

The International College Tokyo, housed in the former palace of Prince Kuni, brother of the present Empress of Japan, was established in 1948 by the Sacred Heart Society at the request of the prince, who presented the palace as a campus. Resignation of the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Storm as president of the University of San Diego, College for Men and appointment of the Rev. Russell Wilson as his successor were announced yesterday. Father Wilson has been academic vice president of the college.

The Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, bishop of the San Diego diocese and university president, at the same time revealed that Msgr. Storm has been assigned to the pastorate of a newly created parish in La Jolla, as yet unnamed. The changes are effective Monday.

ADVICE OF PHYSICIAN

Bishop Buddy said that Msgr. Storm's resignation followed the advice of his physician who long had urged him to return to the parochial ministry.

Msgr. Storm has been president of the college since it was opened just five years ago to 22 students. The school now has an enrollment of more than 285 students and recently was accredited by the Western College Association.

Msgr. Storm, a native of Altoona, Pa., has been a priest in the San Diego diocese since 1952. His new parish in La Jolla has been carved from St. Brigid's, Pacific Beach, and Mary Star of the Sea, La Jolla. It includes Rose Canyon, the foothills of Pacific Beach, Bird Rock, La Jolla Mesa, the Muirlands, Soledad Park, Hidden Valley Estates, and Soledad Terrace Park.

LAND ACQUIRED

A six-acre parcel of land at the corner of La Jolla Scenic drive and Soledad road has been acquired for the new parochial plant. The first masses will be offered at Pericano's Restaurant, 711 Turquoise St., La Jolla, on Palm Sunday, March 22. Msgr. Storm will make his home at 1360 Cottontail Lane, La Jolla.

Bishop Buddy, in announcing the changes, noted that Msgr. Storm's achievements as first president of the college had been outstanding.

"Your (excellency's) words of satisfaction at my having guided this college from its very beginning to its recent accreditation are gratefully received," Msgr. Storm said.

FACULTY LAUDED

"I should be remiss if I would not share them with the clerical and lay members of the faculty you appointed to assist me."

2 USD Colleges Accorded Academic Accreditation

High Standards Bring Schools Top Ranking

Tribute was paid to University of San Diego's colleges at the annual conference of the Western Colleges Association at Riverside last week.

Mitchell Briggs, executive secretary, announced that the association had accorded the university's schools full academic accreditation.

It is the second time Alcala Park's College for Women received the association's recognition as an educational institution with high academic standards. The school, opened in September 1952, was highly commended for its educational excellence in 1956.

Six Attend Conference

The women's college was represented at the conference by Mother Frances Danz, president, Mother Aimee Rossi, dean, and Mother Margaret Reilly, director of the graduate division.

Father William D. Spain, administrative vice president, Father Russell Wilson, academic vice president, and Father J. Walshe Murray, director of student personnel, represented the men's college.

"The regional association's recognition of the schools on the Alcala Park campus facilitates transfer of their students to other accredited universities," Father Spain said this week. "It also means the ready acceptance of the university's graduates in schools of law and other post graduate institutions."

Two Seminaries Aided

Indirectly, Father Spain said, Immaculate Heart major and minor seminaries are aided. Under the integrated program in operation on the campus, seminarians attend classes in the men's college. They are, therefore, eligible for degrees upon graduation and thus will be qualified to teach in educational institutions throughout the diocese.

To be so recognized, the university's library had to be quickly organized. More than 20,000 books were purchased in the past year, Father Charles Dollen, library director, said. Books dealing with all the major subjects offered in the College for Men now are available.

Both the men's and women's colleges are accredited as schools of Liberal Arts. In addition, the College for Men has been recognized for its high standard in business administration.

The school offers major courses in history, English, mathematics, philosophy and business administration.

Major courses at the women's college include English, history, sociology, education, Spanish, French, biology, chemistry, philosophy, psychology, mathematics, music, art and drama.

Expansion Plans Told

"With completion of the Arts and Science Building next August and the high academic standards now achieved and officially recognized, the College for Men plans to increase both faculty and student body for the next academic year," Father Spain said.

The Western Colleges Association is composed of representatives of all junior colleges, colleges and universities in the State of California, in Hawaii and Guam.

Mimi Zolezzi Gets Math Fellowship

Mimi Zolezzi, senior at the San Diego College for Women and vice president of the student body, has been appointed a Woodrow Wilson Fellow for the academic year 1959-1960 in the field of mathematics.

As a fellow of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, Miss Zolezzi will receive her tuition, fees and a living stipend at the university of her choice during her first year of graduate work. Miss Zolezzi has chosen Fordham University in New York.

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation grew out of a fellowship program established by Princeton University in 1945. After 1952 the fellowships were underwritten jointly by the 37 universities comprising the Association of American Universities and by the Carnegie Corporation and the General Education Board.

In the spring of 1957 a significant grant from the Ford Foundation made it possible to increase the number of fellowships to 1,000 a year.

The purpose of the foundation is to encourage promising men and women to consider careers as college teachers. Miss Zolezzi was nominated for the Woodrow Wilson fellowship in October by John J. Lynch of the mathematics department at the College for Women.

In January the Regional Selection Committee invited Miss Zolezzi to the Statler-Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles for a personal interview.

Since that time 1,000 fellows throughout the nation have been elected from among the nominees.

These fellows are fully supported through their first year of graduate study, and the large majority of Woodrow Wilson Fellows have in the past been able to obtain fellowships and assistantships from the university of their choice for graduate work beyond the first year.

Manion Terms Belief in God Freedom Link

Americans must express their belief in God, in the church, in the classroom, and everywhere if they are to remain free, Dr. Clarence Manion told a capacity audience in the College for Women auditorium last week.

Dr. Manion, former dean of the University of Notre Dame's College of Law, spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Religious Emphasis Foundation of San Diego.

Dr. Fred C. Schwarz of Sydney, Australia, another foundation-sponsored speaker, addressed a similar meeting in the College for Women auditorium the previous night, and also gave a few remarks during the program featuring the Manion talk.

Travesty on History

"Separation of church and state is one thing. But to say nothing will be done to acknowledge the existence of God in the classroom is a travesty on the legal history of the United States," Manion said.

