Undergraduate Majors at USD

The Registrar's Office has provided a listing (attached) of the number of students indicating a major in the various disciplines. The data is applicable for Fall semester, 1997, though of course, all will realize that data on declaration of majors is in constant flux as students change their majors or move from "undeclared" status to declaration of major. The data should, therefore, be considered only an approximation. Because changes of major are rare among seniors, less common among juniors, and quite usual among sophomores and freshmen, it is relevant to know the level of students listed. Therefore, the information on undergraduate majors has been subdivided into upper division and lower division students.

Call for Proposals--Social Issues Team-Taught courses, 1998-99

As in the past, the Social Issues Committee is sponsoring two to three team-taught courses during the Spring semester. These may be interdisciplinary, or from the same college, school, or department. One of the departments will be reimbursed for the faculty who participate, and the faculty will each receive a $1,000.00 stipend for joint January preparation.

The Social Issues Committee has chosen the theme, "Challenging Justice," for the next academic year (1998-99). This broad theme suggests approaching a large variety of subjects from the point of speaker-events. We strongly recommend that proposals include participation in Social Issues programming. This component will be taken into consideration in evaluating the proposals.

Though the theme is broad, it should inspire a wide range of topics within the academic disciplines. Some suggestions raised in our group deliberations were: political ballot initiatives; justice before the law; equality of opportunity; economic justice, etc.

Due date for proposals is February 2, 1998. Notification will be given by February 23, 1998. Signatures must be obtained from your department chair on your proposal. Proposals accepted will be submitted to the Dean. Proposals should be sent to the Office of Community Service-Learning, Maher 218.

Fellowships and Grants

1998-1999 NSEP Graduate Fellowships for International Studies

The National Security Education Program, created by Congress in 1991, addresses the need to increase the ability of Americans to communicate and compete globally by knowing the languages and culture of other countries. NSEP embodies a recognition that the scope of national security has expanded to include not only the traditional concerns of protecting and promoting American well-being, but the new challenges of global society, including: sustainable development, environmental degradation, global disease and hunger, population growth and migration, and economic competitiveness.

NSEP has supported nearly 400 graduate students over the past three years. As students pursue graduate education, NSEP Graduate International Fellowships offer an unique opportunity to expand understanding of countries and languages critical to U.S. national security. Each year, NSEP makes it possible for 100-150 graduate students to pursue the study of languages and cultures. For those interested in studying areas of the world other than Western Europe, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, NSEP offers an important opportunity.

DEADLINE: January 15, 1998.

COUNTRIES, LANGUAGES, FIELDS OF STUDY: NSEP emphasizes countries, languages, and fields of study deemed critical to U.S. national security. Applicants can select from a list that includes more than 60 countries and 30 languages. NSEP emphasizes a diverse list of fields of study, including business, political science, applied sciences, international affairs, engineering, health, law, economics, history, and other social sciences.

FUNDING: Awards are made for a minimum of one academic semester and a maximum of 24 months. The basic grant for domestic language or area study is $2,000 per semester. Overseas study is based on program expenses. The maximum award is $10,000 per semester for overseas study for up to two semesters ($20,000).

SERVICE REQUIREMENT: All NSEP fellowship recipients agree to work either with a U.S. government agency with national security responsibilities or in higher education, in that order of priority. Eligible federal agencies include, among others, the Departments of Commerce, Defense, Energy, Justice, and State and the Intelligence Community, as well as more than 25 committees and subcommittees of the U.S. Congress. The length of the service obligation is equivalent to the duration of support from NSEP.

ELIGIBILITY, APPLICATION AND SELECTION: NSEP welcomes applications from U.S. citizens enrolled in or applying to a graduate degree program in an accredited U.S. college or university. Applicants design their own programs and may combine domestic language and cultural study with overseas study. All fellowships must include formal study of a modern language other than English and the study of an area and culture. Applicants are considered in a two-stage national merit review process. Awards are announced in May.

East-West Center 1998 Scholarships and Fellowships

The U.S. Congress established the East-West Center in 1960 to foster mutual understanding and cooperation among the governments and peoples of the Asia Pacific region, including the United States. Officially known as the Center for Cultural and Technical Interchange Between East and West, it is a public, non-profit institution with an international board of governors. Principal funding for the Center comes from the U.S. government, with additional support provided by private agencies, individuals and corporations and more than 20 Asian and Pacific governments.

The Center promotes responsible development, long-term stability and human dignity for all people in the region and helps prepare the United States for constructive involvement in Asia and the Pacific through research, education and dialogue. It provides a neutral meeting ground at which people with wide range of perspectives exchange views on topics of regional concern. Some 2,000 scholars, government and business leaders, educators, journalists and other professionals from throughout the region annually work with the Center's staff to address topics of contemporary significance in such areas as international economics and politics, the environment, population, energy and mineral resources, and cultural studies, communications and journalism and Pacific Islands development.

Graduate Degree Fellowships are available to individuals interested in participating in the educational and research programs at the East-West Center while pursuing graduate degree study at the University of Hawai'i. Preference is given to master's applicants but outstanding doctoral applicants will be considered.

Eligibility Requirements:

1. Applicants must be citizens or permanent residents of the United States or citizens of countries within the Center's mandated geographical region, which encompasses most countries in Asia and the Pacific including Russia, in order to be supported by Center funds provided by the U.S. government. While citizens of countries outside the region are welcome to apply, financial assistance to support their participation must be provided by other sources arranged by the individual such as scholarships, fellowships, or grants.
2. Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the University of Hawai'i Graduate Division if not currently enrolled as a classified graduate student.

General Requirements and Information:

All award recipients who are not U.S. citizens or permanent residents, must meet all exchange visitor (J-visa) requirements. Whether or not a fellowship or scholarship competition is conducted as well as the number of fellowships or scholarships offered is dependent on the availability of funds.

Application Forms and additional information on the fellowship and scholarship competition may be obtained from:
