Academic Cooperation

Joint Courses Are Planned by USD Colleges

Plans for closer academic cooperation between faculty and students at the University of San Diego's two colleges were announced here by Bishop Francis J. Furey of San Diego, chancellor of the university.

Mother Nancy Morris, president of the San Diego College for Women, and Father John P. Cadden, president of the College for Men, signed the agreement which put into effect plans for reciprocal courses.

Bishop Furey said each school will continue to administer its own programs, admit, educate, counsel and graduate its own students.

More Fruitful Cooperation Made Possible

Mother Morris explained that the new plan is expected to provide the opportunity for a wider and more fruitful cooperation between the two colleges.

Father Cadden said that the aim of both administrators and faculty at the two colleges is to retain the special function and character of each college, while sharing facilities for the improvement of both.

"We want to see how we can better coordinate our efforts on behalf of the young men and women whom we serve," the presidents said.

Program Involves 120 Courses

The initial stage of the co-instructional program will involve 120 courses, known as "reciprocal courses" which will be open to students of both colleges. This is less than half the total number of courses now offered by both colleges, they said.

When, for example, the new program is launched in September, all courses in music, art, drama and French will be given at the College for Women. Courses in business administration, accounting, psychology, economics, and mathematics will be open to both men and women at the College for Men.

Now Maintain Separate Facilities

The colleges now maintain separate facilities, including separate libraries and laboratories for men and women students. Bishop Furey said the new system will be more economical.

He said the old system required "duplication of faculty that was both unnecessary and uneconomical."

Father Cadden said the new system also would allow the university to hire teachers for full-time teaching loads. Previously, each college hired its own teachers and sometimes could not provide full-time work within its own system.

He also said that industry today is seeking students with a broader base in education and the new system would provide this. Previously, some men students were allowed to take music courses in the College for Women but were not given credits for their work.

USD Sets Coed Plans

Mother Morris endorsed the principle of maintaining separate college identities and commented, "I believe in women's colleges for women's education because women withdraw when they are on equal ground with men and they meet with unfair competition."

Ineligible for the reciprocal courses will be freshmen and sophomores, unless they receive special approval from their college, students on academic probation and seminarians in the College for Men.

The agreement dates from April 7, 1967 to June 10, 1969. It "shall be extended from academic year to academic year" subject to the approval of officials.

The women's college has an enrollment of 680 students, and the men's college has 497 students. The agreement will not affect the university's School of Law, which is open to both men and women.

Two Music Events Set

Rounding out the musical season on the Alcala Park campus, the San Diego College for Women will feature two days of opera performances May 12 and 14, according to Ilana Mysior, professor of music.

James Nelson will be the featured guest in the May 12, 11:30 a.m. performance for the student body. Scenes and arias from "The Magic Flute" by Mazart and "Carmen" by Bizet will make up the program. Singing with Nelson in the "Magic Flute" will be Synthia Smith and Nelda Nelson. The chorus for "Carmen" will include Madelaine Kaiser, Jean Karlan, Nita Pacwa, Barbara Anderson and Anita Giesing.

A second performance will be given the same evening at 7 p.m. at the Keaney Mesa Convalescent Home. Scenes and arias from "Hansel and Gretel" and "Figaro" will be performed. Singing will be Jean Karlan, Madelaine Kaiser and Nelda Nelson.

As a final event, the women's college will present an "Evening of Music," at 8 p.m. May 14 in the college theater. The first number will be Mozart's "Piano Concerto in E-Flat Major," played by pianists Ilana Mysior and Jeffner Allen. Frances Karr, flutist, will present G. P. Telemann's "Suite for Flute and Strings." Nelda Nelson, soprano, will sing "Ballatella" from "I. Pagliacci."

Completing the evening program will be a performance of Boccherini's "Symphony in F" by the University of San Diego Chamber Orchestra.

2 Lectures Scheduled By Professor

Rev. Paul Henry, SJ, professor of philosophy at the University of California at San Diego, will lecture on the writings of Teilhard de Chardin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 18, in More Hall on the University of San Diego's Alcala Park campus.

The famous theologian also will lecture on "Trinitarian Theology in Catechesis" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 25, in Rosary High School Auditorium, 4106 42nd Street.

Both lectures are open to Confraternity of Christian Doctrine personnel and other interested persons. CCD personnel are asked to bring their new Testaments to the Rosary High School lecture.

