SECOND GLANCE

By NELSON FISHER

Little Mo Connolly, the tennis-playing newswich who is San Diego's No. 1 world-wide good will ambassador, tacks on her flying wings again tomorrow to begin her 1953 European travels.

The 18-year-old slugger who blasted all women comers from the courts of both Wimbledon and Forest Hills last year is headed for Rome as her No. 1 foreign objective this time. She hopes to add the Italian and French championships to her belt before continuing on to England for defense of her Wimbledon throne.

Before leaving the U. S., she and her doubles partner, Julia Sampson, will stop off at Louisville Saturday for a quick exhibition before enthusiastic tennis patrons of the Derby City.

Being an ardent horsewoman, Maureen hopes to visit at least one of the famous Kentucky breeding farms, probably Calumet. Since she's flying on to New York early Sunday, this will mean a jam-packed Saturday for Little Mo., but that's the Connolly way.

Arriving in Rome Monday, Maureen will be met by the girls' chaperon, Nell Hopman, then will practice a week on Italian courts before making her bid for the championship of that country May 4-10. The French tournament will follow at Roland Garros Stadium, Paris, May 19-31, and in between Little Mo intends to see more of the world. She'll pass through Switzerland and hop over to Spain for exhibitions in both countries.

After the Paris tournament, the San Diego girl is scheduled to cross the English Channel. She'll practice and play two preliminary tournaments on grass as tuneups for the All-England championships. She may also play an exhibition at Brussels, Belgium.

Following Wimbledon, Little Mo tentatively plans a quick sally into Sweden, then she'll pack up and return to the United States.

For the first time in her career she'll shoot for the National clay courts title July 15-19 at Chicago, following this up with rest and practice in New York for the Wightman Cup matches Aug. 1-2 at Rye.

Another 10-day breather which no doubt will be well earned by this time will follow the Wightman Cup series and in this period Little Mo plans to scoot home. It'll be back to the tennis wars in the National doubles at Boston Aug. 16-23, then on to Forest Hills for defense of her National singles throne Aug. 24-Sept. 7. The Pacific Southwest Tournament Sept. 12-20 will conclude Maureen's most strenuous schedule yet. As Mo would say, some schedule, whew!

Gilmores to Leave

Coming as a surprise is the news that Capt. Frank Gilmore, (MC) USN, and Mrs. Gilmore will be leaving early in October for other duty. The officer, executive officer at the Naval Hospital, is to command the Naval Hospital at Quantico, Va.

Although they like San Diego, the Gilmores are not too sorry to go East since their son, Frank Jr., is a law student in Washington. The Gilmores' daughter, Marilyn, who had planned to enter San Diego College for Women this fall, will go to an eastern college.

Taking Capt. Gilmore's place at the hospital will be Capt. Alfred Staderman, (MC) USN, presently in the detail office of the Navy Bureau in Washington. He and his wife are expected in October.

Li'l Mo Trims Nell Hopman

LONDON, June 9 (P)—Mrs. B a b a Lewis, eighth-ranked American, of Newtonville, Mass., was upset in the second round of the Kent lawn tennis tournament today by Marion Boundy, a 17-year-old English player, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Maureen Connolly, the U. S. and Wimbledon queen from San Diego, and her companion, Julie Sampson, of San Marino, advanced easily into the third round.

Miss Connolly eliminated Mrs. Nell Hopman, of Australia, 6-0, 6-1. Miss Sampson beat another American, Mrs. Barbara Scofield Davidson, of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-3.

In the men's division, Gardnar Mulloy, top-ranked American from Coral Gables; Grant Golden, of Chicago, and Hugh Stewart, of San Marino, moved into the third round.

Mulloy defeated K. R. Malcolm, of South Africa, 8-6, 6-2. Golden edged John Ager, of Atlanta, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, and Stewart ousted Bill Knight, of England, 6-2, 6-3.

Students Win State Prizes In Poetry

Four San Diego area students have won three firsts and a second prize in the state level in a poetry and essay contest sponsored by Catholic Daughters of America, according to Mrs. William J. Butler, diocesan chairman of public relations.

Miss Diane Wilson, Chula Vista, won first place in poetry in the high school division; Miss Margaret de Guild and Miss Elizabeth W. Keating, students at San Diego College for Women, won first and second prizes in poetry in the college division. Michael Connole, Clairemont, was first place winner in the essay contest.

Awards will be presented later this month by the courts which sponsored the writers.

Week Greet College Frosh

September 12 to 18 was "Welcome Freshmen Week" at the San Diego College for Women, with a "Big Sister" dinner kicking off the week's round of activities. Following the dinner, a bridge party and fashion show was held for the entire student body.

As an added antidote to study, a "dose of Parties" was prescribed for the freshmen. The sophomore class entertained them September 13, at a swimming party at La Jolla Country Club. The whirl continued on Wednesday with the Juniors as hostesses at a riding party in Balboa Park.

Climax to an exciting week for the collegians was the "Cotton Cotillion" held in the library patio September 18. A background of late summer flowers provided colorful decor as the students danced to the music of Jim Cusak.

Campus routine returned following the student body elections on September 20. Jacqueline Kearns of Madera won the nod for student body president in a close race. Kathleen Brophy of Phoenix is vice president; Mary Turner of Glendale, recording secretary; and Leann Mahoney of San Diego, corresponding secretary.

College Sets First of Play Series

The Bishop's Company, a nationally known repertory organization, will present Henrik Ibsen's "Enemy of the People" at the San Diego College for Women theater at 8:15 tomorrow (Friday) night.

Ibsen, father of modern drama, has written a hard-hitting story about those who struggle against "spiritual wickedness in high places." "Enemy of the People" hurls a moral challenge with strength and dignity.

The Alcala Park Players are sponsoring "Enemy of the People" as the first in a series of eight theatrical productions.

Other productions include "The Burnt Flower Bed" by Ugo Betti. A poetic drama of significant concern in our time, it will be presented on November 6 and November 8 at 8:15 p.m. and on November 7 at 2:30 p.m.

"The Christmas Pageant," inspiring, traditional, colorful, and musical, 3 p.m. Sunday, December 13.

"An Evening of One Acts," tragedy, comedy, farce: The best of all possible worlds, 8:15 p.m. Sunday, February 28.

"Variety Show," an international kaleidoscope of talent derived from the entire university, 7:45 p.m. Monday, March 1.

"Opening Night," the American musical theater in revue, 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, March 17.

"You Can't Take It With You," Kaufman and Hart, ludicrous comedy, 8:15 p.m. May 7 and 9, 2:30 p.m. May 8.

"An Evening of Music," choral and instrumental, evokes the universal response of all, 8:15 p.m. Sunday, May 16.

A single student season membership is $2.50, single season membership, $5; family season membership, $7.50; patron, selected reserved seat, $12.50; family patron, selected reserved seats, entire family $25, and patron of the art $100.

Alcala Park Officials Attend NCEA Meeting

Mother Catherine Parks, president of the San Diego College for Women, and Mother Amie Rossi, dean of students, attended the southwestern regional meeting of the National Catholic Educational Association held last week at Dominican College, San Rafael. The Alcala Park school is an associate member of NCEA.

Rev. John M. Hynes, SJ, chairman of the session, led a discussion of the meeting's theme, "Catholicity of Catholic Colleges." A panel discussion on "Educational Impacts of Philosophy of Science" was conducted by Rev. Austin Fagothey, SJ. •

Student Body Elections

Kathleen McGonigle of Boulder City, Nevada, was re-elected president of the student body at the college on October 14. Serving with her will be Mary Binggeli of El Centro, vice president; Kathleen Brophy of Phoenix, social chairman; Janet Contant, formerly of the University of Hawaii, corresponding secretary.

Results of sophomore class elections were also announced. Leann Mahoney of San Diego was re-elected president; Jacqueline Kearns of Madera, vice president; Marie Mathew of San Diego, social chairman; and Mary Turner of Glendale, secretary.

Last Sunday, students of the college toured the U. S. Navy aircraft carriers Princeton and Essex and the French carrier, Bois Belleau. The biology class of the school has planned an expedition to Bird Rock to collect specimens at low tide. Commander Hendrix of Scripps's Institute of Oceanography will supervise the expedition and appoint instructors from the institute to direct the various groups of the field trip.

CAN 8,500,000 Australians lick 158,000,000 Americans—and keep on doing it?

In tennis, the answer is yes. In 1950, the Aussies copped the Davis Cup (the "Oscar" of tennis), and have kept it since. That's bad, for a nation that likes to win.

But that's not all. Experts think tennis itself is declining in the U.S. We may find ourselves lagging in years to come—in spite of Maureen Connolly and Vic Seixas (see cover) and Tony Trabert, today's U.S. headliners. Why?

Mainly, say authorities, for two reasons:

1. We're becoming "tennis softies." We'd rather watch the game (and other games, too) than play. That's odd, because tennis (and the new "Florida tennis" described in PARADE March 29) is fast, easy to play and inexpensive.

2. The Aussies take their tennis seriously. ours can't. (Efforts to change this situation here have so far failed.) And the Aussies "live" tennis, night and day, to an extent equalled in only a few places in the U.S.

But is there any chance for us?

The Newcomers

Yes, say the experts, if we really go to work to popularize the sport. One man already has—PERRY JONES, of the Southern California Lawn Tennis Assn. Out of his "tennis weeks" have come such players as JACK KRAMER, DON BUDGE, ALICE MARBLE, MAUREEN CONNOLLY.

And even this year we have a chance to win. Partly, that's because FRANK SEDGMAN and KEN MCGREGOR—the unbeatable Australian combination—have turned pro. JACK KRAMER, now a "pro," says this:

"Keep your eye on boys like BOB PERRY, HAM RICHARDSON, JACK FROST, BILL QUILLIAN, SAM GIAMMALVA and MIKE FRANKS."

Perry already shows flashes of ELLSWORTH VINES' game.

Giammalva, a young Texan, reminds old tennis hands of the fighting, volleying WILMER ALLISON of years ago. Richardson, an amazing player though a diabetic, is coming fast.

They're all good. Watch them develop and by August you'll have a good idea of whether Australia can lick us again.

NO SOFTIE: San Diego's Maureen Connolly last year won British, U. S. and Aussie titles—but stayed on the court after the matches to polish her serve and volley.

TENNIS GRAND-SLAM GOAL OF 'LITTLE MO'

By CHARLES G. JOHNSON
Tidings Sports Editor

Maureen Connolly, the smiling, brown-eyed blonde San Diego convent-girl, is ready to conquer the world at 18.

And don't sell "Little Mo" short.

She's just the gal who can do it!

"Little Mo," who wades into a tennis ball with more pent-up fury than the Navy's "Big Mo" sailing onto a sandbar, has her heart set on becoming the first woman in history to capture the Australian, French, British and American championships in the same year.

Seeks 'Grand Slam'

This so-called "Grand Slam" has eluded all the lady net greats including Suzanne Lenglen, Helen Wills, Helen Jacobs and Alice Marble.

But "Queen Maureen," charming and unsophisticated despite the fact she was ranked just one notch behind Queen Elizabeth and Mamie Eisenhower in the 1952 Associated Press "Woman of the Year" poll, now is ready to make her move towards conquering the Continent.

If she succeeds, "Little Mo" will cement her claim to being the No. 1 all-time great of women's tennis.

T-Day for the teenage California invader is May 5, when Maureen makes her first tournament appearance in Rome.

"I'm going to see the Holy Father," she said happily, during an interview with this reporter last week in her modest San Diego home.

Still a Schoolgirl

Then in rapid succession will follow tourneys in France, Switzerland, Spain, Sweden, England and Ireland. "Little Mo" hopes to climax her triumphant four-month tour by retaining her U.S. court title in September at Forest Hills, N.Y.

Though she is the darling of cab drivers and society sophisticates from London's Wimbledon Common to Main Street, U.S.A., "Queen Maureen" still is a simple American schoolgirl with her feet planted firmly on the ground.

Up until the day she embarks for Rome later this month, "Mo" will continue as a part-time student at San Diego College for Women conducted by the Religious of the Sacred she manages to sandwich courses in speech and journalism into her busy daily routine which includes writing a column for the San Diego Union, training and exercising Colonel Merryboy, her Tennessee trotting horse—gift of fellow residents of San Diego when she first won the U.S. women's title at 16—and, of course, practising tennis several hours daily.

Mo, Bishop 'Buddies'

A graduate of Cathedral Girls' High in San Diego, Maureen is a close personal friend of Bishop Charles F. Buddy who will give her a letter of introduction to Pope Pius XII.

Her own father has been dead since she was a child of three, so "Little Mo" has come to regard Bishop Buddy as a "sort of second father." You might say they have been good "buddies" ever since Maureen was a freshman at Cathedral Girls High whose campus is adjacent to the Chancery Office.

"Maureen used to walk right up to him in the schoolyard and say, 'Hi, Bishop,'" Mother Adrian, Cathedral High superior, recalls with a chuckle.

"Whereas most of the girls would say to themselves, 'Oh, there's the Bishop — I'll keep my distance!'"

And with the coming of newspaper headlines and world tennis renown, Maureen still is the same friendly, unspoiled schoolgirl. Continued on Page 31, Col. 1

Rain Delays Wightman Duels Until Today

RYE, N.Y., Aug. 2 (P)—Great Britain's Wightman Cup team got a 24-hour reprieve when rain today washed out the second part of the women's international tennis competition.

America's female wrecking crew, leading 3-0, will try to finish the job as painlessly as possible tomorrow, starting at 1:30 p.m. (EST).

The final four matches, already virtually conceded to the U.S., will be played in the order originally scheduled despite an American move to change the Maureen Connolly match to a later starting time.