"It is completely asinine that American education can proceed without the acknowledgement of the existence of God Almighty," he said. "If they want to forbid the reading of scripture in the classroom, then let them read the American Declaration of Independence, which voices a belief in God at the very start."

Reawakening Urged

Manion said Americans can defeat the spread of communism through a reawakening of the knowledge of Americanism, as the world struggle is Americanism versus communism.

"Only a militant understanding of Americanism can defeat communism," he said. "The knowledge of Americanism slumbers under thick layers of apathy and indifference. The greatest menace to civilization and its accumulated storehouse of Christian traditions is the apathy and indifference of the American people. We have forgotten the basic history of our heritage."

The belief that men are created equal under God was cited as a self-evident truth by our founding fathers, Manion said. And he stressed that the belief is stated in every state constitution in our country.

Satanic Hate

Communism is sweeping over one-third of the world, "savagely burning the God-given rights of man to a crisp," he said.

"Communism," he said, "is a drive of amorality and satanic hate that is built on the idea that the end justifies the means."

"Communism comes to a mind that has divorced itself from God."

The educator, now a practicing attorney in South Bend, Ind., said that "as long as America is free, constitutionally governed, militarily strong, and financially secure, communism can obtain no permanent victory anywhere on earth." But, he added:

"Unless we can revive the courage of our Revolutionary convictions concerning God and liberty we are doomed."

In a brief talk, the Most Reverend Bishop lauded Dean Manion and his dedicated efforts in the battle against communism.

From a—

MISSION TOWER

Americanism stands between communism and conquest . . . worse than the Red menace is the indifference of our people to it . . . we have forgotten the basic principals of our heritage . . . the Declaration of Independence should be read in the public schools.

The scene was the crowded auditorium in University of San Diego's College for Women; the occasion was a lecture by a noted constitutional lawyer; the subject was "Communism, the Root of our Political Evils;" the purpose was education of men and women who believe in God to bring the religious viewpoint to bear upon problems of a local, national or international scope.

Sponsored by the Religious Emphasis Foundation of San Diego—a group of local professional and business men and women—the lecture was one of several delivered in San Diego to various civic, religious, political and business groups. And the lecturer was Clarence Manion, former dean of law at the University of Notre Dame.

Dean Manion stressed the vital need of vigilance to safeguard our liberties in today's world; he stressed the dangers incident to an apathetic attitude toward communism; he recalled the lesson contained in the book, A Night to Remember, which records the tragic loss of hundreds of lives aboard the ill-fated Titantic which went to the bottom of the seas because warnings were ignored.

And he said we need today Paul Reveres; we need men who will sound the alarm, who will rouse us from our slumbers and rally us for the defense of all we hold dear.

The speaker noted the insidious influences of communistic techniques in our public and private American life. He deplored the dangers inherent in our obstinate refusal to mention the name of God in our public schools.

"If we cannot teach our children respect for God and His Commandments in the classroom, surely we can read for them there the Declaration of Independence," he said.

There in that immortal document we find the basic facts of Americanism, he declared. There we find mention of our Creator's name; there also we find the inalienable rights of the individual and the real purpose of "governments . . . among men."

It is the lesson contained in the Declaration we must learn all over again, it is this lesson we must teach our children if we are to thwart the designs of the Kremlin.

For the Declaration of Independence champions ideals directly opposed to the teachings of communism which would enslave us.

Dean Manion called attention to the place the United States holds in the world today. It is the hope of all mankind, he said. It is all that stands between communism and conquest. He warned his audience against indifference to civic responsibilities and traced to this indifference the concentration of power in government. Quoting Woodrow Wilson, the lecturer said it is this concentration of power that always precedes the death of human freedom.

Returning to the basic need of God in our lives, he concluded that "communism is what happens when the mind of man divorces itself from God."

The arena of the spirit is the chosen battleground of the Reds. It is the mind of man they seek to conquer. Men like Dean Manion recognize the fact and the danger and have entered that arena to do battle against them.

New President Maps USD Goals

By CHARLES DAVIS

Academics will have first priority in developing the University of San Diego's five-year-old College for Men, its new president, the Rev. Russell Wilson, said yesterday.

Rev. Wilson said the college can look to a solidification of its offerings, a gradual increase in enrollment and greater public relations with the community, according to Father Wilson.

Father Wilson, a Harvard and Georgetown University-trained educator, yesterday became the second president of the men's college, succeeding Msgr. John L. Storm, who was named to head a new La Jolla Catholic parish.

ATHLETICS INCLUDED

As he described it in an interview, Father Wilson sees the Alcala Park institution becoming to San Diego what Loyola University is to Los Angeles and the University of San Francisco is to that city.

While there is definitely a place for extra-curricular activities — which includes athletics — the men's college will lay emphasis on a hard core of academic instruction, Father Wilson said.

The core is already hard, according to the new college president. For general education students, it includes 8 units of language, 18 of philosophy, 12 of history, 12 of English and 4 of speech.

In addition, Catholic students must take religion courses, but the requirement does not exist for non-Catholics, who comprise one-third of the almost 300 students at the college.

FUTURE SIZE

Describing the institution as a "small liberal arts college with a good, healthy business administration school," Father Wilson forecast additions to the five majors already offered but told of none specifically.

"I think that we will remain a small college for some years to come," he said. "There is no great advantage in huge numbers."

Father Wilson joined the college's staff in 1957. He was appointed dean of arts and sciences in January, 1958, and was promoted to academic vice president last month.

In the last few years admission standards have been strengthened considerably and the college's stature recently was enhanced by Western College Association accreditation, Father Wilson said.

Folk songs of many nations will be among the musical presentations of the Choral Club, the Octette, and a recorder quartette at the San Diego College for Women's Song Festival at 3 p.m. this Sunday, May 17, in the college theater. Henry Jan van der Werf will direct the annual spring concert.

Special features include several choral compositions by the late David Nyvall, Jr., formerly professor of choral music at College for Women. TO LOFTY THRONE—This picture was taken last December 8, the feast of the Immaculate Conception, showing the statue of Our Lady of the Immaculate Conception being lifted by a huge crane to its lofty throne atop the dome of the Immaculata church on the Alcala Park campus. It appeared in The Southern Cross issue of December 11 and was judged to be the outstanding spot news or feature art in Catholic press competition for the year 1958.