Paul Henry was born in Louvain, Belgium in 1906, did his philosophical and theological studies in Louvain and received his "Docteur es Lettres" from the Sorbonne in 1936. He has received honorary degrees from the University of Santiago, Chile, and the National University of Ireland.

JOANNE SHEEHAN

Rosary High Senior Wins Scholarship

Miss JoAnne Sheehan, senior at Rosary High School, is the recipient of a $1,000-a-year, renewable scholarship given by the University of San Francisco for high scholastic achievement as well as participation in school and community activities.

Miss Sheehan, 17, daughter of Mrs. Mary Sheehan of 5341 Lea Street, has been a member of the California Scholarship Federation for six semesters, and its president for two; a member of the Spanish Club for three years, and its vice president for one; helper with the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine program at Holy Spirit parish, and a Candy Striper at Mercy Hospital for two years.

Upon graduating from Holy Spirit Grade School, she received a $300 scholarship to Rosary High School. JoAnne is enrolled in the USF School of Nursing where she will work toward a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing.

Development Center Planned at College

The University of San Diego College for Men has announced plans for an Educational Development Center as the latest in a series of improvements and continual expansion.

The center will be headed by Professors Lawrence Conrad and William E. Schurr. Conrad received his B.A. and M.A. in English from the University of Michigan. Schurr received his B.A. from Jordan Technical School, Philadelphia.

The purpose of the Educational Development Center will be to enrich the student's academic experience and to increase his efficiency in dealing with the normal demands of an academic community. Special assistance will be available to students who are undecided as to a major or contemplating a change in major. The program will be operated in close connection with the college's psychology department, headed by Dr. Gerald Sperrazzo.

The center will include four programs that are designed to fulfill a specific need of the student.

The Reading Efficiency Laboratory is designed to increase reading speed and comprehension so that students may get the maximum results from their reading activity. The laboratory course is intended to double or triple the student's reading rate.

The Professional Exploration Program is designed to assist the student in making decisions regarding his vocational choice. Through the use of an extensive battery of instruments, the student will be able to assess his academic assets, his dominant interest patterns, and potential for success in a particular profession.

A Learning Laboratory will also be part of the center. The laboratory will be equipped to permit students to study subject areas which they wish to review or study for increased knowledge. The laboratory will be entirely self-instructional so that the student may select his own subject and proceed in the program at his own rate.

The center also will include an Efficient Study Program that is designed to instruct the student in the most effective ways to meet the academic challenge of college. The staff

Rites Tomorrow For Mother Parks

A Requiem Mass for Mother Catherine Parks, 60, first president of the San Diego College for Women here, will be at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow in the chapel of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Menlo Park.

Mother Parks, who died Sunday at the convent after a long illness, headed the San Diego college from the time it was founded in 1952 until 1956, when she became president of the San Francisco College for Women. She resigned there in January, 1966, because of illness.

Before assuming the college presidency here, Mother Parks was supervisor of studies in the Western Region, Society of the Sacred Heart, for 15 years. Born at Omaha, Neb., she held a doctor of education degree from the University of California, Berkeley.

Mother Parks was instrumental in beginning such student activities as the Girls Sodality, Social and Cultural Events Committee, Faculty Lecture Series and the Students Welfare Committee at the College for Women, part of the University of San Diego.

A Requiem Mass for Mother Parks was said yesterday at the college chapel here. Interment will be in the cemetery at the Menlo Park convent, where Mother Parks lived during her illness.

Auxiliary Bishop Named

Pope Picks Father Quinn To Assist Furey

By BEVERLY BEYETTE

The Very Rev. John R. Quinn, 38, rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary, Alcala Park, yesterday was named a bishop by Pope Paul VI and appointed auxiliary bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego.

He will serve as right-hand man to the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, bishop of San Diego.

Bishop-elect Quinn is the first "native son" to be named a bishop of the diocese (he was born in Riverside, which is in the San Diego diocese) and, according to Bishop Furey, is one of the youngest, possibly the youngest, bishop in the United States.

The announcement was made by the Pope yesterday morning in Rome — and by Bishop Furey at breakfast in the dining room of Immaculate Heart Seminary, where young seminarians responded with a 10-minute ovation for Father Quinn.