Here's the schedule:

- 1:30 p.m.—Shirley Fry, Akron, vs. Jean Quertier Rinkel.
- 2:30 p.m.—Maureen Connolly, San Diego, vs. Helen Fletcher.
- 3:30 p.m.—Doris Hart, Coral Gables, Fla. vs. Angela Mortimer.
- 4:30 p.m.—Misses Hart and Fry vs. Mrs. Rinkel and Miss Fletcher.

The matches today were called off reluctantly by Col. James Bishop, president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association and acting referee after the grass courts of the Westchester Country Club were drenched by a steady rain.

The weather was given every chance to clear before a final decision because most of the girls open play tomorrow in the Eastern Grass Courts championship at South Orange, N.J. The British players and all the Americans except Miss Connolly are entered.

Miss Connolly said she was passing up the event, which she's never won, in order to rest at Philadelphia.

Westchester officials sought to have the Connolly-Fletcher match changed to the third singles contest on the program in order to lure a larger late afternoon gate. Col. Duncan MacCauley, British captain, refused, because it would put too big a strain on Miss Fletcher, who then would have to play two matches in a row.

San Diegan Maureen Connolly, the world's top girl tennis player, hardly worked up a sweat Saturday as she measured Britain's Angela Mortimer, 6-1, 6-1 on the opening day of the Wightman Cup matches in Rye, N. Y. Yesterday's matches were rained out and will be staged today.—United Press Telephoto.

U.S. Girls Humble British, 7-0

Maureen Scores Wightman Win In 22 Minutes

RYE, N.Y., Aug. 3 (P)—America's dominant women tennis players, with Maureen "Little Mo" Connolly and Doris Hart providing the one-two punch, swept by their 17th straight Wightman Cup victory over Great Britain today without loss of a set.

The final score was 7-0, the sixth shutout since the last war and the 25th triumph for Uncle Sam's nieces against four defeats in the woefully one-sided international series dating back to 1923.

Although Misses Connolly and Hart were the individual standouts, figuring in six of the seven points, it remained for Shirley Fry, of Akron, O., to score the clinching decision with a 6-2, 6-4 revenge win over Mrs. Jean Quertier Rinkel, Britain's best woman player.

This came in the first singles match of the day, following a 3-0 lead piled up by America Saturday, and made the final three matches a mere formality.

Miss Connolly, the U.S., Wimbledon and Australian titleholder, from San Diego, Calif., played like a girl in a hurry to keep a date, as she breezed past lefthanded Helen Fletcher 6-1, 6-1. It took just 22 minutes.

Miss Hart, slender stylist from Coral Gables, Fla., second-ranked nationally, matched the performance of the American champion by humbling Angela Mortimer, also 6-1, 6-1.

It was the second singles victory for both. They also shared in the doubles points.

The day's rout was completed when the doubles team of Miss Fry and Miss Hart, Wimbledon and U.S. champions, disposed of Mrs. Rinkel and Miss Fletcher, 6-2, 6-1.

Miss Connolly, serving with unusual force and scoring repeatedly with a powerful forehand was almost errorless. She had one brief wild streak in the fourth game of the second set when she lost her service by netting an overhead weekly and twice overshooting the back line.

Women's College Students Honored

Undergraduate awards have been won by several students of the San Diego College for Women. Marita Angleton has been appointed student trainee at Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, Medical Division, where she will be trained this summer to use radioactive tracers in a medical research program.

Francis Brescia also has been appointed student trainee at the Oak Ridge Institute where she will do a radioactive research project in the Health Physics Division.

A third student in the same program is Patricia Murphy, awarded a 1963 Summer Student Traineeship. These three students are seniors at the College for Women.

Karen Graham, a junior at the college, has been granted a student research associate grant for the summer by the California Heart Association. She will do a medical research problem in San Francisco, either at the University of California Medical Center or at Mount Zion Hospital.

Several of the 1963 graduates have received fellowships. Among them are Margaret McCarthy, awarded a graduate fellowship in biochemistry at the University of California Medical Center, Los Angeles, where she will pursue studies toward a graduate degree preparatory to teaching.

Rosa Yamada has won graduate fellowships in biochemistry at the University of Southern California and at the University of California at Los Angeles, and in physical chemistry at the University of California at La Jolla. She also has been awarded a training assistantship in biochemistry at the University of California, San Francisco.

Alma Lujan has been awarded a graduate assistantship in zoology by Los Angeles State College and another in microbiology at University of Southern California. Eloisa Sanchez has been accepted for medical internship at Sharp Hospital.

A teaching assistantship in French has been received by Jeannette Leavenworth from University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Kathleen Day has been accepted at Stanford Law School and at the law school at University of California at Los Angeles. Carolyn Sutton also has been accepted by Stanford Law School and Georgetown in Washington, D.C.

Mary Olive Chambers has been accepted by the Graduate School of the University of Minnesota in the field of English literature.

At the graduation exercises, four of the graduating seniors were received into Kappa Gamma Pi national Catholic Honor Society. They were Barbara Dubois, Martha Spiers Kaufer, Norma Peck, and Rosa Yamada. Sarita Doyle receiver from this same Honor Society the Corcoran Award, given each year to the sophomore outstanding both in intellectual and leadership achievements.

Other College for Women students receiving scholastic honors were freshman Charlotte Broadus, sophomore Gay Guzinski, junior Stephanie Mayfield, and senior Norma Peck, for the highest

S.D. Camellia Show To Honor Maureen

San Diego's tennis queen, Maureen Connolly, will be guest of honor at the seventh annual Camellia Show in Balboa Park's Recital hall next Saturday and Sunday, officials announced yesterday.

A new camellia is being officially named the "Maureen Connolly," according to E. F. Kohl of Coronado, show chairman, who has spent the last four years developing this bloom.

The show will open at 1 p.m. Saturday, and close at 9 p.m., reopening Sunday at 10 a.m., and closing at 6 p.m., it was announced by Capt. F. E. Vensel, of La Mesa, president of the San Diego Camellia Society, which sponsors the event.

The theme of this year's show is "Camellia Time in San Diego," and hundreds of entries are expected.

All camellia growers are eligible to exhibit, Vensel said. Information can be obtained from Mrs. Lester Goodall, 3036 Suncrest Dr.

New Maureen Connolly Dahlia Grown From Seed

The new Maureen Connolly Dahlia to be exhibited at the San Diego County Dahlia Society's annual show in Balboa Park this week end was grown from seed, R. Paul Comstock, originator of the new variety, said yesterday.

It will be the first public appearance of the flower—a canary yellow blossom measuring approximately 10 inches in diameter—since it was named for San Diego's tennis queen.

The show will be open from 2 to 10 p.m. tomorrow and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday in Recital Hall, Balboa Park. Deadline for entries is 10 a.m. tomorrow. Neither entry fee nor Dahlia Society membership is required.

SEED NOW USED

Although most people believe that dahlias grow only from bulbs, it is through seed that all new varieties are introduced to the market, Comstock explained. His new dahlia for 1952, named in honor of Florence Chadwick, was grown from seed. It won more awards than any ever before on record.

A pod of seed taken from a dahlia plant may hold as many as 50 seeds, yet not one of the seeds will be identical to the parent plant, Comstock said. A variety of seedlings of various colors, types and sizes of dahlias are produced from a single pod.

In the case of the Maureen Connolly Dahlia, like all new varieties, Comstock first selected a parent plant with such qualifications as strong disease resistant foliage, strong straight stem, good form and color.

ALLOWED TO BLOOM

The blossom of the parent plant was allowed to bloom, its petals wither and drop to the ground, leaving the seed pod on the plant until it was completely dry and brown. Then, the pod was picked and the tiny tissues separating the seeds from one another removed.

Seeds form in October and November and are ripe and ready for picking in early December, Comstock said. Seed planting then begins about April 1 and plants are ready to be set out in the open ground in two to three weeks.

The Maureen Connolly Dahlia and its "brother and sister" seedlings first blossomed between 60 and 90 days after outdoor planting. Most of the blossoms were not good and were immediately discarded. At the end of the first season, the new seedling had produced a clump of bulbs and it was from these bulbs that more of the variety was grown.

SENT FOR TWICE

At the end of three years, the time period necessary to show the dahlia has not deteriorated or changed from the variety produced the first year, specimens of the Maureen Connolly Dahlia were sent to "trial ground" for dahlias. There, the plants are growing now. They are checked by dahlia experts throughout the growing and blooming season.

A score of 85 points wins the grower a "certificate" and if a dahlia wins more than 85 points at as many as three of the "trial grounds," it is automatically in line for a "Derrill Hart Memorial" gold medal, highest annual award in the dahlia world. A similar trial system is conducted at "honor roll gardens."

Msgr. Ott Uncovers Treasures

"The youth of today are the men and women of tomorrow . . . Truly they are a gold mine of the future years! To train them, to guide them, to educate them in the truest sense of the word 'educate,' we must, above all, dig deep into their hearts and minds to determine, with every means at our command, the treasures hidden there—the interests, the aspirations, the hopes and fears, the loves and hates of modern youth. Your task, therefore, during these two blessed days, will be truly a treasure hunt."

Thus did Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis C. Ott keynote the tenth annual Diocesan Teachers' Institute.

More than 500 priests, Sisters and lay teachers gathered at the San Diego College for Women September 25 to hear Msgr. Ott deliver the opening address, "Let's Go Treasure Hunting!"

Also participating in the two-day meet were A. Vincent Gerty, MD, vice president of the American Guild of Psychiatrists and Felix Locher, world-renowned geographer. Theme of the sessions was "Teachers Understanding Children and Youth."

Elaborating upon the theme, Msgr. Ott said: "The idea of 'Understanding Children and Youth' is of tremendous importance. Educators of all times have been heard to cry out 'Young people have changed! Who can understand the mind, the ambitions, the attractions of modern youth!' The situation in these days is, in its own right, truly difficult. A conference such as this, aimed at securing a better insight into the minds and lives of our young people, is truly constructive and calculated to produce much fruit for our teachers.

Hidden Treasure

"Those of us who have some little experience in dealing with growing boys and girls have come to regard them as a vast hidden treasure. The youth of today are the men and women of tomorrow. Did you ever stop to realize that in a short generation from now the people of this world — the rulers, executives, teachers, workers, entertainers, scientists — everybody will be these self-same mysterious and perplexing young things with whom we labor today? Truly they are a gold mine of the future years! To train them, to guide them, to educate them in the truest sense of the word 'educate' them we must, above all, dig deep into their hearts and minds to determine, with every means at our command, the treasures hidden there—the interests, the aspirations, the hopes and fears, the loves and hates of modern youth. Your task, therefore, during these two blessed days, will be truly a treasure hunt. Let's go treasure hunting!"

"The exploration upon which you set out is not without its chart—its plan of action. The 'Magna Charta' of the Catholic educator has been indelibly engraved for us by the infallible guiding hand of our holy mother, the Church.

"Pope Pius XII, quoting the words of his glorious predecessors, has defined Catholic education as: 'Collaboration with divine an enemy comes in the night and scatters weed-seed among the good. In this dark night of materialism, of religious indifference, aye even utter godlessness, how well we perceive the hand of the enemy sowing cockle among the wheat!

Same Nature

"Fundamentally human nature does not change. Mothers today gaze into the same innocent eyes of children. The same faculties of soul look out through those eyes in the beauty of awakening consciousness. The same Holy Spirit floods the souls of little children. But we say that youth is different—it has changed! There is only one logical answer: it has changed by the force of the impact of modern society. It is my conviction, therefore, that the map of this treasure-hunt of ours must carry us afield into the external influences shaping the minds and hearts of modern youth. During these days of the institute, therefore, I commission you to examine carefully into our modern fields of religion, of science, of philosophy, of teaching methods. Study carefully what today's world is pouring into the eyes and ears of our youth. There, I am convinced, you will find your understanding of today's children and youth.

To State Question

"I am fully conscious that my task, as keynote speaker for this institute, is not to solve your problems but rather to state the question—after the manner of theological discussion. Were we to spend hours and days digging deeper and deeper into the core of our educational system, our intellectual spade would strike ever more frequently the venacious stones of wonderment and perplexity until at last we reach the bedrock which is the personality of the modern youth. Here our task has just begun; this bedrock we must pierce, bring to light, examine ever so carefully—subject to such efficient analysis that we can at last discover just what is this thing called modern youth. Only in this complete understanding of the child and the youth shall we succeed in carving it into the beautiful image of Christian manhood and womanhood.

"When we meditate sincerely upon our Holy Father's definition of education we must mentally gasp at how far today's educators in secular institutions are missing the mark! Yet more: what pitfalls and stumbling blocks these pedagogues are strewing in the path of sons and daughters of today's families! The course of Catholic education is brilliantly clear: build the edifice of Christian virtue in the lives of our youth!

Enigma Not Modern

"The enigma which confronts you teachers is not at all of modern origin. The same cry for understanding has come winging to us from out of the past. Yet I am personally convinced that the problems of the past are darkly overshadowed by the conditions of our times. If the character of our youth has changed (and we are convinced that it has) then something definitely has changed it. I submit to you, my friends, not as a solution of your problem but as an unerring guide to your solution, this course: study the multifold influences of our modern world upon the lives of our young; then will you better understand what these things have conspired to wreak in the hearts and minds of modern youth!

"While I am keenly conscious of the limited scope of my task as keynote speaker, permit me to map out for you the main highway of your treasure-hunt, off of which you will undoubtedly find grace for the formation of the true and perfect Christian."

"Our Blessed Lord has described the life of a man as a seed-ground. Over that field the Divine Sower has scattered abundantly the good seed of His graces and His good gifts of body, mind and heart. But, says Christ,

'Mighty Little Mo'

by Michael Collins

The Young Catholic Messenger

The experts didn't give the 16-year-old girl much chance to win the U.S. championship. But they didn't know her very well. More important, they didn't know about her unseen companion, Who has helped her become the world's tennis queen!

