Canadian consular officials recently presented 200 books to the Copley Library on behalf of the Canada Council. The books are a cross-section of contemporary Canadian writing in the fields of literature, poetry, economics, politics, and business. Half are in English; half in French.

Donald Creighton's Canada: The Heroic Beginnings was of special interest to Library Director Marian Holleman as he was her college instructor. Also of particular interest to Holleman "because I am a Canadian" are Farley Mowat's The Snow Walker, Mike: The Memoirs of the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson, 1957-68 edited by John A. Munro and Alex Inglis, and Helen McNamara and Jack Lomas' The Big Bands Canadians Danced To. Some of the bands such as Guy Lombardo's came to the States; some of the bands went up to Canada.
