Over 1,350 financial aid administrators attended the session entitled Student Aid Awareness and College Access. Ms. Lewis Logue was asked to address the challenge of reaching first-generation students from low-income families and to share the experience of Cal-SOAP, a 25 year old statewide program that serves over 100,000 low-income, first-generation students a year. Cal-SOAP is the largest early outreach program in the United States.