"He is one of my three best friends," she says, "and he is none other than St. Anthony of Padua."

Ever since she was a little girl, Maureen has thought very highly of St. Anthony. She lost a bracelet then and fled to the saint for help in finding it. He did help, she reveals with the enthusiasm so typical of her, and "ever since that time we have been very close friends."

So when things are tough in tennis and defeat threatens, Maureen says to her friend: "All right, St. Anthony, let's put this ball where we want it to go."

A native of San Diego, California, "Mighty Little Mo," as she is affectionately called, was born on September 17, 1934. Ten years later she entered her first tournament. Before her 15th birthday, she had won more than 50 championships and met with defeat only four times.

The youngest ever to win the national junior title, she was also the country's youngest champion in the senior division in 47 years. Since September, 1951, triumph has followed triumph and championship, championship.

"Little Mo" successfully defended her national title at Forest Hills in 1952 after she had won the world's crown at Wimbledon, England, in July. Also among her laurels are the four major Australian titles she won recently. And she took the Irish championship in 1951.

She now looks for new worlds to conquer. And wherever she goes, also must go her trusted friend, St. Anthony.

Religion always has been a vital force in the young champion's life. When at home she is a familiar figure at the Communion rail of her parish church, St. Patrick's, in San Diego. Before every tournament she attends Mass and receives Holy Communion.

While in high school, she was a member of the Legion of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary. She quickly made the Legion's high spiritual standards her own.

Maureen attended Catholic schools for the most part. She went through the elementary grades in the primary schools of the Academy of Our Lady of Peace and Our Lady of the Sacred Heart. And then she made a decision all her own.

While some of her classmates entered public secondary schools, Maureen chose San Diego's Cathedral Girls' High—because, in her own words, she "wanted a Catholic education." She graduated from there in 1951.

It was at Cathedral that she met another of her three cherished friends. In Mother Mary Adrienne, principal of the school and her teacher for four years, Maureen soon found a friend who understood. Tennis meant absence from school at times. It was all right with Mother Adrienne provided that missed lessons were studied later.

The teacher's sympathetic attitude and readiness to help were not lost on the young athlete. "She was so helpful to me in my studies after absent days," Maureen will tell you.

Upon returning from tournaments at home and abroad, she never fails to visit and spend hours with her former teacher. Conversation at these times has little to do with tennis. Not that Maureen will not report her experiences on the courts, if asked. But she dismisses the question as soon as possible to talk about people she has met, places she has been, fashions she has seen, customs and accents she has noted, and all the other things of interest to the ordinary teen-ager.

The teacher, too, is proud of this former pupil whom fame has left unspoiled. "She retains her cheerful, simple, modest, honest, straightforward manner," says Mother Adrienne. "She is childlike in her ways but not childish, for she is intelligent and sensible. She is unselfish to a fault, always interested in the other person no matter how lowly. She knows how to

HE day was September 5, 1951; the place was Forest Hills, New York; the scene, the final match for the women's national tennis championship; the players, a veteran of the courts and a girl of 16 who had bravely fought her way to the top.

Although amazed at her previous performances in the tournament, the wise men of tennis did not give much chance to the young Californian.

She hadn't the experience, they thought. At least not sufficient experience to match the skill of her seasoned opponent.

But the experts reckoned without the spirit of Maureen Connolly. They did not know the mettle of which she is made. They did not know her courage, her determination, her will to win—marks of a real champion.

There was something else they didn't know about this youthful challenger for the women's crown. For until then and for yet a while, it was Maureen's secret.

It was long after Shirley Fry had fallen before the relentless drives of the victorious Maureen that eventful day in September '51. It was even long after fame had come to her that the new national champion told about her unseen companion of the courts.

meet people. For she is naturally sociable and can converse readily, and enliven conversation if needs be, with anyone or any group. One of the strongest traits in a strong character is her determination."

The resolute way she goes about her tasks was demonstrated forcibly at Wimbledon last summer. Early in the tournament for the most coveted title in women's tennis, Maureen injured her shoulder. As a result she suffered great pain when she played. Her coach, Eleanor Tennant, and her doctor tried to persuade her to withdraw. But Maureen would have none of it. Painful though it was, she played match after match. And before the crucial tests with Shirley Fry in the semifinal and Louise Brough in the final, her fortitude was amply rewarded. The pain left her shoulder and Maureen Connolly at 17 became the world's tennis queen.

Mother Adrienne's high opinion of Maureen is shared by everyone who knows her. She is very popular with all San Diegans and especially with her former classmates at Cathedral High. One of them has this to say about their famous friend: "We liked her sunny disposition and her sense of humor. No one else can laugh at herself like Maureen. We admired her grit. When Maureen decides to do something, she does it. But most of all, we liked her determination to be just one of the girls. She seldom talked about tennis and never boasted about her achievements."

Perhaps the greatest personal influence in her life today is His Excellency, the Most Reverend Charles F. Buddy, Bishop of San Diego. To Bishop Buddy she goes for advice and direction. Of him she says, "He is the finest man I have ever known."

Her immediate future? She has enrolled as a student of journalism and speech at the diocese's new College for Women at Alcala Park in San Diego. But before her soon are battles for other tennis crowns.

The outcome is scarcely in doubt. How could it be when she has an exceptionally powerful forehand, an equally powerful backhand, and a saint, a nun, and a Bishop for her three best friends!

New Student Body Officers Seated at College for Women

Kathleen McGonigle of Boulder City, Nev., was seated as first student body president at the San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, on Monday, February 9.

The new leader of the more than 100 member student body association was introduced by Mother Catherine Parks, RSCJ, president of the college, and received the gavel of her office from Rev. Mother Hill.

A graduate of Forest Ridge Convent, Seattle, Miss McGonigle studied for two years at Manhattanville College, New York, before entering the Alcala Park school last September as a resident student. She is a Psychology major.

Other new officers, who were seated by Miss McGonigle, include Joan Hall, of Twenty-nine Palms, vice president; Mary Binggeli of El Centro, secretary; and Constance Jimenez of San Diego, social chairman.

Miss Hall, who rooms with her twin sister, Mary, did preparatory work in Social Welfare and Political Science at Modesto College. She enrolled at the San Diego College for Women when it first opened last February.

A graduate of Central Union High School and a former student of Imperial Valley Junior College, Miss Binggeli is now in her junior year and majors in Sociology.

Registered Nurse

Miss Jimenez, who is a pre-medical student, was graduated from St. Mary's High School, Lynn, Mass., trained at the Beverley Hospital in the same city and later received her R.N. from San Diego County General Hospital. She was admitted as a premedical student at Columbia University before transferring to the Alcala Park college.

FIRST STUDENT LEADERS—Tackling a big agenda, these girls were installed yesterday as the first student body officers of the San Diego College for Women, which was opened a year ago this month. From left are Mary Binggeli, El Centro, secretary; Kathleen McGonigle, Boulder City, Nev., president; Constance Jimenez, Lynn, Mass., social chairman, and Joan Hall, Twenty-nine Palms, vice president.

Freshman Officers

During the same ceremonies, the freshman class officers were also installed. They are Leann Mahoney of San Diego, president; Donna Boyd of San Francisco, vice president; Marilyn Mayer of Pasadena, secretary; and Marie Mathew of La Mesa, social representative.

Following an address by Rev. Mother Hill on the motto of the College "Ut Omnes Unum Sint" (That All May Be One—) the students assembled in the college chapel where the newly installed officers pledged their loyalty to the faculty and students.

First Milestone

The first installation of student officers at the San Diego College for Women yesterday—an impressive formal ceremony with the girls in academic caps and gowns—not only marked an important milestone in the new four-million-dollar Alcala Park college, but reflected the cosmopolitan character of the brand new student body.

Miss Kathleen McGonigle, who was graduated from Forest Ridge Convent in Seattle and who took her first two years at Manhattanville College in New York City, is from Boulder City, Nev. She entered in September and will continue her work as a major in psychology.

Vice president Joan Hall, who rooms with her twin sister, Mary, prepared at Modesto High School, University of New Mexico and San Diego Junior College. Joan is from Twenty-Nine Palms.

Secretary Mary Binggeli comes from El Centro. Constance Jimenez, social chairman, did her preparatory work in Lynn, Mass. She was admitted as a premedical student at Columbia before transferring to the local college's pre-med course. The freshman class officers are Leann Mahoney, of this city, president; Donna Boyd, of San Francisco, vice president; Marilyn Mayer, of Pasadena, secretary, and Marie Mathew, of La Mesa, social representative.

The new officers are planning a festive welcome next week end for 27 girls from the Sacred Heart Convent in San Francisco. They will arrive Thursday. Last Saturday the local student body was hostess to 37 visitors from Glendale.

Women's College Cornerstone Laid

Another important milestone in the brief history of the San Diego College for Women came ^{WED} January 6 when the Most Reverend Bishop officiated at the laying of the cornerstone at the Alcala Park school, first unit of the University of San Diego.

The commemorative marble plaque is carved with the dates of the foundation of the college and the crest of the Religious of the Sacred Heart who conduct the school.

Box Inserted

The ceremony took place following Mass which was offered in the college chapel. Before sealing the cornerstone, the Bishop, assisted by Rev. Father Francis, OSF, inserted into the opening a small copper box containing the names of all the founders of the college, including the first students and teachers.

Present for the event were members of the faculty, students and Mr. Frank Hope, AIA, who designed the building.

The woman's college was first opened in February, 1952.

Seven-Year-Old Pianist To Give Benefit Concert

Seven-year-old pianist Donald Eugene Read will give a benefit concert on Sunday, February 1, at 2 p.m. in the San Diego College for Women Theatre.

His repertoire will include four of Bach's two-part "Inventions" as well as selections by Grieg, Tchaikovsky and Nevin. Featured in the program will be Haydn's "Concerto in D Major" with orchestral parts played by Lyell Barbour.

A veteran of several recital appearances, the talented young musician, who has been studying music for only two years, gave his first full length concert last November in the San Diego Women's Club.

It was Donald's own idea to give this concert as a benefit for the college, where he is now being tutored and where he does much of his practicing.

Tickets will be available at the Lucille Palmer Box Office, 640 Broadway. Price is $3 each.

The Most Reverend Bishop will be guest of honor at the concert.

BOY PLANS BENEFIT

Seldom, if ever, does a small boy give a benefit concert for a big college. But this will happen next Sunday afternoon at 2 when Donald Read, a seven-year-old pianist, will carry out his idea of giving a benefit concert for the San Diego College for Women where he is now being instructed in such matters as reading, writing, and arithmetic. Donald's concert for the college will be his expression of gratitude.

In this concert Donald will play four Bach "Inventions," music by K. P. E. Bach, Grieg, MacDowell, and Tchaikovsky, and Haydn's Concerto in D major. Orchestral parts will be played by Lyell Barbour at a second piano. Tickets are on sale at 640 Broadway.

Many at Alcala Park Concert

A large crowd gathered in the auditorium of the San Diego College for Women in Alcala Park last Sunday to hear the piano concert given by seven-year-old Donald Read.

The Most Reverend Bishop was guest of honor for the benefit which Donald himself requested. Both his mother and grandfather are alumnae of colleges staffed by the Religious of the Sacred Heart who compose the faculty of the Alcala Park school.

Accompanied in part by his teacher, Lyell Barbour, Donald played several selections, including works of Grieg, Bach and Tschaikovsky.

The young pianist has been studying for only two years but is a veteran of several recitals. He is tutored at the college.

Choral Course Offered At College for Women

A course in choral technique is among the music courses offered in the second semester by the San Diego College for Women. This class, Music Education 144, will be held on Thursday afternoons at 4.

The instructor, David Nyvall Jr., was formerly the chairman of the De Paul University Music Department, and director of music for the Chicago Board of Education Radio Council.

Drama Club Gives Play

Members of the newly-organized Drama Club at the San Diego College for Women entertained student body and faculty with their initial production, "Thursdays—At Home", a one-act comedy by Mae Howley Barry, on Tuesday, February 17, at 3 p.m.

After the play, cast and audience gathered in the Fountain for refreshments and the introduction of Club officers: Mary Turner of Glendale, president; Evelyn Krail of San Diego, vice-president; Arline Raymond of San Diego, secretary.

"Hearts and Beaux" celebrated Valentine's Day with a freshman-sponsored date-dance in the recreation hall from 9 to 1 o'clock. Social chairman for the dance was Marie Mathew of La Mesa. The decoration committee, headed by Donna Boyd of San Francisco, included Marilyn Mayer, Mary Turner, Judy Monahan, and Evelyn Krail. Jackie Kearns of Madera, California, was assisted on her refreshment committee by Elayne Langenieux and Carol Reilly. Margaret Fahlstrom of San Diego, entertainment chairman, was helped by Barbara Barretta, Leann Mahoney and Lillian Jimenez.

Included among the guests were eleven seniors from Convent of the Sacred Heart in San Fran-

Sacred Heart League Meets at College

The newly-formed League of the Sacred Heart at the San Diego College for Women met Friday, February 20, to hear an explanation of the aims and purposes of the organization by Mother Wilson, moderator.

The League meets once a month, usually on First Friday, for talks by the students on the intentions of our Holy Father and subjects of current interest in the fields of Catholic Action. Discussion periods are also held to plan practical projects.

The promoters of the League convened in January at an organizational meeting to draw up bands. The leaders are Kathleen McGonigle of Boulder City, Nev., Mary Binggeli of El Centro, and Constance Jimenez of San Diego, later elected to student body offices.

Freshmen promoters include Carol Reilly of San Diego, Jackie Kearns of Madera, and Marilyn Mayer of Altadena. Miss Mayer and Miss Kearns got previous experience as promoters during their high school years at Mayfield School of the Holy Child, Pasadena, and Convent of the Sacred Heart, Menlo Park, respectively.