THE IMMACULATA

EDITOR'S NOTE—This editorial which appeared in The Southern Cross of December 11 received the top award for editorials in Catholic press competition for 1958.

The University of San Diego's stately church last Monday entered into the religious life of the diocese when the first Mass was offered at its altar.

The historic occasion included ceremonies at which the cornerstone was laid, the church blessed, and the great statue of Mary Immaculate installed in its place atop the dome.

The statue proclaims the title of the Church's patroness; it honors the Church's protectress; it reminds the world that the ancient faith of her Son, of Peter and Paul, of Augustine and Hildebrand, of Boniface and Patrick, of Leo and Pius and John will be preached and practiced therein.

Under the blue dome of the Immaculata stands the high altar upon which Christ's sacrifice daily will be renewed for the glory of God and the salvation of His creatures.

Thither daily will come the seminarians, trained nearby in the sacred sciences, to be moulded in the Divine pattern which properly completes preparation for their mission.

And when their seminary course is run, they will kneel at its high altar to receive the powers of the sacred priesthood, thence go forth to labor for the sanctification of souls.

Thither, too, will come the other students on the campus, the young men and women educated in the university's colleges for the life they must lead as husbands and wives and parents, as lawyers, scientists, teachers, journalists, doctors, nurses and businessmen in the world.

They will visit the Immaculata to partake of the spiritual refreshment essential to the leadership for which higher education prepares them, essential too, to the spread of that culture which always has been the hallmark of the Church's schools.

And thither will come men and women from the busy marts of the world to rest and pray, to renew and refresh their weary souls, to drink deep from the fountain of Life.

Countless Catholic families in recently developed areas at every side of, and adjacent to, Alcala Park will look to the Immaculata for the spiritual nourishment they need to fulfill the chief purposes of life.

The Immaculata will be a mother to them all. She will watch over them and protect them; she will comfort, refresh, and strengthen them; she will enlighten and direct them.

And from her sacred precincts daily will go her children renewed in spirit, enlivened in faith, invigorated in heart and mind for the tasks of their workaday world.

Shun Complacency, USD Grads Urged

Superior Court Judge William P. Mahedy yesterday urged graduates of the University of San Diego to take an active interest in politics and beware of complacency.

Texas Youth Choir To Give 2 Concerts

Two concerts will be presented this week by the 75-voice Westminster Youth Choir of the Oak Cliff Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Tex.

SAN DIEGO COLLEGE FOR WOMEN, ALCALÁ PARK
SAN DIEGO, JUNE 15, 1959

This is really two days AFTER our letter head address, but we want our side-lights on press accounts to carry the date of the BIG DAY itself.....NOW WE BEGIN:

A beautiful blue and white program reads--in large beautifully spaced letters
UNIVERSITY OF SAN DIEGO---- SCHOOL OF LAW----COLLEGE FOR MEN---- CONFERRING OF DEGREES----
ALCALÁ PARK, SAN DIEGO , CALIFORNIA----JUNE 15, 1959-

(2nd page) PROGRAM

Honoring THE HONORABLE RICHARD M. NIXON, The Vice President of the United States, on the occasion of his first visit to the University of San Diego----Presiding at the Commencement Exercises. (date)

The next page carries the names of all the Honorables, Excellencies, Right Reverend, Most Reverends, Reverends, Admirals, Generals and other dignitaries, a really impressive array.

Behind curtained windows, second floor East of the Women's College, in rooms of students(now vacant) the Community assisted from afar (not so very far) at the entire celebration. The open air amphitheater is not visible from our windows, but sounds and outer movements kept us closely in touch.

Before one P.M. Blue Jackets, Marines, twelve flag bearers lined the sidewalks of Marian Way from the East entrance to our front door. The 52 piece Marine Band was in place by the Bishop's residence and Chancery Building... By 2 P.M. dozens of Knights of Columbus were posted on the steps of this building, over 200 Marines and Navy men were in attendance, officers of Army, Navy, Marines made for great dignity. The faculty of the Men's College, cap and gown, were in processional form, motor cycles whizzed up and down and all around, crisp orders were barked out, and things began to stir. Guards stationed at both entrances kept the crowds off the campus; secret service men were everywhere. Finally four motor cycles swept by and we saw a cream color sedan preceded by, and followed by two limousenes, stop. From the last officers and guards stepped and the Vice President and Mrs. Nixon from the sedan. The Marines sounded "SHIPS A HOY and the guests disappeared. It was 2.30 P.M. Later the Bishop said "I invited Mr. Nixon for 3 o'clock. He wrote back--I'll come at 2.30 , so that I can have a visit with you."...The reception for eminent guests had begun at 1.30. Also the secret service men had personally examined the over 200 rifles to be carried by the Honor Guard. Said the Bishop "You have to be so careful to get all your permissions with the military, it is like a Religious Order! We had to get special officers- leave to serve the men refreshments.." A detective was on the fire escape outside the Bishop's apartment the entire time, and every room, nook and corner had been examined..... At 3.15 a new series of crisp military commands, sharp attention, forward marching, band music and the procession passed beyond our line of vision into the Hall of Science, which, in a brief ceremony was dedicated by Mr. Nixon. He remarked (which we did NOT hear) "it is the first time I have seen my name engraved in a building." Movement again and procession into the open air Greek Theater...THE HONORABLE RICHARD M. NIXON, THE VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES PRESIDING." We were made aware of events
1--From the sound of many voices in the PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

2--By the sound of our stirring NATIONAL ANTHEM

3--Prolonged roars of applause at the conferring of the FIRST Doctorate of Law by the San Diego University. The followin citation was read by Very Reverend Father Wilson, President of the Men's College: "Following the traditions of the great Universities of the world in recognizing eminent achievement in the arts, the sciences, and in statesmanship the University of San Diego hereby acclaims Richard Milhaus Nixon worthy of its first and highest accolade.

A Native Son of California, our distinguished guest, even in his youth forecast a leadership destined to benefit mankind. President of the Student Body at Whittier College, where he left a record of splendid scholarship, he later enrolled in Duke University, meriting there membership in the Order of the Coif.

As Naval Lieutenant in World War II, Mr. Nixon courageously stood up to the rigors of the South Pacific and quickly rose to the rank of Lieutenant Commander.

In the House of Representatives, as well as in the United States Senate, this great American distinguished himself for constructive measures. His forthrite, dynamic opposition to Communism reflected genuine patriotism and unswerving adherence to truth. No wonder the people of the United States, in appreciation of his stalwart character and ability, elevated Mr. Nixon to the office of Vice President-

All assembled here may see the golden horizon. We rejoice and thank the goodness of God for the tenure of our Vice-President, noted for uniform integrity and loyal devotion to our beloved Chief Executive, His Excellency, Dwight D. Eisenhower. Mr. Nixon's political ideals and way of life are total. Even in the midst of human vicissitudes, vacillations and deficiencies, nothing ever lessened his constant efforts for world peace built on justice and charity.

Because his dedicated public career has inspired and ennobled the youth of our country, it is right and proper that this University, chartered to pursue learning and to intensify faith in God and country, take advantage of this solemn occasion to bestow the Degree of Doctor of Law on RICHARD MILHAUS NIXON, the Vice-President of the United States."

4...Another round of applause greeted the Diocesan Citation for Mrs. Nixon, which reads: The University of San Diego in the formal honors presented to the Vice President of the United States has expressed our deepfelt sentiments of esteem for Mr. Nixon in what he has advocated and in what he has opposed.

While Mother Church transcends the world, she does not lead her life apart. Every soul is precious in the sight of God, every soul has a title to our love and interest. It has always been our aim to bestow honor where honor is due, especially recognizing benefactors of the human race in time and place.

Now the Diocese of San Diego is privileged to remember the beloved wife of the Vice President of the United States, who inspires him in every phase of the journey to deserved eminence. You are aware that the cultural life of a nation depends upon the home, the queen of the home, the joyful mother of children. Mrs. Nixon has enhanced the American heritage of the home by beautifully integrating therein, intelligence, industry and devotion. It is then right and fitting to confer upon her the Diocesan Citation of Honor.

Dear Mrs. Nixon, your genuine humility, quiet calm, and abiding trust cannot conceal from a grateful people the charm and delicate refinement of your position.

Here on the rim of christendom we salute with respect and affection, PATRICIA RYAN NIXON.

5.. We knew the place on the program of our Student Body President, Joanne Marie Krejsa, with her greeting and flowers. Then followed the Academic ceremonies of the Men's College and when the Marine Band (No. 8 on the program) played "BLUE MIST" we knew it was time for us to form our semi-circle in the front foyer. As the 2000 guests had been requested to remain in their places until after the Marine Band recessional, the Bishop and Vice Presidential party arrived almost at once.

Everyone was completely and enthusiastically won by the graciousness, dignity and simplicity of our Vice President and his charming wife. After greeting Reverend Mother Vicar courteously Mr. Nixon said "I would like to go round the circle and meet each one personally and know from where she comes and her name." This he did, and had a very apt and special reply for each. Mrs. Nixon followed her husband and was very gracious. When Mother Lambin said "I am from Lille, the Vice President said "I have been there--and I used to speak French". To Sister Goffi he remarked that he had seen the Papal Nuncio very lately--"a very fine man". Mother Kraemer told him they were from Placentia, he said he had been born about two miles from there, in Yorba Linda. When Mr. Nixon retired into a parlor to remove his gown and hood, Reverend Mother Vicar took Mrs. Nixon into the Louis XIV parlor; she said she was sorry the children were not with her--Mrs. Nixon replied that so much excitement and traveling about is wearing on children, but that before going to Russia next week she and Mr. Nixon and his mother would have several days together. Reverend Mother Vicar had prepared gifts, attractively wrapped, and a large white orchid corsage for Mrs. Nixon, Sr. and Jr. and the two children. For the absentees (whom we had expected) Reverend Mother sent their gifts to them through Mr. Nixon's private secretary (who is a Catholic and daily Communicant) When we gave the gifts into her keeping she was so eager and interested. We had two extra corsages just in case...so Reverend Mother gave her one--"FOR ME?" she said...and was delighted. As they were leaving Mrs. Nixon whispered to Reverend Mother--"Would you mind---might I have the presents for the children, this is the first time anyone has sent something to them"---Mr. Nixon added "and to MY MOTHER, too."

One of the dear Community took a few notes on Mr. Nixon's words to us before leaving....he had said to the Bishop "may I speak to them?".....

" This institution bears the name SAN DIEGO College, but it reaches far beyond as we have just heard --France, Italy, Puerto Rico, Mexico. This institution embraces the the world ---you are educators, forming women who contribute to the leadership of the world by first keeping up the leadership of America. We need dedicated service, and this you give. The work of education requires just those things which you give-- understanding, and of course love---Yours IS a labor of love. You have truly magnificent buildings on this campus. We think it is wonderful that His Excellency (he turned to the Bishop, who was standing quietly at his left) the Bishop conceived the plan of this University, and we must admit that he has "that something" which gets everyone to contribute (musc clapping and signs of approval in the foyer) but these buildings would be without value if they lacked great educators. I would like to quote President Pusey of Harvard: 'You can KEEP students in a class room without great teachers, but you cannot EDUCATE them. There is no great university without great teachers.... great leaders--men and women are being trained here. They will do great things for the Country, for the Church.....I have a new understanding of the educative role. I think homework is getting harder; I have a daughter in the seventh grade and one in the fifth--and that seventh grade arithmetic is too much for me! Fortunately my wife Pat was a teacher, and she can really help with the home work---- But of course, what you do is far beyond seventh and fourth grade work"..... As the Vice President was going out the door, one of the nuns remarked that we had been watching him since 1945 when we saw his name on a billboard. He chuckled said something and turned back to the community and said with a twinkle "Of course there are no politics here". The Bishop remarked quietly "but there ARE votes."

Motor cycles and limousenes seemed to be urging the party to be on the way-- but quite a number of autograph seekers and admirers had eluded military and police and fell like vultures of the Vice President and his wife. They graciously acceded to all demands. The Vice President stopped, wrote something, and handed it to a gentleman who returned to the entrance, looked for Reverend Mother Vicar, and handed it to her. It was the formal engraved card of a Vice-President of the United States, upon which he had written--RICHARD NIXON.

Presently car doors closed, motor cycles reeled into line, and our guests had departed. We went about our various businesses--when a scout rounded us up saying the Bishop had returned to talk over the visit with Reverend Mother and the Community. We were allowed to actually SIT DOWN in the French Parlor, on aubusson tapestry chairs, feet on the aubusson Rug!!!! and all spent a most delightful half hour hearing more details---Ne, we shall not print them here, already we have become unpardonably lengthy--but we did so want you to share this unforgettable visit--since it was not a visit to just this house and this Community--but to the SOCIERY, which we were privileged to represent.

At the moment we are "in retreat"--that is Reverend Mother Vicar, several of ours and 178 religious, of different orders are learning new and beautiful things about the Heart of Our Lord, and how to know, love and serve God--thereby to be happy with Him forever. Nixon To Receive USD Doctorate

College's '1st And Highest Accolade'
Will Be Conferred At Science Hall Rites

The University of San Diego will give Vice President Nixon its "first and highest accolade" tomorrow afternoon when he dedicates its Hall of Science in Alcala Park.

The Vice President will receive the university's honorary doctorate of laws, the first it has conferred. It will be awarded for Nixon's "eminent achievement in statesmanship," for his "forthright dynamic opposition to communism," for his "constant efforts for world peace built on justice and charity," and for his "constructive measures" while in Congress.

PROCESSION SET

Nixon is due at the university's administration building at 2:30 p.m. and will be guest at a reception in the apartments of the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, bishop of the San Diego Catholic diocese.

An academic procession will lead the vice presidential party to the hall he will dedicate. The procession will include graduates and faculties of the School of Law and College for Men, the board of regents, trustees of the university and guests of honor.

After the dedication ceremonies, the Vice President will rejoin the procession for conferral of degrees on the Alcala Theater stage.

32 DIPLOMAS

The citation for the Vice President's doctorate will be read by the Very Rev. Russell Wilson, president of the university's College for Men.

Bishop Buddy then will present the diploma to the Vice President.

After Nixon receives his degree, he will present diplomas to the 32 students who have won degrees in law, arts and business administration. These students will be presented by the Very Rev. Wilson and by Howard S. Dattan, dean of the university College of Law.

The commencement address will be made by U.S. District Court Judge James M. Carter.

Military and civilian leaders will attend, and the Marine Corps band will play. The Immaculate Heart Seminary choir will sing the national anthem.

During his visit to the university, the Vice President also will visit the College for Women. He is scheduled to leave for Washington afterward.

THE KEY TO SURVIVAL

Mr. Nixon And A World Of Law

IT IS FITTING that the University of San Diego today is conferring its first honorary degree of doctor of laws on Vice President Nixon. Mr. Nixon has been an eloquent and convincing champion of using the law as an instrument for world peace.

In a speech before the American Academy of Political Science in April, Mr. Nixon suggested that the International Court of Justice at The Hague settle all differences of interpretation of future U.S.-Soviet agreements.

We are fortunate that men of Mr. Nixon's high station are using their position to impress upon the world this nation's dedication to the rule of law. Firm adherence to the highest standards of international justice and morality has been traditionally the basis of our foreign policy. The prosecution of this ideal by the late John Foster Dulles made it abundantly clear.

Mr. Nixon's proposal that U.S.-Soviet differences be resolved by the World Court is the starting point for complete subscription to international law. Certainly if the chief protagonists of the cold war could settle their disagreements in a court of law, the whole structure of civilization would cease to tremble.

The supremacy of the law within nations has given man freedom. Among nations the supremacy of law may well assure man's survival. It is immensely preferable to have the briefs of lawyers shape the world's future than to have atomic and hydrogen holocaust cancel out that future.

Yet Mr. Nixon and the nation realize that the path to the ideal is uncertain. The world's sure-footing in law still must defer to the volatility and unpredictability of human greed, stupidity and emotions.

That is why San Diego—the home of the University of San Diego Law School—is also the home of the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile. This nation, while seeking to follow the rule of law to world peace, also must have at hand the alternative of force and strength.

Force and the law stand side by side on the international bookshelf. Man alone can make the final choice. An America firm for the right choice, echoes the Biblical psalmist who said:

"Justice and peace will greet each other."

Vice President Nixon yesterday urged graduates of the University of San Diego to be "pioneers to help keep America in the forefront of leadership of the world," and to aid in "the march to economie progress with freedom."

Nixon received an honorary doctorate of laws from the university, with a citation by the Very Rev. Russell Wilson, president of the USD College for Men.

The Most Rev. Charles F.

Buddy, bishop of the San Diego Catholic diocese, gave the Vice President the diploma that went with the doctorate.

The Vice President and Mrs. Nixon took part in the academic procession that preceded the awarding of degrees, and later visited the College for Women, where Nixon stressed the value of teaching and the need for dedicated and devoted instructors in the educational system.

The Vice President lauded the vision of Bishop Buddy that contemplated the building of a great university and thanked the people of San Diego for sharing in the building task.

One of the highlights of the three-hour vice presidential visit was the dedication of the new Hall of Science.

and Country by the Honorable Richard M. Nixon, LL.D., The Vice President of the United States, June 15, 1959.

Then the academic procession, which had stopped briefly for the dedication, moved into Alcalá outdoor theater for the program commencement ceremonies.

The Very Rev. Wilson read the citation of Nixon for the doctorate degree, beginning with a sketch of his education, military record and public life.

"His forthright, dynamic opposition to communism reflected genuine patriotism and unswerving adherence to truth," the citation said.

"No wonder the people of the United States, in appreciation of his stalwart character and ability, elected Mr. Nixon to the office of Vice President.

"All assembled here may see the golden horizon. We rejoice and thank the goodness of God for the tenure of our Vice President, noted for uniform integrity and loyal devotion to our beloved chief executive, His Excellency Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"Mr. Nixon's political ideals and way of life are total. Even in the midst of human vicissitudes, vacillations and deficiencies nothing ever lessened his constant efforts for world peace built on justice and charity.

"Because his dedicated public career has inspired and ennobled the youth of our country, it is right and proper that this university, chartered to pursue learning and to intensify faith in God and country, take advantage of this solemn occasion to bestow the degree of doctor of laws on Richard M. Nixon, Vice President of the United States."

Voicing his appreciation of the honor, Nixon also lauded the people of this area for support of USD, a support he said had been extended by representatives of all denominations.

He said the eight-million-dollar response to one campaign for 3½ million dollars for building projects was proof that the great dream of Bishop Buddy was shared by many others.