Bishop Furey Makes Presentation

Bishop Furey then presented to the bishop-elect the small fuschia skullcap worn by bishops (the zucchetto) and a gold, amethyst and pearl cross that had belonged to the Most Rev. Charles F. Buddy, former diocesan bishop, who died in 1966.

The bishop-elect will be the second auxiliary bishop to serve the San Diego Diocese, which takes in San Diego, Riverside, San Bernardino and Imperial Counties and serves 400,000 communicants. There are 330 priests in the diocese.

The Most Rev. Richard H. Ackerman, now bishop of Covington, Ky., served here as auxiliary bishop to Bishop Buddy from 1956 to 1960. There has been no auxiliary bishop since.

Bishop Furey said appointment of auxiliary bishops is based largely on the size of the diocese and the number of Catholic institutions within the diocese. The San Diego diocese is the second largest in California, second to that of Sacramento.

No date has been set for Bishop-elect Quinn's consecration. Bishop Furey said it will take place in St. Joseph's Cathedral and that the chief consecrator will be Archbishop Luigi Raimondi, apostolic delegate to the United States.

Other California Bishops Named

Noting that the Pope yesterday also named The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Mark Joseph Hurley as auxiliary to San Francisco Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken, Bishop Furey added, "We're hoping he will be consecrated before Bishop Hurley."

In addition to naming the two auxiliary bishops for California dioceses, the Pope also accepted the resignation of the Most Rev. Aloysius Joseph Willinger, 81, as bishop of Monterey and Fresno and split that diocese.

With the split, the Most Rev. Timothy Manning, now an auxiliary bishop in Los Angeles, was made bishop of the Fresno diocese and the Most Rev. Harry Anselm Clinch, now an auxiliary to Bishop Willinger, was made bishop of Monterey.

As auxiliary bishop, Bishop Furey explained, Bishop-elect Quinn's duties will include presiding at confirmations and graduations.

Bishop Furey made him a vicar general, which gives him authority to grant most of the permissions granted by the bishop.

He will remain indefinitely in his present post as rector of

S.D. Auxiliary Bishop Named

Immaculate Heart Seminary. As auxiliary bishop, he will also have the title, "Titular Bishop of Thisiduo".

Bishop Furey, obviously pleased with Father Quinn's selection, hailed it as in keeping with the trend in the church to have as leaders "young people hep to what's going on — with it."

He added that the young bishop-elect "represents the modern trend. He's not a dyed-in-the-wool traditionalist. I'm not a dyed-in-the-wool traditionalist, either."

And it was with notable pride that Bishop Furey pointed out that the bishop-elect will be the first alumnus of a local seminary, St. Francis College and Immaculate Heart Seminary of El Cajon, to be named a bishop of the San Diego diocese.

Bishop-elect Quinn said he rejects the idea of labeling of Catholics by their brands of Catholicism, but advocates "bringing the church up to date in keeping with the times."

He said, "I don't consider myself avant garde — and I wouldn't like to consider myself behind garde." He sees his appointment as a reflection of the trend in the church to "make way for younger men, men more equal to the demands."

Bishop-elect Quinn said he "wholeheartedly and enthusiastically supports" the policies set down at the Ecumenical Council. These policies included streamlining of worship services, decentralization of church power and a new spirit of cooperation with other religions.

On the currently controversial question of lifting of celibacy bans for priests, Bishop-elect Quinn said, "I feel the Pope has settled the question by his recent encyclical. I wholeheartedly agree."

Most Time In Education

Like his bishop, Father Quinn has spent much of his time as an educator since he was ordained in Rome in 1953. He was professor of dogmatic theology at Immaculate Heart Seminary from 1955 to 1962, when he was named president of St. Francis College Seminary. He was named rector of Immaculate Heart Seminary in 1964.

(Bishop Furey was president of Immaculata College of Philadelphia from 1936 to 1946 and later became rector of his alma mater, St. Charles Borromeo Seminary of Philadelphia).

Father Quinn completed his philosophical and theological studies at the North American College and Gregorian University in Rome. His widowed mother, Mrs. Ralph J. Quinn, lives in La Mesa.

Bishop Furey would not speculate on whether Father Quinn is being groomed as a future Bishop of San Diego. "Only the Pope can say," he said, but he added that there is a trend to place a bishop with several years' experience in the top spot of a diocese. (Bishop Furey was auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia before coming here).