Miss Mayers' chief interest is primary education. She also plans to take art classes next semester. Miss Reilly, who was graduated from Cathedral Girls' High School, San Diego, is studying journalism and serves as library assistant at the College. Miss Kearns has chosen history with a view to secondary education.

College Harder Than Tennis

By MAUREEN CONNOLLY

Dear San Diegans: Been meaning to tell you these last two weeks that I've been taking a college course in Journalism (no comments, please!), also one in Speech. Back to the "bell, book and candle" days I wander with plenty of studying right now, due to mid-term exams coming up shortly. Oh, what a headache! You know, it's been three years since I was graduated from dear old Cathedral High and those three years have produced nothing but a very lazy "Li'l Mo" when it comes to reading or studying of any sort. So this new college role, which I thought worthwhile to help fill in till time comes to take off for Europe again, is proving a little more difficult than anticipated.

My new alma mater is that recently constructed and beautiful San Diego College for Women located above Mission Valley in the general vicinity of Linda Vista.

It has a scenic view overlooking the entire valley and, on a clear day, you can see Pacific Beach. Speaking of location, it's perfecto for Mo, seeing as my Colonel Merryboy is stabled only a hop, skip and jump from the top of the mount.

The college is supervised by the Religious Mothers of the Sacred Heart and they are certainly doing a most wonderful job. The buildings are still undergoing the final touches of construction, so once in a while the racket of hammer and nails assaults the eardrums — but school continues.

The buildings are styled in Spanish colonial architecture and the interiors, well they certainly include some of the most beautiful rooms I've ever seen.

The library, itself, would take up the dimensions of at least 10 tennis courts (no fooling) and the antiques and statues in this room are fabulous. Reminds me of that terrific Guinness castle we visited in Ireland last summer. All this college needs is a moat surrounding it to produce the real castle atmosphere.

The auditorium seats 1500 and is complete with individual balconies surrounding the theater. (An ideal setup for a Romeo and Juliet number.) The stage is of good size, complete with automatic sprinkling system.

Needless to say, we have a lot of fun with the varying accents, especially now since we are studying the correct pronunciation of the "r".

Yes, college days are wonderful, but you'll have to excuse me now, folks, because the Journalism exam is coming up soon and wouldn't it be terrible if I flunked that!

Sincerely,
Li'l Mo

P.S.—A word for our sports editor, Jack Murphy. For those of you who read Jack's column Sunday when he "scooped" me on Tony Trabert, I feel like "aiming my Underwood" at Jack instead of Tony. Think I'll slip down to the ball park one of these nights and swipe one of those star interviews from under his nose. How's about that, Jack?

College for Women Approved for Vets

The San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, has been approved as an institution authorized to train veterans under Public Law 346, officials of the school learned last week from the State Department of Education, Bureau of Readjustment Education.

A veteran of World War II who is still eligible for educational benefits under this law may now register at the college and have her educational rights honored by the Veterans' Administration. By January, 1954, the college hopes to be authorized to provide training for Korean women veterans as well under Puublic Law 550.

Earlier Accreditation

Earlier, the Credentials Office of the Division of Teacher Education at Sacramento, gave recognition to the San Diego College for Women for its work in elementary education.

Now, students preparing for the teaching profession may get their degree at the college and have the work accepted by the Credentials Office.

The Department of Education also notified the registrar that teachers with bachelor's degrees "may take special course work to meet specific requirements for a credential at your institution and have such work accepted by this office."

Appearing as guest conductor will be Mr. David Nyvall, Jr., Helen Deyling of Cathedral Girls' High School and Florence Morzinski of the Academy of Our Lady of Peace will accomapny. Mr. Jerry Lee Pecht, program director of Radio Station KFMB will announce.

Appearing in special numbers will be Tom Shaules of Blessed Sacrament school, coronet; Fred McKinstrey and Paul Roberts of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, unison solo for the tuba; and Anne Whitlock of the Academy of Our Lady of Peace, soprano soloist in the "Ave Maria."

Scholarships To S. D. College To Be Awarded

The San Diego College for Women will award scholarships to seniors of public or private high schools in San Diego, it was announced this week.

A $100 leadership scholarship will go to any girl who has been elected senior class or student body president in her high school.

A scholarship of $100 per year will be given to each girl recommended for a certificate in the Bank of America awards program. Gold cup winners in the bank award plan will also receive $100 scholarships.

Cash Prize Winners

Scholarships of $200 per year will be given to each girl who wins a cash prize in the final eliminations of the Bank of America awards.

Officials of the Alcala Park school said these scholarships will be offered to all winners who register at the college. They will be given throughout the four years if satisfactory records are maintained.

Hundreds to Participate in Program

The largest musical event of the year will take place next Sunday, May 3, in Balboa Park Bowl. Twenty-eight Catholic schools will present the Seventh Annual Music Festival under the direction of Merle G. Coady.

1170 on Stage

On the bowl stage will be 1170 students comprising four choruses and the 80-piece All-City Parochial Schools Band. Nine hundred junior and senior high school girls, trained by the music directors in 28 parochial schools in the county, will join the traditional festival finale, the Ave Maria by Bach-Gounod, with Anne Whitlock of the Academy of Our Lady of Peace as soprano soloist.

Tom Shaules of Blessed Sacrament School will render the cornet solo part of Panis Angelicus, and Fred McKinstrey and Paul Roberts of Our Lady of Sacred Heart School will appear in a unison tuba solo.

From 15 Bands

The All-City Parochial Schools Band is composed of selected boys and girls from 15 school bands trained and directed throughout the year by Merle G. Coady, director, and Robert Marr, associate director. They will be assisted by Leo Hamilton, guest conductor. All three are members of the San Diego Philharmonic Orchestra and San Diego Symphonic Band. Mr. Coady is also a member of the Starlight Opera Orchestra and is a graduate of San Diego State College and the United States Navy School of Music in Washington, D. C.

Girls' Chorus

A select chorus of high school girls will be heard under the direction of guest conductor David Nyvall, Jr., choral director on the faculty of the San Diego College for Women.

The program begins at 2:30 p.m. and the public is invited. Tickets are 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children in grade school.

San Diego College for Women Distinguishes City's Skyline

The striking aerial view which forms this month's cover photo depicts another major landmark—San Diego College for Women, which will form a part of San Diego University, now building on the expansive site overlooking Mission Bay, San Diego Bay and Point Loma.

These multi-million dollar buildings were financed and furnished completely by the Religious of the Sacred Heart, which operates some of the outstanding Catholic educational institutions for girls in the nation. Its honorary president is the Rev. Mother Hill, who has been responsible for the plans and their execution. The other parts of San Diego University are a project of the San Diego Catholic Diocese, and Bishop Charles Frances Buddy is president.

In this photo the building in the right foreground is the Administration Building. Extending back from it is the chapel. In the left foreground is the Academic Building, and in the rear of that is the college theater. The building between the two extensions is the dining hall and service area. All of the second floor is residential. In the extreme rear is a power house and apartments for service personnel.

Bishop Lauds RSCJ's Record At Centennial

THE SOUTHERN CROSS
Thursday, May 7, 1953

ST. JOSEPH—The Most Reverend Bishop of San Diego returned to his native place here to deliver the sermon at the May 3 Mass marking the centennial of Sacred Heart Convent.

Scores of alumnae attended the celebration and heard the Bishop trace to June 12, 1853, the origins of the famous

His Excellency received his early education from the Religious of the Sacred Heart who staff it as well as schools throughout the United States and the world including the new San Diego College for Women in Alcala Park.

"History rears its own enduring monument to the Sacred Heart Convent of St. Joseph," the Bishop said. "Creation of God's love, it has the honors of a century upon it. Somehow, the fresh gentle breezes of a Burgundian countryside, the same clime breathed by St. Madeleine Sophie, St. Bernard, St. Jane Frances de Chantal, Blessed Claude de la Colombiere, seems to pervade its high arched corridors, its classrooms, and gardens, its magnanimous thoughts and deeds."

Citadel of Zeal

"Based in the loyalties of a faithful people, builded wisely and well by dint of sacrifice and firm trust, this strong citadel of zeal and learning, nurtured through the years the fairest flowers in the field of Catholic womanhood."

Elaborating this tribute to the alumnae of the school, His Excellency said: "Of these our Divine Lord chose many to be His brides, to become the spiritual mothers of countless souls. Others in the world glorified God by employing their talents in constructive pursuits, the while exemplifying the virtues of single blessedness."

"The great majority of alumnae however, have established homes with an atmosphere of peace and piety. All the alumnae, by means of the morning offering enthrone the Sacred Heart in each day's round of duties—to carry on holy traditions which still energize life through five thousand channels of power and influence. Verily 'their sound hath gone forth into all the earth; and their words unto the ends of the world.'

Story of Coming

The Bishop then told the story of the coming of the Religious of the Sacred Heart to St. Joseph. In 1852, Father Thomas Scanlon, first resident pastor in Northern Missouri, "begged Reverend Mother Cutts, Vicar Superior of the Southland, to found an academy in this city."

The request was granted and in March, 1853, Joseph Robidoux led a large group of the then 900 settlers of St. Joseph to greet the Religious as they arrived in the city by packetboat. On June 12, 1853, the academy was opened with 60 pupils.

The Bishop called to mind the day in 1800 when the Religious of the Sacred Heart was born in Paris. "It had a wealth of Divine Love firing the hearts of St. Madeleine Sophie and her companions—who had nothing, yet possessed all things," the Bishop said.

The real origin of the commemoration, His Excellency stated, goes back nineteen hundred years "when the Saviour of mankind charged His apostles and their successors—'Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for such is the kingdom of God'."

"The glorious vision that transfigured this hilltop a century ago, still inspired your response to His loving invitation 'Learn of me for I am meek and humble of heart.' Therefore, not alone by academic degrees, not by the acquisition of human knowledge but through Christ's humble heart have more than four generations of students learned that 'The thoughts of His Heart are to all generations to deliver their souls from death; and feed them in famine.'"

The Bishop praised the "fervent character" of the foundress of the Religious of the Sacred Heart, St. Madeleine Sophie. "Disregarding her 'stature and the beauty of her countenance', Divine Providence chose one young and poor to foster this great apostolate. St. Madeleine Sophie and her spiritual daughters sponsored the foundation of the Convent of the Sacred Heart in St. Joseph. Its primary objective was to make known and loved the Heart of Jesus. On this solid groundwork rests the dimensions of these brilliant educators . . . "The Adorable Heart deigned to increase what His Society in St. Joseph had planted and watered with tears. These religious drank deeply of the wine springing forth virgins and read in the eyes of their Divine Lover, the dazzling splendor of total self-renunciation. They contemplate in the Sacred Heart what they are meant to be."

"This kind of background guaranteed a Centennial, and please God—many more to come."

His Excellency lauded Reverend Mother Rosalie Hill, Vicar Superior, "who has honored this occasion with her gentle benign presence" and Reverend Mother Sheehan, Superior of the convent "whose genius is reflected in authoring this afternoon's beautiful pageant."

The Bishop then recalled his boyhood days in St. Joseph. "My mind goes back sixty years to the time I sat at the feet of my first teacher, Mother Mary Cribbin, and learned from her eternal truths."

Vision of Mater

Concluding his address, the Bishop said "Surely our colloquy should end—as everything good begins—with the Mother. Every child of the Sacred Heart cherishes the memory of 'Mater Admirabilis.' Whether at her shrine in Trinita-dei-Monti, or at the Motherhouse, Via Nomentana, or Roscrea, or Tokyo, or Hammer-smith, or Alcala Park, or at Hilltop, the vision of Mater seated in the court of the temple remainindelible . . . It always seemed to me that Our Lady, pondering all these things in her Immaculate Heart, as she faced the unknown, was even then thinking of Magnificat. We pray that she chants it with us today."

Retreat for Nuns Set for June 19-27

A retreat will be conducted at the San Diego College for Women from Friday evening, June 19 through Saturday, June 27, for all parochial school Sisters who wish to take advantage of these spiritual exercises.

The retreat master will be Rev. Methodius Cikrit, professor of philosophy at Immaculate Heart Seminary.

Already 50 sisters from various congregations have made plans to attend, according to an announcement made this week at the college.

Most Sisters will reside at Alcalá Park but some will return to their own convents each evening.

Reservations may still be made for the retreat.

College for Women Scholarship Tea Draws 800 Visitors

By EDITH CUSHING
Society Editor

More than 800 friends of the San Diego College for Women gathered yesterday at the serenely beautiful campus to witness an awards program and musicale in the large auditorium, followed by a tea in the spacious dining room. Bishop Charles F. Buddy presided, congratulating the young high school seniors who received scholarships to San Diego College for Women presented by the college. The honored girls were selected from the list chosen by high school principals for the Bank of America scholastic awards program. Winning leadership and scholarship awards were Miss Gail Henderson and Miss Lidia Foncerrada. Leadership awards were presented to Miss Mary Jimenez, Miss Virginia Rodee and Miss Rita Trudell. Receiving scholarship awards were Miss Patricia Arnold, Mary Elaine Beehan, Patricia Keane, Barbara Pyskio and Marina Santa Ana. The music award went to Miss Joan Ertmer.

Yesterday's party was given by the college and by the San Diego Sacred Heart Alumnae Club, for the college is operated by the Religious of the Sacred Heart. Since San Diego's college was only opened a little more than a year ago, most of the 200 local alumnae are from other colleges of the order.

PIANIST 7 YEARS OLD

The program began with a group of Grieg numbers played exceedingly well by dark-haired, 7-year-old Donald Eugene Read. Next came selections by the San Diego College for Women's Choral Group. "Le Matin," by Chaminade was played by a two-piano team, Miss Kathleen Brophy and Miss Marilyn Maus, college students. The musicale ended with the San Diego Catholic High School chorus singing "O God of Spotless Holiness," by Wilkes.