Nixon emphasized that there is a real place for private universities such as USD. Private universities, he said, leaven the big public school system and help "more students receive better educations than in any other country."

Turning to the 32 graduates, Nixon told them it would be easy to discuss military strength in this big military center, and to talk of the economic strength that is back of the military effort.

"These are important phases, but there is another theme I would like to leave with you graduates today," Nixon said. "It is related to the nickname of the athletic teams of this university — the Pioneers.

"Through our history runs the theme of the pioneers who have made America what it is. Keep America in the forefront of the leadership of the world. Avoid our going down before aggressive leaders who seek world domination. Never be just satisfied. Always take the lead in economic progress with freedom.

"Never forget that the Communists believe their system works. But if you believe that you are going to win there is no doubt of the outcome. If America produces men and women with the spirit of the pioneers, who are not satisfied with things as they are, then we will provide freedom, justice and peace not just for America but for people throughout the world.

"With this spirit, America will survive and forces that would dominate it will lose."

Nixon assisted in the presentation of degrees to the graduates by awarding the diplomas. The Very Rev. Wilson presented 12 bachelor of arts and the 14 bachelor of business administration degrees. Howard S. Dattán, dean of the School of Law and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. James T. Booth officiated in degree presentations to the six law graduates.

Bishop Buddy spoke briefly of Nixon and the church's effort for the peace of mankind. He also commended Mrs. Nixon and gave her a university award.

At the commencement exercises attended by 2,000 persons, Judge James Carter of the U.S. District Court here stressed the need for loyalty among graduates.

He commended the Catholic Church, which he said kept alight the lamp of knowledge through the Dark Ages.

"We also owe it a debt for propagation of the Christian faith as well as keeping the accumulation of knowledge available," he said.

He told the graduates that freedom to learn is not universal in this world. He urged that they stress loyalty—loyalty to principles on which America was founded.

Bishop Buddy held a reception for Vice President and Mrs. Nixon in the bishop's apartment. Guests included clerical, military and civilian leaders in a non-denominational, multi-faith group.

Greetings of the City of San Diego were extended to the Vice President by Vice Mayor Ross Tharp, who gave Nixon a key to the city.

After the college visit the Nixons stopped briefly at the La Jolla Beach and Tennis Club for supper before leaving for Whittier and La Habra. Later the Nixons left for Washington, where the Vice President said he had an 8:30 a.m. date this morning at the White House to attend the President's legislative conference.

Mrs. Nixon Given Diocesan Citation

By SUE SEAY

Vice President Richard M. Nixon wasn't the only one receiving an honor at yesterday's commencement exercises at the University of San Diego College for Men.

Mrs. Nixon, who accompanied her husband to San Diego for the impressive event, received the Diocesan Citation from The Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, Bishop of San Diego, for her "beautifully integrated devotion, genuine humility, charm and abiding trust."

The vice president's wife, after a hectic day at Disneyland on Sunday appeared rested after the drive from Los Angeles.

Wearing a periwinkle blue hat of organdy petals and an afternoon dress of matching blue silk, with a fused white and black floral design, Mrs. Nixon received a corsage of white orchids from a group of students from the San Diego College for Women.

The group included Misses Marlene Curren, Joann Krejsa, Anita Dolan, Anne Wilson, Patricia Gannon, Colleen Lynch and Sandra Cas-sell.

During the commencement exercises in the open-air Alcala Theater Miss Krejsa, president of the student body at the Women's College, gave Mrs. Nixon a bouquet of white carnations and pink roses.

Mr. Nixon pinned his wife's medal to her lapel.

"It was most unexpected," Mrs. Nixon said later as she displayed the silver medal during a visit to the College for Women, where she received more flowers and gifts from the teaching staff.

In reviewing plans for her forthcoming trip next month to Russia with the vice president, Mrs. Nixon said she hadn't had time to think of what clothes she would take.

"I'm told the weather will be typical of a European summer," she said, "so at least I know that what I'll take will be summer things."

Mrs. Nixon seemed most enthusiastic about the proposed Russian trip, but stated most emphatically that no place is as nice to come back to as Southern California.

The Nixons' daughters, who accompanied them to California from Washington were with their grandmother Nixon in La Habra yesterday. Mr. Nixon, who returned to Washington last night, will be joined by his family in Denver, Colo., on Wednesday for the meeting of the Young Republicans.

The Leavening Agent

PRIVATE COLLEGES and universities have had a solid place in our history since the earliest days of the Virginia colonies. Their role in discovering, defining and preserving the essential human values is more important than ever.

Vice President Nixon made some remarks at the University of San Diego graduation exercises that capsule and accent the tasks we have set for our private educational institutions.

Mr. Nixon said that private school instruction leavens the school system. He emphasized that the private college and university provide a broad base for new ideas, thus preventing uniformity in education. Were there no private institutions the whole educational burden would fall on government, and we would have federal domination of the schools.

The Vice President spoke from firsthand knowledge. He himself is a product of Whittier College, a small, privately endowed school.

Not all private colleges are small. But they all share a belief in self-reliance. And they are agreed that size is not the over-ruling factor in producing education of the kind and quality the nation needs.

Mr. Nixon asked for pioneering to keep America in the forefront of world leadership. He made it clear that much of the impetus and drive for taking and holding the lead must come from well educated men and women.

Pat Nixon Receives Surprise Citation

Wifely Help Brings Her An Award

By GERTRUDE GILPIN

Mrs. Richard Nixon, who has watched her husband receive honorary degrees on a number of occasions, smiled with pride again yesterday when he received another from the University of San Diego.

But she found the spotlight momentarily on herself when, to her surprise, she received a diocesan citation in recognition of her wifely loyalty and help to her husband, the Vice President of the United States. The citation was made by Bishop Charles F. Buddy.

No Degrees Accepted

Presentation of the honorary doctor of laws degree to the Vice President and the citation to Mrs. Nixon were highlights of the university commencement exercises in Alcala Theater, which followed a reception and dedication of the Hall of Science building, where the Vice President spoke.

Asked if she ever had received an honorary degree on her own, Mrs. Nixon said she had not.

"I have been invited to accept honorary degrees a number of times, but I feel such honors should go only to women who actually have earned them by definite accomplishments," she said.

Daughters to Choose

Time allotted for the visit to the College for Women was all too brief. Mrs. Nixon was presented with gayly wrapped gifts and taken on a curtailed inspection tour by some of the nuns. As she rejoined the Vice President and proceeded to the waiting car, she quipped "Well, that was over in a hurry!"

Would she favor a women's college over a co-educational school for her young daughters, Julie and Patricia?

Mrs. Nixon laughed. "That decision is quite far in the future. And when the time comes, I think the girls should have a strong voice as to the final choice.

"But it makes me want to go to college here myself when I see these beautiful buildings and this campus."

Did she find San Diego's weather wonderful after the heat of Washington?

They Will Remain

"Yes, indeed," replied Mrs. Nixon. "In fact everything about California seems wonderful and I wish we could stay longer. The girls and I will remain two more days. (The Vice President flew back to the capital last night.) They are just out of school and this is all the summer vacation we have together.

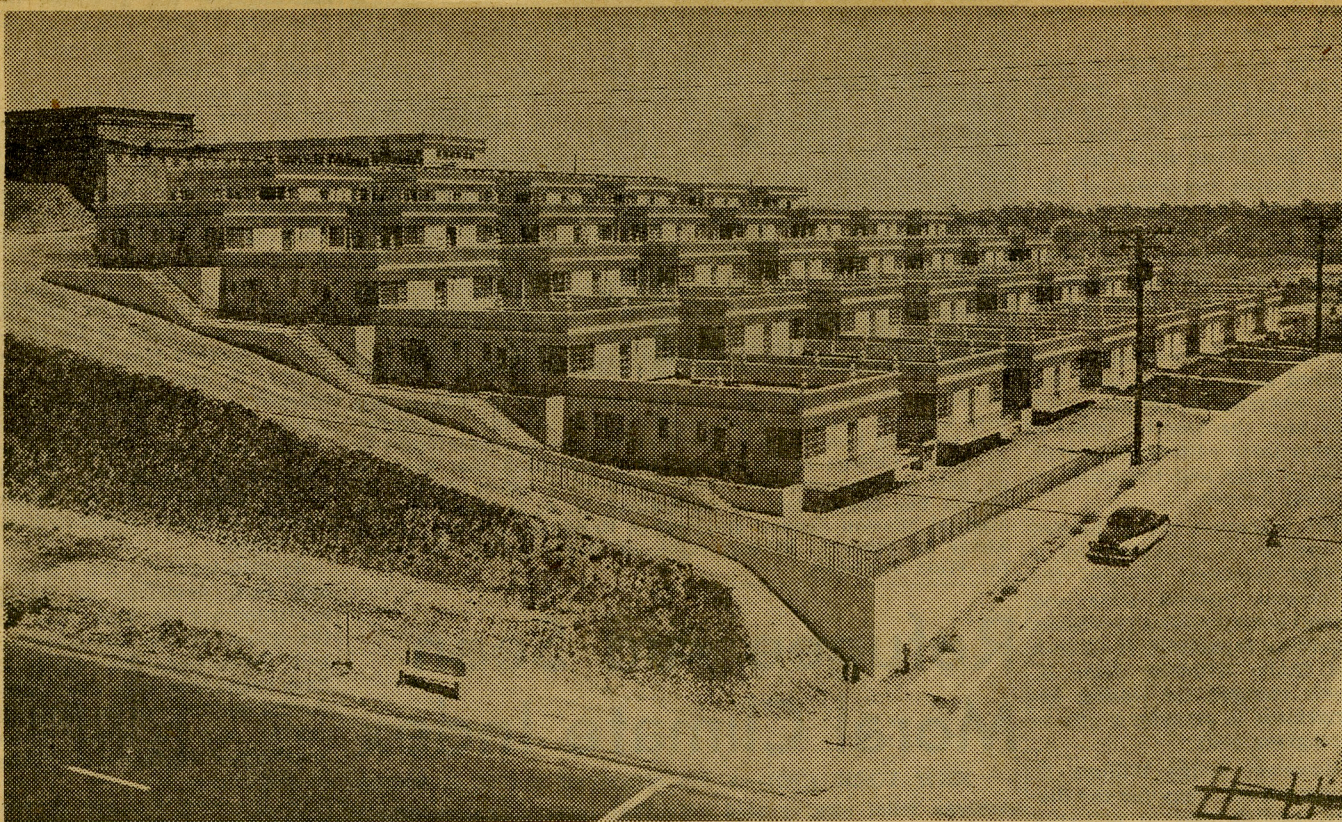

We are making the most of it."

Mrs. Nixon said she would be accompanying the Vice President to Russia next month. "We always make those trips together, you know," she said.

Autographs Programs

With her customary graciousness, Mrs. Nixon autographed dozens of commencement programs for the college students, continuing until she stepped into the car that whisked her and the Vice President to the airport.

She looked trim, feminine, and fresh as a daisy in a full skirted, flowered silk print in shades of royal blue and gray. Her small hat of curl-edged organdy petals was matching blue.

COLLEGE DORMITORIES—The University of San Diego's College for Men dormitories are separate apartment units capable of housing 250 students. There are 38 separate units adjoining the Alcala Park campus. Some apartments accommodate six students, others eight. Each apartment has two large bedrooms, a large study room, full-size kitchen, breakfast nook, bathroom—some have two, ample closets, and extra-large patio-sundeck.

College for Men Prepares For 500-Student Enrollment

University of San Diego's College for Men anticipates an enrollment of some 500 students for the first year of operation in its new home, Very Reverend Russell Wilson, Ph. D., president, has announced.

Scheduled for completion by August 1, the new Arts and Science building will be opened for classes September 8.

"The facilities now available have sparked an extensive campaign for enrollment now underway," Father Wilson said, "and new professors already have been recruited.

"Letters sent to the principals of Catholic high schools throughout the Southland have brought an encouraging response," the president added. "We also have received answers to our letters from seniors in public schools in San Diego.

"Some of our professors addressed the senior classes in local high schools before the close of the year and results to date are satisfactory."

New professors added to the staff include Dr. Stephen Barres, Dr. Albert D. Wasel, Dr. James J. Young, Brackenridge T. Clemens, and Fathers George J. Yahn, Francis J. Carroll, Earl La Riviere, and John H. McAtee.