Father Quinn had kept his appointment a well-guarded secret for two weeks. He received the news in a letter from the apostolic delegate.

One of the bishop-elect's seminarians said Father Quinn told the seminarians he had been so nervous since he "couldn't eat, sleep or even pray."

Father Quinn, asked if this were true, grinned and said, "Don't quote me."

A Big Sense Of Humor

The bishop-elect is a small, slight man with brush-cut salt-and-pepper hair, brown eyes and a big sense of humor.

One of the seminarians summed him up this way: "He's not very big, but, when he walks up to you, you think he's 10 feet tall."

As Bishop Furey and his new auxiliary met the press yesterday in the lobby of the seminary at Alcala Park, a group of young seminarians clustered around to wish Father Quinn well.

One, a deacon named Robert Buchanan, seemed to sum up their feelings about Father Quinn, calling him "the greatest — forward looking, a very holy man, conscientious and understanding. He goes to the people. He isn't sitting in an office by himself."

Another said Father Quinn has "the closest thing to universal appeal that can be expected of a human being."

Then a third-year theology student named Don Kimball spoke up.

He wanted to tell about the seminary's baseball game recently against the team from St. John's seminary in Los Angeles.

"Would you believe it? Father Quinn got a triple! Of course, we had to help him around the bases ..."

HELD-JOHANSING VOWS REPEATED

On a trip to Hawaii are Mrs. William Hooper Held (Sarah Jane Johansing) and bridegroom, married in Mt. Carmel Catholic Church in Montecito. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bernard Johansing of Pasadena. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Poage Held of San Rafael. Reception was held at the Biltmore Hotel in Santa Barbara. The couple will live in San Francisco. The bride, whose maid of honor was her sister, Miss Elizabeth Johansing, was a Las Madrinias debutante and is a graduate of Mayfield and San Diego College for Women. Area Colleges Expected To Enroll 60,000 will begin in public safety administration, environmental health and European studies.

The University of San Diego's three academic components will have opened by the end of the week. They are expected to have 1,450 students, slightly more than last year.

For the first time, students of the College for Men, operated by the San Diego Catholic Diocese, and students of the College for Women will enroll in co-educational classes.

The change results from a dropping of restrictions against instruction of men by nuns of the Religious Order of the Sacred Heart, which has conducted women's college classes in Alcala Park since 1952.

A pilot program at the College for Women will enable students to gain on-the-spot insights into workings of the San Diego community, plus academic credit for research into community functions.

Students can take volunteer duties with Democratic Party Headquarters, the Republican Central Committee, Citizens Inter-racial Committee, Timken Art Gallery, or the San Diego Symphony.

They will couple these assignments with campus-conducted studies into aspects of their field work.

Mother Sally Furay, in charge of the project, said the idea evolved from student complaints at an East Coast conference that modern education lacks involvement "in the stream of the 20th Century."

If the program succeeds, Mother Furay said, she hopes it can be broadened to more community agencies next year.

At the College for Men, the Very Rev. John E. Baer begins his first terms as the college's fourth president. Father Baer, former president of St. Francis College, succeeds the Very Rev. John P. Cadden.

Under Dr. Gerald Sperrazzo, the men's college is opening an Educational Development Center to help students in such fields as reading, vocational goals and efficient use of time.

The center also will operate a Learning Laboratory to permit students to review topics they have already studied, or to pursue new areas of knowledge.

USD's School of Law started 1967-68 classes Thursday under accreditation by the Association of American Law Schools and with a new assistant dean, Mrs. Doris Alspaugh, formerly of California Western University.

Law students this year can enter national or international moot court programs and can help attorneys prepare specialized legal cases as members of the Law Students Civil Rights Research Council.

College for Women students will register Wednesday and start classes Thursday. Orientation and registration begin tomorrow at the College for Men, with classes to start Friday.

For the University of California at San Diego, where fall quarter preliminaries begin Sept. 25, 1967-68 will see the opening of the new John Muir College and commencement of the campus' original freshman class.

About 3,050 students are predicted, 2,670 of them at Revelle College and 380 at Muir. The total is almost 800 more than last fall. Among undergraduates, men will outnumber women two to one.

In the autumn of 1964 a group of 181 beame UCSD's first undergraduates. This year about 100 of the one-time freshmen are seniors. They will graduate with fanfare next spring.

Opening for the first time will be Blake and Argo residence halls, a $2.5-million project at Revelle College, and a $307,000 student-financed swimming pool called a natatorium.

Under construction are a $15-million Basic Science Building to house first undergraduates next fall in the UCSD Medical School; a $1.5-million gym; and a $4.8-million first unit for Muir College.

Also starting this year: Two other Muir classroom buildings totaling $6 million; the starting increment in a $7-million Muir dormitory project; and UCSD's flying-saucer-shaped $3.6-million library.

Most California Western University students will begin registering Sept. 18 for classes that start Sept. 21. Now a unit of the U.S. International University, Cal Western expects 2,400 students.

About 3,800 students are expected for classes conducted by University of California Extension. Most classes begin the week of Sept. 25.

Colleges In County To Enroll 60,000

18,200 Above Total Of 4 Years Ago;
SDS, Junior Colleges Chief Gainers

By CHARLES DAVIS

The San Diego Union's Education Writer

San Diego County's college population this fall will surge past the 60,000 mark, filling several of the colleges to their restless seams.

The estimate is 18,200 more than four years ago and 4,166 more than last fall. Almost two-thirds of the increase since a year ago will be in burgeoning junior colleges.

It is in junior colleges and at San Diego State that the largest turnouts will occur. Schedule adjustments and back-up supplies of additional teachers are being lined up to ease looming difficulties.

ACTION TODAY

Most junior colleges and two units of the University of San Diego will start classes this week. The fall quarter instruction begins at the University of California Oct. 2.

Start-of-class preliminaries get under way today at San Diego State. Freshmen will climb Cowles Mountain to repaint the college's big "S" and President Malcolm Love will host a reception for new teachers.

Other get-acquainted events are scheduled tomorrow. Beginning Tuesday, a four-day registration period will test the college's estimate of an 18,704 fall-term turnout. Classes start Sept. 18.

If estimates are correct, San Diego State will have 870 students more than last year. Juniors and seniors will outnumber freshmen and sophomores almost two to one, and nearly one in five will be a graduate student.

DRAMA BUILDING

As is the case with the University of California, state colleges are operating with pared budgets. They are under orders to turn away students who exceed budgeted enrollments by more than 2 per cent.

SDS will put its $2.5-million Dramatic Arts Building, completed last spring, into its first instructional use. A $3.2-million student union, called Aztec Center, is scheduled for completion in March.

Also under construction is a $2-million triple-wing dormitory, the first co-educational residence hall on campus, and ground will be cleared this fall for a $10-million library complex.

Four new curriculums will be offered. One leads to a master's degree in Latin American studies. Bachelor's degree programs

Participants in the 10th annual Women of Valor awards luncheon yesterday at El Cotez Hotel included Mother Nancy Morris, a Women of Valor and president of University of San Diego College for Women; Rabbi Joel Goor, spiritual leader of Temple Beth Israel, whose Sisterhood sponsors the luncheon, and Mrs. Marvin Jacobs, general chairman.

IN THE CLUB WORLD

15 Women Of Valor Are Honored At Luncheon

By ELAINE HUBBARD

A revision to the adage that "woman's place is in the home" was made yesterday during the 10th annual "Women of Valor" awards presented by Temple Beth Israel Sisterhood. It should now read "in the home and in the community."

The enormous impact by San Diego area women on almost every aspect of community life was symbolized by the specific deeds of 15 women honored at the luncheon at El Cortez Hotel.

A tragic note was added this year to the awards presentations in a verbal and silent tribute to one of this year's women — the late Mrs. Theodor Geisel who died last month in her La Jolla home. Mrs. David Garfield, a past Woman of Valor and this year's awards commentator, paid a posthumous tribute to Mrs. Geisel for her outstanding contributions to the field of education and "for creating a literary world in which we have all spent many happy hours."

An estimated 600 women and men attended the luncheon which included a listing of each woman's contributions to San Diego and its residents, presentation of the traditional bouquet of red carnations by Rabbi Joel Goor, spiritual leader of Temple Beth Israel; a personal tribute by Mayor Frank Curran, and presentation of Woman of Valor commemorative gold charms by George A. Scott. Mrs. Marvin Jacobs presided as general chairman of the luncheon. She is a past president of the Sisterhood and a past Woman of Valor.