On the platform with Bishop Buddy during presentation of the scholarships were Msgr. Francis Dillon, Mother Genevieve Clarke, assistant to Rev. Mother Vicar Rosalie Hill; Mother Catherine Parks, president of the college; Mother Aimee Rossi, dean; Mother Maryella Bremner, registrar, and Graydon Hoffman, vice president of the Bank of America.

Mr. Hoffman commended the Religious of the Sacred Heart for starting the fine scholarship program. In turn, Bishop Buddy expressed his appreciation for Mr. Hoffman's help. Talking especially to the young women present, Bishop Buddy assured them that San Diego would go forward through education, for "there never comes a time when we can close our books and say we know it all."

The tea originally had been planned as a garden party and was moved inside when more of San Diego's "unusual" weather appeared. But before the party was over hundreds stepped out into the huge center court with its many flower beds ablaze with color. Mrs. Daniel Redmond, a Sacred Heart alumna and sister of Bishop Buddy, and Mrs. Marie B. McMahon, past president of the Sacred Heart

Alumnae, presided at the tea table which was centered with a soft arrangement of pale pink and white carnations.

ALUMNAE MEETING

Before the program the alumnae held a meeting, with Mrs. Charles Quinn presiding as president. Mrs. Clifton A. F. Sprague is vice president; Mrs. Francis W. Benson, treasurer; Mrs. David S. Casey, recording secretary; Mrs. Ward Woods, corresponding secretary; Miss Bernice Fiske and Mrs. Louis Padberg, assistant secretaries, and Mrs. Martin Johnson, assistant treasurer.

Board members include Mmes. McMahon, J. M. Leyendecker, Walter Fitch, Jr., Harry Smith, Cassin Young and John Russell, Dr. Anita Figueredo and Miss Martha Kennedy.

Before we left Mrs. Woods took us on a brief tour of the college, showing us the spacious library with its grilled balcony, reservoir already for 25,000 volumes. All the floors are of seasoned parquet, even in the classrooms.

MARBLE ALTAR

Besides the main courtyard, there are four others, giving the young women of all denominations who form the student body, pleasant intervals of out-of-doors between classes.

The beautiful chapel's white marble altar was brought from Italy as was the deep green marble which forms the sanctuary steps. In one of several stately drawing rooms we admired delicate inlaid Italian chairs, while in another a 15th Century sofa was upholstered in rare Aubusson tapestry.

Mother Parks graciously invites San Diegans to visit her college this month, most popular visiting hours from 2 to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

San Diego College For Women Holds Scholarship Tea

Last week about 800 persons attended the Scholarship Tea held on the campus of the San Diego College for Women in Alcala Park.

The musical portion of the afternoon, held in the auditorium included four piano solos by seven year old Donald Eugene Read followed by selections by the College Choral Group. A two piano number was presented by Kathleen Brophy and Marilyn Maus both students at the San Diego College for Women and the San Diego Catholic High School Chorus presented the closing number of the musicale.

Bishop Buddy, assisted by Msgr. Francis Dillon, Mother Genevieve Clarke, assistant to Rev. Mother Vicar Rosalie Hill; Mother Catherine Parks, President of the college; Mother Aimee Rossi, dean; Mother Maryelle Bremmer, registrar and Gradon Hoffman, vice-president of the Bank of America made the scholarship presentations to young high school seniors who received scholarships to the San Diego College for Women. These girls were selected from the list chosen by high school principals for the Bank of America Scholastic Awards program.

Miss Gail Henderson and Miss Lidia Foncerrada were presented with Leadership and Scholarship Awards of $200 per year for four years.

Miss Mary Jimenez, Miss Virginia Rodee and Miss Rita Trudell were presented Leadership awards in the amount of $100 per year for four years.

Scholarship Awards were presented to Miss Patricia Arnold, Miss Mary Elaine Beehan, Miss Patricia Keane, Miss Barbara Pysklo and Miss Patricia Meyers.

Following the presentation all were invited to the garden patio for tea.

U. S. Approves Local College for Women For Foreign Students

The San Diego College for Women at Alcala Park has been approved as an "institution of higher education for the attendance of non-immigrant students in accordance with the Immigration and Nationality Act," Rev. Mother Rosalie Hill, president, learned this week from the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Under the law passed last December, foreign students may study only in those schools approved for them by the Government of the United States.

The acceptance of the College for Women's application to educate foreigners means that American consulates abroad may grant visas to non-immigrant students for travel to the United States and studies.

in the Alcala Park institution. To qualify for such approval, a college must meet the very high requirements set by the U. S. Office of Education.

An official of the college said that applications and requests for information concerning the school have been received already from Colombia, Mexico and Portugal.

The letter received from the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the United States Department of Justice stated:

"Reference is made to application for approval of San Diego College for Women for attendance of non-immigrant students under Section 101 (a) (15) (F) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

"You are informed that San Diego College for Women has been duly approved by the Attorney General, after consultation with the Office of Education of the United States, as an institution of higher education for the attendance of non-immigrant students in accordance with the Immigration and Nationality Act.

To Notify Consuls

"The Department of State is being notified of this action in order that all United States consular officers may be advised. These officers will then be in a position to consider applications for the required nonimmigrant student visas. A prospective student should present to the consular officer a letter of acceptance by your school and such other evidence as the consul may require.

"It may be stated that this Department and Service will have no part in the procedure as students reach a United States port, and it will be unnecessary, therefore, for your school to communicate with this Service relative to the expected arrival of individual students."

College for Women Approved for Vets

The San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, has been approved as an institution authorized to train veterans under Public Law 346, officials of the school learned last week from the State Department of Education, Bureau of Readjustment Education.

A veteran of World War II who is still eligible for educational benefits under this law may now register at the college and have her educational rights honored by the Veterans' Administration. By January, 1954, the college hopes to be authorized to provide training for Korean women veterans as well under Public Law 550.

Earlier Accreditation

Earlier, the Credentials Office of the Division of Teacher Education at Sacramento, gave recognition to the San Diego College for Women for its work in elementary education.

Now, students preparing for the teaching profession may get their degree at the college and have the work accepted by the Credentials Office.

The Department of Education also notified the registrar that teachers with bachelor's degrees "may take special course work to meet specific requirements for a credential at your institution and have such work accepted by this office."

Enrollment to Double

With the prospect of foreign students and the applications for admittance already received from U. S. residents, it is expected that the enrollment at the college for the coming academic year will be double that of last year.

A total of 130 persons are taking summer courses now under way at Alcala Park. This enrollment is more than double the figure of last year's summer session.

Plans have been completed for another School Health Workshop at the College for Women. It will open August 31 and end September 4. The workshop is designed primarily for members of the various religious teaching orders and public school instructors. Parents interested in the school health question also may attend, the registrar said.

indelible . . . It always seemed to me that Our Lady, pondering all these things in her Immaculate Heart, as she faced the unknown, was even then thinking of Magnificat. We pray that she chants it with us today."

THE HERNANDEZ STORY . . .

Our good friend, Nelson Fisher, the San Diego Union's terrific turf and tennis writer, is the person who nicknamed Maureen Connolly as "Little Mo." The monicker caught on so well that it now represents a household term the world over. A few weeks ago, Fisher did a nice column on a local Catholic lad, Albert Hernandez, a Stella Maris graduate and former La Jolla High tennis ace who succumbed recently to cancer. Nelson went on to relate the many obstacles the spunky Hernandez boy overcame in order to annex the National Boys' Doubles Tennis title. In addition to a colorful tennis career, Albert was an accomplished pianist and won national acclaim in this as well.

According to our standards, everything concerned with Fisher's literary effort was top-grade except for the final paragraph in his story. It reads: "There is an old saying based on poetry of Wordsworth, that 'the good die young.' But why?" . . . The mere mind of man will always wonder. It is too finite, too limited to understand the will of God. However, Albert Hernandez and all good practicing Catholics believe that life—for all eternity—begins when our earthly life ends. And the reasons concerned with God's plan, while they are hidden from our eyes, remain infallibly intact in the secret cabinets of the Creator.

The pragmatist's views of life exclude such thoughts as these. For him, indeed, life is sordid and its sweet mysteries a bothersome burden. Their philosophy of life runs something on this order: (1) Make lots of money (so you can enjoy all the pleasures of this life.) (2) Be a success in the eyes of the world (human acclaim is great for the ego.) (3) Be popular and make lots of friends (Read Dale Carnegie and follow his works religiously.) (4) Raise two children (a boy and a girl preferably) and (5) Cling to life as long as you can (three score and ten at least.)

Father Leonard Burt, OSA, reports that his St. Augustine High tennis team dropped its quarter final C.I.F. play-off match to La Jolla High by $\frac{1}{2}$ point. Then, in the semi-finals, La Jolla lost to South Pasadena by $\frac{1}{2}$ point: while South Pasadena was shaded in the finals by Santa Monica High, also by $\frac{1}{2}$ point. Which goes to show that next year's Saint crew—with only Ronnie Komendera graduated—will be an odds-on favorite to con the Southern California scholastic tennis

James R. Phalen, M.D., a St. Augustine grad of many years and one of our own town's top obstetricians, is considered among the best of the better Senior tennis players in San Diego . . . Ray Coady, highly respected in local law circles, tells us that his alma mater, Manhattan College, New York City, is celebrating its 100th year in the educational field. Mr. Coady adds "It's a school of only a few hundred students but it has established a national reputation for sensational track and field baseball and basketball teams." . . .

Maureen Connolly recently became the first woman tennis player in history to win all four major tennis titles in one season. The little San Diego Catholic gal emerged as winner of the Wimbledon, United States, Australian and French tournaments—representing quite an accomplishment . . . Incidentally, Ralph Trembly, who heads the San Diego Playground and Recreation Department wrote a highly readable account of Miss Connolly's tennis exploits for the Catholic Digest. Although his script was cut down somewhat it was published in the current issue of the Digest and brought a tidy sum for Ralph . . .

Those who claim to know these things claim that Rocky Marciano is the hardest hitting heavyweight since Jack Johnson. Dempsey and Louis were hard hitters whose opponents oftentimes got up after a trip to the canvas. Marciano's victims seldom—if ever—make the return trip to their feet. . . "Baby Face" Gutierrez, the Catholic bantam from San Diego, looked very good in his recent decision over California State Champion Billy Peacock.

Second Health Meeting Set At Alcala Park

The San Diego College for Women will hold its Second Annual Health Conference from Monday, August 31, to Friday, September 4, Mother Rosalie Hill has announced.

More extensive than last year's, the 1953 workshop will include several new aspects of the health program, chief of which will be discussion of the school child's psychological problems.

Organization of the program, now underway, is in the hands of a special committee under the chairmanship of Rev. George Rice, diocesan superintendent of schools. Father Rice is assisted by Mother Rossi, dean of the college.

Distinguished Members

Other members are Mother Mary Helen, principal of St. Brigid's Academy; Sister Aurelia, director of the Guadalupe Clinic; Dr. Dominic DeSanto, medical consultant in Catholic schools; Dr. Anita Figueredo, parent and medical representative; Mrs. Marion Bryant, public health educator of the San Diego Department of Public Health; Mr. John D. McCarthy, executive secretary of the San Diego County Tuberculosis and Health Association; Mrs. Ceil Sutton, school nurse, and Mother Danz, head of the Biology department at the San Diego College for Women. The committee plans soon to make public the entire program for the workshop.

Problems of Children

Friday, September 4, will be devoted to sessions on the psychological problems of children. Dr. A. Vincent Gerty of Pasadena, vice-president of the Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists, will be guest speaker and consultant at these sessions.

The conference, which will be held during the last week of the 10-week summer term, will be opened on Monday, August 31, with an address by His Excellency, the Most Reverend Bishop of San Diego.

S. D. College Approved for Foreign Co-eds

The San Diego College for Women at Alcala Park, first unit of the University of San Diego, has been approved as an "institution of higher education for the attendance of non-immigrant students," Rev. Mother Rosalie Hill, president, was informed by U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service authorities this week.

Under a law passed in December, foreign students may study only in those schools approved for them by the U.S. government. Acceptance of the college to educate foreigners means that American consulates abroad may grant visas to non-immigrant students for travel to this country and studies at the local institution.

A spokesman for the College for Women said that applications and requests for information concerning the school have already been received from Colombia, Mexico and Portugal.

Many to Attend

Representatives of each of the faculties of the parochial schools and parent-teacher associations as well as parents, nurses, college students and others interested in child welfare plan to attend the meetings of the conference. Many of those who attended the first Annual Health Workshop have already requested the second.

The registration fee is $8. Those who wish to apply for college credit may do so without additional fee. Application blanks and further information may be obtained from Mother Rossi, San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, San Diego 10.

McCarthy, executive secretary of the San Diego County Tuberculosis and Health Association; Mr. Cecil Sutton, school nurse, and Mother Danz, head of the Biology department at the San Diego College for Women. The committee plans soon to make public the tentative program for the workshop.

Problems of Children

Friday, September 4, will be devoted to sessions on the psychological problems of children. A. Vincent Gerty of Pasadena, vice-president of the Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists, will be guest speaker and consultant at these sessions.

The conference, which will be held during the last week of the 10-week summer term, will be opened on Monday, August 31, with an address by His Excellency the Most Reverend Bishop of San Diego.

Many to Attend

Representatives of each of the faculties of the parochial schools and parent-teacher associations, as well as parents, nurses, college students and others interested in child welfare plan to attend the meetings of the conference. Many of those who attended the first Annual Health Workshop have already requested the second.

The registration fee is $1.00. Those who wish to apply for college credit may do so without an additional fee. Application blanks and further information may be obtained from Mother Rossi, San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, San Diego 10.

Expect 500 At Institute For Teachers

Five hundred priests, religious and lay teachers are expected to attend the tenth annual Diocesan Teachers' Institute to be held Friday and Saturday, September 25 and 26, at the San Diego College for Women at Alcala Park.

