ANATOMY OF A TRIAL. Alan E. Morrill. Chicago: Commerce Clearing House, Inc. 1968. Pp. 236. $8.50. Mr. Morrill, a practical trial lawyer, dissects a trial from the voir dire examination to summation placing constant emphasis on the importance of psychology in persuading the jurors. Actual trials and pertinent inquiries exemplify each technique to make this book a significant contribution to the trial lawyer's art of jury persuasion.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT COSTS AND PAYMENTS. Alfred F. Conard, James N. Morgan, Robert W. Pratt, Jr., Charles E. Voltz, and Robert L. Bombaugh. Ann Arbor, Michigan: University of Michigan Press. 1964. Pp. 506. $12.50. Most Americans have either experienced injury from an automobile accident, or have known someone who has. For those interested in comparing the amount of their recovery or costs arising from such accidents, with similar accidents in other jurisdictions, including Europe, this book presents the first survey making such information available. The authors, experts in the fields of law, economics, insurance, and the automobile industry, answer questions as to a victim's chances of recovering from an insurance company, the means of recovery other than by law suit, and the costs involved in collecting a claim.

CRISIS IN THE COURTS. Howard James. New York: Van Rees Press. 1968. Pp. 267. $5.50. Based upon a collection of articles he wrote for The Christian Science Monitor, newspaperman Howard James explores the inadequacies of the judicial process in Crisis in the Courts. He exposes the backlogs in courts, the incompetency of current court and police procedures, and the weaknesses in the present jury and adversary systems in an attempt to provoke reform measures in the nation's judicial system. Many proposed reform measures are also evaluated.

DISOBEDIENCE AND DEMOCRACY. Howard Zinn. New York: Random House. 1968. Pp. 124. $3.95. Mr. Zinn examines Justice Abe Fortas' recent booklet Concerning Dissent and Civil Disobedience and concludes, contra to Mr. Fortas, that traditional methods of change no longer work. Civil disobedience may be invoked to solve the condition of the black person, the existence of poverty, the continuance of wars, etc. Mr. Zinn urges the right of citizens to disobey dangerous laws as being of the very essence of democracy. In this manner, the author believes the whole structure of American society will change for the better.

DIVORCE AND CUSTODY FOR MEN. Charles V. Metz. Garden City, New York: Doubleday and Company, Inc. 1968. Pp. 147. $4.95. Designed to arm men with the means to protect themselves from wives who may divorce them, Mr. Metz writes a detailed guide to divorce, offers help in recognizing tell-tale signs of danger in a marriage, and advises how to beat your wife to the punch and file first. Mr. Metz also provides information on selecting a lawyer, gaining custody of your children, and avoiding inequitable alimony arrangements.

EXPLORATIONS IN AEROSPACE LAW: SELECTED ESSAYS BY JOHN COBB COOPER. Ivan A. Vlasic, ed. Montreal: McGill University Press. 1967. Pp. 457. $12.50. A systematic study of the early developments in air law, including Professor Cooper's analysis of the various aspects of air space sovereignty, and inquiries into the legal problems of space flight. This volume, covering the author's writings during the past two decades, will be of interest to professionals in the field, as well as those concerned with the relationship of aerospace technology to international affairs.

FOOLISH FIGLEAVES? PORNOGRAPHY IN-AND-OUT OF COURT. Richard H. Kuh. New York: The MacMillan Co. 1967. Pp. 368. $7.95. In Foolish Figleaves? Mr. Kuh places the complexities of pornography litigation within a framework of light-hearted criticism of present doctrines. The author uses a frank pro and con discussion of past decisions as a vehicle to a more moderate, non-traditional approach for antiobscenity enforcement. Unlike many magazines and legal journals which omit specific pornographic references, the book contains the obscenities raised by the various cases. It is of value to both lawyer and laymen for its insight into this very thorny problem.

THE GREAT TAX FRAUD. Martin A. Larson. New York: The Devin-Adair Co. 1968. Pp. 326. $5.95. This in-depth analysis of the Internal Revenue Code focuses on the history and operation of the internal revenue system, in exposing its inequities and irrational provisions. The author emphasizes the system's numerous loopholes which enable large corporations and millionaires to legally escape all taxation resulting in a loss of forty billion dollars a year to the government. The author has proposed an intricate plan of eliminating ten types of legal avoidance which, if adopted, would increase the government's income by twenty billion dollars, and at the same time, make a more equitable system.