This year's women and the fields in which they made outstanding contributions are Mrs. C. Rankin Barnes, Protestant faith; Mrs. David A. Block, Jewish faith; Mrs. Walter J. DeBrunner, labor; Mrs. Ernest Ellis, international affairs; Mrs. Theodor Geisel, education; Mrs. John Hancock, business; Mrs. Arthur Heilbron, community affairs; Mrs. Bruno Hochmuth, military; Mrs. James H. Knox, humanitarian; Mrs. Ron Mix, sports; Mrs. Catherine Lewis Montgomery, youth activities; Mother Nancy Morris, professional; Mrs. Hanford T. Olsen, culture; Mrs. Roderick S. Patch, Catholic faith, and Mrs. Donald C. Rickman, interfaith.

The judges for this year's event were Mrs. Gertrude Alcaraz, Mason Bowen, Edward Butler, Carl Esenoff, Judge Roy Fitzgerald, David Garfield, Mrs. Michael Ibs Gonzalez, Murray D. Goodrich, Albert Harutunian Jr., George A. Scott, Mrs. Pearl Slayen and Msgr. John L. Storm.

MRS. FREDERICK W. BURKE, JR.

Patricia Ann Peebles, Frederick Burke Wed

Miss Patricia Ann Peebles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Peebles of Wauwatosa, Wis., became the bride of Frederick William Burke, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Burke of Pomona, in recent nuptial rites in St. Joseph's Cathedral.

The former Miss Peebles wore an en train gown of Peau de Soie, and an elbow length veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Kathleen Anderson, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Rebecca Winfree and Lois Bastian.

John F. Fox served as best man. James Jaegers, Richard Simon of the U.S. Navy Amphibious Base, and David Bullock were ushers.

The bride was graduated from Holy Angels Academy in Milwaukee and attended Marquette University, Maryville College of the Sacred Heart.

is teaching at St. Therese Academy. The bridegroom graduated from Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut, Calif., and San Diego State College.

They are making their home in San Diego after returning from a trip to Northern California.

Nine Campuses Point To 21st Century probe the seven seas.

Meantime, the university campus has added a challenging spectrum of graduate instruction and research. Its faculty includes two Nobel laureates and 14 members of the National Academy of Sciences.

Entering next fall will be the campus' initial complement of 150 or more freshmen. The curriculum they face will be demanding, exciting and, in the main, unlike none other in the country.

First-year students, for example, without exception, will study calculus, analytical geometry and linear algebra that are planned to hold as much meaning for future humanists as for future science majors.

UCSD will soar. In 1970 it is planned to house 3,225 undergraduates and 1,950 graduate students. By 1975 its enrollments are expected to reach 19,385; by the year 2000, the total will be 27,500.

To accommodate them all, the university plans a $300 million campus of 12 autonomous colleges. The idea is to maintain individuality of students in a big campus environment.

After admitting the first undergraduates in September, UCSD's next landmark will be to open a medical school in two years. It will be the first of several professional schools.

Medical students, at the outset, will do most of their training at the new $12 million County Hospital, later spending increased time on campus. Still later a cooperative arrangement is envisioned with the planned $30 million Veterans Hospital.

The medical school will be the third such publicly supported institution in the state. Within a few years, it will turn out classes of 100. Its faculty will total 146.

In San Diego, the fastest growing segment of higher education is in junior colleges. There was one such college in the metropolitan area four years ago; today there are five.

In addition, there are commercial ventures such as Electronic Technical Institute and business schools.

Behind California's public, locally controlled junior colleges are ideas that have just begun to dawn in other states. Chief among them is two years of quality, tuition-free education beyond high school.

San Diego City, San Diego Mesa, San Diego Evening, Grossmont and Southwestern colleges strive to train students for careers, to instill in them general knowledge, to build cultural values and to provide courses the equal of any in the four-year state colleges and university, to which junior college students may transfer after two years.

Growing with San Diego's publicly supported institutions are California

Western University, started in 1952, and the University of San Diego, for which ground was broken in 1949.

Both universities have their own law schools, the only law schools between Los Angeles and the Mexican border. Both have developed in recent years and are accredited.

USD, operated under the San Diego Catholic Diocese, has some 1,200 students at its College for Men and College for Women, the latter operated by the Society of the Sacred Heart.

Enrollment at California Western, 1,816 now, is expected to reach 6,000 in 10 years. Recently, a three-story $500,000 classroom building was announced to help meet expansion needs.