The two-day meeting will be opened officially with Mass in the college chapel at 9:45 a.m. on Friday.

Theme of this year's gathering is "Teachers Understanding Children and Youth."

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis C. Ott, diocesan director of Catholic Youth Organizations, will deliver the keynote address.

Psychiatrist to Speak

A. Vincent Gerty, MD, vice president of the American Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists, will address the Friday afternoon session. On Saturday morning he will conduct a special meeting for secondary school teachers.

Map Reading

Mr. Felix Locher, world famous authority on geography and maps, will lecture on global geography problems and common misconceptions in the reading of maps. A feature of his lecture will be the playing of the map quiz game by all participants.

Luncheon will be served each day in the college cafeteria.

A special exhibit displaying textbooks, teaching aids and audiovisual materials will be open for inspection both days.

Geographer to Talk At Teachers' Parley

Felix Locher, Los Angeles, noted geography lecturer, will be featured speaker at the 10th annual Diocesan Teachers' Institute tomorrow and Saturday in the theater of the San Diego College for Women.

Locher will speak on "Fundamentals in World Geography" and "Comparative Time Around the World" at institute sessions Saturday morning.

More than 500 teachers in the San Diego Catholic Diocese are expected to attend the institute.

Keynote speaker tomorrow will be Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis C. Ott, diocesan director of Catholic youth organizations, and pastor of Blessed Sacrament Church.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Franklin F. Hurd, rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary, El Cajon, will preside over a panel discussion tomorrow afternoon.

Dr. A. Vincent Gerty, Pasadena, vice president of the American Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists, will speak on "Problems of Teen-Age Youth" at a meeting of secondary school teachers Saturday at the institute.

Piano Workshop Scheduled at SD Women's College

A one-day demonstration workshop in the group method of piano teaching will be given on August 6 at the San Diego College for Women by Mrs. Fay Templeton Frisch.

Mrs. Frisch is internationally known as an expert in this specialized educational technique. Through the courtesy of the Thearle Music Co., Mrs. Frisch is extending her visit to San Diego in order to give this laboratory demonstration. Piano teachers will be able to watch a recognized authority at work with young children who have never before studied piano.

Class hours will be 9 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. Registration fee is $2. The college cafeteria will be open for those who wish to have lunch there. Reservations should be made in advance, if possible. Applications for the Music Workshop as well as luncheon reservations should be sent to the Registrar, San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, San Diego 10.

Maureen "Little Mo" Connolly, world's No. 1 woman tennis player, exchanges pleasantries with Vic Seixas, top U.S. netter, in Chicago where the National Clay Courts tennis tourney is progressing.—United Press Telephoto.

Mo, Seixas Advance To Clay Court Finals

San Diego Union-Chicago Tribune Dispatch

CHICAGO, July 18—Maureen Connolly, owner of a pleasant smile, pretty legs, and most of the major trophies in women's tennis, tomorrow afternoon goes after a couple net trophies she previously has been too busy to lock up. And she has less chance of missing them than the San Diego Padres have of meeting the New York Yankees in the World Series.

Within Maureen's reach is the National Clay Courts women's singles crown and a share of the women's doubles title in the same meet being contested on the courts at the suburban River Forest Tennis Club.

Maureen this afternoon qualified for the singles final with a 6-2, 6-4 conquest of Mexico's Mela Ramirez. Her final foe will be Althea Gibson, New York Negro ace, who ousted Anita Kanter of San Francisco, defending champion, 8-6, 6-4, 13-11, in a marathon semi-final that lasted almost three hours.

After defeating Miss Ramirez, Maureen changed her yellow hair ribbon for a blue one and teamed with Julia Sampson to beat Mela and Chicago's Dorothy Levine, 6-2, 6-4, in a women's doubles semi-final. Tomorrow the Connolly-Sampson team will oppose Thelma Long of Australia and Miss Kanter.

Tomorrow's men's singles final matches top-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia against Hamilton Richardson, National Intercollegiate king. Seixas came from behind to defeat erratic Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, 2-6, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2, 8-6, this afternoon after Richardson had ousted Chicago's Grant Golden, a surprise semi-finalist, 8-6, 6-3, 9-7.

Included among today's more than 3000—a record crowd attracted by the presence of Miss Connolly and Seixas—was Jack Harris, one time boss of the professional tennis promoters. Harris is planning a comeback as a tennis promoter and his objective is to sign Miss Connolly.

Harris previously promoted tours featuring Don Budge, Bobby Riggs, and Jack Kramer, and he has Pancho Gonzales lined up for an impending promotion if the card can be balanced.

At least Harris is prepared to make a professional tennis offer to Miss Connolly and will offer to do his best to attract Pauline Betz, former National champion, or Doris Hart, as a foe.

Following her finals match today, Miss Connolly will board an airplane for a quick trip home.

Arriving here Monday morning, she will take a brief rest before returning to New York.

Li'l Mo, Hart Launch U.S. Cup Defense

RYE, N.Y., July 31 (AP)—Tennis Queen Maureen Connolly and the veteran Doris Hart, playing in her eighth series, drew the top singles assignments today for the task of defending the Wightman Cup from the young British invaders.

It shouldn't be hard. The Americans are favored to sweep the seven-match competition, beginning with three tilts tomorrow and winding up with four Sunday at the swang Westchester Country Club.

Miss Connolly, at 18 holder of every major tennis crown in the world, will oppose Angela Mortimer, 21-year-old Torquay miss, in the first singles match at 2 p.m. (EST). This is the third Wightman assignment for the San Diego girl, who hasn't lost a decision.

HART FACES FLETCHER

Then slender Miss Hart from Coral Gables, Fla., who has won 15 of these International matches and lost only a doubles test since 1946, will face Helen Fletcher, a 21-year-old lefthander from Derbyshire.

Miss Connolly will team with Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., 1947 U.S. champion, in the day's closing encounter—a doubles match against Miss Mortimer and Ann Shilcock, a stout stroking miss from Sussex.

On Sunday the top singles assignments are reversed and a third singles is thrown in with another doubles match.

Here's Sunday's schedule:

Shirley Fry, Akron, Ohio, vs. Mrs. Jean Quertier Rinkel, Britain.

Miss Connolly vs. Miss Fletcher.

Miss Hart vs. Miss Mortimer.

Misses Hart and Fry vs. Mrs. Rinkel and Miss Fletcher.

RINKEL MEETS FRY

Col. Duncan Macaulay, non-playing captain of the British forces and secretary-manager of the famed Wimbledon tournament, sought to prevent a complete shutout when he named Mrs. Rinkel to play in the No. 3 singles spot.

Ordinarily Mrs. Rinkel, 26-year-old wife of a Dutch Davis Cup ace and the only experienced player on the squad, would be given one of the top singles berths. But she doesn't figure to beat either Miss Connolly or Miss Hart, while holding a good chance to take Miss Fry.

She defeated Miss Fry in 1951 for one of the two points the British had.

Bishop to Open School Health Meet at College

The Most Reverend Bishop of San Diego will open the Second Annual School Health Conference to be held at the San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, from Monday, August 31, through Friday, September 4. His Excellency will deliver the address at the opening session on Monday.

Participating in the five-day conference will be several local and visiting doctors, representatives of San Diego County Catholic schools, educators from area public schools and members of community service organizations.

Included in the subjects for discussion are hearing problems of children, visual impairment, causology in psychiatric disturbances and other matters concerning the mental and physical health of school children. All talks will be followed by discussion periods in which participants will have an opportunity to present questions.

The topics to be discussed on the opening day are the physically well child by Dr. William Doyle, La Jolla; communicable diseases of children, Dr. Leon Gardner, chief of the Division of Preventive Medical Services, San Diego Department of Public Health; trends in health education, Mrs. Zoe E.

Conn, coordinator of health, La Mesa-Spring Valley schools; and school personnel relationships, Mr. Robert O. Sprague, principal of Mar Vista High School, Palm City.

Other Speakers

Other sessions throughout the week will present such speakers as Mr. Darrell J. Smith, chairman of physical education for the San Diego City Schools; Mr. Edwin A. Watkins, R.S., senior sanitarian, San Diego Department of Public Health; Mr. Carleton M. Thompson, engineer for the San Diego Gas and Electric Co.; Dr. George Zukovich, eye specialist; Dr. Charles W. Rees of the Rees-Stealy Clinic; Mrs. Lorena Thorup, coordinator of Health Education Clinics, San Diego City Schools; Sister Mary Benedicta, OSB, principal of St. Rose of Lima School, Chula Vista; Dr. A. Vincent Gerty of Pasadena, vice president of the Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists; and Dr. Dominic De Santo, pathologist at Mercy Hospital.

Panel Discussion

On Tuesday afternoon, Mother Mary Helen, CSJ, principal of St. Brigid's Academy, will chair a panel on "Health Education in Relation to the Total School Curriculum." Participating in the discussion will be Sister Mary Bride, OSB, Sister Michaelleen, SSND, Sister Rose Duchesne, SSND, and Mrs. Fred Fallon who will represent the parents.

Registration for the conference will take place from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. before the opening Monday, August 31.

Two Postulants To Receive Habit

Two postulants for the Religious of the Sacred Heart will receive the habit of the congregation at ceremonies in the chapel of the San Diego College for Women this Saturday, August 22.

They are Sisters Mary and Carmela Parisi, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Parisi of Seattle, Wash.

The Most Reverend Bishop will perform the rites and offer Mass for the young postulants and their friends after the ceremonies.

Annual School Health Parley Opens Aug. 31

At least seven doctors will address the second annual School Health Conference at the San Diego College for Women, Alcala Park, Aug. 31 through Sept. 4, Mother M. A. Rossi, dean, said yesterday. Registration for the conference will be the morning of Aug. 31.

Speakers will include Dr. William Doyle, pediatrician, who will discuss "The Physically-well Child;" Dr. Leon Gardner, chief of the division of preventive medical services, San Diego department of Public Health, whose talk on communicable diseases of children will stress the use of gamma globulin in polio cases, and Dr. Anita Figueredo.

Dr. George Zukovich, eye specialist, will speak on "Visual Impairment, Its Prevention and Its Care," and Dr. Charles W. Rees' address on hearing problems of children will be supplemented by the showing of a film.

Speakers for the final day of the conference will include Dr. A. Vincent Gerty, of Pasadena, vice president of the Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists, who will present a paper on "Causology in Psychiatric Disturbances." Participating in the program with Dr. Gerty will be Miss Eulalie Giguette, a clinical psychologist, and Sister Aloyse, Ph.D., of Immaculate Heart College, Los Angeles. Miss Giguette, a medical social worker and for 11 years director of social service at the Pasadena Huntington Memorial Hospital Dispensary, will talk on the psychological testing of children. Sister Aloyse will discuss current school practices, militating on good mental health. Dr. Dominic De Santo, pathologist will be chairman of the program.

It produces unstable conditions which have led to the social disorders of our day."

Would you say, I inquired, that not only religion, science and philosophy are adversely affected by purely secular education, but also economic conditions?

"Defective ideas in education are intimately connected with our social disorders," Dr. McLaughlin promptly replied and continued:

"So these efforts to establish education on a sound basis, philosophically and otherwise, are the best hope I can see for the promotion of a healthy growth of this State which is just now in process of formation.

Much Promise

"To the visitor, California holds much promise, not only for itself and its citizens, but in view of modern developments and its extremely rapid increase in population, for the entire United States and the world. Its repercussions for good or ill are bound to be felt throughout America and, therefore, throughout the rest of a troubled world.

"For the world's future depends upon the United States. As America goes, so goes the world. Is its future to be charted by Russia or by America? We want to see an America with principles which Christian countries can accept. We want to see an America with the wisdom born of a sure grasp of these principles. And so everything depends upon its educational systems.

Vigor of Youth

"This State," he emphasized, "has the vigor of youth and if it pursues the ideas of education exemplified in the women's college at Alcala Park, it promises to be a very healthy, wholesome youth whose final stature it would be rash to predict but whose influence, inside and outside its own frontiers, is bound to be at once great and beneficial.

"Remember you have here a young diocese whose first Bishop is still alive," he smilingly noted. "And in him you evidently have an ecclesiastical leader whose firm grasp of the vital importance of education and whose keen vision are responsible for the University of San Diego. He has set in operation here the principles which eventually may spell greatness for the State, for America and for the world."

Pioneers' Spirit

Pursuing this idea ardently, Dr. McLaughlin returned to California's rapid growth "which astonishes even those who live with it." "The visitor," he said, "is deeply impressed with the courage and the foresight, the pioneer spirit of the ecclesiastical authorities here who, through the foundation of new parishes and the erection of schools at all levels, strive to keep abreast of the State's phenomenal development.

"Here something momentous is taking place. A noble effort is being made to establish the growth of a young State on the soundest of all bases, the basis of a complete education."

Famous Scholars

Asked about the Dublin Institute for Advanced Studies, Dr. McLaughlin explained that its professors are internationally famous scholars like Erwin Schrodinger, the German scientist considered by many only a step behind Einstein.

"I am happy to say our efforts at the institute and at Maynooth coincide with His Excellency's achievement at Alcala Park. We seek to restore the Catholic idea of education.

No Conflict

"At both institutions we try to counteract the false claim that science conflicts with religion. Here we have been given the lead by Pope Pius XII who, in an address to the Pontifical Academy of Science unequalled for its wealth of technical detail and wonderful presentation, showed how modern scientific discoveries are in complete harmony with the philosophical proofs for God's existence."

Dr. McLaughlin has authored a book entitled "Modern Science and God" which stresses the importance of the papal address and develops its philosophical and scientific aspects for the benefit of the student of science and the general reader.

Son of Donegal

Born by "the winding banks of Erne," this son of old Donegal had a final word to say about a university:

"It should be, like Alcala Park, a place of real education—true and complete. A university with science but without philosophy is not a true university; a university which makes no provision for theology is not worthy of the name."