INTENTION IN LAW AND SOCIETY. James Marshall. New York: Funk and Wagnalls. 1968. Pp. 229. $5.95. Beginning with a history of the concept of intent, the author thoroughly analyzes a scientific and psychological approach to its legal meaning. This is followed by an examination of "intent" in its expanding applications under modern conditions. Mr. Marshall then concludes by questioning whether the law can adapt to changing knowledge concerning the prior basic assumptions with regard to intent.

A LAWYERS JOB. Edward S. Greenbaum. New York: Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc. 1967. Pp. 246. $6.95. An argument is presented in favor of general practice as opposed to specialization. The author draws upon experience in private practice as well as his military experience gained in the two World Wars. His philosophy is based on the principle that law pervades every facet of life, and specialization can deprive one of a fulfilling career in the law.

LEGAL PITFALLS IN ARCHITECTURE, ENGINEERING, AND BUILDING CONSTRUCTION. Theodore K. Rohdenburg & Nathan Walker. New York: McGraw-Hill Book Co. 1968. Pp. 253. $11.95. Co-authored in non-legal language by an architect and an attorney, this book is intended to educate those engaged in the designing or construction professions of certain legal pitfalls. Written agreements stipulating all contingencies are stressed, with attention to compensation, cost limitations, and professional duties. Other topics relevant to the owner-architect and the owner-contractor relationships include: standards of performance, responsibilities to the public, relationships of several contractors, liens and bonds, intraprofessional relationships, and consultant agreements.

THE NEGLIGENT DOCTOR. Charles Kramer. New York: Crown Publishers, Inc. 1968. Pp. 255. $5.95. The author is a prominent attorney specializing in medical malpractice litigation. By reading The Negligent Doctor, the reader gains an insight into the problems surrounding malpractice cases, and more specifically, the "conspiracy of silence".

THE PRETRIAL CONFERENCE AND EFFECTIVE JUSTICE: A CONTROLLED TEST IN PERSONAL INJURY LITIGATION. Maurice Rosenberg. New York: Columbia University Press. 1964. Pp. 249. $7.75. This study evaluates New Jersey pretrial conferences between judges and lawyers in accident cases. The program, under the auspices of Columbia University Project for Effective Justice, began in early 1960 and continued for two years. The test cases that provided the bulk of the information for this report were supplemented by observations of New Jersey judges, experienced in pretrial conferences. This study provides not only insight into how the pretrial conference has performed in the past, but how it may be improved in the future.

THE ROLE OF PSYCHIATRY IN LAW. Manfred S. Guttmacher, M.D. Springfield, Illinois: Charles C. Thomas. 1968. Pp. 156. $12.00. Dr. Guttmacher appeals to the legal profession for greater reliance on the psychiatrist for advice in the criminal courtroom. Because it makes better psychiatric sense, he urges that the Durham Rule replace the inflexible M'Naughten Rule of Responsibility. Included in this discussion are examinations of a psychiatric study of Jack Ruby, the irresistible impulse, and diminished responsibility.

TAX-FREE REORGANIZATIONS. Dr. Robert S. Holzman. Lynbrook, New York: Farnsworth Publishing Company, Inc. 1967. Pp. 416. $10.50. In an absorbing treatise designed primarily for accountants, trust officers and corporate executives, Professor Holzman examines in detail the tax aspects, from a legal point of view, resulting from mergers, liquidations, spinoffs and other corporate reorganizations. In addition to citing approximately 575 tax cases, the author discusses subjective tests used by courts to plug tax loopholes, reasons for and against corporate reorganizations with the formalities involved, bailouts and redemptions and the nature of a collapsible corporation.

VARIETIES OF POLICE BEHAVIOR. James Q. Wilson. Cambridge, Massachusetts: Harvard University Press. 1968. Pp. 309. $6.50. The patrolman has the most difficult and least understood task in the police department. In this important and timely book the author describes the patrolman and the problems that arise out of constraints imposed by law, politics, public opinion, and the expectation of superiors.