The colleges and universities of San Diego are there to develop talent. They are an investment in the future not only for students enrolled in them, but the community which is served by them.

Coeducation Study To Start at USD

A reciprocal course program under which undergraduate men and women students at the University of San Diego will share classrooms and study facilities for the first time was announced today by the Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, university chancellor and bishop of the San Diego Catholic Diocese.

The plan will become effective immediately under terms of an agreement signed by Mother Nancy Morris, president of the university's College for Women and the Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, president of the College for Men.

Library Use

Officials said men students will begin using the library in the College for Women next week. However, for the most-part the program will not go into effect until September.

Bishop Furey emphasized that the College for Men and the College for Women will continue to administer their own programs and to admit, educate, counsel and graduate their own students.

Mother Morris and Father Cadden said they are concerned about "the opportunity for a wider and more fruitful cooperation between the two colleges.

Aim Voted

"We want to see how we can better coordinate our efforts on behalf of the young men and women whom we serve," they said. "The aim of both administrators and the faculty at the two colleges is to keep the special function and characteristics of each college, while at the same time sharing facilities with the other for the improvement of both."

Bishop Furey said the program is expected to result in economy and better scholastic achievements.

The officials said the co-instructional program will involve 120 courses in its initial stages. This is less than half the total number of courses offered by both colleges, they said.

In September, for example, courses in music, art, drama for Women. Courses in the College for Men in business administration, accounting, psychology, economics and mathematics will be open to women students.

History Told

Each college will determine the eligibility of students to take these courses, officials said.

The College for Women, which was opened in 1951, has a current enrollment of 680 students. The College for Men, which has been in operation since 1954, now has 476 students.

The university's law school has had men and women students for several years. It now has 324 full-time and part-time students.

In answer to a question, Bishop Furey said it is "a possibility" that all undergraduate courses eventually will be available to both men and women students.

USD Moves Toward Coed Class Program

By NANCY STANFORD

An agreement paving the way toward coeducational classes at the University of San Diego was signed yesterday by the presidents of the school's College for Women and College for Men.

The agreement calls for the initiation of "reciprocal" classes for upperclassmen beginning in September.

Terms of the agreement provide that eligible juniors and seniors in the College for Men may attend selected classes in the College for Women and vice versa. About 120 classes, less than a third offered by the two colleges, will be affected by the arrangement.

Most Rev. Francis J. Furey, university chancellor and bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Diego, said that "possibly all" of the school's courses could someday be taught on a reciprocal basis.

ACCORD SIGNED

The agreement was signed yesterday in his office by Mother Nancy Morris, College for Women president, and the Very Rev. John Paul Cadden, College for Men president.

Both emphasized that the two colleges will maintain their own administrations and will continue to handle their own admissions, counseling, education and graduation.

"The aim of both administrators and faculty at the two colleges is to keep the special function and characteristic of each college, while at the same time sharing facilities with the other for the improvement of both," Bishop Furey said.

COURSES LISTED

Students now are pre-registering for the courses. The College for Women will open courses in music, art, drama and French to men students, and the men's college will open courses in business administration, accounting, psychology, economics and mathematics.

The colleges now maintain separate facilities, including separate libraries and laboratories for men and women students, and Bishop Furey said the sharing approach will be more economical.

He said the current system requires "duplication of faculty that was both unnecessary and uneconomical."

BROADER BASE

Father Cadden said the new system also would allow the university to hire teachers for full-time teaching loads. Previously, each college hired its own teachers and sometimes could not provide full-time work within its own system.

He also said that industry today is seeking students with a broader base in education and the new system would provide this. Previously, some men students were allowed to take music courses in the College for Women but were not given credits for their work.

Mother Morris endorsed the principle of maintaining separate college identities and commented, "I believe in women's colleges for women's education because women withdraw when they are on equal grounds with men and they meet with unfair competition."

Ineligible for the reciprocal courses will be freshmen and sophomores, unless they receive special approval from their college, students on academic probation and seminarians in the College for Men.

UNTIL 1969

The agreement, which does not extend to summer school classes, will be effective until the end of the 1968-69 school year. The agreement makes no provision for continuation of the reciprocal classes after that time and can be canceled before then by either college president or by Bishop Furey.

The women's college has an enrollment of 680 students, and the men's college has 497 students. The agreement will not affect the university's School of Law, which is open to both men and women.