Corrupted Meaning

The true meaning of academic freedom has been so corrupted that the "very name masks a diabolical tyranny" says Dr. Paul T. Schwartz of Xavier University, Cincinnati.

As generally interpreted in the academic world today, the philosophy professor argues, "academic freedom would mean dogmatic rejection, not only of God but of any truth claiming to be absolutely true, irrespective of circumstances and point of view.

False View

"As it turns out academic freedom is freedom to criticize the scholars who precede oneself, and to write books and learned articles which will make it a little more impossible for anyone to think that he can reach a necessary conclusion about anything.

"To sum it up, academic freedom, as the term is used contemporaneously, seems to mean freedom from truth, just as freedom of religion is used contemporaneously to mean freedom from religion . . ."

MISSION TOWER

"The women's college at Alcala Park represents Newman's idea of a university. You built wisely and well when, early in the life of this diocese, you erected the University of San Diego. For, paradoxically, you must begin at the highest levels with the highest ideals if your educational edifice is to be stable and equal to all the winds that blow, especially the hurricanes of our day.

"Here is one of the cases in which you must put your head in the clouds in order to keep your feet on the ground."

This is the story of education told the writer by Very Rev. Patrick J. McLaughlin, DSc, MRIA, vice president of famed Maynooth College, Ireland.

In San Diego for the summer, Dr. McLaughlin, who is dean of Maynooth's university department and professor of experimental physics there, had much to say about California, its people, its climate, its manners and customs, its social and economic standards, its systems of education and, inferentially, its promise for the future.

Tremendous Job

"The thing that impresses me most about Catholic education here is the courage of it," he said. "Despite great difficulty and even opposition, Catholics do a tremendous job courageously and successfully at every educational level."

Speaking with evident sincerity and feeling, the noted Irish educator developed his impressions of the new University of San Diego:

"The atmosphere in Alcala Park is itself an education. Even the architecture and the art connect education with its basic sources, religion and philosophy, in the best European tradition. For example, the subjects depicted in the tapestries and paintings, and even in the furniture recall the finest days of France and Italy whose artists and craftsmen were inspired by motives of religion and by the basic ideas of the good, the beautiful and the true.

Ideas at Work

"It is of special interest to the visitor to see these ideas at work in every department of the women's college," Dr. McLaughlin added, "in the artistically elegant chapel, in the lecture halls and in the departments of science and domestic economy."

A member of the Royal Irish Academy of Sciences and of the governing body of the Dublin Institute for Advanced Studies, the Irish scholar pointed out that these traditions of European culture have been fused with the scheme that preserves the history of California itself.

"I refer to the architecture of the institution, the Spanish Renaissance style of the grand old missions familiar to tourists of the State.

"Thus," he said, "does the women's college exemplify the true aim of education which recognizes the continuity of the modern and the ancient and respects the fact that the new must be inspired by the fine ideals of the old.

Not Sacrificed

"Here the past is not sacrificed for fads in education or for modern architectural monstrosities. Artistically, philosophically and educationally, you have here an idea that is most healthy and satisfying. Here you have done the right thing; here you have Newman's idea expressed not only in the curriculum but in the art and architecture. Here you have an achievement full of promise for the future of California. For any man will do his job better for being an educated man."

Reviewing various educational systems the Maynooth scientist said:

"After the plethora of experiments in education and the deaths of various civilizations, educators at last realize that the primary aim of education must be the development of character. They know now that a system which religion does not permeate cannot attain this end.

Recognized Abroad

"This certainly is recognized in Germany today and generally throughout Europe. Europeans have found that the schools in which there is no religious formation produce technicians, cogs in machines, men and women who may be competent as economic units but, more often than not, failures as men and women, as husbands and wives, as parents, ignorant of their own destiny as human beings, really unhappy in life. It is a significant fact that their unhappiness is contagious.

Science, Faith Not in Conflict Bishop Says

"A false religion may contradict science, or a false science may oppose religion, but true science and true religion are not in conflict because both stem from the same Source . . . They are the twin daughters of the one Heavenly Father. They move in parallel lines; between them is the zone of metaphysics friendly to both and partial to neither."

Thus did the Most Reverend Bishop summarize the relations between science and religion in an address on "The Excellence of Science" at the second annual School Health Conference now underway at the San Diego College for Women at Alcala Park.

Opening the week's workshop, His Excellency spoke to a group of prominent educators, medical scientists and health officials gathered at the college to participate in the sessions.

Rests On Certainty

"The excellence of science rests upon the certainty of its conclusions," the Bishop said, "for certainty alone can satisfy the mind of man . . . Religion affords the highest certainty, the wisdom and truthfulness of God Himself."

Developing the relationship, His Excellency stated that while science derives its excellence from the "importance of its object" and the "dignity of its subject," religion has for its subject "God . . . Who unfolds truths beyond the finite intellect" and for its object "the noblest of all pursuits—to lead man to the Beatific Vision, eternal happiness . . ."

Among the subjects treated at the conference are Health Education in Relation to the Total School Curriculum, Trends in Health Education, Visual Impairment, Hearing Problems in Children, and Communicable Diseases.

Nothing to Fear

"The Catholic Church has nothing to fear from the discoveries of science," the Bishop continued, "because she possesses all truth. She is still animated by the Paraclete, the Spirit of Truth. She lives and acts and speaks through Him . . . Even amid the storms of persecution and the noisy formulas of unproven theories, the Church remains the pillar and the ground of truth.

True Religion, Science Declared Not in Conflict

"Great scientists, benefactors of the human race, not only accept the truths she teaches but live them.

"Countless millions," His Excellency noted, "are untouched by such a faith and the most vigorous and vocal of them are violently hostile to religious faith and worship of any kind. To win them, something more than a guerilla warfare against ignorance and evil is required."

Participants

Among those present at the opening session were Mrs. Zoe E. Conn, coordinator of health for La Mesa-Spring Valley Schools; Mrs. Marion Bryant, public health educator, San Diego Department of Public Health; Robert O. Sprague, principal of Mar Vista High School; and Very Rev. George Rice, diocesan superintendent of schools.

"The pseudo-scientist says there is no God," the Bishop said. "Too many of his ilk in the schools today do not give our children a square deal; they rob them of their God-given rights and seriously endanger their destiny. They attack the home and the foundations of marriage. Even the Declaration of Independence is not safe at their hands. It is an outmoded document, something which belongs to the nursery phase of our national development.

Attack Foundations

"These so-called educators have the hardihood to tell us that 'there are no such things as inalienable rights,' that these 'are purely a figment of the imagination' and that to defend them 'before historians and political scientists would be treated today very much like an attempt to defend the belief in witchcraft. It would be regarded as emanating only from the intellectual underground.'"

"This prevailing professorial scorn of such fundamental truths as the existence of God and of man's natural rights which come from God and are embodied in our Declaration of Independence is an insult both to the logic of the scientist and the science of the logician.

"For the discoveries of modern science are in complete harmony with the philosophical proofs for God's existence. Nor can any biological formula dissipate the cold logic that, from the light of reason, the normal rational creature must trace, as from effect to cause, the existence of an Infinite Creator and Father of us all.

"Let Dr. Edmund W. Sinnott, professor of Botany at Yale speak: 'Man needs the tremendous revelations which science will continue to bring but he is a creature of the spirit, too, and needs high faith by which to live.'

"The professors defy history when they belittle the Declaration of Independence for history shows how wise was Montesquieu when he said that a nation's decadence begins when it loses sight of the principles on which it is founded.

"Were we to heed the vagaries of the pseudo-scientist and the sophisms of the self-appointed professors of the Great Enlightenment, we would degrade man to the level of the animal. Were we to subscribe to the theories of the materialistic philosophers, we should leave him to sink or swim in the endless changes of oxygen, hydrogen, iron, lime, phosphorus, salt and sugar.

A Warning

"Rather do we warn with George Washington: 'Beware of the man who attempts to inculcate morality without religion.'

"The Catholic Church teaches that there is an essential moral code imposed by the Creator and manifested in the very nature of things. And the true scientist finds that its standards are to be found in nature as it comes from the Hand of God as every maker's will is found in the nature of the thing made. True science, therefore, and true religion, have no quarrel. Rather is there confirmation of one by the other, support of one in the other, vindication of one through the other."

The Bishop paid tribute to all present, notably the doctors and directors of education who found time, in their busy lives, to promote the purposes and success of the conferences at Alcalá Park. He thanked Father Rice, Mother Rossi and their committee for their organizational work and their arrangement of an impressive schedule.

His Excellency called the workshop "a striking advance in friendly relations between Catholic and non-Catholic educators who are benefactors of the human race—particularly dedicated to its youth—and concluded: "May the relationship flower into a wider knowledge of the needs of human life and of the particular helps to progress; may it develop a deeper love of Him Who we pray hovers over these sessions."

NAVY, MARINE SETSabin Family's Return To Be Gradual Event

By EUGENIE SEDLOCK

Gradually, the family of Rear Adm. Lorenzo S. Sabin Jr. is returning to San Diego. The admiral has been ordered detached from the joint staff of the commander in chief, Far East, to command an amphibious group with the Pacific Fleet. His headquarters will be at the Naval Amphibious Base, Coronado. Adm. Sabin's arrival date is not yet known but is expected to be in late October.

Mrs. Sabin is now en route from Tokyo, where the family has lived since leaving Coronado in December. She will be here about Oct. 18 to spend a week with their elder daughter, Mrs. George W. Myer, and her husband, Lt. (jg) Myer and their daughter, Karen, 2.

The Myers moved recently to Abriendo Heights, near Miramar Naval Air Station, the officer's duty scene.

In the van of the family procession is daughter Paula Sabin, who arrived Tuesday to enroll at San Diego College For Women. It's a return for Paula, who was able to spend only part of her freshman year at the college before going to Tokyo. She will be a boarding student.

Before the Myers moved from Coronado they were hosts to another of Mrs. Myer's sisters, Joan, who arrived with her bridegroom, Army Capt. David Peters. The couple, on their wedding trip following their marriage in Japan, was en route to Ft. Benning, Ga.

The Sabins plan to re-settle in Coronado, where they formerly had a house on I Ave. Before then, however, Mrs. Sabin will go to Washington with a side trip scheduled to Ft. Benning to see the newlyweds. She also hopes to stop in Albuquerque to visit a sister

Dance Welcomes Students To College for Women

College for Women Doubles Enrollment

The San Diego College for Women, with 175 students enrolled, doubled its enrollment for this year as the second full term started, the registrar's office announced today.

Two students have come from Colombia, South America—Rosa Maria Molina and Alicia Calad. Many others have come from distant states.

New classes offered this year include labor economics, organic chemistry, counterpoint in music, aesthetics and history of architecture.

A new faculty member this year is Dr. Joseph K. Doliva, who holds a master's degree in architectural engineering from the University of Warsaw, Poland.

Classes in abnormal psychology and interpersonal relationships for graduate nurses also are offered for advanced students in the adult education program.

The registrar's office said that a contemplated boys' high school probably will start in September, 1954.

Nearly 200 Register at Alcala Park

Although registration has not yet been completed, it is expected that nearly 200 students will attend the San Diego College for Women at Alcala Park this year, according to Rev. Mother Rossi, RSCJ, an official of the school. This represents nearly a 100 percent increase over last year's figure.

New Classes

Several new classes have been added to the curriculum of the college which is conducted by the Religious of the Sacred Heart.

A course in Counterpoint will be given for the first time in the music department.

Mr. David Nyvall, Jr., will instruct a Saturday class in Aesthetics showing the interrelationship of all the arts and cultures. Mr. Nyvall is former chairman of the department of music education at DePaul University.

History of Architecture

A course on the History of Architecture has been opened by Mr. Joseph K. Doliva, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Warsaw, Poland.

Other new classes include one in Labor Economics and another in Organic Chemistry for second year students in the medical technology program.

New courses added to the Adult Education Program include Abnormal Psychology and Interpersonal Relationships for Graduate Nurses.

Expect 500 At Institute For Teachers

Five hundred priests, religious and lay teachers are expected to attend the tenth annual Diocesan Teachers' Institute to be held Friday and Saturday, September 25 and 26, at the San Diego College for Women at Alcala Park.

The two-day meeting will be opened officially with Mass in the college chapel at 9:45 a.m. on Friday.

Theme of this year's gathering is "Teachers Understanding Children and Youth."

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis C. Ott, diocesan director of Catholic Youth Organizations, will deliver the keynote address.

Psychiatrist to Speak

A. Vincent Gerty, MD, vice president of the American Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists, will address the Friday afternoon session. On Saturday morning he will conduct a special meeting for secondary school teachers.

Map Reading

Mr. Felix Locher, world famous authority on geography and maps, will lecture on global geography problems and common misconceptions in the reading of maps. A feature of his lecture will be the playing of the map quiz game by all participants.

Luncheon will be served each day in the college cafeteria.

A special exhibit displaying textbooks, teaching aids and audiovisual materials will be open for inspection both days.

Famous Geographer to Show New World Map at Teachers' Institute

Felix Locher, world-renowned geographer, will demonstrate his newly charted world map to the 500 priests, religious and lay teachers who will attend the tenth annual Diocesan Teachers' Institute at the San Diego College for Women this week.

The institute, which opens Friday, September 25, will have as its theme "Teachers Understanding Children and Youth." Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis C. Ott, diocesan director of Catholic Youth Organizations, is to give the keynote address.

The revolutionary new map developed by the Swiss-born geographer is a transposition of the curved line principle of the globe to a flat surface.

Mr. Locher has spent 20 years perfecting the chart which shows at a glance how far it is in air miles from one given point on the globe to any other.