Named Chairman

Dr. Barres has been appointed chairman of the Division of Business Administration. He has taught in this department at the University of Purdue, West Texas College and the University of Nevada.

Most students at the College for Men enroll for the course in business administration. Fourteen of the 25 seniors awarded degrees by the college in June were graduates in business administration.

USD To Curtail Football Program

By JACK MURPHY

The University of San Diego is curtailing its football program so sharply that Paul Platz, head coach of the Pioneers, fears he will be unable to field a team next fall.

Platz said he was informed yesterday that USD is trimming its scholarship program and plans to drop four schools from the 1959 schedule.

"I'm afraid we won't have enough players left for a team," said Platz. "I really don't think we'll have more than 14 players. The other kids can't afford it."

A university spokesman confirmed that the school has adopted a new athletic policy which limits athletic scholarships to tuition only. The administration also has decided to restrict competition to California and Arizona schools.

Previously USD football scholarships have included tuition, books and board and room.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," said Platz. "I have a contract and I suppose I'll go through the season. It's awfully late to start looking for a job."

"I knew the administration was thinking of cutting back," Platz added, "but I didn't think it would be anything drastic. I didn't think it would fall apart like this. Maybe it would have been smarter to cancel the whole works."

Monsignor James P. O'Shea, USD's director of public information, said the administration is still debating its obligation to the athletes already enrolled under the old scholarship plan. Platz estimated around 35 boys have such scholarships.

The faculty consists of priests and laymen who are highly qualified as teachers and are dedicated to the principles of Christian education, the school's brochure says.

For some time the administration has been aware that its football program might be developing too quickly and could interfere with the solid scholastic objectives of the university."

USD recently acquired 51 acres adjacent to the campus for the purpose of building athletic facilities, including a football stadium.

"In the future," said Msgr. O'Shea, "our teams will compete against schools in the California - Arizona group. This will be our permanent program as soon as it can be implemented."

The spokesman said details of the 1959 schedule are still undetermined. "We do not know as yet whether we'll play that schedule," said Msgr. O'Shea. "We'll contact these teams and seek cancellations."

The Pioneers have been active in varsity competition for the past three years. Last season, under Bob McCutcheon, the USD football team had an 8-2 record.

McCutcheon (not football coach at Ramona High School) was dismissed and Platz was promoted from backfield coach to the head job. Platz is a 1950 graduate of Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo.

"This is a great way to begin," said Platz, ruefully. "Does anybody know where I can find a job?"

Casts Selected For Two Plays

By LINDA HAYWARD

The cast for "The Late George Apley," a joint presentation by the University of San Diego Alcala Masquers and Alcala Players was announced by the Rev. Leo F. Lanphier, director of the Masquers.

Angel Bocchino, Barbara

Welcome, Mr. Nixon ^{10.11.60}

SAN DIEGO EXTENDS a cordial welcome to Vice President and Mrs. Nixon, and only regrets that they cannot visit with us for a longer time.

The last time Mr. Nixon visited San Diego was in the spring of 1959 when he received an honorary doctorate of laws degree from the University of San Diego. As we all know he has been very busy since that time, and with telling results, too.

We like to think that Mr. Nixon had San Diego in mind when he told N. S. Khrushchev, in Moscow, about the will and determination of the American people, their strengths and their dedication to peace with justice. For San Diego is truly representative of what the Vice President was talking about. It is a community working toward a dual purpose — to keep this nation strong and free by providing the necessary tools for security—and to make a better life for all men through science and technology.

San Diego's great defense establishment and its research and educational facilities have been key factors in projecting American strength. And Mr. Nixon has been a leading spokesman for this nation's greatness. Like San Diego and its people, he believes wholeheartedly in the ability of this nation to meet any challenge placed before it.

Mr. Nixon is especially welcome here, for he is keeping the true image of America before the nation and the world.

Fall Production

Masquers to Offer Three-Act Comedy

The fall production of the Alcala Masquers, drama society of the University of San Diego College for Men, will be the sophisticated comedy of manner, "The Late George Apley," by John Marquand and George Kaufman.

It will be presented on the evenings of November 20 and 21 at the College for Women Theater. The eight feminine roles of the 16-member cast will be taken by students of the women's college.

The play, a hit on Broadway a few years ago, is laid in Boston, 1912, and concerns the aristocratic, tradition-bound Apley family, of which George, played by Ronald R. House, is the epic figure.

It is a delightful play of character and situation. Ronald Coleman made it famous in the movies, and Leo G. Carroll played the lead role in the Broadway production.

The following students survived the four-day try-outs and will comprise the colorfully costumed cast: Eugene De Falco, Angel Boccino, Fred Gunther, Barbara Jordon, James MacCracken, Kathleen Murphy, Donald Giesing, Annette Vanier, C. G. Walker, Glory Mullen, Paul Vesco, Janet Beck, William Ambre, Rosemary Jones, and Linda Hiatt.

Father Leo F. Lanphier will direct. Edward De Falco and Marcia West are company managers.

The play is endorsed by the National Catholic Theater Conference, of which the Masquers Society is a member.

Toreros' Dream Comes True In Game With Aztecs Tonight

By PAUL COUR

San Diego State College vs. University of San Diego. The long-sought - after football rivalry becomes a reality tonight at 8 in Aztec Bowl.

The Aztecs and Toreros meet for the first time on the football field.

Ever since 1956 when it first took up football, USD has clamored for a game with their crosstown rivals. Tonight the Toreros' dream comes true. They've vowed it won't be a nightmare.

Off the record, the Aztecs are favored to make USD its sixth victim of the season. Coach Don Coryell's Montezumas have won 5, lost 2 and tied 1, while coach Mike Pecarovich's Alcala Park team has a 2-6 record.

But, records are out the window tonight.

Imprinted in the Aztecs' mind is USD's 21-20 upset of Marine Corps Recruit Depot a year ago. The Toreros weren't supposed to win that one either, but they did.

USD primarily is a running team, but Pecarovich might take a page from Cal Western's book last week against the Aztecs and inaugurate an airlift with quarterback Nelson Murphy at the controls. The Toreros have good receivers in ends Jim Gabriel and Mike McDevitt. They bank on shifty Joe Gray and powerful Jim DeSantis to pick up the yardage on the ground.