Psychiatrist Official

The vice president of the American Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists, A. Vincent Gerty, MD, will also address the teachers and conduct a special meeting for secondary school teachers.

An exhibit featuring the latest advances in textbooks, teaching aids and audio-visual materials is planned.

The meeting, which ends Saturday, will be opened with Mass in the college chapel at 9:45 a.m. on Friday.

Very Rev. George Rice, San Diego diocesan superintendent of schools, has charge of arrangements for the institute.

Religious Emphasis Week Highlights Told

Addresses by priest-educators, a tour of San Diego College for Women and an afternoon Mass at Blessed Sacrament church will highlight Religious Emphasis Week at San Diego State College, Rev. William A. Kraft, Newman Club chaplain, has announced. The annual observance opens November 16 and closes November 20.

Religious Emphasis Week is an attempt to bring before the students' minds the essential part religion plays in their lives, Father Kraft said. During the week special programs are sponsored by groups of all faiths on the campus in order to acquaint interested students in the various beliefs.

President Is Chairman

Dr. Malcomb Love, college president, is honorary chairman. Miss Catherine Egan of the Newman Club is general chairman of this year's event.

Principal speaker representing the Newman Club will be Rev.

John Desmond, MA, who will conduct a seminar entitled "Catholicism—A Dogmatic Religion." Rev. Wilfred Diamond will speak before the ROTC unit station at the college on "The Moral Qualities of Leadership."

Church music, the Catholic principles of psychology and Catholic literature will be discussed by Rev. J. Vincent Sullivan, MA. Rev. Laurence Gatt, STD, will explain the history and liturgy of Eastern churches; Father Kraft, the meaning of life.

The history department will hear a lecture by Rev. Charles Spellman, MA. Revs. Thomas Murray, OSA, and John Griswold, OSA will speak before various fraternities and sororities of the college.

A former student at State, Rev. John Blethen, OSA, will give an illustrated address on Mexico at a November 18 dinner planned by the Newman Club in Scripps Cottage on campus. Later that evening, students in the college music department will present a concert of Gregorian and church music.

To Visit Alcala Park

Reverend Mother Rosalie Hill, RSCJ, president of the San Diego College for Women, has invited all State College students to visit the Alcala Park school on November 20. All interested students will be conducted on a tour of the new school's facilities.

Special permission has been granted for an afternoon Mass on November 20 to close the week's program. Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis C. Ott, pastor of Blessed Sacrament church and diocesan director of youth activities, will be celebrant. The Mass will begin at 5 p.m. in Blessed Sacrament. All students of the college are invited.

English Theme

More than 100 students of the college took part in the presentation which had as its theme "Christmas in Merry Old England."

Among the carols rendered were "Good King Wenceslaus", "The Holly and the Ivy", "The Coventry Carol" and "Christmas Greetings to the Bishop". A herald announced in verse each number by the 40-voice chorus.

Six "living Christmas card" scenes were staged in tableaux to illustrate the songs and Old English poems given by the verse choir.

The strains of Old English carols will set the mood for the second annual Christmas Pageant to be staged by the San Diego College for Women.

This year's performance will be given December 13 at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of the Alcala Park school.

Last year's pageant portrayed the various ways of celebrating Christmas in different lands. This year song and word as well as gay and colorful scenes will present a typical December 25 in Merry Old England.

Among the traditional carols to be sung under the direction of Professor David Nyvall, Jr., are "Good King Wenceslaus," "The Holly and the Ivy," and "The Coventry Carol." The choristers will be accompanied by a string quartet.

Another group is preparing verse-choir renditions of Middle English poetry taken from ancient manuscripts. "Welcome Yule," from the Sloane Manuscript of the early fifteenth century, has its place among them. A lullaby from the Bodelian Manuscript of about 1460 will also be on the program.

Guest of honor at the performance will be the Most Reverend Bishop of San Diego. Relatives and friends of the students are invited.

COLLEGE S.D. WILL GIVE UNION PAGEANT Dec. 1953

San Diego College for Women will present its second annual Christmas pageant Dec. 13 at 3 p.m. in College Theater. The pageant will feature gay, colorful scenes typical of the yule season in "Merry Old England." Carolers will sing.

Another pageant feature will be verse-choir renditions of Middle English poetry, taken from ancient manuscripts. The performance will be given for relatives and friends of students. Bishop Charles F. Buddy will be guest of honor.

Men and the law school, it is open to students of all religious faiths. General tuition is $300 a semester.

College for Men

Bachelor degrees are offered in arts and business administration. Most students are taking classes in business fields or in prelaw.

The law school, organized on a graduate level, is said to be the only one south of Los Angeles. Classes are available day and evenings.

A school of philosophy and theology will open in the spring. The college is in temporary quarters at Alcala Park. New buildings are being constructed. The enrollment is 260. Tuition is $10 a unit in the college and $20 a unit in the law school.

San Diego University

Organized under the San Diego Roman Catholic Diocese, San Diego University is a private institution divided into semi-autonomous colleges for men and women. Both offer liberal arts majors. A third arm of the university is a coeducational law school, established under the College for Men.

College for Women

Graduates may earn a bachelor of arts degree or a bachelor of science degree in nursing. The nurses' training program is in conjunction with Mercy Hospital.

Most students major in English, education and the social studies. One third of the 300 students are enrolled in teacher training.

The emphasis is on providing a liberal arts education before a student starts work in a specialized area.

College Will Give Pageant

San Diego College for Women will stage its second annual Christmas pageant at 3 p.m. Sunday and more than 100 students will appear in it.

Although the college auditorium will seat only 1,000, the pageant this year has assumed proportions which the school believes will make it one of this region's top holiday events.

BY INVITATION

Admission is by invitation, 1,000 invitations having been mailed during the weekend.

The pageant will have an Old English theme and producing it has required the services for virtually every group in the college. The creative writing class has produced a prologue. The Sewing Club made the costumes and the Art Department used its knowledge of paper sculpture to turn out antique musical instruments.

DAZZLING REVIEWS

The pageant itself will be carried out by the Drama and Music Departments.

Last year's pageant received such dazzling reviews that the college felt it would be difficult 1953. It finally came from the sophomores' survey of Old and to find a comparable idea for Middle English literature.

College Girls Preparing For Annual Yule Pageant

Last minute rehearsals for the Christmas Pageant to be given December 13 are keeping the girls at San Diego College for Women busy as the holiday season approaches.

Relatives and friends will gather in the college auditorium this Sunday for the pageant which will portray a typical December 25 in Merry Old England. The performance begins at 3 p.m.

Traditional Carols

Among the traditional carols to be sung are "Good King Wenceslaus," "The Holly and the Ivy" and "The Coventry Carol." A string quartet will accompany the choristers.

The college verse-choir will render excerpts from Middle English poetry including "Welcome Yule" from the Sloane Manuscript and a lullaby from the Bodleian Manuscript.

Prof. Nyvall to Direct

Music for the occasion will be under the direction of Professor David Nyvall, Jr. The Most Reverend Bishop will be guest of honor.

The round of holiday activities was opened at the Alcala Park school on December 5 when the juniors and seniors entertained lower classmen and their escorts at a Christmas ball. Lighted Christmas trees, silver stars and colorful dance tallies carried out a blue and silver theme.

Sponsors

Music for the evening was furnished by Wally Walburn. Sponsors for the event were Dr. and Mrs. Francis Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coliva, Mr. and Mrs. John Wright, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Towne, all of San Diego, and Mr. and Mrs. John La Pay and Dr. and Mrs. John Wells of La Jolla.

Early next month the $150,000 Renaissance architecture and Administration Building, part of the 10 million dollar University reinforced concrete construction. of San Diego on the 140-acre site overlooking Mission Valley and Mission Bay, will be ready for occupancy.

The three-story structure will include residential quarters of the Most Rev. Charles Francis Buddy, Catholic bishop of San Diego, and the diocesan offices.

The Administration Building stands next to the big College for Women, which is now in full operation. The High School for Boys, also part of the master plan under development since 1948, is practically ready for occupancy.

Dedication of the College for Women and other completed buildings is scheduled to take place soon, the diocese announced.

The university, when completed in Alcala Park, will also include a college for men, the seminary of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, St. Francis Junior Seminary, Sacred Heart Convent, Rockne Institute of Technical Arts and several other projects.

All buildings will be of Spanish

Ground was broken on the site in May 1948. Final completion of the university is not expected for several years.

Bishop to Dedicate Chapel at College

The beautiful chapel of the San Diego College for Women will be dedicated by the Most Reverend Bishop in solemn ceremonies scheduled for Tuesday, February 2, the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin.

No formal invitations have been issued for the event which begins at 10 a.m. However, all friends of the college are welcome, an official of the Alcala Park school stated.

His Excellency will be celebrant of the Solemn Mass of Dedication and deliver the sermon.

Assisting him will be Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis Dillon, rector of St. Joseph's Cathedral, as assistant priest; Very Rev. James T. Booth, deacon; Rev. Victor P. Salandini, subdeacon; Revs. Donald R. Kulleck, Vincent Bartuska and John Desmond, masters of ceremonies.

Deacons of Honor

Deacons of honor to the Bishop will be Rev. William A. Bergin, pastor of St. Charles Borromeo, and Rev. James R. Anderson, assistant pastor of Immaculate Conception.

Students from Immaculate Heart Seminary, El Cajon, will act as minor ministers of the Mass.

The combined choirs of Immaculate Heart and St. Francis Seminaries will chant the music of the Mass under the direction of Very Rev. J. Vincent Sullivan, president of St. Francis.

The student body of the college, in academic cap and gown, will take part in the procession and assist at the dedication.

Consecration of Altar

The magnificent High Altar in the chapel of the San Diego College for Women will be consecrated in ceremonies scheduled to begin Sunday evening, January 31, with veneration of the chapel relics.

On Monday, February 1, at 9 a.m., the Most Reverend Bishop, assisted by local clergy, will perform the actual ceremony of consecration. A Pontifical Low Mass will follow.

Italian Marble

Made of Italian marble, the altar is surmounted by a reredos in Mexican cedar carved and ornamented with gold leaf in Mexico. Centerpiece of the reredos shows the crucifixion scene in statues carved in Italy. Two groups, one to the right and the other to the left of the centerpiece, consist of figures from the Old Testament. One represents Melchisedech blessing Abraham, the other Moses and the Israelites gathering the manna.

Women's College Cornerstone Laid

Another important milestone in the brief history of the San Diego College for Women came January 6 when the Most Reverend Bishop officiated at the laying of the cornerstone at the Alcala Park school, first unit of the University of San Diego.

The commemorative marble plaque is carved with the dates of the foundation of the college and the crest of the Religious of the Sacred Heart who conduct the school.

Box Inserted

The ceremony took place following Mass which was offered in the college chapel. Before sealing the cornerstone, the Bishop, assisted by Rev. Father Francis, OSF, inserted into the opening a small copper box containing the names of all the founders of the college, including the first students and teachers.

Present for the event were members of the faculty, students and Mr. Frank Hope, AIA, who designed the building.

The woman's college was first opened in February, 1952.

COLLEGE OF WOMEN TO GIVE CHRISTMAS PAGEANT

By CONSTANCE HERRESHOFF

More than 100 students will take part in the second annual Christmas Pageant of the San Diego College for Women to be staged this afternoon at 3 in the college's beautiful theater in Alcala Park. Admission is necessarily by invitation, since the demand for the theater's 1000 seats would otherwise exceed the supply.

This season the pageant will have an old English theme. Traditional carols will be sung by a chorus of 40 voices directed by David Nyvall Jr. and accompanied by a string quartet composed of Leonora Bascom and Genevieve Prill, violins; Eva Schafer, viola, and Haroldine Giles, cello.

There will be six "Christmas Card" scenes with tableaux on stage illustrating the songs and the old English Christmas poems spoken by the verse choir. Among the early English poems will be "Welcome Yule," found in a Sloane manuscript of the 15th century; "A Stable," by Robert Southwell, Jesuit Martyr poet of the 16th century; and "I Sing of a Maiden" by an anonymous poet of the 14th century.

Most Reverend Charles F. Buddy, Bishop of San Diego, will respond to greetings at the close of the program.

Among the students appearing this afternoon in the second annual Christmas Pageant of the San Diego College for Women will be Dale Tallman as the first Angel, Rosa Maria Molina as the Virgin, and Joan Wigchert as the second Angel in a Nativity tableau. This invitational pageant is set for 3 in college theater.

College Opens New Theater With Pageant

By CONSTANCE HERRESHOFF

The beautiful theater of the San Diego College for Women was an ideal setting for the Christmas Pageant presented yesterday afternoon by students for guests of the college.

The tableaux seen on stage, as Christmas music was sung by the choir, must have been dreamed up by faculty artists with imagination and a special feeling for beauty in color and design.

BISHOP GUEST

Guests of honor at this pageant were Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, D.D, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego, and other dignitaries of the church.

At the close of the program, Bishop Buddy praised the singing of the choir directed by David Nyvall, and spoke of the pageant as "a fine foreshadowing of coming events at the new college. The Religious of the Sacred Heart are teaching the true meaning of Christmas in this pageant," Bishop Buddy said.

THEATER OPENED

Yesterday's pageant inaugurated the college's handsome and perfectly equipped theater. It seems a good omen that this first performance was such an artistic success. This theater, seating about 1000, was filled to capacity yesterday.

Choral music, sung with a good feeling for tone quality and nuance, included traditional songs from many nations. Many of these carols were unfamiliar in this country. One of the most appealing songs was "No Room," an old, sad song from Spain. Piano accompaniments were well played by Nyvall.

College Issues Bulletin

A Bulletin of Information has just been published by the San Diego College for Women at Alcala Park. It provides readers with valuable information about courses of study, requirements for enrollment, general and particular aims of the college, entrance examinations for scholarships and fees. It also lists the officers of administration, the names and qualifications of the various professors and instructors.
